Preheat oven 450° F. Use a 9-inch pie pan and only standard level measurements. Sift 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour and ½ tsp. salt into a bowl. Cut ⅓ cup Swiftning into flour with pastry blender or 2 knives until particles are size of small peas. Sprinkle cold water, a little at a time, over different parts of flour mixture, tossing lightly with a fork. Use as little water as possible, enough to make dough hold together. (3 tbsps. or less!) Place dough on waxed paper. Press gently with the palms into a ball. Let stand at room temperature for a few minutes.

Cover board with pastry canvas, rolling pin with knitted cover, both lightly floured. Roll dough in circle, ⅛" thick. Use light strokes, work from center out. Lift rolling pin as it nears edge. Invert pie pan on dough, cut dough 1½" beyond edge of pan. Fold dough in half, lay fold in center of pan; unfold. Pat dough to pan. Press with finger-tips from center out to remove air bubbles. Prick with fork in several places. To form standing rim, double under the pastry extending over edge of pan. Flute with fingers. Cut 10 leaves from remaining crust. Bake until light brown, allowing 12 to 15 minutes for pie, about 3 minutes for leaves.

LEMON FILLING

Soak 2 tsps. unflavoured gelatin in ½ cup cold water about 5 min. Put 3 slightly beaten egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup lemon juice, ½ tsp. salt in a double boiler. Cook over boiling water until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Add gelatin, stir until dissolved. Add 1 tbsp. grated lemon rind, remove from heat, chill until beginning to set. Beat 3 egg whites until fairly stiff; gradually add ½ cup sugar, beating constantly. Fold into cooled gelatin mix. Pour into cooled pie shell; chill till set. Trim with prepared strawberry halves or other fruit, and the pastry-leaves sprinkled with green-coloured sugar!

These were very much appreciated.

Mrs. Clancy gave a thought-provoking message on "Our Democratic Freedom", and cited several cases where the enemy of freedom was making inroads. It was up to the Institute members to read and take an interest in the governments and what was going on throughout the world today.

St. Patrick's Day Program

A piano duet by Misses Joan Holmes and Donna Devolin was an interesting addition to the young girls' part. A vote of appreciation to the visitors and all who took part in the program was unanimous. "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen", and the National Anthem brought a pleasant afternoon meeting to a close.

The Irish Roll Call showed 27 members, 10 club members and 10 visitors in attendance.

A social hour followed with Mrs. West, Mrs. Jack Henderson, Mrs. Kernahan and Mrs. Jas. Aylesworth assisting the hostess. Mrs. George Watson, Mrs. Lorne Watson of Wellman's, Mrs. Harlow of Bonarlaw, accompanied Mrs. Clancy on her official visit to Madoc Institute.

Mrs. Love then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Newell Broad who gave a very interesting review of the book "Southern Cross" by Brigad Knight. Two numbers by a group of Irish minstrels gave a St. Patrick's touch to the program and was much enjoyed. Mrs. Rankin was the winner of the contest which followed.

Interesting Events of Past 60 Years Of Shannonville W.M.S. Reviewed

Shannonville — Shannonville United Church celebrated a special event in its history on Friday last, when the Women's Missionary Society of the church celebrated the 80th anniversary of its formation. This event was marked by a special service being held in the church that evening. A large number were in attendance including guests from Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Melrose Woman's Missionary Society, members from Salem and Lonsdale congregations; also visitors from the district and former residents of Shannonville, who were associated with the W.M.S. during the years past.

The president, Mrs. Frank Doxtator, presided over this service. In front of the pulpit was a beautiful three-storey birthday cake which stood on a table graced by six tall white candles, and an exquisite lace cloth. The cake was the work of Mrs. Stanley MacDonald and Mrs. Kenneth Vivian. The church choir was in attendance.

Former Residents Present

The president requested that all the past presidents of the society be seated in the front seats. Those able to be present on this occasion were Mrs. (Rev.) Seymour of Kingston; Mrs. E. E. Mills; Mrs. Stanley MacDonald and Mrs. Everett Stratton. Prayer was rendered by Mrs. E. E. Mills; to open this special service, Mrs. Herb Houston expressed thanks from Holy Trinity Anglican Church for the invitation to attend, and celebrate this special anniversary of the W.M.S.

The president, Mrs. Doxtator, welcomed the guests and expressed her appreciation at seeing such a large number present to help commemorate this special evening.

Interesting Events Reviewed

The secretary, Mrs. Audrey Robertson, gave an interesting review of the events transpiring in the sixty years of the history of the society, which was taken from treasurers' old reports and secretaries' minute books. It was interesting and puzzling to hear the maiden names of members mentioned, who are since married and still residing in the community. It appears that Mrs. R. Lazier was the first president of the newly formed society in 1888. It was quite amazing to hear of a quilting and tea being held at the home of Mrs. Stickney 1901 and the sum of five dollars being cleared for this afternoon tea. That year Mrs. L. F. Mills was the president and at the April meeting contributed a solo.

In 1903 several new members were enrolled, the present president Mrs. Doxtator, then Miss Winston, being among these new members. Many old receipts were read from the treasure's book addressed to Miss Lena Earle, now Mrs. J. F. MacFarlane.

In 1904 the society entertained the delegates of a convention in their home, rather than serving meals in the hall, which showed the members were very hospitable and energetic.

In 1905 Miss Ahnie Blatherwick became secretary and in April of that year Mrs. L. E. Mills was presented with life membership in the society, and a gold pin.

In 1906 Mrs. Mills resigned on account of ill health and Mrs. Peacock became president.

In 1907 Mrs. Morden became the president.

That same years Mrs. Burtt was appointed superintendent of the "Little Light Bearers," now known as the Baby Band.

At the July meeting, Miss Ethel Reid, now Mrs. Saul MacFarlane sang a solo. Mrs. R. Vivian was presented with a life membership pin that same year. Mrs. A. MacDonald became a member in 1910 and Mrs. Byron Emmons in 1911. Attendance was very small at some of these early meetings but the few faithfully carried on until others became interested and at the present time, the membership is over thirty.

Plant Presented

The only charter member, Mrs. L. E. Mills was called to the front of the church and Mrs. Stanley MacDonald presented her with a beautiful plant in recognition of her many years of faithful service in the Women's Missionary Society. Mrs. Mills expressed her heartfelt thanks for this expression of appreciation. Later in the evening Mrs. Mills was presented with the top section of the birthday cake. Mrs. Mills is now in her "eighties" and was accompanied to this special event by her husband, Mr. Mills, who is now the grand old age of ninety-six. Both have been workers in the church for many years and ill-health has forced them to lead a quieter life.

Letters of Greeting

Letters of greeting from former members were read by Miss Sarah Stickney from Mrs. Miner of Exeter, formerly Mrs. (Rev.) Coombes. Mrs. Miner is now in her ninetieth year, and in her letter reviewed the work of the society during the time she resided in Shannonville. Mrs. Cleary of Toronto, also sent a letter of greeting. Mrs. (Rev.) Seymour gave words of greeting and her appreciation of being invited to be present. Mrs. Robertson read a letter from Mrs. (Rev.) W. H. Clarke of Devonville, who was unable to be present and a letter from Mrs. (Rev.) Craig of Morrisburg expressing their best wishes.

Musical Rendition

Contributions to the musical part of the service were made by a ladies quartet, comprising Mrs. Elmer Vivian; Mrs. Damon Hinchey; Mrs. James Vesterfelt and Mrs. G. M. Fraser. The choir rendered a pleasing voluntary. Mrs. James Vesterfelt sang a solo. A mixed quartet comprising Mrs. Damon Hinchey, Mrs. G. M. Fraser, Rev. E. M. Caldwell and Rev. A. W. Lougheed rendered a selection completing the musical portion of the service.

During the offering Master Gary Sine rendered a pleasing selection on the guitar. Mrs. Harry Sine presided at the piano for this special service.

Talks on "Farewell of the Present Day"

Mrs. A. W. Lougheed introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. F. Harback of Tabernacle United Church, Belleville. She spoke of the turmoil of the present day not only in Europe but at home.

"New visions come, and we must go forward. We often find we are not followers of Christ when tragedy strikes," she said. She reminded that "God would not let us live a calm uneventful life; that we can't be sure we'll have everything we plan for as God may have other plans for us."

Mrs. Harback spoke of the life of Christ and the part He played in the eyes of people of His society. He was also a victim of great religious leaders of that day, but Christ still remains, while the memory of those has faded. God was in the march and is still today.

Expresses Thanks

Rev. A. W. Lougheed, pastor of the church, thanked Mrs. Harback for her inspiring address.

Mrs. Archie Gratrix tendered a vote of thanks to all who had contributed to the success of the evening. The ladies of the society served refreshments bringing to a close an enjoyable evening.

May Charge Service Rates For Use of Sewers

Toronto, March 24 — (CP) — Municipalities may charge service rates for the use of small sewers, by the terms of a bill approved yesterday by the Ontario Legislature Committee on Municipal Law.

Rates charged for the use of sewers would be similar to water rates. The bill would allow the municipality to charge residents whatever percentage of the cost it chose.

It was expected that only smaller communities would take advantage of the legislation. In larger communities where virtually all residents are served with sewers costs of construction are met by local improvement taxes and maintenance costs from general revenue.

The committee deleted from another bill a section that would have allowed municipalities to close roads leading or adjacent to water, entering on the King's Highways, or entering on a public road or bridge.

The section provided that to close such roads permission would have to be obtained from the Municipal Affairs Department.

Highways Minister Doucett, speaking against the bill sponsored by Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar, said that when the department's approval was given citizens would have no appeal.

Under the present legislation municipalities may close such roads by passing a by-law. An appeal may be lodged with the Ontario Government.

DEATH PLUNGE OF TWO STUDENTS DISCLOSED

Yosemite, Calif., March 24 — (AP) — The death plunge of two Stanford University students down a 620-foot ledge at Yosemite was disclosed Wednesday night with the discovery of their snow-covered bodies. Their bodies were located investigating Rangers to conclude they had fallen at least 400 feet. They had attempted to climb the ledge linked by 100 feet of rope, a length considered by veterans as too great.

I wish to take this opportunity to say that I have no electrical equipment in my premises that is causing radio disturbance in our locality. Red Wings Rule Firm Favorites To Take Game

Detroit, March 24 — (CP) — Detroit Red Wings ruled firm favorites to take Montreal Canadiens tonight in the second game of their semi-final Stanley Cup series.

But manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings, though still jubilant over his club's 3-1 victory over Montreal in the third overtime period Tuesday night, made no claims about the series ending in four straight. Both he and coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens saw the best-of-seven series going at least six games.

Looking at the picture another way, the Wings virtually have beaten the Canadiens in three games this week. First there was the 2-1 triumph in the last game of the regular season here Sunday. That setback was as crucial a defeat for Montreal as though it had come in playoff action.

The loss prevented the Canadiens, who finished in third place, from clinching the runner - up spot in the National Hockey League. Had they won they would have finished one point ahead of second-place Boston.

Then came the first game of the playoffs which was almost as long as two normal games after 2 dairs. That game went 104 minutes and 53 seconds before Max Mc-Nab's goal ended it. Then came the off the leg of Glen Harmon, Montreal defenceman, for the winning Detroit goal.

The players in both camps were given a day off Wednesday. Two men could use even more time to get back into top shape. Leo Reise Detroit defenceman, and Emile Lach, star centre for the Canadiens, have painful injuries.

Reise picked up a severe muscular injury in a collision with Ken Mosdell, and Lach aggravated his injured jaw.

Although they may be given limited duty, both are expected to play tonight. After tonight the series will shift to Montreal for the next two games. Saturday night and next Tuesday.

Sport Shorts From Britain

London, March 24 — (CP) — Britain's speedway riders breathe easier these days. Their hoodoo is dead.

In a Staffordshire workshop lie the crumpled remains of "The Killer," one of the best - known bikes which ever kicked up dust on speedway tracks. For 18 years it was a rider's bogey.

Australian ace Ron Johnson had The Killer built in 1933. It cost him a finger, more bruises than he could count, a couple of toes.

The late Bluey Wilkinson, then speedway racing's world champion, borrowed the jinxed racing machine, hit a fence at the first turn and gave the bike back to Johnson.

Colin Watson, once captain of England and Wembley, tried it out once and broke an ankle. Picqued, he bought the machine. In July, 1946, The Killer threw him for the spill which ended Watson's riding career.

The other day 36-year-old Arthur Maxfield went for a spin. His foot-rest caught in a wire safety fence. Rider and bike parted company. Maxfield escaped with bruises, but the Killer was too badly damaged to repair.

The love of a man for a horse brings a new president to Britain's Royal Academy next year. At 70, Sir Alfred Munnings is retiring up the job because he wants to see a few horses.

"You've heard of the Two Thousand Guineas, haven't you?" he says. "Well, it always happens that private - view day at the Academy is the Guineas day, and I find myself torn between the two."

The Guineas run in May, is the first of Britain's flat-racing classics.

Sir Alfred is a renowned painter of the English scene, particularly of horses and racing. He became the Academy's 16th president in 1944. His resignation is effective Dec. 5, 1948.

Football pools, one of Britain's biggest businesses, are crowding cock fighting out of the picture. The sport no longer flourishes in Ireland's Lake of Shadows district, police report, because men who used to watch the fights would rather take a flutter in the weekly pools . . . Johnny Leach of Morden, Surrey, new world's table tennis champion, sometimes wears a "winning" shirt for two weeks at a time. Washed and ironed every day, of course . . . Kiss on top — class soccer players are taking a course in how to run confectionery and tobacco stores. Training is provided free by the Football Association as part of a plan to guarantee security for players when they retire.

McFater Wins Close Decision

Hamilton, March 24 (CP)—Alan McFater of Toronto Wednesday night belied his way to a three-round decision over Vince Tyo of Cornwall in the 138-pound main bout of an amateur fight card.

Tyo went down under a barrage of left jabs and right crosses early in the second round but got up to land some of his own before the bell. McFater had the best of the remaining rounds but took several good solid rights to the head.

Other results:

125 lb.—Leo Sevelli, Hamilton won a three-round decision over Joe Tessier, Cornwall.

147 lb.—Harold Tyo, Cornwall won a five-round decision over Herbie Luke, Hamilton.

KITCHENER SIGNS CATCHER

Kitchener, Ont., March 24 (CP) —Ross Doherty, former catcher with Toronto Stafords, has signed with Kitchener Legion Panthers of the Senior Intercounty Baseball series.

The 30-year-old star, played professional ball with the Brooklyn Dodgers' chain two years ago.

Officials said they had not yet signed Harry Pauls, who may turn professional with Detroit Tigers, of the American League.

Answer Will be Given in Two Weeks to Players

New York, March 4 (AP) — It will be at least two weeks before Danny Dardella will get an answer on his plea for baseball reinstatement but an earlier decision is expected for two other banned former major leaguers, Max Lanier and Fred Martin.

Federal Judge Edward C. Conger said he probably would rule next week on the temporary injunction asked by Lanier and Martin, two former St. Louis Cardinal pitchers who are suing baseball for $1,500,000.

The former Cardinal players and Dardella the ousting New York Giant outfielder who is suing for $300,000, have asked that their playing rights be returned pending settlement of the cases.

The players, among nearly a score who were banned for five years for jumping to the Mexican League in 1946, are suing the game on the grounds that their suspensions have denied them a chance to earn a livelihood.

They contend in their suits that baseball is a monopoly which operates in violation of the anti-trust laws because the reserve clause in the standard contract binds a player to one club for life.

While announcing that he may rule next week on the request for a temporary injunction brought by Lanier and Martin, Judge Conger postponed to April 3 the date when the 16 major league clubs and the high officials of baseball must answer the complaint in the multi-million dollar suit.

GOVT CONGRATULATED

Ottawa, March 24 (CP) — An executive meeting of the Eastern Ontario Liberal Federation Wednesday night passed a resolution congratulating Finance Minister Abbott for an "excellent" budget brought down in the Commons Tuesday night.

NEW EXTRA EARLY HYBRID
SUGAR PRINCE
SWEET CORN
Of everyone who is short enough the whole Township is queen of sweet corn. Immediately noted in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, it is recommended in all other sections of west coast. Of medium height, but the ears are set low on the stalk, so they are not apt to be planted taller than corn can stand in prairie fashion. Ears are large and well filled. Delicately tender for table use and keeps its fine quality over a longer period than most sweets, only 14 to 16 days from milk to roasting ear stage. Matures in 65 to 67 days. Kernel is heavy creamy color. Stalk is strong and vigorous. Ears 7½ to 8 inches long. Kernels 8 rows wide. Packed in packets, 15 ins. to acre at 7½ per lb. by Express or Freight.

Toronto, March 24 (CP) —Finance Minister Abbott came out with a good budget for the little man, but he didn't help the poor bookie one iota.

In fact, says Ralph (Toronto Telegram) Allen, bookies still are confused by the government rake-off.

"With post time for annual shearing festival a scant five weeks away, the income tax man has dealt a brutal wound to the nation's race track pigeons, dice rollers and other lovers of the homeless buck," Allen writes.

The former western redhead cites the case of a man named Tom Pryma in Edmonton who says he has never gambled but is being nicked for $800—the state's lawful cut of an alleged $3,000 in gambling winnings which he was too sensitive to mention when he filed his returns in 1948 and 1946."

"Pryma has shown a proper distaste for the whole proceeding, intimating that he has no intention of coughing up," says Allen. "Far from winning $3,000 at the gambling table, he says he has not won one penny, or even lost one penny, and he defies the gunshoes to prove otherwise."

For Them or Ag'in Them?

Under the laws of the land, all professional gamblers are supposed to be in jail.

"That," says the Toronto sports scribe, "in billing gamblers for a slice of their earnings, while at the same time declaring these earnings unlawful, the government is, to say the least, inviting confusion.

"In effect, it hires one set of agents to go chasing the gambler down alleys with a nightstick, and another set of agents to collect up to him, brush the dandruff off his shoulder, offer him a light for his cigar and then inquire politely about a little donation for the public treasury.

"It is scant wonder that so many gamblers skitter, bite their fingernails and display other signs of maladjustment."

"Won't Holler Copper

"As a service to its clients," Allen says he was told, "the tax collector says he would not dream of hollering copper on any taxpayer who lets the information slip through on his T-4 that he has been accepting bets at Hialeah or taking the house end of a floating dice game. It is up to the copper to find out these things for himself. . .

"The Telegram columnist believes civilization is "getting pretty complicated when a man can't break the law without the government sticking its nose in and demanding a commission."

Training Camp Notes

At West Palm Beach, Fla., Jackie Robinson drove in four runs here with two singles and a long fly Wednesday as Brooklyn Dodgers defeated Philadelphia Athletics 8-3. Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., pitched the first six innings for the Athletics and gave up three runs.

That's the way they've been showing up in the exhibition games—and they haven't been winning consistently.

New York Giants, says Manager Leo Durocher, are not interested in "tomato" pitchers, so it appears that several rumored deals will be off.

For days there have been reports that the pitching-weak Giants have been dickering for mound talent, but apparently none of the offers has been to Leo's liking.

"Good pitch, no hit" still seems to be the motto of the world champion Cleveland Indians this spring.

Washington, March 24 — (AP) — Five exporting countries will sell 454,446,203 bushels a year to 37 importers under a four-year wheat agreement signed here late yesterday (3 p.m., EST).

An International Wheat Conference spokesman disclosed the official annual total but declined to give a breakdown in advance of the signing ceremony. The exporters' approximate contributions, however, are:

Walt McElroy Ranked First In Sports Poll

By The Canadian Press

Walt McElroy, 21-year-old Vancouver shotmaker, was ranked first Wednesday in the annual amateur golf ratings appearing in the Canadian Sport monthly magazine and which are recognized as the official listings by the Royal Canadian Golf Association.

The Vancouver ..ecp.. whose sparkling 286 topped all Canadians—amateur and professional — in the 1954 Canadian open, took over top spot from Rudy Horvath, Windsor veteran.

Phil Farley of Toronto, Ontario amateur champion, was ranked second, while Horvath slipped to third place.

Jerry Kemsley of Kitchener was ranked 13th and Don Varey of Brantford 15th.

Promoter Joe Louis will stage the Ezzard Charles-Jersey Joe Walcott showdown for his vacated world's heavyweight title in Chicago—eight years he won it from Jim Braddock in 1937.

The date, probably in June, and the site—either at Chicago Stadium, or one of the major league ball parks—will be worked out by Joe International Boxing Club with the Illinois Athletic Commission. The selection of Chicago was announced at a press conference in Chicago Wednesday.

Rinks skipped by Cully Schmidt of Kitchener and H. F. Gorrie of Hamilton Thistles Wednesday reached the finals of the Brereton-Raw Trophy event in a mixed bonspiel at the Granite Club. Schmidt's rink beat H. A. Dickson's Toronto High Park rink 11-8 in third round while Gorrie trounced Dr. A. S. Elliott's Toronto Granites foursome 10-8.

Six Ontario secondary school hockey squads will meet at Barrie Friday and Saturday in the Ontario Interscholastic Hockey Tournament. The teams are Copper Cliff High School, Northern Ontario winners, Toronto Runnymede Collegiate, Barrie, Huntsville High School, Bracebridge High School and Windsor Vocational.

Toronto city council decided Wednesday to protest to the federal government over the planned erection of a floodlit harness racing track in suburban Thornhill. Mayor Hiram McCallum said that Toronto's four tracks are "surely enough to satisfy the gambling instincts of our citizens".

More than 100 badminton players from Eastern Ontario and Northern New York State will gather in Cornwall Friday and Saturday for the third post-war tournament of the St. Lawrence Badminton Association. Players are expected from Massena and Malone, N.Y., Huntingdon, Que., Brockville and Kingston. Kingston shuttle experts swept the field last year.

Yankee Clipper Most Disturbing Note in Team

St. Petersburgh Fla., March 24 (AP)— How about Joe Dimaggio?

The doubtful addition of the Yankee Clipper is the most disturbing note of the spring training season.

There is no definite assurance that Dimag, hobbled by a tender right heel following an off-season operation, will be able to open the American League schedule, in fact, there is no positive word that he will play at all.

Nobody knows. The doctors are optimistic. Dimag says he believe them, but he knows the heel still sends jabbing pains through his body when he tries to run.

So far he has appeared in exhibitions as a pinch-hitter only. If he gets a hit, a runner takes his place. The Yanks are taking no chances with their $90,000-a-year star.

"I don't think we'll be very good without him," manager Casey Stengel admits sadly. Casey knows the Yanks can't win without Dimag.

"Batting and outfield are my strong points," he said.

Weak at First

First base is a glaring weakness. Chances are right fielder Tommy Henrich will wind up with the job. Babe Young, Jack Phillips, Joe Collins and Dick Kryhoski have failed to impress in the early games.

George Sternweiss is the second baseman with Phil Rizzuto, nursing a sore arm, at short. Bill Johnson, a veteran with good power, appears to have the edge over Bobby Brown at third. Brown, a .300 hitter, can't break into the line-up as a regular.

If Dimaggio can't play centre-field, it will be impossible to shift Henrich to the infield. The outfield is strong, but not that strong.

Another Question Mark

Charley Keller another question mark, probably will alternate with Johnny Lindell in left. Right will be a scramble among Gen Woodling, .365 hitter at San Francisco, Hank Sauer and Cliff Mapes.

Ralph Houk, up from Kansas City where he hit .302 has impressed Stengel with his catching. Other receivers are Gus Niarhos, 1948 regular and Charley Silvera, a fine .301 hitting prospect from Portland and Yogi Berra, behind the bat again after spending most of '46 in right field.

Five starting pitchers with proven ability form the Yanks' real strength. Vic Raschi (18-8), Allie Reynolds (16-7), Ed Lopat (17-11), and Bob Porterfield (8-3), after winning 15 at Newark up to August, are the hold-overs. The new regular is Fred Sanford (12-21), acquired from St. Louis for $100,00 and three players last December.

Inkerman Rockets Win Another From St. Marys

Ottawa, March 24 (CP)— Halifax St. Mary's fighting gamely, appear to be no match for the more powerful Inkerman Rockets.

The Maritime Junior champions Wednesday night dropped the second straight game to the Ottawa district champions. The score was 6-5.

The shutout followed Monday's 12-3 victory for the Rockets. Their chances appear to be good to win the best-of-five series with St. Mary's and then go into a semi-final tussle with Quebec Junior champions for the right to advance towards the Eastern Canada junior hockey title.

The teams meet for the third and possibly final match in the best-of-five series here Friday.

Toronto Marlies Smother Hawks In Senior Game

Toronto, March 24 — (CP) — The Powerful Toronto Marlboros today hold a one-game lead over North Bay Black Hawks in the best-of-three series for the All-Ontario Senior Hockey title — thanks mainly to a product of the north.

It was stocky Ray Hannigan's three-goal splurge that paced the Dukes to a 10-1 decision over the Black Hawks and gave them high hopes of sweeping the series in two straight games. Next game is slated for tomorrow night in North Bay.

The Schumacher - born right-winger, who left the northern leagues to join Toronto St.-Michael's College Juniors three years ago, was a tower of strength as the Marlboros took a 1-0 lead in the first period, lengthened it to 7-1 in the second and then outscored their rivals, 3-0 in the third.

For the Black Hawks, it was a bleak start in their first try for the provincial championship. However, they were strangers to the large ice surface at Maple Leaf Gardens and will have a chance to show better advantage in the second game on home ice.

Even in the opening stages, Black Hawks failed to cope with the precision — three-man passing plays and fierce back-checking of the Toronto squad. But for the superb work of goaltender Harry Lalande, the score would have been higher.

The 8,786 fans saw veteran Flash Hollett garner two goals for Marlboros. Johnny McCormick, Scotty Mair, Lorne Pirie and Alex Davidson counted one apiece. Dave Moreland scored for the Black Hawks.

Mair sent the Dukes into the first - period lead when he converted on a three - way play with Hannigan and Jim Cormack.

In the second period, Hollett made it 2-0 at the six-minute mark and within six minutes the Toronto squad added another five goals, before Morland got his.

Then Hollett got his second mid-way through the final chapter. Hannigan followed up with two more.

Eight penalties were handed out, five to Toronto.

Boston Bruins Hope for Breaks In Second Game

Boston, March 24 — (CP) — Coach Dit Clapper promises that "things will be different" tonight when his Boston Bruins face Toronto Maple Leafs in the second game of the series "B" semi-finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Clapper himself admitted that the Bruins didn't do anything right Tuesday when they were blanked 3-0 by the Leafs in the first game of the best-of-seven series.

Conn Smythe, major domo of the Leafs, said his team played its best game of the season.

Much credit for the Leaf reversal of form, after three straight losses towards the end of the regular season, was traced to the recall of several minor leaguers.

Two of the youngsters, Fleming Mackell and Bob Dawes, replaced Ted Lindsay and Tod Sloan for in the Leaf rank Tuesday night and played well.

For the Bruins only Frankie Brimsek, Paul Ronty, Milt Schmidt and Fern Flaman played in championship style.

The Leafs were expected to use one or two more of the players they recalled from Pittsburgh but they were uncertain which.

They plan to leave immediately after tonight's game for their training camp at St. Catharines, where the Leafs will remain until it's time for their third game in Toronto Saturday night.

Neither club has announced its starting line-up for tonight's clash but it is expected the same players who started Tuesday will be on the ice for the opening face-off.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, March 24 — (AD)— One of the best vaudeville shows in town comes when Chickie Bogad, the Tournament of Champions matchmaker, starts giving his off-the-record version (with gestures) of a match-maker's troubles . . . unfortunately, it can not be reproduced . . : Chickie contends that the only good matchmaker in this section in recent years was Johnny Attel . . . Operating in the small clubs Johnny used to develop the local boys into main - bout attractions, always being careful not to overmatch them against out-of-town fighters . . .

"Attel was the only matchmaker who would plan a whole season in advance. These guys now figure every show is a separate operation — we go broke afterwards," Chickie explains. "They have a good boy and they bring in some out-of-town fighter who is too good fr him. They get the kid licked and then what have they? Nothing . . . Johnny used to build up five or six main bout fighters every season, and I mean main bouts in the Garden — not the Broadway or Ridgewood Grove or St. Nicks."

His Struck it Richie

When the Phillies' Richie Ashburn was beaned while trying to score on a short passed ball in a recent exhibition game, he was carried into the clubhouse, blood gushing from a cut over his eye, and laid on a rubbing table . . . Someone remarked: "Goe, it's just a year ago today that the kid almost broke his back in an accident."

Precision . .
. . IS THE KEYWORD

Behind the production of superior ophthalmic lenses made in Belleville by AO people stands a rigid adherence to precision and quality. For it is only by maintaining the highest of standards that we can meet the needs of professional men .... and fulfill our duty to the public.

Shown above is a precision machine that uses a revolutionary new technique for surfacing lenses .... a machine that grinds curves into the lenses by means of a tool impregnated with diamond powder.

Importance of this machine lies in the fact that our skilled lens technicians can utilize one versatile grinding tool to surface thousands of lenses, with infinite curve combinations, by means of minor machine adjustments. The satin-smooth finish imparted to the lens enables final finishing and polishing to be greatly speeded.

Through this versatile machine and its unique lens cutting tool charged with diamonds — the world's most valuable and imperishable mineral — AO people make available to the ophthalmic professions the finest of precision lenses to speed vital eye care .... and thus serve the cause of better vision.

CONSTANTLY ENDEAVORING TO BE A GOOD CITIZEN—A GOOD NEIGHBOR

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 24 (AP) — Whether or not she wins the Academy Award tonight, Jane Wyman will have a loaded schedule.

"I figure to have my first day off about Jan. 2, 1950," she told me. As soon as she finishes "The Octopus and Miss Smith," she sails for Britain to do an Alfred Hitchcock thriller, "Stage Fright." Then she returns to Warners for the daughter role in "Class Menagerie."

Singers And Horses

Lina Romay, who left Xavier Cugat's South American tour in Venezuela, denies having a tiff with the maestro. However, the singer-actress indicates she won't appear with Cugie again. She regrets the Latins preferred United States fans to the Cugat-style rhumbas. "They're wild about 'Buttons and Bows,'" she said.

Roy Rogers is getting ready to convert to a new Trigger. His famed hoss is pushing 12 years o' age and getting near retirement. The Ohio cowpoke will introduce a Trigger, Jr., in "The Golden Stallion." Actually, the young nag is no relation.

Bing Crosby's "Riding High" goes to Transteran race track for location shots. That's where racing scenes were made for the original film, "Broadway Bill." Then hear the Crosby version sticks pretty close to the Warner Baxter one.

Nelson Eddy and Dorothy Kirsten again replace the Al Jolson show this summer. Jolson quits on his birthday, May 26. Just which birthday is a matter of local debate. Jolson says he'll be 61. Other estimates rang up to 67 or more.

SNAKELESS LANDS

Ireland is not the only land that has no snakes, New Zealand and the Azores are also snakeless legions.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyrne gets confused when she has a choice between more than one thing. As when she is told how to show a hand that contains two rebiddable five card suits.

With equal length suits, first show the one of higher rank. Only with different length suits should you first show the longer. When the second suit is shown, partner will know the length of each.

The first time a suit is bid it flows a minimum of four cards. Always keep in mind that an unsupported suit bid twice must have at least five cards. No rebiddable suit has less.

Thus, with two rebiddable five card suits the first bid shows the higher rank; the second bid shows the lower rank. When the one of lower rank is rebid, it is known to be of at least five cards.

If the lower rank has five and is not longer, the higher rank must have at least five. So, you now know how to show the suits in this hand.

♠ A Q J 7 5
♦ 9 5
♣ A K Q 5 3

First bid spades and partner thinks you have four. Then bid clubs and partner thinks you have four in each. Why? Rebiddable clubs are five and they are not longer than a first bid suit.

But Elva Tyrne wrinkles her nose and says: "Why not rebid spade to show they are rebiddable instead of rebidding clubs to show it?" See what such an order of bidding would show.

Bid spades and then clubs to show the clubs are not longer. So far as partner knows you have two four carders. Rebid spades on the next round and he knows you have five spades.

But what has it told him about clubs? Nothing new. So far as he knows, the clubs are still only four cards and the spades are five. So bid the televisors reduced wrong surmises.

BLIZZARD IN IDAHO

Albion, Idaho, March 24 (AP) — A blizzard as bad as any during the winter isolated this Southern Idaho town today. Drifts three to four feet deep blocked the road from Albion to Declo. Wind closed the road as fast as it was cleared.

VOLCANO SPEWS SMOKE, ASHES

Tokyo, March 24 — (AP) — Fiery Mount Asama spewed smoke and ashes 10,000 feet into the air today. The treacherous Central Honshu Volcano, one of the two largest of Japan's 500 volcanoes, is 8,340 feet high.

Whitehall Notebook:

Courts Not Interested in Hansard, Bulky Record of M.P.'s Golden Words

BY JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 24 — (CP) — Members of parliament have come face to face with the harsh fact that, officially, it doesn't matter what they say in the Commons.

In brief, the courts which interpret the law are not interested in Hansard, the bulky record of their golden words. The law is concerned only with the matters votes and proceedings which reports the decisions of parliament and ignores the debate.

Speaker Douglas Clifton Brown reminded the House of the true position when a member protested that Hansard had made a mistake in its report of proceedings by showing a vote, instead of a bill amendment.

Parily Official

The votes and proceedings correctly showed the amendment was carried.

"I want to point out that Hansard has no effect whatsoever on the proceedings of this House and no authority whatsoever," said the Speaker.

"Neither is Hansard accepted in the courts of law."

Not Authoritative

Hansard was correctly called "the official report of parliamentary debates." This meant it was the report prepared by reporters officially appointed as part of the Commons staff.

"There is no authoritative matter in its record. It is official in this respect; that it is the report of officers who are appointed by this House to report what is said in the House."

The votes and proceedings, which does not report statements, is based on the notes of Commons clerks and is a legal record of the highest authority. It is the only evidence of Commons' work that interests the law.

Two Quick Goals By Peterborough Defeat Nylons

Two quick goals in the dying minutes of the game gave Peterborough Legion a 4-3 victory over Kingston Nylons in the third game of their best in seven senior B hockey playoff series last night at Memorial Arena.

The Legion team has won all three contests and need only one more victory to take the series and advance into the next round of O.H.A. play.

Outscored 3-1 in the opening frame, the Nylons came from behind twice to even the score and were standing tied with a one-goal lead towards the finish when the Peterborough team erupted with their last-gasp splurge.

Greenlaw, who turned in heads up hockey all the way, came through with the winning goal on Ned Vitarelli's assist and Chum Fryia added the clincher by rapping Godfrey's pass into the net.

Greenlaw topped the Peterborough scorers with three goals and one assist while Catlin, with two goals, paced the Kingston squad.

Britons Would be Happy if Peer Wins Chase

Aintree, England, March 24 — (AP)—Nothing would make a multitude of Britons happier Saturday than for a lanky peer to bag the Grand National Steeplechase.

The particular peer to Lord Mildmay, one of England's leading amateur jockeys.

He'll be on his gelding Cromwell, which heavy betting has made a 5-1 favorite in the historic jumping event. From jammed rails on each bursting Aintree the biggest yell will be "Come on, M'Lord!"

Lord Mildmay, the second Baron of Flete created in 1922, is the tallest jockey riding regularly. He's six feet four inches. He rides his bones because he loves horses.

A bachelor who will be 40 April 14, the peer has had little to distract him from his passion for steeplechase horses.

He inherited £180,000 ($720,000) from his father and two estates at Kent and Devon. But he prefers living with Peter Cazalet, his friend and trainer, at Tonbridge, Kent.

Lord Mildmay hopes this year to beat a jinx that has hounded him for years over the National course.

Wednesday in a preparatory race for the Grand National, he barely escaped severe injury when his mount, Lecale Prince, took a nasty spill.

The horse, which had been entered in Saturday's race, suffered a broken neck and died.

In the 1938 Grand National Lord Mildmay's jumper was leading going to the next-to-last fence. But a bridle pulled loose and the bid fell short.

In 1946 Lord Mildmay said a crick in his own neck, spoiled his race aboard Cromwell. Yet they finished third, nine lengths back of the victorious El Dorado.

AT THE McCARTHY — Montgomery Clift and Joanne Dru look worried in this dramatic scene from "Red River," Howard Hawks' great Western. The film opens Friday at the McCarthy Theatre.

B.C.I. Defeats Campbellford H.S. 34 to 3

B. C. I. Juniors displayed their strongest defence of the season yesterday as they breezed through to a unique 34-3 triumph over Campbellford High School. The singularity of the victory was due to the fact that Campbellford failed to score a field goal in the entire 60 minutes of play. All three of the visitors' points were the result of foul shots. B. C. I., in hanging up their eighth victory in nine league contests, dazzled the disorganized Campbellford crew from start to finish with rebounding passing and effective checking. McClay netted a basket in the first four seconds of play, and B. C. I. never was in the rear for the rest of the runaway. The score by quarters read 10-1, 14-2, 23-2, and 34-3. Even though the Campbellford team had few good chances to score field goals, their shots were very erratic. They made three foul shots, but also missed eleven. However, their lack of team play was the real cause of their defeat.

For the second consecutive game Mundy McClay topped the scoring. This time, he netted four field goals for an eight point total. Dave Bews, Don Dolan, Lou Dowsett, and Lloyd Faulkner each dented the twine for four points. Heath of Campbellford succeeded in keeping the high scoring Lloyd Faulkner from netting a field goal until three seconds remained in the game, but he could not spark the bewildered Campbellford cage team on the offensive.

The teams:

B. C. I.: Faulkner 4, McClay 8, Morris 2, Muirhead 2, Dolan 4, Ewald 1, Scrymgeour, Lott 1, Cameron 2, Cowsett 4, Batchelor, Lazenby, Bews 4, Shapiro 2. Total 34.

Campbellford: Bennett, Bibby, Dunk, Glenn, Hay, Heath 1, Kelley, Oddie, Simpson 2, Smith. Total 3.

Score by quarters:

B. C. I.	10	4	11	9—34
Campbellford	1	1	0	1—3

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma came in the living room with a bunch of old clothes and some rapping paper, saying to pop. Oh dear, if there's one thing I hate to do, it's rapping a bar package, but if I dont get this stuff off to my sister Fanny for her rag rug, she'll think I'm not a woman of my word. Doing up large packages really should be men's work, if there was any such thing as justice, she said.

I can take a hint, my dear, let me have that paper, give me that string, pop said, and ma said, Oh William, do you really think you can?

Why of course, I'm a sensational rapper, pop said. I'll never forget the first parcel I ever did up for you. As a matter of fact I think you'd never forget it either, because you used to remind me of it regularly. It was on our honeymoon, do you remember? A lot of stuff that we couldn't get into our suitcases. I'm sure it never would of come undone if I hadn't unfortunately dropped it in the middle of the railroad station, he said and ma said, Batch a thing to remind me of, it makes me blush for shame even after all these years. Just that personal stuff all over the ground in the mist of all those leering strangers, even a bath towel with the name of the hotel on it that we stole in a passing moment of romantic foolishness, she said.

But we sent that towel back to the hotel later in a moment of guilty repentence, so dont let that worry you, pop said, and ma said, It's the whole awful nightmare of a scene that prays on my mind, I was reddy to divorce you, and I still am whenever I think of it, she said.

I'm sure it taught me a good lesson, pop said. Let me have that stuff, I'll take over, he said, and ma said, Oh hush and be quiet, you never had the slightest intention.

And she made the packidge herself as usual.

STIRLING

Village Council Discuss Better P.S. Accommodation

Stirling—School matters affecting the Village of Stirling were the main topic of discussion at a special meeting of the Village Council held on Tuesday afternoon. A delegation from the Board of Education consisting of Chairman, C. I. Hatton R. W. Mellelohn; J. B. Belshaw and H. R. Tompkins, was present along with Reeve H. J. Wells and Councillors Bailey, Elliott and Holt.

Chairman Hatton outlined the difficulty being experienced by the Board of Education in finding accommodation for the Public School pupils who had grown in number in recent years. The present practice of using the upper storey of the high school building was not approved by the Department of Education, the fire marshal's department, and something had to be done at once. He offered the suggestion from the Board that a one or two-room addition be built to the present public school building, the same to be ready for use by September next.

In the general discussion which followed it was pointed out that a recent survey made by Principal Wells showed there would be approximately thirty beginners in September. Allowing for those leaving Grade Eight for high school there would still be an attendance of a least two hundred in the public school this coming fall.

Reeve Wells, and Councillor Holt, expressed doubt that even with the proposed addition there would be sufficient accommodation for many years to come. The suggestion was made that the estimated cost of the addition and a new school be procured and the Department of Education be interviewed on the matter.

Reeve Wells and Councillor W. T. Elliott were appointed as representatives on a joint delegation from council and Board of Education to interview the Department of Education.

Preach Hell Fire To Save Men Says Pope Pius

Vatican City, March 23 (AP) —Pope Pius urged today the preaching of hell fire to recall men to God.

He addressed Roman pastors in his annual Lenten audience.

"It is sorrowful to see so many today—among them many Catholics—living as though their only aim is to form Heaven on earth, without any thought of the beyond and of eternity," he said.

The Pope sharply criticized films, newspapers and writings as contributing to a movement away from religion.

"Propaganda for an earthly life without God is open, seductive, continuous," he said, "often God is not denied . . . He is as though absent."

'Bet Their Shirts' On Cromwell 5-to-1 Favorite

By BILL MACKLIN

London, March 23 — (AP) — Horse-playing commoners by the thousands have bet their shirts on an eight-year-old gelding ridden by a peer to win the historic Grand National steeplechase Saturday.

They're so sure Cromwell will romp home that they've made him the 5-to-1 favorite — absurdly short odds for this unpredictable race.

Forty-six horses are expected to start the 4½-mile grind over the murderous fences of Aintree.

Turf writers of nine national Sunday papers printed in London have tabbed four different horses as likely winners. Besides Cromwell they've picked Cavallero, Cloncarrig and Royal Mount.

Final call of British bookmakers on odds will be made Friday.

RAWDON

Letter Recalls Founding of Epworth League

Rawdon.—Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant, received a delightful letter from a former pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Clarke, who are spending the winter months with their daughter at Selby, Mrs. Clarke's health is somewhat improved and she is able to assist with the care of her new little granddaughter "Linda Mary", who was born on her brother's fourth birthday.

Clarke was on Rawdon circuit, he had the honor of organizing an Epworth League at each of the three appointments, Bethel, Mount Pleasant and Wellman's.

Old Clipping Found

Just recently Rev. Clarke found an old clipping among his papers pertaining to Rawdon circuit. It was sent to the Stirling News Argus in 1907 by the Wellman's correspondent, and reads as follows:

"The Epworth League of Wellman's Methodist Church was organized November 21st., and is now in fine running order. The young people are quite enthusiastic and are doing good work. The officers are Hon. President, Rev. W. H. Clarke; President, F. S. Dracup; Secretary, A. C. Hoover; Organist, Miss Emma Morton. There are twenty active members with a membership fee of 25c. The League will hold their meetings every Tuesday evening. Rev. C. J. Crews, D. D., Secretary of Sunday Schools and Epworth Leagues, will preach at all appointments on Rawdon circuit next Sunday. The delegates to the Epworth League convention in Lindsay will be Messrs. Charles Morton and W. S. Dracup."

Changed to Y.P.U's

Over forty years has elapsed and Epworth Leagues have been changed to Young People's Unions.

At the present time there is only one Y.P.U. remaining on Rawdon circuit, it was organized in April 1907, at Mount Pleasant, and will soon complete its forty-second year of operation and it still remains as a living tribute to Rev. W. H. Clarke, (who now resides at Deseronto), and his workers while on the Rawdon circuit.

Attended by Young and Old

In those bygone days everyone, young and old, looked forward to Friday evening at Mount Pleasant. Many splendid topics, debates, and worthwhile programs were presented that week to week with several special speakers.

Besides the home group several folks journeyed up from Carmel to enjoy the week-night meeting.

The pastor was nearly always in attendance as well as several of the older people of the community.

List of Officers

The first president at Mount Pleasant was Miss Ethel Curtiss, now Mrs. E. Rock of the United States, 1907-08.

1909-10—Miss Evelyn Eggleton, the late Mrs. Kenneth Vallcan; 1911-12—Mr. George Rowe, Rev. J. A. Connell, pastor 1913-14—Mr. Elgin Chard; 1915-16—Miss Florence Montgomery, (Mrs. Percy MacMullen); Rev. S. F. Dixon, pastor; 1917—Mr. Manson McConnell; 1918-1920—Mr. Irvin Reid; Rev. F. G. Joblin, pastor, who served the circuit twelve years.

There have been many other presidents down through the years which included Mr. William Jeffs, Mr. John Coggins, Miss Ema Cole, Miss Audrey Robson, (Mrs. Jean Brown of Hoard's), Miss Marjorie Bush and others.

Past Pastors of Rawdon

The pastors have been the late Rev. James E. Beckel, who served for eight years on the circuit; Rev. T. F. Townsend, Rev. N. Cole and the present minister, Rev. H. C. Vaclavik. It would be interesting if some one could supply the correct information for the last forty-two years at Mount Pleasant.

At present the Y.P.U. are meeting twice a month with the Vice President, Mr. Bert Sharp, in charge and a very small attendance of young people.

Nora Henderson, Brave Municipal Leader, Passes

Hamilton, March 23 — (CP) — A brave battler in the ups and downs of Hamilton's municipal life, Nora Frances Henderson, who might have been Hamilton's first woman mayor, died today. She was 52.

A storm centre in the Hamilton steel strike of 1946, Miss Henderson came closest to the Chief Magistrate's post when she headed the Board of Control in 1947, the year she retired from municipal politics. She was Hamilton's first woman alderman and the first woman in Canada elected to a city board of control.

The young English girl who came to Canada in 1913 rose to become women's editor of the now-defunct Hamilton Herald, an alderman for three years and a controller for 13.

Her political courage was shown during the white-hot strike of the summer of 1946, when she walked through picket lines at the Steel Company of Canada plant as a demonstration of a citizen's right to do so.

Largely as a result of this incident, a thousand or so of her constituents gathered outside the Hamilton city hall and sang, without mailing: "We'll hang Nora Henderson from a sour apple tree."

But the following January she was elected to her 16th consecutive term of office in Hamilton's city government, heading the polls.

The result bore out one of her main beliefs: that citizens respect frankness in public officials.

Editor Gets Taste of His Own Medicine

Dixon, Ill., March 23 (AP)—Bryn A. Griffiths, city editor of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, has been waging a campaign that "news is news" and it will not be suppressed no matter whom it hits.

Yesterday he proved he isn't kidding.

His estranged wife, Theresa, who has a divorce suit pending against him, arrived here to discuss alimony arrangements. An altercation occurred between the two in the heart of the business district. Griffiths said he was scratched somewhat. Police were not called, however.

Then Griffiths received some telephone calls. The callers said they bet the item wouldn't be in the paper.

Page one of the Dixon Telegraph carried a story under a three-column headline which reads:

"News-conscious editor gets taste of his own medicine; it's not too bad."

Griffiths edited the story and wrote the headline.

Scrambling to make a Will when danger threatens is probably better than not making one at all but the preparation of such an important document should not be left to the confusion of a last minute rush.

Making a Will is something that can easily be attended to before emergencies arise. This duty should not be neglected. The logic and advantages of appointing a Corporate Executor and Trustee are obvious and well recognized.

All that is needed to get the job done, and done well, is to ask us to help you plan your Will, which we shall gladly do without charge. You can then have it drawn in proper legal form, naming The Royal Trust Company your Executor and Trustee, execute the Will and file it with us for safekeeping.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Karen dressed with care for her visit to Brenda Bond the next evening. The day being cool, she wore her gray suit with a new black blouse and a few black hat that revealed the cluster of dark curls. On the bus she tried to press down on her hopes, tried desperately to control her excitement.

Outside the door of Brenda's apartment she pressed her finger to the bell and waited. A stout, motherly looking woman dressed neatly in black admitted her. As soon as she stepped into the lovely room, Brenda came forward. She was wearing a green dinner dress.

"Hello, my dear..."

She led the way to her bedroom where Karen removed her coat and hat. And Brenda noticed that the slim hand that patted the dark curls in place shook a little.

The living room, high above the noises of the street, was quiet and beautiful. Several vases held fresh flowers. On the desk was a photograph of the distinguished grey-haired man who Karen had met briefly. Craig Stanhope. She had remembered his name. Sitting across a low, marble-topped table from Brenda, Karen was conscious of the older woman's serenity. A little of her excitement left her. This was a beautiful after the ugly little place where she and Roxanne lived.

Brenda studied her with calm, kind eyes.

"You've been having a bad time, haven't you? First that dreadful roof, then the play. But I've good news for you. How would you like a part in the play I'm doing, Philip's play?"

The gratitude in Karen's eyes touched her. "Yes, I mean it!"

Karen felt her mouth tremble and her tears start. Choking them back, she said, "I — I don't know what to say. It's wonderfull It's ..." Had Brenda liked her enough the two times they had met to do this for her? Roxanne had said that things like this didn't happen. Summoning courage, she asked, "Why are you doing this for me?"

Brenda's lashes swept down. She had hoped that Karen would not ask that since it was Philip who was helping her. But he had been insistent that Karen must not know. It seemed absurd but she had promised.

"Because," Brenda said, looking at her again, "I think you've gifted. Several people who saw the Tappen play told me you were splendid. There's another reason, too, Karen. I like you. I admire your courage. I've been interested in you from the first."

Never had Karen enjoyed a dinner more. They talked about the play.

Then returning to the living room for coffee, Brenda said, "I don't know anything about you. And I'm curious. Philip told me that you were perhaps the only girl he had ever known who did not tell him the story of her life after an acquaintance of five minutes. Women do like to talk about themselves. Who are you really, Karen? What is your background? Why this burning ambition to be an actress?"

Karen placed the small cup on the marble-topped table. Should she tell her? It was either the truth or a lie. And so, speaking quietly, she told Brenda of what had happened in Harriston on a night twenty years ago, told of her childhood, the sacrifices Aunt Hetty and Uncle John had made for her, and finally her stubborn determination to leave her job and come to New York.

"You do have a dramatic past," Brenda said. "I wish I'd known sooner. I thought you had parents and a home to go back to. It's — it's strange, very strange. You didn't tell Philip this!"

"I haven't even told the girl I live with. I used to think I'd find my mother some day. I liked to dream about it. But that was foolish." Then, "Does Philip love the married?"

Brenda's mouth curved. "No. But I suppose he will be as soon as he and Lilyan return." Karen loved Philip, still, she thought. "I don't know that I altogether approve of their marriage. Of course Lilyan is a darling person. Every one loves her. She hasn't an enemy. And Philip loves the theatre as you and I love it and Lilyan knows nothing about it. He should marry an actress."

And Karen was wishing that this evening would go on indefinitely.

Several times Karen thought, "I'm talking to Brenda Bond! It doesn't seem real. But it is real. I'm going to be in Philip's play and I'll work as I've never worked before, I pl'ut ed before. I'll put my heart and soul in it!"

At last Brenda consulted her small watch studded with diamonds.

"I've a late engagement. Craig Stanhope is coming for you're remember him?" And when Karen nodded, she said, "And he remembered you. She arose. "I'm going to give you a script. There's a rehearsal tomorrow. We've been rehearsing you know, but the girl whose place you are taking decided to go to China to marry a young newspaper man."

On the street Karen walked hurriedly. She felt intoxicated. Roxanne would not be skeptical now!

Karen became Brenda's friend and it was obvious to every member of the cast that Brenda was interested in the talented though untrained young girl. The rehearsals were long and jadding but the director, Sidney Kennedy, was painstaking and patient. Unlike "Until Tomorrow" there were no outbursts of temperament, no petty jealousies, no half-hearted interest. Scenes were done again and again uncomplainingly.

Karen thrilled to lines Philip had written and to Brenda's magnificent interpretation of them. A deep happiness filled her. She did not seem to live except at rehearsals. She forgot to eat. Now everything except the play was unreal. Roxanne laughed at her absentmindedness — a different Roxanne of late since she had been seeing Eddie Wells.

But one evening when Karen was dressing to have dinner with Brenda, Roxanne looked up and said, "I'm trying to fall in love with Eddie. He asked me to marry him. But when I look at him, I don't see him. I see Bill. And sometimes when I'm singing, all the men in the place are Bill."

* * *

In her bedroom, Brenda was under the hands of a hairdresser when Karen came in. How alive, how young Karen looked with the face glow from the cold!

Brenda pointed to the chaise-longue. "Irene will be finished with me directly. I have news. Philip and Lilyan and her father will be home tomorrow."

"Does Philip know I'm in his play?"

Cheerfully Brenda lied. "Oh, no. Won't he be surprised!"

"I'm afraid he won't like it," Karen said.

Dear child, if only lou knew! Karen said, "He doesn't think I have anything to offer. He thinks I should never have come to New York." Would she meet Lilyan?

"The night we open in Baltimore, Philip will be there and he will see that you have much to offer. Sidney is tremendously pleased with you, Karen. He thinks you're so responsive. You have much to learn still, of course. Even I have much to learn still. It's arduous work. You've been behind the scenes. You've seen the theatre stripped of the so-called glamour. You've seen it a cold ugly place with row on row of empty seats. And it's time you realize that your life doesn't belong to you. You've dedicated it to the public."

Karen looked at the lovely expressive hands folded calmly. Then her eyes met Brenda's. "Is that why you never married — because you didn't think you could do two jobs well?" She had met Craig Stanhope briefly several times of late and had liked him more each time. Twice after a rehearsal he had driven her to the apartment.

Brenda's lips smiled but her eyes looked unhappy. "No. You mean Craig, don't you? It wasn't because I couldn't be a doctor's wife and an actress at the same time. I think I could have managed that since we're older and therefore wiser. I have such great admiration for each other's work. There's another reason. You see, there is something in my past that Craig doesn't know. There should be no dark secrets in marriage."

Irene left. Watching Brenda change from a green negligee into a black dress with diamond clips, Karen wondered if she would speak her mind. Was there any connection between herself and Brenda and a young mother's desertion many years ago? For days the question had tormented her. She had dismissed it as absurd but it had stayed in her mind. Why, of all the stage-struck girls, had Brenda selected her and made her her friend? Roxanne had said repeatedly that such things didn't happen. But she had heard Brenda about her life and certainly if there had been any connection, she would have spoken then.

Brenda smiled at her through the mirror. "Won't you be glad to see Philip? You love him. I've known it since the night on the roof when he asked you to dance. I told Craig you were madly in love with Philip's fiancée Karen. "But he loves Lilyan with all his heart. He's built up a beautiful illusion of her. It will hurt when he's married, won't it? I know. A long time ago I saw the man I love marry some one else. That man was Craig. After that I didn't see him for years. You're in the same position I was then. I filled my life with work. But you're going to be thrown with Philip constantly in your work, Karen. You must not let him know."

Etobicoke River Communities Face Threat of Flood

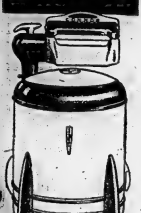
Toronto, March 23 (CP)—Residents of suburban Etobicoke river communities today prepared to evacuate their homes, if necessary, as the river level rose more than five feet in two hours Tuesday night and threatened to overflow its banks.

At nearby Dixie, cellars were flooded and a service station was temporarily marooned when a four foot wall of water rolled through a drainage gap. Mailboxes were torn down and several roads were covered with a foot of water.

Further up river, at Brampton barricades were stretched across doorways as flood waters rose nearly 10 feet to the danger point Thursday afternoon. But Mayor C. D. Black said he was satisfied the town would not be flooded because of the absence of ice blocks.

Nearly half a mile of No. 9 Highway west of Orangeville was under water today, two feet deep in places.

Motor Traffic Cut Off



In Scarboro township, rising waters on the Rouge river and Highland creek cut off motor traffic in some districts but the waters were slowly receding.

The Conestoga River went on the rampage Tuesday night, resulting in a flash flood which invaded stores and home cellars in the Galt area. Water rose nearly 10 feet in 12 hrs. to reach a line to the danger mark.

Galt (CP)—The second flood of the year on the Grand River occurred during the night following an all day rain Tuesday. However except for the flooding of cellars of a few bank buildings there was no damage.

Police Tuesday night warned river-side residents of the possibility of a freshet and they took precautions.

With him are Mrs. Churchill (right) and his daughter and son-in-law, Captain and Mrs. Christopher Soames. Churchill is scheduled to speak at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology on March 31. Bulgaria Called Tightest Police State Outside Russia, Church Control Cuts West Ties

(Editor's note: Richard Kasischke of the United Press has returned to Berlin from Sofia, where he reported the trial of Protestant churchmen. This uncensored story was filed from Berlin by Kasischke, a Detroiter who has been in the AP foreign staff six years.)

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

Sofia, March 25 (AP)—Communists boss Georgi Dimitrov has built himself here just about the tightest police state outside the Soviet Union. And he's still working on it.

The 68-year-old dictator who, according to western diplomats here, rouges his cheeks and paints his moustache black to affect an appearance of youthfulness and vigor, aims to create a vest-pocket model of Russia.

Dictator Confident of Stalin

Moscow-trained and a confidant of Stalin, Dimitrov preaches that only by maintaining the closest ties and greatest reliance upon Russia can Bulgaria survive and prosper. He has decreed that anything running counter to this must be smashed as "a direct danger to our people's democracy." He has ousted the nationalism, like Tito's in Yugoslavia, as "treason to the Soviet Union."

In Dimitrov Bulgaria all things Russian are held up as good and virtually all things American and British are condemned. Dimitrov tells Bulgarians that the United States and Britain have "from the first been antagonistic enemies of the people's democracy." His government is steadily hostility toward the western legations here and trying to get their personnel reduced. Legations such as the projected new church control law is designed to sever remaining ties with the west.

By western allied estimates Dimitrov has about 400,000 men —uniformed and civilian—under arms in a population of about seven million. The government has a 200,000-man army on armed personnel as a state secret.

The reason given for keeping a force of more than 300,000 armed civilians is "protection of our people's democracy against subversive elements."

Congress of Labor Warns Unemployment Hitting Canada

Ottawa, March 25 (CP)—Warning that unemployment is striking Canada, the Canadian Congress of Labor today called on the government to enlarge it's "relief" public works program and immediately put it into operation to provide work.

In its annual legislative submission to the cabinet, the 360,000 C.C.L. members urged government action on housing, lower taxes, renewed price controls, measures against inflation and deflation, extension of the federal labor code, social security measures and legislation in a wide range of other labor and social matters.

Chief recommendations in the C.C.L.'s 6,000-word brief:

1. A large-scale housing program.

2. Action against inflation through price controls, subsidies on essential commodities, a revised excess profits tax and higher corporation income tax.

3. No devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

4. Measures to guard against deflation, through public investment and social security measures.

5. Enlargement of the scope of the federal labor code and other amendments in line with previous C.C.L. recommendations.

6. Further lowering of personal income tax exemptions beyond those provided in this year's night's budget. The Congress would have raised from $1,000 to $1,500 for single persons and from $2,000 to $2,500 for married persons.

7. No national security program covering the whole field of health, invalidity, old age pensions and other aspects in line with Britain's social security system. It should include free medical, hospital and dental services, along with sickness and accident insurance.

8. Amendment of the British North America Act to give Dominion jurisdiction over social security and unemployment insurance.

9. Representation of labor on all government bodies dealing with economic matters connected to the workers.

10. Passing of steel-production facilities, through public ownership if the private producers are unwilling or unable to meet the steel shortage situation.

11. Adoption of a system of bill of rights.

12. Establishment of a guaranteed minimum wage of $2,000 a year.

The C.C.L. presentation was one of a series of annual legislative submissions made to the cabinet in the last two days by Canada's labor bodies.

Today, the government heard the Trades and Labor Congress and the Legislative Committee of the Railway Brotherhoods.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said these would receive earnest consideration.

FOOD-MARKETING ACT DEMANDED BY OPPOSITION

Debate on Controls Nearly Completed

Ottawa, March 25 (CP)— New demands for a national food marketing act were advanced in the Commons Thursday as members neared conclusion of debate on the government's control legislation.

The demands were made during debate on second reading of a bill providing for a one-year extension of the Dominion Foodboards established to buy the products needed by Britain and continue its subsidiary Northern Navigation Company, operating steamship passenger services on the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes, had joined in the application.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said a national marketing act now is on the order paper, but he was promptly told by Benoit Michaud (Independent-Matapedia-Gaspe) that the measure would not meet the needs of the Manitoba potato producers.

The debate set off a wordy legal battle of the constitutionality of the legislation. Participants included Justice Minister Garson, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, John Diefenbaker, Liberal Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) and Solon E. Low (PC-Stanstead) and Mr. Gardiner.

Mr. Garson started the argument with a declaration that it was the courts, in the last analysis, which decided whether legislation was constitutional. He said it must be assumed that the government—or a private member, for that matter— had delved into the question before presenting a bill. This was the sponsor's responsibility.

Judicial Inquiry May be Held

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—A judicial inquiry probably will be held into charges of maladministration of the Kingston General Hospital at Windsor, Judge Albert J. Gordon of Windsor, who sitted Board Tuesday, said today.

He conferred with Health Minister Kelley at the Ontario legislature buildings. M. C. Davies, Kingston lawyer, is counsel member for Windsor-Walkerville and Mrs. Kelley, Liberal Health Minister, also were present.

Mrs. Kelley later reported to the provincial cabinet on the meeting.

Judge Gordon's visit here was prompted by investigations into reports against the hospital after nurses attended drinking parties with city officials. The resignation of Matron Miss Mildred Maybee, central figure in the incidents, followed only a month ago as superintendent of nurses at the Kingston hospital.

Thursday, Mr. Kelley said he had received a telegram from the president of the Ontario Association of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire, requesting investigators sent to Windsor be able to take oaths and affidavits under oath.

15 P.C. Advance Application Made To Transport Bd.

Decrease in Passengers Carried and Costs Factors

Montreal, March 25. (CP) — The Railway Association of Canada today announced that it had filed with the Transport Board an application for a 15-per-cent increase in first-class passenger fares.

The Association also announced that Canada Steamship Lines and its subsidiary Northern Navigation Company, operating steamship passenger services on the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes, had joined in the application.

The announcement by J. A. Brass, general secretary of the Association which represents all Canadian railroads, said the railways will also file with the Board, "as soon as practicable", new tariffs increasing by 15 per cent coach-class and other fares which now are lower than first-class passenger fares.

Follows Removal of Federal Tax

The announcement followed a two-day session of the Association's directors which effect of the removal of the 15-per-cent federal transportation tax.

Mr. Brass said: "This action follows a policy outlined before the Board last Jan. 11 when C. F. H. Carson, Association counsel, stated that if the federal tax on passenger fares were removed and the carriers allowed to increase the rates by the amount of the tax, they could obtain a measure of financial relief without it being felt by the public. Other transportation interests, including bus lines, air lines and inland steamships, were parties to the application submitted to the government for removal of the tax."

It was considered "fair and reasonable" that passenger fares should bear an increased share of the higher cost of operation referred to in Transport Board hearings on increased freight-rates.

Increased Wages

"Last year there was a falling off of 21,134,134 passengers carried by the lines of the two principal railways with a consequent loss of $3,514,031 as compared with 1947, said Mr. Brass. "This situation, added to the fact that cost of materials and increased wages have added $40,000,000 to railway operating costs during the past year, makes its application for higher passenger fares imperative."

Trans-Canada Air Lines, simultaneously with the budget announcement, said it would file an increase in fares to offset the tax removal.

FIREMEN REJECT OFFER

Toronto, March 25 — (CP) — Toronto firemen rejected the Board of Control's offer of a $4-weekly cost-of-living bonus offer, Mr. A. Hodgson, Firemen's Association secretary-treasurer, said today. Together with other civic employees, the firefighters have asked the city for a $5-weekly increase.

COMMUNISM TOP SUBJECT IN LABOR CONGRESS

Momentous Milestone In Affairs of T.L.C.

Ottawa, March 25 — (CP) — After an ax-wielding job on red-tinged unions by one Canadian Labor Congress, top officers of the other major Congress today wrestled with the issue of communism.

The executive of the 400,000 union which considered the effect was to tangle with a powerful group of international union chiefs led by Frank Hall, Montreal rail union head, which accused it of taking a too-lackadaisical attitude towards reds in its ranks.

The meeting might be a momentous milestone in the affairs of the T. L. C. Canada's oldest Labor Congress, since there are reports that some of the 300,000 international Union members in the Congress may be pulled out of it unless it gets tougher with union reds.

Meanwhile, the rival 360,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor had dropped the chopper on two of its affiliates reputed to be dominated by communists.

At a meeting here Thursday, the policy — making executive council of the strongly anti-red C. C. L. took drastic action.

1. It slammed an indefinite suspension on the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

2. It suspended from the council — though not from the Congress — the United Electrical Workers. This is the effect of throwing U. E. W. Canadians' director C. S. Jackson of Toronto off the council and leaving the U. E. W. silent on C. C. L. policy at the next October's national convention.

TREASURES BOTTLE

Toronto, March 25 (CP)— A bottle with a note inside, dropped by J. A. D. McCurdy when he made the first inter-city flight in America in 1911, still is treasured by Mrs. Kenneth Good of Toronto. The bottle, dropped into Lake Ontario where she was swimming, contained the following note: "Aeroplane Arrhibi, Hamilton to Toronto, Aug. 12, 1911."

ONT. LEGISLATURE IN LATE SITTING DISCUSSES BILLS

Proposed Amendments to Compensation Act Causes Debate

Toronto, March 25 — (CP) — The Ontario Legislature sat until 2 a.m. today considering estimates and debating opposition bills which proposed amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act.

In its marathon sitting, which started at 8 p. m. Thursday and was broken only by the two-hour dinner recess, the House wandered into discussion of such widely-separated topics as picket lines, western movies and Long John Silver.

Mention of western movies brought acting Premier Leslie Frost to his feet to confess smilingly that he has a yen for ranger-land films with "hard riding and plenty of shooting."

He also liked old-fashioned adventure yarns such as Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island" — "Long John Silver stories" Mr. Frost called them. Motion pictures which depicted the smart set drinking cocktails "just about nauseated" him.

The talk about literature and drama arose during a discussion on the motion picture censorship board. Mr. Frost said enlargement of the three-member board is under consideration.

The legislature passed through the committee stage bills extending aid to municipalities for operation of fire and police departments. Then it approved treasury and public works estimates and finally voted down the opposition bills dealing with compensation Act amendments.

The bills, all defeated 44 to 34, would have provided for payment of 100-per-cent compensation, for raising the maximum salary at which compensation will be paid to $3,500 from $2,500, for reducing the waiting period for compensation from seven days to three, for providing X-ray examinations for workmen exposed to silica dust and for payment of compensation to workmen whose jobs have aggravated physical disabilities existing before they took the jobs.

Manitoba, and Northwestern Ontario, with freezing rain in some districts near Lake Superior. Royal Commission Court. Keays Antagonistic To Those Who Do Not Agree With Him Says Cpl. Irvine

Constable Keays is "absolutely unreliable, antagonistic toward those who do not agree to his views and is unwilling to cooperate."

Such were the expressions used by Corporal Sam Irvine before the Royal Commission inquiry today when asked to express his opinion of Const. Keays.

"Possibly I better stop there", stated the officer, as he appeared on the verge of additional expression of feeling.

"No, no, by all means go on," was Keays' request. "If you have any reference to adultery, go ahead."

Here Commissioner Mackay interrupted to ask a restraint be placed on language used.

Inquiry Not a Court

He advised that this Royal Commission was not a court but an investigation and therefore the ordinary protection afforded a witness would not apply.

"One of the first principles of law is that there must be no speculation as to what a witness may say.

"There is a saying that the deyil himself does not know what is in the mind of man, so I the devil himself does not know. I am sure an inferior mortal such as I do not know."

Constable Keays withdrew his request for the witness to continue with his opinion of Keays.

Corporal Ervine emphatically denied that Constable Keays had driven him home on the night of a Rotary regatta last summer. The witness said he had not been drunk. He had been driven home by the late Geo. Aselstine.

Was Never Invited

"Do you agree that you requested Keays to enter your home for a drink?"

Sections of Two Ontario Roads Still Flooded

Toronto, March 25 — (CP) — Sections of two Ontario highways are still flooded to a depth of seven inches, the Provincial Department of Highways reported today.

Highway No. 9, which stretches from Schomberg, 20 miles north of Toronto, to Alcanadine on Lake Huron, is flooded near Orangeville. The highway is the only direct road route from Orangeville, 38 miles northwest of here, to Arthur, 20 miles away.

Traffic is being detoured from Highway 33 where flood waters cover the road south of Lindsay, 10 miles southwest of Peterboro, though.

In general, all roads and highways throughout the province were bare and dry except for those in the extreme north. Highways officials warned that gravel roads are becoming soft and rough and urged motorists to watch for bumpy stretches.

REMANDED ON CHARGE

Toronto, March 25 — (CP) — Charged with the murder of Minnie McLennon March 1, Samuel Care, 58-year-old cleaner at the Toronto Tuberculosis Sanatorium in suburban Mouth Dennis, today was remanded to April 1.

Miss McLennon, 35, a hospital maid, was one of three women attacked by Care when he went berserk in the hospital. Armed with a knife, razor and shotgun, he killed Miss McLennon and a woman patient. Miss McLennon died the day after the attack.

Care is recovering from self-inflicted wounds.

Frontier Bunkhouse Classrooms Mark 50 Years of Progress

By MARILYN LAMBORN (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 25 (CP)— The 50-year growth of bunkhouse classrooms in Canada's hinterlands was described Thursday by a gaunt 70-year-old Doctor of Philosophy who has spent almost a lifetime putting realism into education.

Dr. A. W. Bradwin, principal of Frontier College, told the 50th annual board meeting that his bunkhouse classrooms had produced results.

Thousands of laborers working in isolated mining and lumber crew camps had added to their education and become better Canadians because of this organization. Many immigrants who couldn't speak a work of English when they arrived had written him and told him so.

A student of human nature, the white-haired man personally selects his own teaching staff from university students. They have to be "honest, clean-living men willing to sweat for a laborer's wage all day and do a night teaching job at night." He specifies that they must deal with the realities, not the theory of life.

Dr. Bradwin has no trouble finding intelligent, young men who want to share his dream of a better education for those spending their holidays in working camps. Thrmouth small notices posied in universities more than 2,500 students have been accepted for the summer months. A memorial to men killed and injured in the mines last year. Laid Off R R Men to Return

The reaction to the return of men to the pilts was almost immediate. The Chesapeake and Ohio, a coal-carrying railroad, announced that 7,000 to 8,000 employees now laid off would return to work by April 2, end of the first week of resumed work in the mines.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad, also an important coal carrier, said the 8,500 shop workers it had laid off during the coal strike, will be back on the job by April 4.

Lewis Orders Miners Return To Pits Monday

Pittsburgh, March 25 (AP) — The tension was off in the American coal fields today.

It was off, too, in industries, such as steel, which depend on coal for their operations. It was off among employees of coal-carrying railroads among river workers who transport coal in barges.

For John L. Lewis had ordered his miners to return to the pits next Monday and end a 59-day work stoppage of 463,000 members of the United Mine Workers in pits east of the Mississippi.

A fear had been lurking almost everywhere, however, that Lewis, by U.M.W. leaders, that the strike would not end at the close of the two-week period, and that a memorial to men killed and injured in the mines last year.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad, also an important coal carrier, said the 8,500 shop workers it had laid off during the coal strike, will be back on the job by April 4.

Donald Perrault Third of Gang Sentenced to Die

Montreal, March 25 — (CP) Donald Perreault, third member of a gang to be convicted for murder in the killing of two policemen, was sentenced to be hanged July 8 here after a King's Court jury deliberated for 38 minutes Thursday.

The tall, handsome Perreault received the death penalty calmly as Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux, thus ending murder trials against the Dimanche gang which started 4 months ago after two constables were slain in a $20,000 bank holdup.

Noel Cloutier, 24, who was captured with Perreault after the bank took place in the east-end of the city, was hanged March 11. Twenty-eight-year-old Douglas Mathieu, second member to Donald, was scheduled to hang today but received a last-minute stay of execution pending an appeal against his conviction.

Mathieu, who appeared confident of an acquittal during his four-day trial, acted nervously when the death sentence was pronounced, but quickly regained his composure, showing no other outward sign of emotion.

Wife in Courtroom

His pretty blond wife was among the 200 spectators crowded into the courtroom. She left the room a few minutes before the jury returned with the verdict.

Axis Sally Given 10 to 30 Years After Treason Charge Convictions

Washington, March 25 (AP)— Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars today was sentenced to 10 to 30 years in prison for treason.

Federal Judge Edward M. Curran also fined her $10,000.

Loss of citizenship is automatic on conviction of treason.

Miss Gillars, 48-year-old Main-born spinster, received the sentence Tuesday.

Defense attorneys could argue motions for a new trial.

Just before the sentence, Judge Curran denied these motions.

James J. Laughlin, counsel for Miss Gillars, entered notice of appeal. He told reporters the case would be fought up to the Supreme Court.

Miss Gillars broadcast the "Axis Sally" programs for the Nazi radio during the war. Her treason conviction was based on the broadcast of one propaganda drama called "Vision of Invasion."

Before passing sentence, Judge Curran remarked that the trial evidence showed that Miss Gillars did not take part in high-level Nazi propaganda policy conferences as was the case of Douglas Chandler and Robert Henry Best.

Chandler and Best were other American who gave propaganda aid to the Germans. They were tried for treason at Boston and Washington, D.C., respectively.

"You are now going on 49, in that century," Judge Curran asked, "Yes," Miss Gillars replied.

The judge then pronounced the sentence.

Miss Gillars said several times, "I don't understand," as she was convicted her. She was convicted of one of the eight alleged treasonable acts on which the government offered evidence.

The "vision of invasion" was broadcast by the Nazis a month before the Allies landed in Normandy.

Miss Gillars portrayed Evelyn, an Ohio mother who dreamed her son was killed in the invasion.

Labor Council Told City Grant Not Included

The grant to the Belleville and District Allied Labor Council requested from the city Council earlier this year, was not included in the city estimates, so the Labor Council at a recent meeting was informed by the city chairman of finance.

This information was in answer to a letter sent by the Labor Council asking what had happened to their request and the request of the Chamber of Commerce which had been mentioned in the original letter to the city council.

Since the letter did not say what had happened to the request of the Chamber of Commerce, the secretary was instructed to again contact the chairman of finance of the city to get an answer to their first letter. It was the contention of the Labor Council that requests from the Chamber of Commerce and their own council should get equal recognition.

Visit Endorsed

The coming visit of Rev. Harold Toye of Toronto on behalf of the Religious Labor Foundation was endorsed by the council and the meeting and dinner to be held on April 5th was recommended to all affiliates.

A resolution was passed that the Labor Council is in favor of getting more take out grocery place bona-fide labor candidates in the field for the next municipal elections.

The council also went on record against the coloring of margarine any different to butter.

The secretary was instructed to add the organized civic workers of the city to obtaining a satisfactory collective bargaining agreement with the works committee. This will be pledged by the organizations present at the meeting.

On Union's Unfair List

Affiliates of the council are to be made aware that the United Textile Workers of America, not certified union in the Penman's Ltd. mill at Paris, Ontario, plants are now on strike legally to seek recognition by the company, have placed that company and its products on union's unfair list. This means that union members are asked to refrain from purchasing goods made at the company until such time as the company meet with the legally certified union and enter into collective bargaining relations as advised by law.

PICTON

Suspect Picked Up After Assault On Young Girl

Picton. —A suspect has been picked up for questioning in connection with the criminal assault on a 17-year-old girl which occurred Wednesday night. A Picton resident, well-known to police record, the suspect, is held in Picton jail.

The girl, now in Picton hospital, was riding her bicycle from the village of Bloomfield, to her home in Schobarie, a rural district. When about a mile from the village, on a lonely road, she told police, a man stepped out on the road and knocked her from the bicycle. In the struggle she was choked. Following the criminal assault, the girl was able to proceed to her home. The man left in the opposite direction. She lives in the immediate neighborhood.

The girl was able to give a good description of her assailant.

Earlier this year, three women in Picton were attacked but managed to escape. No arrests were made.

CLUB CRAZE HITS TORONTO

Toronto, March 25 (CP)— The Pyramid Club craze which has been sweeping the United States for months, has finally hit Toronto.

A variation of the old chain letter idea, the club uses private rather than mails to raise the $1 bill into $2,000 profit. The only catch is that it takes thousands of persons ready to part with $1 on the assumption the club will continue until their turn comes up.

Mrs. Frances Campbell is a charter Toronto member who believes the plan feasible if too many Toronto clubs aren't started.

May Discuss Use Of 3000-Mile Rocket Range

Washington, March 23 (AP)— Possible American use of the 3,000 mile rocket range in Australia may be discussed when the defence chiefs of the two countries get together here next month.

Sir Frederick Stedden, permanent head of the Australian Department of Defence, is expected to visit Washington about April 10.

An Australian government spokesman said last week that he hoped the United Stateswouldjointly would be given use of the guided missile testing range, on request. Up to then, no formal request had been made, it was explained.

However, it is understood here that a United States survey board has returned from Australia where it studied the advantages and disadvantages of using the site.

Psychology In Salesmanship Topic of Talk

The Alter-Hours Club of Belleville held their second meeting of the Y.M.C.A. last night. They had as their guest speaker Mr. Charles D. Lundy, life underwriter for the London Life Insurance.

Mr. Lundy gave an interesting talk on "the Salesman and Supplementary Psychology." Included with the talk was a very discussion by the members in attendance. Mr. Lundy showed a large collection of salesmanship. Salesmanship is a popular term used to designate the body of knowledge practised by a seller in his attempt to influence others to buy or, it is the power to persuade people to buy what they had not intended or wanted to do, with a resultant profit to them from so doing.

Sales Resistance

Mr. Lundy said, "There are three main causes of resistance to selling. The first is indifference at the necessity of giving up something for sale. The second may be because of unpleasant associations by activities of unscrupulous traders in the past and another may be the tendency to resist domination by others especially by those felt to be inferior.

If a seller forces himself to concentrate on the customer's difficulty after a lengthy approach him, he may be able to solve his problems by the goods he has to offer. There are some primary principles which will have a lasting appeal to the customer's wants. They are economy, efficiency, dependability, prestige, profit, utility, style and health.

Must be Energetic

For a salesman to see his prospect he should display a spirit of energetic seeking of appointments, aggressiveness in seeking entrance, tact in seeking entrance, and persistence in seeking a decision. To capture a customer's attention one should be dramatic, concentrate, place a question in his mind, arouse his interest and then leave before the first line of defence."

Mr. Lundy Mr. Dufferin Avd. advised salesmen to use all possible knowledge of the product, to practise more early and often, and not to relapse into old ways of selling.

At the next meeting of the Alter Hours Club Mr. Lundy will continue with the discussion of "human motives and a demonstration of the approach."

K. L. Reid Gives Talk on Income Tax Matters

"The regular meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial Cost Accountants of Ontario, was held last Monday evening.

Guest speaker of the meeting was Mr. K. L. Reid, C.A., Income Tax Inspector in charge of the Department of National Revenue for Belleville and district.

Mr. Reid's timely subject "Corporation Income Taxes" was received with intense interest by those present. In his talk Mr. Reid gave a brief outline on the growth of the taxation division, both in Belleville and other points across Canada. He dealt extensively on reasons for government amendments, both to encourage and discourage private enterprise. Also on the obligation on taxes on income on taxes in Canada in 1917 to the present day.

Appreciates Co-operation

During his talk he voiced the department's thanks to the employers for their co-operation in deducting and remitting employee pay-as-you-go personal taxes. He also impressed the fact that both personal and corporation tax should be brought to the department for clearer understanding of regulations.

"The taxation division," he emphasized, "is the administrator of the Income Tax Act, which is passed by parliament to raise part of the necessary revenue to carry on government business."

Large Growth Here

Mr. Reid commented on the growth of the Belleville division stating that average yearly collections during 1936-1939 amounted to $450,000 while the 1948 collections were roughly $10,300,000. Individual returns jumped from a four to five thousand average to 32,000 in 1948.

Following his talk a discussion period was threaded out many individual tax problems. Chairman Carl Casey voiced the thanks of the Chapter to Mr. Reid for his talk.

Guests present at the meeting were Ezz Elliot, Frank Leach of Belleville, Brunsden, members of the taxation division of the Department of National Revenue, Frank Lang of Stephens Adamson Ltd., Charles Cawker, of Bellvue Finance Ltd., Gerald Ferraris of Stewart-Warner Alemite and Charles Newson of Mead Johnson and Company."

Kiwanis Will Sponsor Power Boat Regatta

At an organizational meeting of the Kiwanis Regatta Committee held Thursday night in Kiwanis Centre, it was decided that the Kiwanis Regatta would have two divisions of 123 Class Hydroplane and Runabout. Frank K. Franklin, Kiwanis Regatta chairman and a charter member of the Canadian Boating Federation, announced that the regatta would be held Wednesday, July 28th., off Massassaga. In former years the Rotary Club sponsored the boating meet.

The Canadian Boating Federation, recently organized in Toronto, will serve Canada in the same way that the American Power Boat Association serves the United States Marine Interests. The Canadian Federation, will promote all types of boating activities in Canada starting off with backing the type of power boat racing being held here.

Close Co-operation

The Canadian group will eventually try to embrace all water activities and sports and therefore command a voice in the governing of any marine acts in the future. The Canadian Boating Federation though completely independent will work in close cooperation with its sister American organization. Ed Pine and Charlie Abbott, local power boat drivers, are also charter members.

Chairman of Races, Dr. Harold Ketcheson announced that this year there will be two divisions for 123 cubic inch class hydroplanes, an open and a restricted division. He announced that the Canadian there are no alcohol burning boats. The "alki" burners far outclass gas models of the same size. For this reason the restricted division will be open only to gasoline powered boats in the 123 class. Similar divisions already exist for 225 class hydroplanes.

Will Attract Many Drivers

A subcommittee was appointed to proceed with surveying of the course and the committee as the committee discussed many other items of interest. Already many American and Canadian drivers have signified their intention of attending the Regatta and it was felt that the addition of the restricted class to the 123 class races would attract even more Canadian drivers.

Canadian Vickers held the spotlight in industrials following news that the company will redeem the entire issue of 4½ preferred at $110 a share plus current dividends and arrears. Vickers preferred 45½ rose $2.75 to a new high at $160.75 and the common was up $1 at 31½. Winnipeg Electric added 3-4 to Thursday's advance of 2 3-4, at 31.

McIntyre climbed to a new high at $56.50, up 63 cents, in golds while Macassa, Madsen, San Antonio, Hollinger and Teck slipped lower. Service Operator Injured Towing Wrecked Car

Operator of a tow truck for Trudeau Motors Ltd., John Parker, was the only person to suffer injury as a result of a two vehicle collision on the Trenton Belleville Highway early this morning —but he was not involved in the accident.

Shortly after 4:30 an eastbound Smith transport and a westbound Trenton-owned car collided in the vicinity of the Bay of Quinte Country Club, considerably damaging the auto. The driver and two airforce chaps who were being driven in the car escaped injuries as did the driver of the transport.

But not so Mr. Parker. The garage operator had been called to remove the wreckage of the Trenton-owned car. Parker hooked the car on to the two truck crane and as the vehicle was being lifted from the highway following the car to drop on his left leg severing it.

Parker was admitted to hospital where examination revealed no bones were broken.

CONST. KEAYS

Ashley 4

"Am I late, Keays has never been in my home," was the reply.

"Then you do not agree that after listening to your conversation for an hour I put you to bed," asked Beelzebub's pet "Moonlight Sonata" and Chopin on my piano?"

"Please do not lose your self respect entirely," said Cpl. Ervine, "you were in your own home and never played on my piano."

The witness also denied that on Jan. 16 he, Cpl. Ervine, found Keays' home carrying a case of beer and rum. "That is not true," he said.

He denied he had been drunk when he left Keays' home. He agreed that 'Inspector Page, Miss Dorothy Howard and Corporal Siple had visited at Keays' at the time.

Testified at Mitchell Trial

Keays suggested Cpl. Ervine had been carried drunk from his home in the presence of inspector Page.

"That is a lie," said Cpl. Ervine, "I was not intoxicated."

Cpl. Ervine stated he had testified at the Allen Mitchell trial that Allen Mitchell had been drunk when involved in a fatal auto accident on Dundas Road.

The transcript of the evidence showed Cpl. Ervine had said Mitchell had been "absolutely drunk."

He did not agree that a statement taken from the driver at the time of the accident should be used as evidence at the trial.

He said Mitchell had seemed rational. The witness agreed that the official police report would be against Mitchell.

He denied that as far as he was concerned there had been any discussion of Mitchell "fixing" Keays" when he had introduced the Mitchell-Keays case in connection with the Dent case.

Were Not Always Agreed

Cpl. Ervine stated that he and Keays had failed to see eye to eye on many occasions, "especially in my statement.

"I objected strenuously," stated Cpl. Ervine "and insisted the boy make his statement in the words which he could understand."

Keays stated that the absence of the jail guard who had been slugged by the escaping prisoners was a deliberate attempt at the trial by the Crown Attorney.

Asks Identity

"I would like to know who this person is who has the authority to suppress evidence?" asked Malcolm Stubb, counsel for Cpl. Ervine. "Is he the agent of the C.P. Hope, Commission Counsel.

Keays replied that Attorney S. Gordon Robertson, who was sitting in the court room stated he had prosecuted the case.

The witness denied any mistreatment of Keays by the constables. Keays by Cpl. Palmateer, Bancroft, stated he was beaten by the brutality of Constable Purdy from his post at a plowing match in Lindsay to the Bancroft jail. He had acknowledge Constable Purdy had hooked his car and the two tried crane and as the vehicle was being lifted from the highway following the car to drop on his left leg severing it.

Parker was admitted to hospital where examination revealed no bones were broken.

Director Says Police Assaulted During Strike

Montreal, March 25. (CP)—Deputy Director Hilaire Beaudet, of the Provincial Provincial Police in a statement today charged that members of that force had brutally assaulted during the recent strike of asbestos miners in the Asbestos, Que., district.

The director issued his statement following a tour Thursday of the district, where some 5,000 workers are on strike. He went to investigate charges of brutality by personnel of the Provincial Police sent there for duty during the strike by Premier Duplessis and Attorney-General Gagnon.

He found "these reports and rumors come from persons who are certainly not inspired by the spirit of truth."

He reviewed disturbances and injuries in the area developed since the strike began and said "it is not for strikers who require medical treatment but members of the Provincial Police".

A third defendant in the case, Adolf Waltel, 39, was freed by the court.

The trial was the last in five espionage cases heard by an eight-member military commission. There was only one acquittal and 17 convictions.

Canton, March 25 (AP)—The motor launch Min Orient exploded today after striking a mine, killing an estimated 100 persons.

Rescue ships were dispatched from here to the crown or colony of British Kong, with 1,000 persons aboard.

Fatalities were blamed for laying the mine after the ship's owners refused to pay extortion money to bandits.

Another ship, the river steamer Shiuhing, exploded yesterday after a mine Wednesday in the same area. Many passengers were thrown into panic by an exploding mine the owners said was set off by bandits who ignored a pirate threat of extortion.

Ontario Divided Into 30 Zones For R.C. Emergency

Toronto, March 26 (CP) R.C.A.F. planes, air force wireless stations, airforce personnel and police patrol cars stand ready to help the Ontario division of the Red Cross speed assistance to a disaster-stricken area.

Latest developments in the Red Cross program of preparation to meet emergencies, even in remote areas, announced at the province, are outlined in a report prepared for delivery today to the Ontario division's 26th annual meeting.

Leopold Macaulay, chairman of the Red Cross Ontario Disaster Services Committee, told 400 delegates that Ontario has been divided into 30 zones, each with provision for its area's own use of emergency.

He said that with the inauguration of the blood transfusion service in Ontario, adequate supplies of whole blood and plasma will be available in Toronto for immediate transportation. "It will not need be—to say stricken area in the province."

In addition to provincial police co-operation through radio-equipped automobiles, the Red Cross is completing arrangements with the R.C.A.F. to supply wireless communication.

Lieut.-Col. Ernest Chairman of the Outpost Hospital Committee, reported that substantial progress has been made in the construction of outpost hospitals at Wawa-tam, Ontario, Fort Frances, and now are operating in Ontario's remote areas, including Pickle Crow, Kingston, Red Lake and Bancroft.

The Red Cross blood transfusion service, now operating in Toronto, in four provinces, will be extended, it was announced, to every province early in April, Dr. W. Stuart Stanbury, National Commissioner of the Red Cross Society, said in a report prepared for delivery at the annual meeting.

Company Counsel Pleads Guilty To Five Charges

Montreal, March 25 (CP) Counsel for wealthy Albert Sansoucy's Textile Company today pleaded guilty to five charges concerning failure to pay income and excess profit taxes.

Sentence was postponed until April 8 when it is possible 10 other charges, laid against Sansoucy personally and his company are facing, will be withdrawn. Today's plea was only on charges involving the company.

Crown counsel said Sansoucy has already paid into the revenue department a sum which department claims he previously avoided paying.

The Crown also indicated that between now and April 8 the full amount would now be paid.

Originally 45 complaints in all were signed by a representative of the Income tax division of the revenue department charging evasions amounting to $1,500,000 but subsequent inquiry lowered the 15 charges before the court today was not immediately known.

When the original charges were laid, government lawyers said Sansoucy and his firm, under a variable penalty clause, owed $6,000,000 in fines, penalties, interest and taxes if there were convictions on all complaints. There were also charges under the Excess Profits Tax Act and the Excess Profits - Tax Act.

Last May the government obtained a writ from the Exchequer Court ordering the seizure of $600,000 in cash and bonds seized from a safety deposit box belonging to Sansoucy. The writ was issued on the grounds that there was danger the money might be lost.

Brother Attended Man Dying in Bush

Mattawa, March 25 (CP)— A Lakeland Skyways aircraft with a Provincial Constable aboard today is preparing to fly again into Bear Island, Ontario, scene today of the body of a 22-year-old trapper, Harry Dubinsky, who died Monday in an abandoned cabin on the shores of Shandy Lake.

Coroner William Irwin of Timiskaming, Que., revealed today the story of Constable Dubinsky 19-year-old brother of the dead man, who was with the trapper before he died then carried his body 15 miles through the dense undergrowth to the cabin.

After leaving the body in the cabin, the young constable trekked through more bush for two days and a night to bring the news to their family home here.

A married man with three young children, Harry Dubinsky is believed to have died from natural causes.

COMMUNISM

Suspension Indefinite

The Smallens Union suspension also will hold good until that convention, barring a change of heart by the unions, is removed from the union's refusal to obey a Congress dictate that it get out of two fields in Ontario.

Indications today were that the C.I.O. has planned no let-down.

The C.C.L. said after the suspension action against the Smallens Union—whose membership is estimated variously at between 15,000 and 25,000—that the action "does not in any way change its re-fusal to withdraw from the Communist fields and become the "villifying" attacks on C. C. L. leadership.

The Electrical Workers' Union was put off the Congress Council, which includes spokesmen for the major unions in the C.C.L., because of an editorial in its official publication criticizing the policies of the Ontario Federation of Labor.

The council also removed because of their approval of the Atlantic treaty, though, other A. F. of L. unions have been involved. The U.E.W. accused the Federation chiefs of "warmongering" and "using Hitler tactics."

Both Jackson and Robert H. Carlin of Sudbury, Ont., Eastern Canadian director of the Steel Union, put up defences of their actions. Both unions have been heavily outvoted by other council members. The votes ran about four to one, it was learned.

The eviction of Carlin's union developed from the Congress's crackdown on Communist influence in the C.C.L. Carlin's union is considered a key stricken area in this program.

In addition to provincial police co-operation through radio-equipped automobiles, the Red Cross is completing arrangements with the R.C.A.F. to supply wireless communication.

Lieut.-Col. Ernest Chairman of the Outpost Hospital Committee, reported that substantial progress has been made in the construction of outpost hospitals at Wawa-tam, Ontario, Fort Frances, and now are operating in Ontario's remote areas, including Pickle Crow, Kingston, Red Lake and Bancroft.

The Red Cross blood transfusion service, now operating in Toronto, in four provinces, will be extended, it was announced, to every province early in April, Dr. W. Stuart Stanbury, National Commissioner of the Red Cross Society, said in a report prepared for delivery at the annual meeting.

Editor Detained For Three Months In London Prison

London, March 25 (Reuters)—A high court today fined the proprietors of the London Daily Mirror £ 29,000 ($40,000) for contempt of court, and ordered the editor, Silvester Bolam, to be detained in prison for three months.

The contempt consisted of an article published in the Mirror, held to prejudice the trial of John George Haigh, 30-year-old company director charged with the murder of Mrs. Olive Durand-Deacon, an elderly widow who disappeared from her London hotel.

Lord Chief Justice Goddard said "there never has been a case approaching such gravity as this. It is of scandalous and wicked character."

At an early hearing the Judge said the Daily Mirror alleged that Haigh was guilty of "murder after murder."

"With a man held on one murder, the most horrifying details are given of other murders which are said to have been committed," he declared.

Sir Bernadine Holmes, appearing for the editor and proprietors, said the Mirror published in behalf of the proprietors what he had said previously was fair, and but a "matter of policy pandering to sensationalism for the purpose of increasing circulation."

He added this warning to the contempt: "The Daily Mirror Newspapers Limited): "Let the directors know that unless they observe the conduct of which their employees are capable, I shall not hesitate to publish such matters that they may form the court is long enough to reach them."

The directors of the Daily Mirror Company, whose names are generally unknown to British newspaper readers, were not named in court.

The proprietors said in his judgment that Haigh had been brought before the examining justices, and a charge against him had not yet been opened. Nothing was known than that he was charged with murder.

He ordered the proprietors to pay the fine and costs by noon Monday, on pain of expropriation of property to the value of the penalty.

Haigh, meanwhile, appeared in court today and was remanded until April 1 on the charge of having murdered Mrs. Durand-Deacon.

FEW SPRING BREAK-UPS

Though the past winter has been one of the open variety, the coming of spring brought some areas flooded conditions causing washouts in some parts of Ontario and in other parts of the Continent.

So there is a real line of demarcation between winter and spring in the behavior of the elements, as wind and rain or snow. There is the inevitable change marked even in this year of mild winter weather.

In some places the break-up usually associated with spring came a little earlier as in the Pacific area and in the Western parts of the United States.

Here there was nothing unusual or even of the usual type except that the thin weakened icefield in the river had passed down to the bay earlier than usual and without the slightest sign of violence.

Yesterday Ole Man River Mississippi did go on a mild spree, breaking through one of the levees and sending the residents fleeing to the higher grounds far away down in the south near Baton Rouge and in a section where the sugar cane grows.

Up here in the north at the same time the weather turned very mild, still more moderate than the winter weather was in comparison with the usual weather in the winter and at this time in the new season.

SEARCH FOR MISSIONARY

Concern felt for the safety of the Rev. Joseph Bullard, who has been working among the Eskimos, north of the port of Churchill, Manitoba, for the past 12 years, has prompted the sending out of a search party by plane to try to locate him. He has not been heard of since last September and authority has been granted to allow the plane into the pollo-quarantine area, northwest of Hudson Bay on the understanding that no contact be made between the plane crew and residents in the vast area under quarantine.

Hopes are expressed that Father Bullard will be found safe in some isolated settlement of that part of the country which he has been serving. He is a man who years ago arriving from France made his way direct to his mission in the northland. He has been travelling by snowshoe and dog sled on his missionary work.

The heroism of men of his stamp is indicated by the fact that while on his duties he froze both hands five years ago and was flown to Winnipeg and Montreal for treatment. While recuperating he studied and learned English so that he might be able to speak it. Previously he had mastered the Eskimo tongue.

The medium in which such men work has often a great deal to do with the strengthening of their character and with the success of their labors. In so many parts of the world men and women offer themselves for work in the service of their calling at the risk of life and limb out of love for truth and for their fellows.

There has been a number of veterans of missionary work who have spent their lives in ministering to the Eskimos and other dwellers in the far north.

DISCOVER SQUARE DANCE

Hollywood has found something of great interest, something not new but with a lasting appeal — the square dance. Windsor Star sees much news in the fact that while in the towns and villages of rural Ontario the winter season for dances, including square dances, is coming to a close, in Hollywood, according to Bob Thomas of The Associated Press, the film colony is going "square dance crazy."

Even in parts where the square dance has been at a low ebb there is reported something of a revival in the square dances in this province. The young people have found it good fun, more than in some of the more sophisticated dances of the modern type, they say.

The Windsor paper notes that modern dances have one girl for the whole evening, or most of it, but for rotheir advantages as, when one wishes to dance with the licking fun, "still there is much to be said for the old-fashioned square dances. There is sociability which the modern dance misses.

"If the film stars have adopted the square dance as a fine form of amusement, they can help rejuvenate a pleasure which is good amusement,indeed."

The old dances possess a gaiety which might add something to the mirth of entertainment in these days.

Prepare yourself for the world, as the athletes used to do for their exercise; oil your mind and your manners, to give them the necessary suppleness and flexibility; strength alone will not do.—Chesterfield.

Manner is one of the greatest engines of influence ever given to man.

FIRST BIRTHDAY

Of all the phrases mortals say
With smiling lips and eyes aglow,
This is the happiest I know:
"The baby's one year old today!"

The months have swiftly flown away!
There is no rapture to excel
The joy of them who proudly tell:
"The baby's one year old today!"

Come many birthdays, as they may,
The first seems best beyond a doubt,
That's why I spread the news about:
"The baby's one year old today!"

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BEING

Many years ago I was privileged to hear the great Joseph Jefferson in several of his plays. Joseph Jefferson, the man, was replicated in the character of "Rip Winkle," by "Bob Acres," or by whatever character for which he was chosen to act. He was the one portrayed. And ever when he became cast to acknowledge applause, he remained in character. Norman Douglas, the famous author of "South Wind," tells in another of a bomb about a drummer in one of Edward Fitzmaurice comedies. A friend speaking to Douglas about him said that "no such drummer" could be found in either America or Europe. "This man" said he "is not human; he is a natural phenomenon. He does not interpret music, he is the music itself."

Being wholly oneself is a rare attainment. Few ever reach that height. We become overweighted with our many characteristics, or limitations of others. We are splats and conpins. But every once in a while a man or woman rises into a unique position because he or she demonstrates the power that there is in just being what each was meant to be — himself or herself.

We alone are most responsible for what we are. The outstanding are always those who have remained most themselves. As Emerson has well said, we are each unique. And the more we become true to our uniqueness, the greater a personality we are. Being what we are and not diminishing all worry about being somebody else, is the only safe procedure for a person who is a candidate for immortality.

Few of us ever draw upon our rich reserves. So deeply hidden are they that many of us forget about them being there at all. Emergencies, however, often bring to the surface of our being qualities in our everyday living! Life would be so much more thrilling and satisfactory, if we did.

Enjoyment in self-development is being, for then we are giving expression to what we are, what we have, and what we hope to be. Being is to be in the position of tapping potentialities. A fruitful opportunity in itself. The inspiring life is the one concentrated upon action — movement.

Prime Minister Rejects Voting Age at Eighteen

Ottawa, March 25 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent Thursday rejected a request that the voting age be lowered from 21 to 18, on the ground it might be misused as taking an "unfair advantage" in the forthcoming general election.

He dealt, jocularly, with the request, presented to the cabinet in the annual brief of the Trades and Labor Congress.

"I would be very reluctant to change the rules of the game," he grinned, "at a time when everybody is saying there is going to be a general election."

He suggested such a change might well work in favor of the Liberal party.

He himself did not know when a general election would come, he told the Congress delegates.

"Certainly it will have to be held within..." He paused while delegates and reporters leaned forward, and added: "The next year and a half."

The delegates and reporters relaxed.

Mackenzie's Column: Recalls Role Played by Duke, Now The King

(Editor's Note: Twenty-one years ago today Jewish Mackenzie wrote his first column for The Associated Press. It, or one of the last one of his very earliest articles, his cartoon kick dates), follows. Mackenzie is interesting today because of his theme of the levelling processes then going on in England and the part taken in them by a young man destined to be the King.)

England's class barriers are undergoing a pretty vigorous and successful assault. Not only are they being hammered from without, but there is mutiny in the ranks of the defenders.

Class bulwarks, which were considered impregnable not so long ago, are being breached in which never can be repaired.

The real thing is a genuine leadership of the reform crusade, whose slogan is that all men are created equal, and that democracy is the British Royal Family.

The King has made it amply clear that he considers it is the "man" and not the "blood" which counts. This is a terrible shock to some people. They don't know what to think about the King. Emperor making real friends of labouring men.

Queen Mary agrees with the King. The royal children are chips off the old block. A likelotic campaign is being waged by the Duke of York's school with second son, to break down class barriers. Even the Duke is working so quietly that few people, even in England, realize what he is trying to do.

He is head of a summer camp for boys at Windsor. Former organization has several hundreds of them there at one time. And this is the point: they are drawn equally from the working classes and the well-to-do.

See No Difference

The Duke, sly young man, pours his little workmen and little bluebloods all into the same mixing bowl and stirs them up until you can't tell one from another. What is more important, the lads can't see any difference themselves.

The Duke has had considerable time at the camp in nondescript clothes, and is known as a pal of the gang. For a lark, the boys even have taken the handsome son of Their King—into a pond with his apparel on. And he liked it.

RURAL HAZARD

Chipings, South Africa — (CP) — A Diefontein farmer noticed his scratching ox was limping. The ox and found that it was an eight foot Egyptian cobra. It disappeared when he shot it. The farmer dug down and killed it with an axe.

OSLO'S NEW CITY HALL

Oslo, Norway — (CP) — A 24-foot astronomical clock and a 38-bell carillon are the chief attractions of the new City Hall in Oslo, 1930, are to be in place within a year, it was recently announced.

Vasilevsky Chief Of Russ Armies Brilliant Leader

By EDDY GILMOUR

Moscow, March 25 — (AP) — The shake-up of Russian leadership gave the Soviet armies a new chief today — Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, brilliant warrior and tactician.

As in other recent shifts, the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet announced without explanation that Vasilevsky was taking over from Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin as minister of armed forces of the Soviet Union, highest military post in all Russia.

His portions of Gilmore's story telephoned to London from Moscow, are missing, presumably held up by the Soviet censor.)

Bulganin, who had held the military since he took it over from Prime Minister Stalin March 4, 1947, will keep his post as deputy prime minister in the Council of Ministers. He apparently will remain a powerful member of the powerful, policy-shaping politburo.

Vasilevsky, personally well known to Allied leaders, was in an impressive record in the war. From the rank of major-general, he rose in a single year to a general of the army Jan. 19, 1943, and became a marshal and chief of staff not long afterward. His self-confidence stems him from the post of deputy minister of armed forces.

Hero of Stalingrad Soldiers

His troops smashed the German encirclement of Leningrad, he led the successful Soviet campaign in the Crimea and he also liberated Sevastopol. He is one of the most decorated of Russian heroes.

He sat among the top half-dozen Soviet officers in supreme command which mapped strategy in the entire map of the war and engineered the Russian drive to Berlin.

The new change is interpreted by observers here as further shifting into the same pattern as earlier ones which relieved politburo members of active administrative work, apparently so they can give full attention to policy items.

The release of top-level figures bore no indication that they were being shifted to the foreign secretary, that Russia was seeking bigger things of them in their politburo work.

FAST BEATING HEART

In the "allotted span" of human life—three score and ten—the heart will beat, it has been estimated, 2,500,000,000 times. Some beat at the rate of 70 beats (belly breaths) through open mouth, others 90 beats (chest breaths) through the diaphragm.

The woman who tells of "natural childbirth with no anesthesia and no desire for any, describes what is, in fact, a psychological process. She testifies to the truth of the teachings of Dr. Read in that little book which should be placed in the hands of every potential mother, not just expectant but every woman who marries, she will be kept one out of thousands of women who have had similar experience.

Bear all this in mind, is the note with which this woman ends her testimony:

"...acquaint more women with Dr. Read's teachings, (Say teachings, facts, — they were theories when Dr. Read first conceived them) and then they will ask their obstetrician for Dr. Read's book (if obstetrics babies) "what they can do to help themselves in labor, instead of what drugs to be going to use to ease them through a delivery for which they determine the most wonderful experience of their lives."

Remember what I say in the blue book about the husband remaining at his wife's side, not only during delivery but in spirit if not physically, he should read and study everything she does in reference to prenatal care, childbirth and baby care and accompany her whenever possible to doctor's office for all prelivery instruction or advice the doctor may give. For a copy of the blue book 'Preparing for Maternity send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A GREAT LIFE GREATLY LIVED

Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, lived to be almost ninety years of age, and into those years she crowded experiences that would befall as any person who has lived in ordinary circumstances.

Clara was born in a well-to-do home. Although it was not necessary for her to seek employment, she nevertheless became a school teacher when she was many years of age and taught for twelve years, until her health gave out. After recovering, she went to work for the government in Washington, D.C., where she held a government position. When the war between the states broke out, she followed the northern armies and, as such care of wounded soldiers that she came to be looked upon as the American Florence Nightingale. Some years later, while on a trip to Europe, she encountered a Swiss who was trying to form an international society for the relief of sick and wounded soldiers. In 1870 the war she plunged into the arduous work of nursing soldiers of the Franco-Prussian War.

Here was a woman whose life must indeed have pleased that Master who declared, "inasmuch as ye have done unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Every once in a while, a new Super Market opens up in Belleville and there's a big fuss made about it. The usual thing is to go and see the same old assortment of something new and terrifically different.

The building, the counters, the display racks are new and wonderful. But it's always the same old familiar junk on the shelves. Same old brands. The celebrant throng at the new Super Market, we notice along with a new kind of wire basket, possibly, peering and questing for something strange and different. But there is nothing. Even the bliss cheese in the cellophane is the same old oxotic blue cheese.

May this not be a foretaste of the comedy and the tragedy of the future? Forever and ever, the same old stuff served up in ever newer and ever more imposing surroundings. All the emphasis on the presentation of life; no emphasis whatever on the contents.

The choosers of our way of life have countless centuries ago. The men who decided that bread, for instance, was the staff of life were old, old and utterly forgotten when Babylon was born. All we have done since is to improve it, to figure out a few little cheniques for making bread a prettier white. We have never questioned bread. What those first flumblers chose, away back in the dawn of time, we slavishly submit to — bread, meat, butter, cheese, roots, radishes, onions — our hairy forebears chose them for us. The only difference — we are not so hairy.

In some little packaging, we are more advanced than the cave man. Music, literature, painting, machines, drugs, by-laws, revised statutes ...

Baskets a little fancier, shelves a little shewier; but the same old stuff on the shelves.

THE MOST WONDERFUL EXPERIENCE

A woman who has borne two children, the first, she says, "in the time-honored tradition of sweat and agony" the second "with the benefit of my clinical training in the Read method," declares that it was almost unbelievable that two births in the same general atmosphere could be so different.

The Read method is admirably described by Dr. Grantly Dick Read in his book Childbirth Without Fear (Harpers), which I advise every expectant mother to get from her book dealer or from the public library.

Gonsalves has swiped my copy of the book—and I do not recall whether Dr. Read plumps for home delivery rather than hospital delivery although his method is well calculated for use in the home, which, as I believe, is the safest place to have a baby.

The mere reading of the book should improve the "general atmosphere" of childbirth, whether the delivery be in the home or in the hospital.

During her first labor the woman was "scared to death, secretly, the worst, and experiencing it, I couldn't wait for the anesthetic." Her second delivery was "a natural" childbirth with no anesthesia and no desire for any."

Perhaps the second childbirth is less formidable than the first in most cases, because the woman has learned by experience that the business is not so dreadful after all. Quiet, please, one-child mothers. I've never had diabetes, scoliosis or diphtheria, but I suspect them would hardly made one an expert anyway. Let us hope that we need not be neurotic about our normal functions.

After this rude interruption let every one take three slow, deep breaths (belly breaths) and then three (chest breaths). Now open mouth, and from now on let them flow with the diaphragm.

The woman who tells of "natural childbirth with no anesthesia and no desire for any, describes what is, in fact, a psychological process. She testifies to the truth of the teachings of Dr. Read in that little book which should be placed in the hands of every potential mother, not just expectant but every woman who marries, she will be kept one out of thousands of women who have had similar experience.

Bear all this in mind, is the note with which this woman ends her testimony:

Russia May Close Iran Consulates

Lake Success, N.Y., March 25 (AP)—Informed sources reported today the Russian government has decided tentatively to close its consulates in neighboring Iran, which has been under frequent verbal attack by Moscow. There is still a chance the situation will be ironed out without closing of the consulates, it was said.

The three Russian consulates in Iran are at Tabriz, Meshed and Resht. The Russians are said to have asked the Iranians to close the consulates at Tabriz, Resht.

Strict censorship at Tehran has prevented any transmission abroad of the facts. The version reported here is that there has been no break in diplomatic relations and that the two countries are retaining their embassies in Moscow and Tehran, respectively.

Iranians accredited to the United Nations maintained any knowledge of events.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"He doesn't. Every one else seems to know except him. I don't hide it."

Brenda went toward the door. "Let's have dinner." As they went to the dining room, she put her arm around Karen's shoulders. "You will see Philip the day after tomorrow."

Wearing a simple dark dress Karen was back stage when she saw Philip in the wings. "For good luck prayed, "Let me find him different as that. I won't love him any more." It had been a futile prayer. Philip was the same, tall, brown-haired, sunburned.

Glimpsing her, he paused and looked at her. How could he have forgotten how slender and young and lovely Karen was! Her face was pale, her eyes large and dark and clear, and the dark curls a little disheveled.

"Karen." He came up to her and her warm hand slipped into his.

She felt weak. "I'll break the news to you gently, Philip. I'm to this play."

But he did not seem to hear what she had said for looking at her.

"Oh!" He smiled. "You're in the play! That's fine!"

"Brenda Bond sent for me."

"I told you she remembered you." He felt amused and strangely hurt. "I hope you're good. You'd better be good. It's good to be back." His was serious suddenly. "It's good to be back on the theatre." Then he looked directly into her eyes. "I'm going to be married quite soon. Did you know that?"

"I heard. I—I hope you'll be very happy, Philip."

He shut out Karen felt she could not move for a pain in her heart. A picture in her mind. She thought that will always be there.

And Brenda knew she had spoken. In Philip's dressing room. Good appeared on the stage.

Though Philip was in the theatre every day and though Karen was keenly conscious of his presence she did not speak to him again. One day at lunch Brenda said, "Philip and Lilyan dropped in last night. I was hoping they weren't as much in love as they were. But they are. It's a match thought but I was hoping for your sake, Karen. Their plans are made. They're going to be married in the altar the play opens in New York. Lilyan is shopping now and looking at furniture."

Brenda had smiled kindly. "I'm sorry. I'm sure you know that after all these years I see the same thing happen to you that happened to me. You've been behaving nicely. I behaved badly."

Craig Stanhope waited to take them home. But in the car Brenda said, "Drop me off first Craig. I've a headache."

Craig's brown eyes sought Karen's. "That means you have dinner with me, young lady. I positively refuse to eat alone."

Leaving Brenda, they went to a small German restaurant, and it was one of the most delightful evenings Karen had ever spent. Why didn't Brenda marry this gallant, humorous and amusing man? What was it, that she could not tell him?

Craig talked about his work and Karen listened and asked questions, noticing his strong hands that had performed many successful but trying operations. And Craig was curious at Brenda's interest in the girl opposite him. Both felt that after tonight after the informal, friendly dinner, they would be more than casual acquaintances.

Driving up Broadway, Craig said, "You'll see your name in lights one of these nights, Karen. You'll see thousands of people pay their money, wear their best clothes, and give up an entire evening to see you. I suppose a young actress works for that as a young doctor works toward performing a difficult operation successfully."

As they passed a church on Fifth avenue, he inclined his close-cropped gray head and said, "That is the church in which Lilyan and Philip will be married."

Since there was no parking space before the apartment house, Karen said, "You needn't bother to get out." Her eyes were hungry and grateful when she said, "I've enjoyed tonight almost more than anything I've done since I have been here."

Craig Stanhope smiled. "That's mutual. I'm beginning to understand why Brenda is so fond of you. Because you are you. Good night, child."

She was thinking of Craig Stanhope as she waited for the elevator. Absorbed, she did not notice the tall man who came in and stood next to her until he touched her sleeve.

"Karen."

The sound of her name made her turn her head quickly and look up, startled.

It was Bill McGrath!

Karen had a strange, faint feeling. Bill was wearing glasses. He could see her. That was her first thought before she thought of Roxanne—a curious question about him formed in her mind. He could see her!

Bill's mean to frighten you," he said.

The elevator door was opened. Karen said, "Come up, Bill."

In the living room she turned on the lamp over the brown sofa and looked at him. He was thinner. It was obvious that Roxanne ever he had been he had suffered.

She sat on the brown sofa and he sat beside her.

She had to ask, "You can see? You . . ."

"I wasn't very clever, was I? I didn't fool my parents. How is Roxanne? That's what I've got to know first! That's why I've troubled you for days trying to see you first! But either she was with you or you got into a cab . . ."

"You want me to tell you if she's in love with some one else — isn't that it, Bill?"

When he nodded, she said, "No, she isn't. She loves you. But she has met a boy who asked her to marry him and she's been considering it seriously. You can't blame her. She didn't see anything for herself except clinging in a cheap night club."

"Maybe I shouldn't have come back. I messed up everything, but I thought . . ."

Karen asked, "What happened? The papers said one thing but your parents thought another. They've advertised for you. They . . . . . .

"I've seen them. I went home first." He looked away from her to the picture of a smiling, golden-haired Roxanne on the piano. "I was going blind. That night you were out with me — the last night — I was nearly crazy." Lighting a cigarette he leaned forward, his eyes still fixed on the picture of Roxanne. "What else could I do? Do you think I'd let Roxanne support a blind man? Or my parents? Fading out of the picture, letting them think I was dead, was the best way out of it. I put my stuff on a boat at Miami and walked over."

Karen kept looking at his eyes. "But you can see now, Bill."

"I came back for an operation. Several doctors told me it was a hopeless case. But one man said there might be a chance. If it failed, I was never coming back. I had put my money in a bank in Miami under another name. I was going to live there, or it until it it can out and then . . . well, it did not matter. But if the operation succeeded . . ."

Karen nodded. "And it was a success!" She had already suffered both in mind and body! Being a whole man, with the right to marry the girl he loved, depended upon a surgeon's skill. Suddenly she thought of Craig Stanhope's strong, steady hands.

He said, "The operation wasn't anything to be thought I had while I was in the hospital with my eyes bandaged for days and not knowing whether I'd be a blind man when they came off."

He looked at her and smiled a twisted smile. "But that's history. I went home first. My mother and father weren't as shocked as I thought they'd be. They expected me to come back. I saw Roxanne's letters to them. They made me feel like a coward for running away."

Tapping the cigarette ashes into a glass tray on the end table he said, "If she's found somebody else — then I'll step out of the picture."

Karen's voice was calm and confident. "You think there will never be any other man except you, Bill. She tried to find a substitute. Don't you think she's suffered, too? If you had been dead, it would have been the end — nothing to hope for. But she knew you were somewhere and needing her! But she's been brave. I wish I were as brave as she is."

"That's why she's the only girl for me. I thought about it a lot before I came back. I can't abuse my eyes. I can't work as I did. I'll never be the big business success I thought I'd be. I'll make big money. I've been to see my boss and there's a job for me in the Richmond office — a light job. I promised Roxanne things, big things. She's had to work for everything she has. That's why I thought it best before I came. Maybe when she met a man with money . . . things like that. I'm no bargain."

Karen's eyes filled. "You're her Bill. Why do you man think of love and money in the same breath? All Roxanne wants in the whole world is you, Bill. You. To live with you for the rest of her life and love you."

That, she thought, suddenly was all she asked — To live with Philip for the rest of her life and love him and be loved.

"Don't be proud, Bill. The people in Bond Roxanne sing every night don't dream that make-up and glitter mask her longing to live a small, ordinary, normal life and keep house for some man — for you. Men are always talking about what they'd like to give the girls they love. They forget that the girls really want to do most of the giving."

He grinned. "You make me feel better."

Hearing high - heeled footsteps coming down the hall, Bill arose. Quickly Karen picked up her brown sport coat and green hat. Going quickly to the door, she said, "I'll have to stop her and tell her. She may be more shocked than I was. I'm afraid . . ."

Roxanne was hurrying down the hall.

"Going out?" she asked as Karen stopped. "I called at dinner time but you were out. So I had dinner with Eddie. I've got to hurry into an evening dress."

"I had dinner with Dr. Stanhope," Karen said.

Roxanne laughed. Only a few feet away, Karen knew, Bill McGrath heard her husky laughter. "Taking Brenda's boy-friend away from her, eh? Where are you going?"

She moved but Karen caught her arm. "I don't know where I'm going. It doesn't matter. Roxanne, there's — there's some one in there waiting to see you. As you always tell me — take it easy. It's — it's Bill! He's come back! He can see!"

Roxanne stiffened. All color drained from the face. Uttering a sharp little cry and then cry ing, "Bill! Bill!" she moved away and began to run. The door of the apartment opened and slammed.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Race and Religion

BY ROY L. SMITH

In all the world today there is no more troublesome problem than that of race relations. Conflict and tension appear in one form or another in every land in the world.

Inside the United States there is a tendency to assume that the race problem is a southern problem, but anyone familiar with the facts knows that such is not the case. A careful and scientific study of the problem by a famous scientist, in which detailed observations were taken in certain typical northern towns, reveals the fact that all the difficulties and tensions of race relations which appear south of the Mason and Dixon line also appear north of that mythical boundary.

Unsatisfactory Solutions

Up to date no satisfactory solution has been found for the problems that result from two races living together when they are separated from one another by the color line.

Various states of the Union have tried by legal means to solve the problem and we have Jim Crowism. Other states have tried economic measures and restricted real-estate agreements and discriminatory rent controls. Segregation, regulation and "white supremacy" have all resulted, in one time or another, in injustices.

Minority Responsibilities

We have heard much about the rights of minorities, and relatively little about the responsibilities of minorities.

It is true, of course, that minorities have rights which the majority are bound to respect in a self-respecting democracy. But it is also true that majorities have rights which self-respecting minorities ought also to respect.

Minorities do not have the right to live their lives altogether indifferent to the established standards of the majority. One family in a block does not have any right to destroy the quiet, the peace, or the good appearance of the entire neighborhood. One small section of a city does not have the right to defy the moral standards of the entire community.

Religion and Self-respect

Peace in any city, state, or nation rests back upon the respect with which the various groups involved hold one another. Two races can live at peace and enjoy one another's neighborliness if each respects the other and holds their human rights in high esteem, along with their personal characters.

The Sunday School lesson for March 23 is "Jesus Among People of Other Races," Mark 7:24-37; Luke 7:1-10.

It is fundamental teaching of Christianity that all men are born in the image of God. They may not be equal in their achievements, their abilities, or their qualities; but they are all equal in their origins. They have been born in a common heritage; they are entitled to a common claim on God; they enjoy a common solicitude at the hands of God.

The Woman Was a Greek

The scripture makes a highly significant comment about the mother of the stricken girl. It says she was a Greek. The very mention of her race immediately conjured up a whole succession of facts and prejudices.

To the devout Jew every Greek was a "Gentile," and as such one altogether outside the hope. It made no difference to him what the woman's character was, so long as she was a Greek she was an alien with whom he was to have no countenance of connection.

So far as he was concerned that settled it. She was a Greek and there was nothing she could do about it. No personal honor, no sweetness of spirit, no quality of head or mind, no culture, learning, or graciousness, could make any difference. She was a Greek. That simple fact for which she was not responsible condemned and doomed her.

Religion as a Leveller

Perhaps the most significant element in the life and teaching of Jesus was that He placed His supreme approval on character, and not on accidental circumstances for which the individual was in no way responsible.

Good religion will insist that every man shall be judged by what he has become, and not from whence he has come. The best Christian will be that one who most nearly likes the attitude Jesus would take in any situation involving race relations.

ACTS AS CONCILIATOR

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—Louis fine, Ontario's chief conciliation officer, will act as conciliator in wage negotiations between the Steep Company of Canada plant at Hamilton and the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.), Local 1005, it was announced. Labor Minister Daley who made the announcement, said he expected negotiations would start shortly in accordance with regulations of the labor relations act.

PRAIRIES ARRANGEMENT

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—Francis S. Harmon, vice-president of the Motion Picture Association of America, likes the way Canada and the United States co-operated to extend Hollywood's world market. In an interview Thursday he praised the arrangement by which Hollywood made films and old broadcasts to draw Americans to Canada so that United States dollars were available to buy the film capital's product.

Women's Institute

CARMEL W.I.

An event of considerable importance took place at the home of Mrs. C. Rowbotham, when Carmel Women's Institute was organized under the capable leadership of Mrs. Thos. Leslie, president of East Hastings District.

After outlining the history of the W.I., Mrs. Leslie presided over the election of officers. The following were elected:

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Leslie by Mrs. B. Carson.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social half-hour followed.

Olivier, Wyman Best Actor and Actress For Year

Hollywood, March 25. (AP)—Silence and Shakespeare won Academy awards for Jane Wyman and Sir Laurence Olivier, Thursday night.

Miss Wyman, 33-year-old graduate of B1 pictures, was named best actress of 1946 for playing the raped deaf-mute in "Johnny Belinda" Sir Laurence was given Hollywood's highest honor for his performances as Hamlet. His British production was also named the best picture of the year, marking the first time the award has been handed across the seas.

It was also a great night for the Hustons. Son John walked off with two gold statuettes for his writing and direction of "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre"; The Toronto-born father, Walter, sprinted down the aisle to claim his award as best supporting actor, as the wily prospector in the same film.

Claire Trevor was selected the best supporting actress as the drunken gun-moll in "Key Largo", also directed by John Huston.

Miss Wyman, formerly Sarah Jane Folks of St. Joseph, Mo., accepted her award the same way she won it—by keeping my mouth shut." Her co-star and beau, Lew Ayres then escorted her to J. L. Warner's celebration party at the Ascension as his British "Hamlet" bettered United States films by copping five awards. Sir Laurence's statuettes were received by friend Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. since the British star is in London. Author Shakespeare was declared ineligible for writing honors.

The Motion Picture Academy's voters selected "Buttons and Bows" from "The Paleface" as the best film song. Jane Russell, the strapless gown, rocked the room with her singing of the Jay-Livingston-Ray Evans tune.

Special awards went to Ivar Jandl of "The Search" for the best juvenile performance; Walter Wanger for "Joan of Arc"; Jerry Wald for consistent high-quality production; the French "Monsieur Vincent" as best foreign-language film.

The event was the fastest and smallest in the Academy's 21-year history. The awards were handed out in cafeteria style at the Academy's Beverly Theatre before an audience of 950, mostly press and nominees.

Sure-Fire Recipe For Chocolate Cake

By MAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 24. (CP)—This is a sad, sad tale about a girl who couldn't bake a chocolate cake.

She tried every recipe she had ever heard of, but still the cakes either dropped in the middle or were just plain solid.

Even her best friend couldn't offer any better advice than "Follow the recipe implicitly, my dear . . ." which was what she had been trying to do all the time.

Finally she visited the home economists of the consumer section, department of agriculture. Not only did they give her a recipe, but also a set of instructions to go with it. Her next cake turned out perfectly.

Here is the recipe—and instructions.

Ingredients: two squares of unsweetened chocolate; one-half cup of boiling water; one-half cup of shortening (margarine may be used); 2 1-4 cups of brown sugar; two eggs; one teaspoon of vanilla; two cups of sifted pastry flour or 1 3-4 cups of sifted all-purpose flour; one teaspoon baking-powder; one teaspoon baking-soda; one-quarter teaspoon salt; one-half cup sour milk.

Melt the chocolate in boiling water and then cool. Cream fat until fluffy. Gradually cream in the sugar. Add well-beaten egg and vanilla and beat thoroughly until light and creamy. Mix and sift dry ingredients (the soda is added with the dry ingredients) and add alternately with the melted chocolate and sour milk. Bake in a greased pan in a moderate oven (35 degrees Fahrenheit) from 60 to 65 minutes.

Turn out on a rack to cool. The cake will be eight by eight inches in size and should be 1-2 inches deep.

The home economists say that if a cake is to be successful one of the main things to remember is that it should be allowed "to steam a little" before being turned out on the rack.

This same cake may be topped with an easy-to-make Milk Chocolate Icing.

Ingredients — one tablespoon butter (or margarine) ; one cup icing sugar; one egg; one-half teaspoon vanilla; two to three squares unsweetened chocolate; one-quarter cup of milk.

Cream the butter and add sugar gradually, blending well. Add egg, milk and vanilla and chocolate which has been melted over hot water. Place the bowl containing icing in a pan of ice or cold water and beat with a rotary beater until it becomes thick (about three minutes).

Is Your Perfume Fashionable?

As the final touch for a formal evening, put on a few drops of perfume. This lilting fragrance, named for the goddess of the dance is a nice choice.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Fashions in perfume change as do fashions in dress. In mid-Victorian literature, the melancholy beauty wafted about in an enticing aura of violets. Therefore, this perfume was considered to be the proper thing. The idea of the place of violet as a leader was so established that no woman dared say she didn't like it. Arbutus and rose, staples of the olden days, have just disappeared.

Nearly all of the fashionable perfumes of today are blends or bouquets. The perfume chemist deals in scents as a fabric designer deals with colors, or the musical composer with tones. The results must be harmonious. For a woman to attempt to compound a toilet water is a waste of good material. One cannot possibly foresee—or shall we say foresmell?—the results of mixing teaspoon vanilla; two to three squares unsweetened chocolate; one-quarter cup of milk.

Cream the butter and add sugar gradually, blending well. Add egg, milk and vanilla and chocolate which has been melted over hot water. Place the bowl containing icing in a pan of ice or cold water and beat with a rotary beater until it becomes thick (about three minutes).

odors that are light and refreshing, either singly or blended successfully, and combinations of both. Often in the blends you will recognize some dominating flower note.

Perfume has taken its place in the grooming scheme of almost every woman, certainly every woman who has a beauty budget. It is the finishing touch when one has laid on the synthetic complexion, arranged the coiffure to the last hair, slipped into the special frock for the gala occasion. It has a sort of magic, makes a woman feel like a million dollars, gives her assurance and self confidence.

There is one rule for selecting a flowerlike aroma; get what you like, what speaks to you and avoid those that are heady. Then use very little. The best plan is to have an atomizer, spray the chest and shoulders after the bath. The warmth of the flesh will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate, only the sweet fragrance will remain.

TRIED ONCE — NEVER AGAIN

Wisbech, Cambridgeshire, England — (CP) — Eighty years ago Frederick Frusher took three puffs at his first pipe, and never smoked again. Frusher, now 100, says: "It still makes me feel ill to think of it."

WOT, NO RADIO?

Christchurch, N.Z. — (CP) — Tramps in New Zealand are particular. One old man, offered a lift by a motorist, cocked a jaundiced eye over the not-too-modern car and said accusingly: "Wot, no radio — no thanks."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Good Hint for Good Manners

It's mighty comforting to realize that even if you weren't born tactful, you can train yourself to be tactful by stopping to consider the feelings of other people. You must "stop, look, listen," open your eyes and your mind and your heart to become aware of the feelings or others, their reactions or possible reactions to circumstances present, their interests, their wishes.

Cross for name on informal card?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I frequently use my informals, on which I am writing to you, for writing notes to intimate friends. When I do, I cross off my formal name which is engraved in the centre of the first page, and simply write my first name over it. Several of my friends have questioned this procedure. But to me it would seem almost insulting to leave my formal name on the note, when the note is to a very close friend. Am I correct about this?

E. M.

There is no reason why you shouldn't cross off your formal name on your double informals if you feel this way about it. But I agree with your friends, for actually I see no reason why that name should be crossed off. I believe you are confusing this type of card with a visiting-card, on which you must cross off the formal name and write the informal name above it when you are writing some kind of informal message on the card. But this is because when you write a message on a visiting-card, you write it on the face of the card, the card becomes a note and the signature to a note must be the informal name. However, the name on the first page of your informals is the signature, so you write your note on the inside of the card, and sign your informal name on the inside.

When a borrowed bridal veil is too long

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At my formal church wedding in June I am going to wear a white wedding dress, and I would like to wear my cousin's bridal veil, which is six yards long. I am very short, and I am wondering if it would be correct to have a short train on my gown, with a veil that is so long. What is your suggestion about this?

M. S.

Customarily the long wedding veil is about eighteen inches longer than the train of the wedding gown. My suggestion is that, since this wedding veil you are borrowing is too long for the train you consider would be appropriate for you, you turn the veil back on itself to the length proper for the train you choose, and then catch it with clusters of orange blossoms or tiny tulle rosettes or small satin bows or other decoration that has some definite relationship to the design of your bridal costume. This is often done with a too-long lace or tulle veil that is borrowed and therefore cannot be altered as to length.

Plural of name ending in 's'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our last name is Curtis. Will you please tell me the correct form for the plural of our name?

T. C.

The 'plural of a proper noun ending in 's' is formed by adding 'es'. Curtises. For example, in the message on a greeting card: "Greetings from the Curtises" (Incorrect is the use of an apostrophe to indicate the plural of a name. Curtis's is not correct for the plural, but is correct for the possessive case: for example, "this is the curtis's house.")

Net and Taffeta Gaiety

By FRUNELLA WOOD

With Eastertime and spring festivities just around the corner, lots of us are particularly interested in dancing frocks, flower-pretty models for every bright occasion from a school hop to a cruise boat ...

The little length evening frock looks very attractive at this season, and will waltz through summer nicely too. The dress shown you here is a cloud of peach-bloom beige net, set over taffeta and finished by a swathed and shaped strapless bodice of harmonizing toner, an inset blending of taffeta from deep cocoa color to pale bois de rose. A stole of the net finishes the picture.

Fashion Flashes

IT MUST BE THE SONG that has brought out all those buttons and bows! A suit of deep beige woolen has its fitted jacket buttoned from the short revers collar to the waist with nine triple rows of amber buttons. The jacket has deep, curved flap pockets and is gently cut away in front.

VERY NEW and very smart for spring is a softly fitted coat of crisp fabric in heavy silk, such as silk serge, ribbed taffeta, silk bengaline or gros de Londres. Silk bengaline is used for a handsome coat, with a collar that rises softly in back and rolls to the low fastening in front. Waist is very fitted; skirt is full; sleeves are easy with narrow turn-back cuffs. Handsome in black, navy or dark toast brown.

A DASH of color lends charm to a glove. An inky black or navy glace kid glove is made with a curving frilled cuff, open at the side to show its lining of suede in pastel tones — such as pink, mauve or pale blue.

A DRESS to live in through a busy day is of tiny black and white checked tropical worsted. The dress, cut with snug bodice and flat-away collar over which is a detachable collar of white pique, has huge patch pockets on the gay skirt. The dress buttons, with carved jet buttons, to below the waistline, which has a belt of polished black calfskin. Flyaway turn-back cuffs have similar pique detail.

A NEW STAR in the shoe-leather firmament is kidskin, which is, the leather skin at a stage between calfskin and cowhide. It is beautiful in the pale beige and bamboo shades, in walking shoes and afternoon pumps.

NEVER has there been such an array of handsome tweed coats, as good, for town as they are at home in the country. Pick wisely, forget the price, and you'll have an investment that will pay practical and handsome fashion dividends for years, and always look well and right.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A daughter who needs wise Guidance

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a daughter of 16 who works. The days when she does not work she spend at home from noon on until 10.30 or 11.00 in the evening in married woman's house. That I do not like.

I try to explain to her that she should have girl friends and children age with whom she could go to the movies, attend some girls' organization three or four nights a week, as she does not seem to want to have some of these invited to the home of one of these married women. But she goes and told the lady I did not care to have my daughter go there.

I have an older boy who tries to watch over the younger children but he seems to think that as this daughter works, it is perfectly all right for her to do as she wants. I want to be fair but sometimes I wonder what is right.

"Mrs. F. O."

Dear "Mrs. F.O.":

I agree with you that it is not good for a 16-year-old girl to spend all of her time with older married women.

If she will not listen to you, is there anyone you know who could influence her? Sometimes a teen-age girl has some one whom she looks up to and admires, she looks up, and who could drop a few remarks that would have some effect.

If you don't know anyone of this sort, then I suggest that you discuss the matter with a woman social worker or perhaps one of the women in your local YWCA. They might be able to find out what the interest was and show this girl that she could have a lot more fun with friends her own age who would be interested in the things that interest her.

I will be very glad to tell you where you can go to discuss this problem if you will let me know that you would like me to do so.

Says false rumors are being spread about her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and in love with a fellow who is in the Marines. I know he feels the same about me, but there is a girl he used to go with who is trying to break up our friendship. She is a trouble maker and is telling things that are untrue about me. She is also telling people that she is married to this boy.

We plan to get married when he comes home, which will be two years from now, when I'll be 19 and he'll be 22. What can I do to prevent the spreading of this rumor as is spreading get back to my boy friend when he comes home on leaves.

"Helen"

Dear "Helen":

If you are quite certain that you are doing nothing in your boy friend's absence of a kind that you would not want him to know about, then I can't see what you have to be afraid of. It seems to me that if your behavior is always all it should be, your boy friend should trust you enough to pay no attention to malicious gossip. It takes a lot of reality in. Of course, if you haven't given your boy friend reason to trust you completely, that's just too bad. I think you had better examine your own conduct and make sure you are entirely in the clear, as it rarely happens that stories are started about a person without a reason, whatever.

As for your girl friend telling people she is married to your boy friend. I should think your young man could easily take care of that.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Conserve the youthful silhouette

It is a sad state of affairs when a woman loses her good looks and her figure. How often we hear, "Ten years ago she was as slender as a reed. Now look at her! Waistline, and hips spreading." Considering how much women have learned about hygiene of the diet, exercise and physical education in general, these transformations are not supposed. Women with youthful figures take it for granted that they will stay that way. They don't start early enough to combat the birthday.

There are elderly women who have remained slender. You see them frequently. Sixty, maybe seventy years old. They carry themselves well—backs straight, chin up. There is a certain splendor about them. They have Old Father Time licked.

These women have always been highly energized. The mind as well as the body is alert. They're younger in many ways than some younger people.

They have lived wisely. They have had good eating habits, taking enough protein each day to provide the proper amount of nourishment, and not to exceed more. Adipose tissue and overcurves are caused by consuming more calories than one burns up through exercise. Let no plumpie dispute that statement. It is the truth and the medical profession will back it up.

"Ten years ago she was as slender as a reed."

Correct posture will do more to retain the youthful outline than anything else. It is of tremendous importance, as any physician will tell you, and this preacher deeply regrets that more young women do not realize that fact. It keeps the musculature strong. It has a favorable effect upon the inner organs, helping them to function as they should.

When the shoulders are permitted to fall forward, breathing is restricted, circulation impaired and the complexion loses coloring. Also, this attitude is not pretty. It is the attitude of lassitude, lack of energy, sometimes of despair. Pull in your tummy, throw back your chest, tuck in your tummy, put back your hips and you'll feel as if you could swing the world around by the tail. You will be and truly alive. You'll have courage to face anything. Just pumping plenty of air into your lungs is stimulating to the spirit.

Women seem to know anything about their own bodies. They could find their bodies through their living habits—keep them young or let them go to seed.

If nature has fashioned you an attractive figure of normal weight and measurements, appreciate and treasure it. Keep it young.

Cheese Is First Choice

Cheese is one of the most concentrated and flavorful foods. It makes an excellent basis for meatless meals.

For this reason the home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture feel that they cannot emphasize too greatly the value of cheese in everyday meals.

There are many kinds of cheese to make in Canada of which "Cheddar" is the most common.

Since it requires approximately 11 pounds or a little more than one gallon of milk (testing 3.5 per cent butterfat) to make 1 pound of cheese, about 4 ounces of cheese is equivalent to 1 quart of milk in total calorie value or, in other words, 1 cubic inch of cheese is equivalent to 1 glass of milk.

Cheddar is a hard cheese and, in this respect, differs from the process cheese which is now sold extensively in packaged form throughout Canada. Process cheese is made from a Cheddar base but, compared pound for pound, Cheddar cheese has higher food value than process cheese since the latter contains more moisture.

Cheese in salad is not a new idea but one seldom used. Cubed process cheese in cabbage, beet, potato or plain lettuce salad makes it a man's salad. A little grated cheese added to French or boiled salad dressing has the same effect. Cheese, combined with vegetables or cereals, makes excellent main dishes.

Onions in Cheese Sauce

2 large onions
1 1-2 tablespoons fat
1 1-2 tablespoons flour
1-2 teaspoon salt
3-3 cup milk
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
1-4 teaspoon spicy meat sauce

Cook onions until tender in boiling water. Drain. Place onions in a baking dish. Melt fat. Add flour and salt and stir until well blended. Add milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese and spicy sauce. Pour over onions. Place under the broiler until lightly browned. Yield: six servings.

Vegetables in Cheese Sauce

1 1-2 cups mixed cooked vegetables
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1-2 teaspoon dry mustard

MARMORA

Talk on Education Given to Home And School Assoc.

Marmora — The regular open monthly meeting of Marmora Home and School Association was held in the Public School on Tuesday evening.

The business portion of the meeting was conducted by the President, Mrs. W. G. Chrysler, who suggested that the Association would give a prize again this year to the pupil obtaining the highest standing at the Entrance examinations in June. The attendance of parents and grandparents, according to rooms, was then taken by Principal E. C. Prentice.

Quiz Contest

Succeeding the business period a quiz contest was staged by the teachers. Six of the members of the Association were chosen to see who could first answer correctly a series of widely varied questions. Revr. G. D. Young was found to be the winner.

Finally there is the responsibility of the parents to see that the child develops a desire for good education, that the child gets to school regularly and on time and is encouraged to do his homework, necessary study and reading.

Refreshments were served by the committee and a social period was enjoyed.

Foxboro Farm Forum Concludes Winter Sessions

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Reynolds opened their home on Monday evening for the weekly meeting of the Foxboro Farm Forum. About thirty members gathered to listen to the Farm Forum broadcast, and to participate in Forum activities. This was the last regular meeting of the 1940-1940 season.

Mr. Everett Prindle asked various members to give impromptu replies to the questions.

What have you got out of Farm Forum?

Mr. Fred Campbell thought that Farm Forum tended to foster neighborliness and that it was also educational.

The group was especially interested in hearing Mr. R. Cvetanovic, a new Canadian from Yugoslavia. He said that he was much impressed by the freedom which Canadians enjoy to discuss problems and to express opposite views. He quoted Thomas Masaryk as saying "democracy is discussion."

Mr. M. C. Reynolds expressed regret that there was still a number who had not sufficient interest to attend Farm Forum.

Mr. Prindle welcomed Mr. W. Rodgers, who had been unable to attend for the past three years on account of ill health.

Mr. Rodgers mentioned having listened to the forum broadcasts at home. He believed that these forum by bringing together the people of the neighborhood creates good feeling among neighbors.

Mr. Ronald Longwell felt that members should do something about the points which they participate. The discussion is excellent, but it should not end down to a minimum to leave time for the recreation which is often not possible.

Mr. William Slater told of meeting with Mr. Clare Burt, Ontario Farm Forum secretary, while in Toronto. Some of the problems were too deep for an evening's discussion, and another year questions might be altered to "get people out in a group to discuss."

Mrs. B. Finkle stated that she had enjoyed the meetings very much, and regretted she had not been able to attend more regularly.

Mrs. H. Coulter secretary of the Foxboro group, wished that lengthy correspondence which takes up up so much of the forum time might be eliminated. She also thanked the group for their co-operation during the past season.

The CJBQ broadcast was heard. The farm forum questionnaire for 1940 was answered. Plans were made for a social evening on March 28, to close the farm forum season.

FOOD-MARKETING

Says Views Wrong

Mr. Dietenbaker charged Mr. Garson with enunciating a "dangerous and iniquitous" principle which could mean the destruction of the Canadian constitution. He could, he said, reduce the constitution to a "shadow" and make the provinces, in their civil and property rights, dependent on the "whim" of a federal parliamentary majority.

Mr. Drew told Mr. Garson his views were wrong. It was parliament, not the government or the courts, that had responsibility for legislation. Leading cases before the courts had made it clear that parliament accepted the responsibility to say whether or not it was constitutional.

Mr. Fleming said it was a "monstrous intrusion" to the intelligence of members to contend that parliament did not have to worry about the constitutionality of the laws which it passed.

Mr. Gardiner said the Dominion is taking powers which rightfully belong to the provinces, but added that the legislation contained "no single authority and no single power" that was not already in provincial marketing acts.

No one could argue, as had Progressive Conservatives, that there was no emergency requiring the legislation. There was an emergency and it stemmed from the controls which Canada had to impose in the war and postwar periods. There was an emergency in that Canadian foods had been sold to Britain at low prices and that farmers now had a right to compensation.

Mr. Hackett said Mr. Gardiner's argument might be a "rather telling argument when you are talking to a farmer," but it was no valid reason for breaking the constitution. There was not a national emergency which justified departing from the constitution.

Recorded Vote

The agriculture legislation produced a recorded vote when the Progressive Conservatives opposed a motion to give study to the preliminary measure. In the ensuing division, the motion carried by a count of 130 to 80, with the CCF and Social Credit parties siding with the government.

Earlier, members gave third reading to two of the control measures—a bill incorporating special wartime bonuses granted to rural mail carriers into their contracts and another continuing the life of the Canadian Commercial Corporation, which acts as a purchasing agent for the government.

Mr. Drew called for the vote in the agriculture measure. He said he was opposed to it because it was another of the measures which asked parliament to declare that a general emergency arising out of the war still exists.

Mr. Gardiner said that extension of the life of the purchasing boards was necessary if Canadian farmers were to be compensated for the low prices at which their foodstuffs were sold during the war and post war years.

The government, he said does not believe that the farmer should carry the whole load.

The government, he added, does believe that all the consumers of Canada should share the cost and that is why it is seeking continuation of the wartime foods board.

Through their high prices, the contracts with the United Kingdom brought Canadian farmers a better rate than was obtained now by their counterpart in the United States, thus compensating them for the lower-than-world prices they received a few years ago.

If the boards were not continued the government, could not fill the contracts and the price range would drop.

PERMITS UNNECESSARY

London — (CP) — Farmers will be able to grow buckwheat (birdseed), millet and canary seed in 1949 without getting luxury crop permits, the Agriculture Ministry ruled. But the order will be restored if too much acreage is devoted to them.

ONT. LEGISLATURE

Greater Compensation Proposed

Greater compensation for injured working men and women is provided for by a government-sponsored amendment to the Compensation Act. Given first reading, the measure establishes the basic rate of compensation at 75 per cent, compared with the previous 66 2-3 per cent. The maximum per week on which compensation will be paid is raised from $2,500 to $3,000.

The Legislature Thursday defeated a C.C.F. amendment to eliminate from the police bill a clause which permits Ontario Provincial Police to be sent to a municipality at the request of the Crown Attorney.

Mr. Park said the section prohibiting police from joining unions "reflects the government's lack of confidence in the policemen of the province" and was a reflection on organized labor.

He said the government apparently did not think police could associate with union men "without. . . undermining their ability to serve adequately law and order."

C. H. Millard (C.C.F.-York West), described the measure as "an anti-labor bill" which infringed on the right of free association.

"It has no place in a democracy."

J. G. Brown (Lib.-Waterloo North), who opposed the amendment, said he believed policemen, while performing their duties, were "the citizens but the law."

Attorney - General Blackwell said the section of the bill was not intended to infringe on civil liberties of policement but "to maintain all civil liberties."

Not In Same Class

There was a danger that policemen who were also trade union members might, in the case of a strike, be faced with "a conflict between their duty and their interest."

H. C. Nixon (Lib-Brant) said there was "no use saying the duties of the police forces were the same as those of an ordinary workman." It would be "unthinkable" to put a policeman in a position where he might be obliged to accept orders from a union while supervising a strike.

J. L. Easton (CCF-Wentworth) moved deletion from the act of the section giving crown attorneys authority to summon provincial police to a municipality. He said the Police Act of 1947 empowered the crown attorney to request only one policeman to assist in criminal investigation. The section, as amended, gave the crown attorney authority to call as many police as he wanted without consulting elected municipal authorities.

He described the section as "an unwarranted interference with municipal authority."

C.C.F. leader E. B. Jolliffe said power to request police was invested in the crown attorney who was responsible to the Attorney General's Department.

The Attorney-General does not trust the elected representatives of the people of the boards of police commissioners," he said.

Mr. Park, public relations director for the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.C.O.), charged that police were sometimes used "to break down the morale of pickets" in strikes. Attorney-General Blackwell retorted that "labor union officials who break the laws incite pickets to break the laws."

The legislature reassembles today at 1:30 p.m. to consider more bills and estimates.

Consider Private Bills

After approving public works estimates, the House considered private bills.

Labor Minister Daley said if a workman was paid 100-per-cent compensation as provided in a bill sponsored by H. D. Thomas (CCF—Ontario) he would have no inducement to return to work.

The bill also provided for elimination of the waiting period, which would encourage "malingering."

C. H. Millard (CCF—York West) said he got "sick, sore and disgusted at the insults offered the working people of this province." It had been suggested that workmen would deliberately injure themselves to get compensation.

The House divided at 1:15 a.m.

Bevin or Acheson Seen Cast For Hero's Role in World Drama, United Nations General Assembly

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, N.Y., March 23. (CP) — The curtain goes up April 3 on the United Nations' biggest show — "The General Assembly."

The dramatic conflict, this year as previously, will be: East vs. West.

The cast is largely unknown, too. Star of the show is bound to be Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet Union's chief deputy foreign minister with a propensity for saying "No." For people in the Western World, he'll be the villain.

But the heroe's role hasn't been definitely cast. Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of the United Kingdom, outspoken former union organizer, and scholarly Dean Acheson, United States secretary of State, may be part-time performers. They're naturals for the main contra-Gromyko billing.

Act 1 (Africa)

Scene 1 — What nation gets Italy's former colonies in North Africa?

Scene 2 — Are South Africa's Indians getting a fair deal?

Act II (Europe)

Scene 1 — Why can't the Big Four get together in Germany?

Scene 2 — What can be done to resettle Europe's millions of war refugees?

Scene 3 — Were recent trials of churchmen behind the iron curtain an infringement on human rights, and what can U. N. do about it?

Scene 4 — Is Generalissimo Franco of Spain a good man or a bad?

Act III (Asia)

Scene 1 — Has The Netherlands been handling its Indonesian problem correctly?

Act IV — (Western Hemisphere)

Scene 1 — How can the living conditions of American aboriginals be improved?

Act V (Scene Indeterminate)

Scene 1 — Shall U. N. have its own police force to help keep the peace?

Scene 2 — How can co-operation among the nations be increased?

Scene 3 — What can U. N. do to make sure information passes freely among nations?

Gromyko, recently appointed to his post as senior deputy foreign minister, is expected to be in the cast from beginning to end. His understudy will be Jakob Malik, Russia's permanent delegate on U. N.'s Security Council.

Bevin's understudy will be Hector McNeil, Britain's minister of state and full-time U. N. delegate. Acheson's supporting cast from the United States will probably include Warren R. Austin and John Foster Dulles, with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt at backstage.

Stage for "General Assembly" will be the same used previously in New York — the former New York City building on the site of the 1939 World's Fair at nearby Flushing Meadows.

Between performances there, rehearsal stages will be operating at U. N.'s permanent headquarters at Lake Success. Scenes for the big show will be thrashed out there at meetings of the six permanent committees: political and security, economic and financial, humanitarian and cultural, social, trusteeship and legal.

Plan to Create Western German State Opposed

Frankfurt, March 25 (AP) The plan to create a western German state has bumped into increasingly powerful opposition.

Informed observers now give the idea no better than a 50-50 chance of being worked out.

The Communists have been opposed right along to any western German government. It would leave out their eastern zone of Germany and minimize Communist influence in the west.

In this opposition they have found some strange Allies.

This opposition includes the strong Socialist party in western Germany, the French military government and a new German Nationalist movement which aims at a united Germany.

The outcome of the dispute is important.

If the present German constitutional assembly at Bonn fails to adopt a constitution for western Germany, American and British policy, which calls for setting up such a state, must under go a complete change.

The Bonn assembly early this month worked out its ideas of a west German constitution an offered it to the military governors of the United States, Britain and France. The governors recommended changes which would give less power to the proposed federal government; more power to the states.

Want Central Govt.

The German Socialists, who hold 27 of the 65 votes in the assembly, are insistent on a strong central government with state planning.

The assembly can't adopt a constitution without the Socialists since a two-thirds vote is needed.

It is an open secret that French representatives in Germany have worked continuously at blocking the proposed western state. Twice invaded by German armies in recent years, France fears possible revival of a strong Germany.

According to one report, the French Consul-General at Munich told German politicians France would support only the entry of individual German states into the western German defence federation. The inference was if the western Germans banded together they would never get into the European family of nations.

Thus there is a stalemate between the demands of the Socialists for a strong central government and the French opposition to creation of such a federation.

What may happen, one group thinks, is creation of the proposed western state will be stalled while all parties wait for something to happen.

Huge Gas Fire In Oil Field Is Uncontrolled

Houston, Tex., March 25 (AP) A huge gas fire burning in the ground near here was uncontrolled but there was no immediate danger to life or property.

The fire was in the Houston oil-field, about 10 miles southwest of Houston. Police ordered the fire with a cordon of men to keep the curious beyond the danger zone. No evacuations of residences was necessary.

One theory is the fire originated from the blow-out of an abandoned gas well. The flames erupted about 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Light from the fire lighted much of Houston and rumbles and small explosions could be heard from the burning area. Police said the air in the vicinity of the fire was filled with small chunks of cement and mud.

Toronto Leafs Take Decided Edge in Series With Bruins Winning Second Straight 3-2

Boston, March 26 (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs, hampered all season by the retirement of Syl Apps, today heaped praise on big Harry Watson whose timely goals have sent them into a two-game lead against Boston Bruins in their best-of-seven semi-final series for the Stanley cup.

The 200-pound left-winger, a former linemate of Apps', last night swiped two goals and fed his Leafs to a 3-2 win over the Bruins. It sent them homeward-bound to take up the third game tomorrow night.

The Leafs have registered six goals in their last two games and Watson has fired in four of them. His two-goal display last night duplicated Wednesday's outings when he led Leafs to a 3-0 win.

Watson, who appears to have taken over Apps' duties of goalling the club through in the clinches, came through with the tying counter mid-way through the last period and minutes later got the pay-off goal.

After digging into defensive play with a 3-1 lead, the Bruins were stunned when the bullet-shot Watson flipped the puck into the nets with nonchalant ease.

They made a last ditch attempt to get the tying goal before the 13,909 fans. They pulled goalie Frankie Brimsek in favor of six forwards at 19:21 but the Leafs held on.

Leafs Score First

Toronto scored first early in the initial period, rookie Ray Timgren getting his first playoff marker on a wild, goal-mouth scramble. Woody Dumart's goal up a couple of minutes later with a similar goal.

In the second period, Paul Ronty sent the Bruins into a 3-1 lead when he converted on a three-way play with Milt Schmidt and Johnny Peirson.

Watson's his first goal mid-way through the third period when he beat Brimsek on a pass from Cal Gardner and then followed up with the game-winning tally.

Canadiens Square Series With Wings By Winning 4-3

Detroit, March 26 — (CP) — Gerry Plamondon and Billy Reay, a pair of pint-sized sharpshooters, were the toast of Montreal Canadiens' camp today.

They combined Thursday night for all four goals as the Habitants squared their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series at one game apiece Thursday night with a 4-3 overtime victory over Detroit Red Wings before 13,718 Olympia fans.

It was a big night indeed for Plamondon. He fired three goals, including the winner at 2:39 of the first overtime session, and set up Reay for the other Montreal counter.

Since Plamondon was called up for the playoffs by Canadiens in the 1946 season, he played all of his hockey for Montreal Royals in the Quebec Senior League until making the jump to the big time again two months ago.

The fact that he has only been playing on the same line with Reay for the last three weeks makes the feat even more remarkable. Plamondon took over Maurice Richard's left - wing spot on the trio with Reay at centre and Joe Carveth on the right flank while Richard was injured.

The slip-and-tuck battle was a tough one for the Wings to lose, just as it was for Canadiens when they dropped the 105-minute marathon opener 2-1 on Tuesday night.

Abel, Lindsay Good

Big guns for Detroit again Thursday included their veteran captain, Sid Abel, and his aggressive left-winger, Ted Lindsay. They each figured in all three markers, Abel scoring twice and Lindsay once.

Each club hit the target once in the opening session. After battling through scoreless second period, the Wings forged ahead 2-1 early in the final but a penalty to defenceman Red Kelly proved disastrous for Detroit. While he was in the Habitants punched home two goals to lead 3-2. The Wings rallied for from beaten yet and Abel's counter at 16:40 sent the teams into extra time.

On Montreal's first rush of the overtime, Plamondon took Reay's pass at the left side of the Detroit cage and flipped the puck over goalie Harry Lumley's falling body.

The tally sent the happy Habs into a war dance and they waltzed off the ice to pack for the trip to Montreal where the third contest will be played Saturday night.

Lineups:

Montreal.— goal, Durnan; defence, Harvey, Bouchard; centre, Mosdell; wings, Richard, Fillion; subs, Riopelle, Plamondon, Carveth, Harmon, Chamberlain, Reay Gravelle, Reardon, Leger, Laycoe, Mosdell.

Detroit — goal, Lumley; defence, Stewart, Quackenbush; centre, Abel; wings, Howe, Lindsay; subs, Kelly, Reise, Gee, McNab, Horeck, Polle, McFadden, Couture, Pavelich, Enlo, Fogolin.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

This Sammy Mulholland, out of Kingston, who starred with the Philadelphia Rockets in the American Hockey League this season, is a versatile young gentleman, to say the least. They think highly of this Mercury-heeled young speedster down in the City of Brotherly Love—and well they might. For Sammy is a personable young gentleman, fleet afoot; amiable in disposition, and sincere in effect.

* * *

Sammy, as baseball fans hereabouts will recall was one the Kingston Locos star hurlers last summer and earned for himself the title of the COBL's most valuable player. Sammy was a flinger and general baseball star and definitely earned the award. He was so good that the Brooklyn Dodgers scouts looked him over and he will report to the Dodgers spring training camp at Vero Beach, Florida.

* * *

There's quite a piece about this Kingston young Kingston athlete in the Philadelphia Arena bulletin. It says in part:

"This ice fledgling is not the game's best scorer but you action that he's not the fastest skater they've ever watched on steel blades.

* * *

"And Sammy can thank his father and a pair of borrowed skates for his speed.

* * *

"It was Mulholland's Dad who insisted that his son learn to skate on hard snow outside their Kingston, Ontario home.

"It was Sammy's father who taught his offspring how to skate against the wind, a blowing gale that would have chilled most youngsters to the very bone.

* * *

"There's no denying Sammy was also chilled. But he dare not disobey."

Sammy's Dad let him skate on an ice rink nearby the Fair Grounds in Kingston where the elder Mulholland trained sulky horses.

* * *

"Dad kept an eye on his sulky horses and the other on Sammy, Mulholland's father accomplished a two-fold task.

* * *

"While his horses were fairly flying around the track, he watched his son also fairly flying over the frozen surface nearby.

* * *

"It was no wonder that Mulholland made a decided hit with Rink Director Jimmy when he reported in the Rockets' training camp. Kaminsky was convinced the kid had the makings of a hockey player the very first time he skated onto the frozen surface on borrowed skates.

* * *

"Sending a puck down the ice, Mulholland and the others were instructed by coach Wally Kilrea to retrieve the loose disc.

* * *

"Sammy was a good ten feet ahead of the pack when he picked up the rubber heel. In fact, he was on his way back with the disc before some of the others were even halfway up the frozen surface.

* * *

"Yes, Sammy's Dad and a pair of borrowed skates aided materially in his hockey career.

The kid is a natural athlete. Ice hockey is not the only sport in which he excels.

"The young Rocket is quite a ball player. In fact, he's grabbed himself a tryout with the Brooklyn Dodgers and will report to their training spot at Vero Beach, Florida, when the current season ends.

* * *

"He plays the outfield or pitches and compiled a .416 batting mark with the Kingston Locos of the Central Ontario Baseball League last year. He turned in the outer gardens when he pulled ligaments in his throwing arm in his first mound assignment. The ailing flipper ultimately mended and before the season ended, Sammy pitched and won two games.

* * *

"He is a right-handed thrower but bats left-handed. He played high school football and was a member of the Kingston Collegiate Vocational Institute track team.

* * *

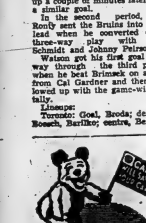
"At a Field Day in Kingston a few years back, Sammy won eight events. This feat qualified him for the All-Ontario scholastic meet in which he finished third in the broad jump and fourth in the 100-yard dash.

"Sammy is one of four children. There's Linda, a three year old sister, and two brothers, Reg and Doug."

* * *

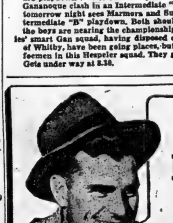
"Twelve teams will toll in the 1949 edition of the Belleville Commercial Softball League, it was decided at the annual meeting of the league held in the Memorial Centre last night. The meeting was nothing more than a "cozier" for the coming season, inasmuch as no election of officers was held and the 1948 executive held the party. Teams potentially entered are CNR Yards; Carlaw's 9th Anti Tank Regt.; Bonnie Home Bread and Hazerman; Sidney Junior Farmers; Stewart Warner; American Optical; Northern Electric; Bell Telephone and the CNE A. A.

* * *



The latter team is expected to take part in a CNE League and affiliate with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association in the intermediate "A" grouping. More about that later. The next meeting is scheduled for next Thursday night when the 1949 slate of officers will be elected and a number of league wrinkles discussed. It was suggested at last night's meeting that players who played for OASA teams last year be barred from participation in the Commercial League this year. Why?

* * *



Hockey is drawing to a close. All Belleville teams have been eliminated, and the only attractions on the ice surface are playdown tilts of outside squads. Tonight Hespeler and Gananoque clash in an intermediate "A" playdown tilt while tomorrow night sees Marmora and Sundridge meet in an intermediate "B" playdown. Both should be sweet clashes as the best are nearing the championship brackets. Bill Hastings' smart Gan squad, having disposed of Oakville, conquerors of Whitby, have been going places, but they will meet worthy foemen in this Hespeler squad. They grow hockey players up Gota under way at 8.30.

Toronto, March 24 — (CP) — In hockey you even upset you win-you lose. Weight, that is.

Players often drop as much as five or six pounds in a hard-fought contest.

Art (Cornwall Standard-Freeholder) Cameron was talking recently to players on the Cornwall Calumets of the Ottawa and District Hockey Association.

Calumets played 19 playoff games in five weeks before being beaten out by Perth Lumber Kings and after the heavy schedule the boys got around to comparing lost pounds.

The heaviest loser, who bolled off 18 pounds, was Eddie Emerton, Johnny Dennison figured he dropped 13 - 15 pounds. Three other players lost eight - eleven pounds.

Quoting team captain Fred Gardner, who lost 15 pounds himself, Art writes: "If a player perspires heavily, he loses from five to seven pounds in a game. But he usually gets it back if he has a couple of days' inactivity. But when you play four games in succession you don't get a chance to regain that lost weight."

It makes you wonder if the girls who are running to sign up on women's hockey teams, haven't got one eye on the tape measure.

After sports writers, announcers and even the fans on the street finish picking the National Hockey League all stars, they can sit back and listen to the boys who should really know—the six N. H. L. team captains.

Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon says: "The six N. H. L. team captains went to work a few days ago and came up with their thoughts on the circuit's all-star and second best club.

"The first team covered Bill Durnan (Montreal), Ken Reardon (Montreal), Bill Quackenbush (Detroit), Sid Abel (Detroit), Roy Conacher (Chicago) and Rocket Richard (Montreal), with the alternate crew showing Chuck Rayner (New York), Glen Harmon (Montreal), Jack Stewart (Detroit), Doug Bentley (Chicago), Ted Lindsay (Detroit) and Bill Ezinicki (Toronto).

"One would have to do a lot of talking to convince the intelligent hockey men that many mistakes had been made by the ice leaders."

Picking an all-star club in any league is a task that creates untold arguments due to so many other good ones being omitted. "But one would think that the six men leading their clubs in play would be in a much better position (to make) such selections than an ordinary spectator."

WOMAN IS QUESTIONED

Timmins, March 24 — (CP) — Police today are questioning Mrs. Cecile Dubroy, 39, in an attempt to discover why she left her home over the weekend starting a three day search.

Mrs. Dobroy was found unconscious Wednesday afternoon in a seldom used tool shed behind her house by Peter J. Mitchell her landlord.

Rushed to Porcupine General Hospital her condition was described this morning as "not at all serious."

Black Hawks Happy to See Dewey Back

North Bay, Ont., March 23 — (CP)— North Bay Black Hawks today were back basking on an steadying influence of fleet Jimmy Dewey for the second game against Toronto Maaboros tonight in the best-of-seven series for the all-Ontario hockey title. Coach Pete Palsfglio of the Hawks said he hoped Dewey would centre a line with Frankie Blagder and Pep Kelly and thus help them to make a better showing than the 10-1 loss they suffered in the first game yesterday.

Dewey, star with McIntyre Maemen who were beaten out by the Black Hawks, will enable Ringler to go back to his customary left-wing position.

"We were forced to use Ringler at centre and bring McNally to left wing in the last game," Palangio said.

He said he intends to tighten his defence and prevent the Dukes from cake-walking in on netminder Harry LaLande as they did in Toronto. The Black Hawks are linjury free and have the smaller ice surface in their favor.

However the Dukes are heavily favored to sweep the series in straight games. No injuries are reported in the Toronto camp.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 23 (AP) — When Charlie Speidel, Penn State wrestling coach, decided to take his eastern heavyweight champ, Homer Barr, to the N.C.A.A. championships at Fort Collins, Colo., this week, he figured it would be good to travel by air. But Charlie wasn't sure Homer would like it, so he tried the indirect approach. "Do you like flying?" Speidel asked. Barr indicated it was okay "then you wouldn't mind flying to Fort Collins for the National," Speidel Barr responded quietly, "You see, Mr. Speidel, I already have my pilot's licence."

Providence Reds Downs Flyers By 2-0 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

The supposedly weak eastern-division teams in the American hockey league's playoffs are raising merry Red with the stronger western-division clubs.

Coach Terry Reardon's eastern-division champions, the Providence Reds downed St. Louis Flyers 2-0 Thursday night for their second straight victory over the western tillists, in their best-of-seven series.

The early second-place Hershey Bears edged the west's runner-up Indianapolis Capitols 4-3 to eliminate the Caps from the playoffs. The victory was Hershey's second straight in the best-of-three series.

Springfield Indians, eastern half third-place occupants, put up a stiff fight before bowing to the west's third-place Cleveland Cubs in their series. The victory enabled the Barons, defending title-holders, to take the best-of-three series. The deciding game will be played in Cleveland Saturday night.

Ray Laplante and Roger Bedard scored Providence's goals. Laplante's goal broke a scoreless tie shortly after the half-way mark of the middle period.

In the second period of the Hershey-Indianapolis game, veteran Herb Cain and rookie Phil Maloney scored to enable Hershey to break a 1-1 stalemate. Nels Podolsky added the clincher for the Caps before the period ended. Cain then clinched matters with his second goal in the game early in the last frame. Cliff Simpson scored two for the Cap's goals.

Frank Porteous saved Cleveland from elimination when he netted at 1:32 of the first overtime period as Springfield held a 3-1 lead late in the game to force a return bout Roy Kelly and Johnny Holota connected to tie it up for the hard-pressed Barons.

Ken Ridgway gave the Barons a short-lived 5-4 lead early in the third period. The Indians' Rene Trudell and Bill Summerhill followed with goals and Holota then came through with his second goal of the game with less than four minutes to go to send the contest into overtime.

Belleville Girls Score Neat Win Over Cobourg

In the final game of the district Intermediate ladies basketball league schedule, Jerry Hyde's Belleville "Y" girls, playing brilliantly throughout the entire game, scored an impressive 34-20 victory over the hitherto unbeatable Cobourg girl's team. The Belleville girls, who won in the first five games of their schedule, opened the scoring in the first minute of play and never looked back as they continued to pile up a larger and larger lead as the game wore on. Altering their tactics of previous games, the local team set up an airtight zone defence style of play and this change in their playing style proved to be highly successful as the Cobourg girls appeared unable to cope with their hard checking adversaries. Meanwhile the locals, when on the attack, displayed by far their best passing and shooting efforts of the season.

Belleville, taking the lead shortly after the opening whistle, rolled to a 14-8 half time lead and led by Doreen Bell who personally accounted for 10 points, they outscored their opponents in the second half by a 20-12 margin thus giving them their 34-20 full time score.

Doreen Bell with 17 points, half her team's total, was the outstanding offensive player on the floor for either team. In the Belleville cause she was ably aided and abetted by Shirleys Bunnett and Marino! who posted 6 points each, while Mary Tomaso with 5 and Betty Zebedee with 2 were the other Belleville scorers. While they failed to get into the scoring column personally, the rest of the team, June Matthews, Eva Gilmour, Dena Pappas, Barbara Rutland and "Torchy" Palmer all put on a topnotch display to contribute heavily in the final result.

Jean Dufton with 10 was top scorer for Cobourg while Ormerod and McCaig with 4 each and Waite with 2 were the other Cobourg scorers.

During the half time intermission, Betty Holway, a Belleville player sidelined with an ankle injury suffered in the last game, presented coach Jerry Hyde with a beautiful tie on behalf of the entire team membership in sincere appreciation for his efforts with the team during the season to which Jerry replied in suitable fashion.

The game was well handled by Bill Deane and Ken Jackson of Trenton.

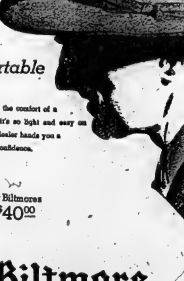
Les Digby Heads Newly-Formed Soccer League



The Bay of Quinte Soccer Association became a reality last evening when a gathering of enthusiasts met at the Y.M.C.A. and adopted a constitution prepared by a committee appointed last week. Following the adoption of the constitution Les Digby of Northern Electric was unanimously elected president of the league. Mr. Bill Harvey, a Belleville soccer personality, was elected vice-president. The post of secretary-treasurer was given to Doug Eaton, physical director of the Y.M.C.A. Arthur Duncan and Alex Reid were elected to executive positions.

Much interest was shown at the meeting which gave promise to a successful season. Representatives from Northern Electric, Bata Shoe, American Optical, Belleville United were present and gave notice of entry in the league. In addition to these teams it is hoped that Trenton town, Trenton R.C.A.F. will participate. The dead line for entry of teams has been set for May 1st and any teams wishing to enter the league are asked to contact the secretary of the league. Any interested persons wishing to lend a hand in the development of soccer in the district are asked to contact the executive. Players Looking For Something To Beat Favorite Aintree, Lancs., England, Mar. 23 — (AP) — Long-shot players began a last frantic hunt today for something to beat the red-hot favorite, Cromwell, in Saturday's Grand National. History gave them hope.

Three 100-to-1 outsiders have captured jumping's richest prize in the last 20 races.

During that same period two winners have paid off at 50 to 1 and four others at 25 to 1 or better.

Against those prizes the 5-to-1 odds on Cromwell looked pretty puny.

Tipperary Tim, the 1928 winner, was the most famous of the Cinderella horses in the Aintree classic. Tim was given little chance in a field of 43 that broke from the tapes in going as soft as a swamp. After soaring over 30 dizzy jumps, he ambled past the post, the only starter still standing.

Tim had never won a race before — and never did again.

Rubio, the first American winner in 1908, was bred at the Pasa rancho in California by J. B. Hagen and was sent to England as a two-year-old. He was sold here for a pittance ($63) and for a time pulled a hotel bus but rose the trains at Towcester.

Then he went out and won the Grand National.

Of the 43 probable starters, two will try to win the $37,865 first prize to the United States this year.

They are Caddi II, who runs for Paul Mellon, the Washington financier and Sinclair, last year for Richard K. Mellon, Paul's cousin. The books are offering 50 to 1 and up against both.

Belleville Golf Retains Lead In Major "A"

Thursday night's session of the Major "A" Bowling League saw no change in the league standing. Belleville Golf still leads the pack with Callaghan's Ice in second place, three points behind. Both teams won last night by scores of 5-2 defeating Northern Electric and Central Cigar respectively.

In the other games CNR turned back York Trading by a 7-0 count, with Lawn Bowlers defeating Electronics 5-2.

The annual banquet and presentation of prizes will take place on Thursday, April 21st, league officials announced.

Les Lennox headed the individual scorers with a neat triple of 824 and single of 332. Other high scores were:

W. Moore CNR, 805 (330); Jerry Lantiher, Northern Electric, 773; Ted Greenfield, 766 (312); Evan Barlow, Belleville Golf 717; Joe Legault, Belleville Golf 711; scores half by a 20-12 margin Gerry Hopkins, Callaghan Ice 711; Jack Wardhaugh, Northern Electric 709; Herb Martin, Central Cigar 700.

Team scores:

Belleville Golf 3 pts.	3549
Northern Electric 2 pts.	3424
C. N. R. 7 pts.	3308
York Trading	2870
Callaghan Ice 5 pts.	3533
Central Cigar 2 pts.	3066
Lawn Bowlers 5 pts.	2989
Electronics 2 pts.	2859

Pappas Billiards Defeat Cobourg Hoop Team 62-31

The Pappas Billiards basketball team defeated the Cobourg Intermediate B Team at the Y. M. C. A. last evening by a score of 62-31. The game was rather a one-sided battle as the Cobourg team found difficulty in adjusting themselves to the floor. The Belleville team entertained the visitors in an effort to prepare themselves for their coming game in Toronto on Saturday night with Broadview Y. M. C. A.

The first half ended with Belleville ahead by a score of 25-15. Lloyd Faulkner of the local team led the attack with 4x points. When the game had ended the score sheet indicated that Bill Spafford, Gordon Watkins were the high scorers for Belleville. Beven and Jamison of the Cobourg team were their high scorers. The officials for the game were Bill Deane and Ken Jackson of Trenton RCAF.

The long and short of it in a bridge hand is revealed by rule. If you have two biddable suits you can tall partner the number of cards in each. Providing, of course, you can make enough bids.

With two equal length suits, bid the longer. If one suit is at least two cards longer, bid it twice before the other.

Bid hearts and then diamonds to show four of each. If your third bid is hearts you show five hearts and four diamonds. Why?

If diamonds are bid before hearts the diamonds are longer. When the hearts are rebid they must be five cards. If diamonds are longer than five, the diamonds must be six. Absolutely no doubt about it.

Bid hearts and then hearts to show five. In other words, any suit rebid shows at least five cards. If no other suit is bid by the same hand, partner assumes the minimum of five of a rebid suit.

But after rebidding hearts, the same player bids diamonds. The diamonds are assumed to be four cards and the hearts are now known to be six cards; a rebid suit before showing a second suit.

Show the length of your suits in this hand:

♥ 9 4
♦ 6
♣ A K 10 4

First bid spades. It shows four cards. Next bid spades again. It shows five spades. Then bid clubs to show four clubs. But this also admits your spades are six instead of five.

If you had five and four, you would have bid spades, then clubs, then spades. Having bid spades, spades, clubs, it promised six and four. As clear as mud, says Five Tyme.

Hollywood, March 8 (AP) — Memo: Don't mention Andy Hardy to Mickey Rooney.

We were talking about his new career away from M.G.M. The explosion came when I asked if he had any troubles escaping from Andy Hardy.

"They make me sore," he said, referring to film reviewers and other critics. "They're always harping on Andy Hardy. You'd think that was all I had ever done. What about 'Boys Town,' 'Young Tom Edison,' 'Babes in Arms,' 'National Velvet'?

"Why don't they let Andy Hardy die? I haven't done one in three or four years. I'm an actor not just Andy Hardy."

The brash Rooney has cast off from his long time home port, M.G.M. He is reportedly supposed to return for one film a year, but he blasted he may not even do that. He said he would free-lance and not sign up with any studio. What kind of roles would he seek?

All Roles

"I'll do everything—dramas, musicals—any good story that comes along. That's the way I made my name: Doing all kinds of pictures."

He said he had no new film deals set as yet. One he'd like to do is a remake of Jimmy Cagney's "Public Enemy." I asked whether he had any trouble making the transition from kid to adult roles. Again he lashed out.

"That transition stuff is a lot of baloney. I proved in 'Killer McCoy' I can do grown up roles." He had less kind words to say about his last M.G.M. film "Words and Music" the Rodgers-Hart opus which he termed a series of musical numbers with no story.

Again I ventured: Did he feel his height was any handicap?

"Why should it be? It never held back Peter Lorre, or Jimmy Cagney, or Edward G. Robinson."

RECEIVED BY POPE

Vatican City, March 28 (AP)—The American violinist Yehudi Menuhin and Mrs. Menuhin were received in special audience yesterday by Pope Pius. Menuhin said the Pontiff told him he had studied violin for five years in his youth. He had a "very pleasant talk" with the pope about music.

AT THE BELLE — Bette Davis, twice Academy Award winner, goes in for comedy in her new Warner Bros. film, "June Bride," starring Robert Montgomery and Fay Bainter, closing tonight at the Belle Theatre.

33,000 Auto Workers Idle Due to Strikes

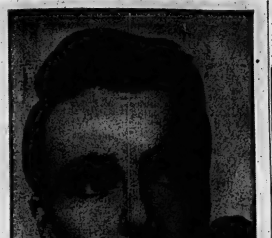
Detroit, March 28 (AP)—More than 33,000 auto workers were made idle Thursday because of several strikes.

Maiden lift was Chrysler Corporation, which sent home 24,700 employes, following a strike of 2,500 at a Chrysler supplier firm, Midland Steel Products Company.

The 10,000 Chrysler workers employed at the Dodge main plant were told to return to work Friday. However, 14,025 have been laid off at least until Monday.

A company spokesman said a shortage of body frames — supplied by the Midland firm—caused the work curtailment.

Meanwhile, production was resumed at the Hudson Motor Car Co., getting 12,000 workers back on the job. They had been sent home Wednesday because of an equipment breakdown.



AT THE CAPITOL. — Smiley Burnette, the West's No. 1 comic, appears with Charles Starrett in "Outlaws From Powder River," their latest western hit, now showing at the Capitol today and Saturday. "The Stampede," musical western, and "Buckaroo From Powder River," being held over, stars Dan Daley and Charles Winninger. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00.

BLIND NEGRO EXECUTED

Montgomery, Ala., March 28 — (AP) — Buster Snead, a blind Negro, was executed in the electric chair today for hacking a united woman to death as she lay asleep. Warden George Garner of Kilby prison said it was the first time a blind man had ever been executed in Alabama.

Ma was looking at the movie ads in the paper and asking pop if any of the different pictures appealed to him and pop kept saying no, and I said, Aw heck, I have to do my homework.

Dont make any hasty decisions, pop said. We wouldn't want him overheating his brains and waking up in the morning with his eyebrows snow white, would we, mother?? he said, and ma said, Goodness no.

Homework takes concentration, and I think he's intirely too young for that sort of thing, pop said, and ma said. Well now, come to think of it, I'm not so sure about that. The other day I sent him around to the market, and I was waiting patiently for him to return with the things, and suddenly my patience gave way to a stupicion that he hadn't gone yet, so I took the liberty of looking into his room, and sure enough there he was, blrxlly pushing a lot of little scraps of paper into 2 even piles to see if he could make them come out abstutely even, with exactly the same number of scraps in each pile, just by pure guesswork, and that's what he had been doing staddily for a whole hour, she said.

By gollies, that was concentration all rite, pop said. And I can give you another example. According to the sycologists, the art of concentrtion consists in shutting all unimportant and irrelevant things out of your mind. For two weeks I've been telling, besketching and warning him to go and have his hair cut. Naturally he knows there's nothing more unimportant than having his hair cut, and if you dont think he's been shutting the whole idea out of his mind in a masterly manner, just look at his hair now, he said, and I said, I'll get it cut tomorrow for sure, pop.

And when will you do your homework? pop said, and I said, Rite now.

Dodgers May be Team to Beat In National

Vero Beach, Fla., March 25 (AP) — Manager Burt Shotton has sold Brooklyn Dodgers on themselves as the team that should win the National League pennant.

There are no misgiving sidesteps in Shotton's pronouncement of "We should win, why not!" nor is there any lack of confidence among Dodger players who missed last season after slicing a world series melon in 1947.

The confused kids of yesteryear are survivors.

Shotton hopes to go with Duke Snider, a powerful farm product, in centre field. He has moved Carl Furillo, the boy with the rifle arm, to right. In fact he probably will start Gene Hermanski.

Snider may be the "long ball hitter" the Dodgers have been chasing for years. In 1948 he hit .327 at Montreal but only .244 with the Dodgers. But he is only 23, and a key to the future.

Sorting the outfielders is one of Shotton's main problems. Cal Abrams, a .287 hitter at Mobile, has been slugging the ball in the exhibitions. Tommy Brown, now definitely an outfielder, is another contender.

Marv Rackley, the club's top hitter at .327 must get a shot. Likewise Dick Whitman and Geo. Shuba, part-time Dodgers last year. Then the club has Mike McCormick, .303 batter with the champion Boston Braves last year. Six will stay.

Robinson at Second

Gil Hodges, converted from a catcher last summer, is the first baseman. Jackie Robinson is a fixture at second. Pee Wee Reese is at short and probably Billy Cox, "flop" of 1946, at third. Cox is making a strong bid to blot out last season's sorry .249 record. In his way are Spider Jorgensen, regular on the '47 pennant winners, and three others. Eddie Mikels will be kept as infield insurance.

Bruce Edwards, still making arm trouble, heads the catching staff with Roy Campanella, the capable Negro receiver.

Ralph Branca (14-9) and Rex Barney (15-13) are the kingpins of the pitching staff. Left-handers Joe Hatten (13-10) and Preacher Roe (12-8) are other sure starters.

Harry Taylor, a star in the '47 but weakened by an appendicitis operation the next year, looks like the old self. Jack Banta, up from Montreal with a 19-8 record, has a good chance to make the grade.

Extra 10 Games Worth 50 Grand Says Con Smythe

Conny Smythe is quoted by Al (Toronto Globe and Mail) Nickleson as telling Boston sports writers that it will cost Maple Leaf Gardens $50,000 because the six-man National Hockey League board of governors turned down the proposed 70-game schedule.

The Leaf boss, Nickleson wrote, blasted Boston and New York club officials for voting against the increase from 60 to 70 games. "It sounds as if the clubs are being run by two-bit organizations if they couldn't sell 35 home games," Smythe was quoted as saying.

Doing Okay

We don't know how Smythe arrived at that fifty-grand figure, but the Gardens is doing okay in the financial league.

Last Nov. 8 the Gardens reported net profits of $190,399 or $1.29 a share — for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31. That compared with a net profit of $190,009 for the preceding fiscal period of 10 months — and a full season's hockey revenue was included in both periods despite the difference of two months.

That kind of money "ain't hay" and don't forget, the N.H.L. schedule these years has been over the 60-game route.

For the Leafs' 30 home games in the 1948-49 season, attendance totalled 417,409, just 1,447 short of the 420,000 mark.

Doubt About Walt

Walter McHenry, Canada's No. 1 amateur golfer from Vancouver, may not compete in the Canadian Open at Toronto's St. George Club June 22. But he'll be around for the Canadian amateur at Saint John, N.B., July 25.

Walt, who led all Canadians — amateur and professional — in the 1948 Canadian Open, said in an interview in Toronto he "isn't sure" about entering the 1949 open. "It's a long trip from Vancouver to Toronto and then, when he gets a finalneck it means a wait of nearly a month for the Canadian championship in New Brunswick. I don't know what I'll do yet."

Training Camp Notes

(By The Associated Press)

The "latest"-trade rumor in the camp of New York Giants has Howie Pollett, stylish St. Louis left-hander on the way to the Polo Grounders. Two reasons—he can pitch and he has been one of the Cards' most effective hurlers against the home-run-blitzing Giants. Outfielder Bobby Thomson is the Giant player involved in the supposed Pollett deal.

A pair of Texas-League graduates, second-baseman Johnny Lane and first-sacker Charley Kress, may hold down the right side of Cincinnati's infield on opening day, manager Bucky Walters said today.

Both fancy fielders, Lane and Kress, have been belting the ball at such a clip they figure to beat out second-baseman Bobby Adams and Benny Zientara and first-baseman Ted Kluszewski for starting jobs.

Manager Billy Southworth of Boston's Braves reported today he would use the veteran right-hander, Nelson Potter, "strictly on relief this season." He told writers: "Nellie can't go the distance with a start and he'll make an excellent relief man."

Philadelphia Phillies' latest exhibition victory — a 5-4 11-inning decision over St. Louis Cardinals — may have proved costly.

Eddie Miller, veteran second-baseman, was spiked on the left ankle when he collided with catcher Joe Garagiola Thursday.

Curt Simmons, southpaw hurler, was hit on the left shin by a drive from Eddie Sauer's bat in the ninth.

Athletics Take To Air for Three Exhibition Tilts

(By The Canadian Press)

Connie Mack took his second airplane ride in two months today as Philadelphia Athletics left West Palm Beach, Fla., by air for a three-game exhibition series with the Havana club of the Florida International League.

All of the regulars except Phil Marchildon of Pennsylvania, Ont., and Dick Fowler of Toronto, made the trip. The two pitchers are Canadian citizens and United States immigration laws do not permit them to leave the country. Marchildon, an R.C.A.F. gunner shot down during the war, also has been forbidden to fly by his doctors.

At Liverpool, England, Scotland's Jackie Paterson has announced an end to his turbulent boxing career after losing his British and Empire bantamweight championship. Paterson, who soundly beaten in a 15-round title fight Thursday night by Dan Rowan, 24-year-old Liverpool fighter, then weighed 117, "I've fought my last fight," declared the Glasgow veteran after his defeat. He formerly held the fly-weight championship of the world.

At Hamilton, Frank Group, coach of the Hamilton Wildcats football team, said Thursday night that six Ontario players have been signed up with the Big Four club for the coming season. They are Jim Conlin and Frank Fitzgerald of Peterborough; Nick Andrenovich, Jim Larine and Stanley Podgorec of Oshawa, and Phil Burkhart of Whitby.

At Toronto, rinks skipped by T. G. Devitt of Bobcaygeon and Dr. E. McKee of Peterborough moved into the final round in Brereton-Ray Trophy mixed bonspiel. Devitt gained a 10-6 edge over Dr. J. R. Clark of Peterborough Thursday night while Dr McKee downed D. H. Charlton of Lindsay 11-8. The Rose-Doulton Trophy event, Dr. C. Laidley of Lindsay and T. McIntosh of Bobcaygeon advanced to the final round.

At Vero Beach, Fla., outfielder Gene Hermanski of Brooklyn Dodgers Thursday rescued rookie infielder Bobby Morgan when a strong undertow swept the latter out to sea. Morgan clutched at a wooden piling and suffered cuts of the body before Hermanski caught up with him. Eddie Mikels, also in the party, helped in the rescue.

Sheet Metal Lose Game, Win Round

Sheet Metals won the semi-finals round of the Northern Electric Hockey League by a 7-6 round score. They were defeated 2-1 by Machine Shop in the second game of the goals-to-count series, but copped the round by virtue of their 6-4 victory in the first tussle.

Sheet Metal was marked by good hockey with goalie Johnny Rapple, of Metals playing sensationally in the nets, even after being injured in the first period. He kicked out plenty of Shop rubber and was one of the main cogs of the team.

Shop drew the only scoring blood in the first period when Thrasher fired home Crene's pass after three minutes of play. Play was close for the rest of the period and during the second neat with neither ten meeting able to score.

Metals tied up the game in the third period when Noakes slung home Prout's pass but a minute later Bellevieux scored the second Shop goal to end the tallying for the night.

Bellevieux, Chipps and Lang were best for the winners while Noakes Prout and Fogerty stood out for the Metals. Only four penalties were handed out by Referees Joe Barrett and Johnny Semark.

Ottawa Approves Grant to Five Ontario Hospitals

Ottawa, March 25. (CP)—The government has approved federal grants to five Ontario hospitals, Health Minister Martin announced today.

The hospitals are located in Peterborough, Cornwall, Oshawa, Oakville and Dunnville. The money is to be used for adding a total of 378 beds to their capacity. In each case Ontario must match the federal grant under terms of the National Health plan.

The grants are calculated on the $1,000 a bed, Mr. Martin said. In the cases of the Cornwall and Oshawa hospitals, however, part of the construction was completed when the federal plan came into operation last April. Thus, they were not eligible for the full amount of the grant. Part payments have already been made on the amounts allotted to these projects.

Cornwall General Hospital is adding 90 beds to its capacity. Increasing medical, surgical and obstetrical services, and installing a new X-ray department and out-patient accommodation. Construction is expected to be completed this Spring.

St. Joseph's General Hospital, Peterborough, will receive assistance to help pay for addition of 61 beds, construction is expected to be finished by the Fall of 1950.

Oshawa General Hospital plans to increase bed capacity from 137 to 150.

The Oakville-Trafalgar Memorial hospital is a new institution. Construction started last Fall and is expected to be completed next Spring. The hospital will have a bed capacity of 50 and will receive $50,000 from federal construction grants.

The new Haldimand War Memorial hospital in Dunnville will replace an old hospital. It will have 53 bed and equipment to handle medical, surgical and maternity cases. About $53,500 each from the federal and provincial governments will add to public subscription and county grants to pay for the hospital.

Murder Case Ready for Jury

Cochrane, Ont., March 25 (CP) — The case of Romeo Brassard, 37, on trial for murder in the Feb. 19 jealousy revolver-slaying of his wife, is expected to go to the jury today.

Crown and defence counsel addressed the jury late yesterday. Crown Attorney S. A. Caldbick called for a murder conviction. Defence counsel W. C. Inch suggested that the shooting might have been accidental and said that, if the jury considered Brassard responsible for the woman's death, it should convict him of manslaughter, not murder.

Evidence was that Brassard's wife, Marie, 34, was fatally shot in a cabin near Hearst during a bedroom quarrel. A statement admitted as evidence quoted Brassard, who formerly lived in Timmins, as saying he considered killing his 210-pound wife after seeing her with another man in a Hearst hotel. The statement said Brassard shot the woman twice after confronting her in the cabin.

The last witness before the Crown completed its case yesterday was handwriting expert A. B. Farmer. He said that four statements submitted to him by police for examination were written by the same person. The man who wrote them had little education but was not, in Mr. Farmer's opinion, a moron. One of the statements was scribbled on a coin wrapper and two were on cardboard cartons.

The defence offered no evidence.

New A-A Guns Reach Germany For U.S. Units

Frankfurt, March 25 (Reuters) —United States Army Ordnance experts have completed examination of the first batch of new, mobile 90-millimetre anti-aircraft guns, equipped with radar-tracking systems, to be distributed to American tactical units in Germany.

The gun, which has a range of 16,000 yards, is manned by a crew of five. Its rate of fire is described as about 25 rounds a minute.

The chief of the American Army Ordnance branch in Europe, Brig. Gen. Edward MacMorland, described the gun as "a very highly effective anti-aircraft weapon, which can also be used at low angles against tanks."

The gun's "tracker" follows the course of aircraft, recording speed, altitude, and direction, and an electronic "brain" computes the plane's future position and relays it to the crew.

Donor of Money And Ice Cream Fined for Assault

Brampton, March 25 (CP)—George Kaitling, 19-year-old Elmbank, Onta., youth, who played Santa Claus to a group of children, by giving out money and ice cream, was fined $20 and costs or 10 days in jail when he appeared in court Wednesday on an assault charge.

He was convicted of assaulting George Butt, watchman at Winston Hall in Malton, Ont., several weeks ago. Butt said he asked the youth to leave the building because "he disturbed tenants" while giving money and ice cream to "a bunch of kids." Reason for Kaitling's benevolence was not disclosed.

3,220,100 Pounds Creamery Butter Produced in Feb.

Toronto, March 24 — (CP) — Creamery butter production in Ontario last month totalled 3,220,100 pounds, an increase of more than eight per cent over February, 1948, it was shown today in the monthly dairy report of the Provincial Agriculture Department.

Average wholesale price of butter in Toronto during February was 56 cents a pound, the same as during the four preceding months, a .7-increase over the February price last year.

Cheddar cheese output was down nearly 27 per cent to 357,600 pounds last month and the wholesale price fell from 37.1 cents a pound in February, 1948, to 33.8 cents during the same month this year.

The report revealed the total Canadian holdings of creamery butter totalled 18,502,000 pounds at March 1, a slight increase over the 18,570,000 pounds at the same time in 1948.

Commercial dairies reported increased sales of milk, cream, cultured milk and chocolate dairy drink during January, 1949, over the same month last year.

Shorter Meat Ration in Britain Due Next Week

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 25. (CP) — Britons who next week go on the shortest meat rations in their history are warned that the worst may yet come in the future.

With the renewal of the contract with Argentina—which supplies almost one-quarter of the British meat ration—hanging in the balance, the next few months are admitted to be a "critical period." Unless supplies from the western hemisphere are kept up, meat traders express fear for the corned-beef portion of the ration. Corned beef supplies are said to be dangerously low.

Meanwhile several newspapers have commented on the rising consumption of horse flesh. One horse-meat shop displayed a sign, "bring your own wrapping paper". A conventional butcher down the street had a sign: "Bring your own meat, we have the paper".

Britain's present meat stocks are said to be "light"—about 70,000 tons from which rations of two weeks' rations for the country. It is said the latest cut would have to be maintained for at least 18 weeks to wipe out this deficiency even at the 1948 rate of import.

CANADA'S NO. 1 MOVIE FAN VISITS STUDIO

When it comes to meeting movie stars and collecting autographs, His Excellency Lord Harold R. L. G. Alexander, governor-general of Canada, self-admittedly is not unlike the veriest fan. The Canadian leader (left) is shown here with E. J. Mannix, general manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, after he was feted at a luncheon there earlier in the week. Later the viscount toured several studio sets and then met such stars as Walter Pidgeon, Greer Garson, Spencer Tracy and James Stewart. Missionary Among Eskimos Has Hands, Feet Frozen, Brought Back to Churchill

Churchill, Man., March 26 (CP) — A 35-year-old missionary who has worked among the northland's Indians and Eskimos since 1940, today rested in the Roman Catholic mission here, worried far more by his absence from his charges than by the condition of his frozen hands and feet. These were frozen in a trek with an Eskimo guide across thousands of miles of trackless wasteland.

Since last September, when he set out to pay a round visit to northern settlements, Rev. Joseph Bullard's movements had been known only to the Eskimos with whom he had lived and travelled.

Gunnar Ingebrigtson, noted northland aviator who had been searching for Father Bullard for two days, flew him in to this Hudson Bay base Friday.

Wanted to Stay With His Flock

When the young missionary was found by Ingebrigtson and Rev. Henry Rowe, member of the Roman Catholic mission here, he argued strongly against being flown to Churchill.

Father Bullard protested that he could recover at Baker Lake and get back sooner to his flock. He froze his hands and feet doing his winter travels.

About five years ago he froze both hands during a two-hour fight to bring himself out of a water hole into which he had fallen while crossing a lake, in which he nearly drowned.

To push the missionary, Ingebrigtson flew his ski-equipped Norseman into a territory put under quarantine because of a recent outbreak of poliomyelitis which claimed the lives of 13 Eskimos.

Ingebrigtson was authorized by the Federal Health Department to enter the 40,000-square mile police-quarantined area northwest of Hudson Bay in search for the priest, who in September was taken by canoe to Garry Lake, 530 miles northwest of here. A combination of weather, the fall freeze-up and the long Arctic darkness made subsequent trips to supply him impracticable.

COMMONS CLEANS UP CONTROL BILLS BEFORE DEADLINE

Can Requisition Farm Produce for Contracts

Ottawa, March 26 (CP)—The Commons Friday night completed study of the government's emergency control legislation and Monday will return to its normal afternoon and evening sittings.

Throughout the week the members met three times a day to discuss five control bills, due to expire before the end of the month.

The last of the measures provided for a one-year extension to the life of government boards empowered to requisition farm produce needed to fill contracts with the United Kingdom.

The bill was given second reading by a vote of 120 to 36, with only the Progressive Conservatives opposing it. It was adopted on division without a formally recorded vote.

The measure now goes to the Senate where approval and Royal assent has already been given in four of the control bills.

One provides for the continuation of controls on domestic rents, of some food products, steel, lumber and building priorities. Another extends the life of the foreign-exchange control board for three more years and another continues the life of the crown-owned Canadian Commercial Corporation.

The fourth makes the wartime boundaries of the Wheat Board carriers part of their contract price for making rural deliveries.

Finance Minister Abbott declined to hazard a guess as to the possibility of a bread-price increase as a result of the subsidy withdrawal.

Deelines to Indicate

Prime Minister St. Laurent declined to indicate when federal by-elections will be held in New-foundland.

In the agriculture debate, Mr. Gardiner quoted from a Canadian Press interview with Sir Stafford Cripps. Sir Stafford had stated that in 1946, Canada imported three-quarters of the British imports of wheat, bacon, cheese and dried eggs. This country also supplied one-third of British imports of boiled eggs.

He asked the opposition to name a time any year, other than a war year, when Canada had such a large share of the British market for those products.

He reiterated that one of the Commonwealth's chief markets in Europe for food was the Empire trade agreements negotiated by the United Kingdom-Canada and Tory party of Canada" in 1932. The agreements, Mr. Gardiner quotes on British imports from other countries. Now Britain was buying from those countries without the quotas set out in the agreements.

Main Damage Reported In Miss. and Louisiana

Greenville, Miss., March 26 — (AP) Tornadoes roaring through Mississippi and Louisiana Friday left six persons dead and 34 injured.

Oak Grove, La., caught the first impact Thursday night. The winds then skipped Isola northwestern Mississippi killed six persons and injured 33 others.

At Jamesville, a little Louisiana community, two farm homes were levelled and a woman was injured. Two sheds and several cows were killed by flying debris.

Total property damage has not been estimated.

Oklahoma City — (AP) — The state highway patrol reported a tornado struck the Jersey village of Crowder before dawn today. First reports said at least three persons were killed and that only one building was left standing in the community.

The Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company dispatcher's office received reports that the village of Canadian, six miles north of Crowder also had been struck by a storm.

Three Canadians Seized at World Peace Meeting

New York, March 26 (CP)— Three Canadians were seized by federal agents last night at the World Peace Conference here.

The three—two men and a woman—were taken into custody by eight immigration agents on orders of the Justice Department. They were held for questioning on their immigration status.

The Canadians had been regarded as guests of honor. They were Mr. and Mrs. Barker Fairley of Toronto and John Goss of Montreal.

Fairley is vice-president of the Canadian Council of American-Soviet Friendship. His wife, Margaret, is a member of the cultural committee of the Labor-Progressive Party, formerly the Communist Party of Canada.

Goss is a theatrical producer. He had been seated on the Dais as a distinguished guest when he arrived vigorously when accosted by the federal agents. The Fairleys, seated at a choice table, left quietly.

The three Canadians were taken from the Waldorf-Astoria hotel to immigration offices in the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace. They were taken to Ellis Island immigration quarters here.

How long they would be held was not revealed by immigration authorities. Immigration department officials said the investigation had "no comment" on the activities of the Canadians.

ROBESON SINGS AT PROTEST

London, March 26 (Reuters)— Paul Robeson sang to between 2,000 and 3,000 people at a meeting here yesterday in Trafalgar Square in a protest against the racial policies of the South African government. The meeting passed a resolution, read to the Australian envoy, expressing "horror at the brutal race suppression now practised by the South African government."

CAMBRIDGE WINS FROM OXFORD IN SLOW TIME

Million Persons Line Thames River Towpaths

London, March 26 (CP) — A "never say die" Cambridge crew came from behind today to beat Oxford in rowing's traditional "battle of the Blues", the annual boat race over a tortuous Thames River course.

Thousands—perhaps thousands of tow-path enthusiasts saw one of the tensest races in the 94-year history of the classic as Cambridge won by a margin of a length.

Officials said it was the narrowest margin of victory since 1877 when the two crews rowed to a dead heat.

The race, which is to rowing what the Epsom Derby is to racing, was run in excellent weather blessing today. The sun glinted on the placid water under hazy blue skies.

The victory today was the 51st for Cambridge in the classic event which has been held off and on since 1829. Oxford has won 43 times, with one dead heat.

The time today was 18 minutes, 57 seconds, one minute and seven seconds slower than the record set by Cambridge last year.

A crowd estimated at close to 1,000,000, ranging from elderly colonels to cap-on-the-head Cockneys, lined towpaths and bridges between Putney and Mortlake to watch the two shells flash past.

4½ Mile Course

The course lies over 4 ¼-2 miles of tricky river, with the wind and the tide uncertain allies.

The crews won the toss and drew for the last quarter of the course after Oxford had snatched an early lead.

Cambridge, a full length behind after the first three or four minutes, made spurt after spurt, but Oxford held on doggedly before they tired.

A brave bid of rowing by Cambridge brought them level at three miles. From then on it was a terrific struggle.

Many of the spectators near the finish had expected a dead heat.

The only dead heat in the ancient rivalry was in 1877.

Oxford won the first post-war race, breaking a long losing streak which prevailed between the First and Second World wars. However, Cambridge has won the last three.

Russian Hero, 66-1 Outsider, Winner of Chase

43 Go to Post in World's Most Gruelling Jumping Race

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aintree, England, March 26 (CP) — Russian Hero romped home ahead of Roimond and Royal Mount early today to win the third running of the Grand National Steeplechase.

Russian Hero, owned by W. F. Williamson and ridden by L. Morrow, was 66 to 1 in the betting. The Dally Worker, the British communist party's official paper, hailed the nine-year-old gelding to win the race.

A field of 43 horses started the race, the world's most famous and gruelling steeplechase.

Cromwell, the favorite, finished fourth, dashing the jockey — Peer Lord Mildmay's hopes of nesting a jinx that has snatched a Grand National victory from him time before.

Just before the start of the 4½-mile event over 30 jumps, bookmakers lengthened the odds on Cromwell to 7 to 1. He had been quoted at 6 to 1 last night in the final call-over at the Victoria Club.

Win by Eight Lengths

Russian Hero was fully eight lengths ahead of Roimond at the finish. Lord Bicester's Roimond was quoted at 22 to 1 and took place Royal Mount, owned by Mrs. M. Harvey, started at 18 to 1.

Cromwell's defeat was a blow to many thousands of bettors throughout Britain. He lost to a horse whose trainer thought so little of his chances that he had donated keeping him out of the race.

Trainer George R. Owen had sold the horse the horse had poor prospects, but Williamson insisted on letting him start.

Caddie II, one of the two American horses in the race, fell, just as he did last year. Caddie II is owned by Paul Mellon, Pittsburgh millionaire financier.

Cromwell's odds fell 10 minutes before post time because of heavy betting. The estimated crowd of 300,000 persons were favoring Happy Home and Cavalcade.

Clouds and mist greeted the huge crowd as the horses left the race. Visibility was difficult.

Just before the horses were called to the post, however, the sun broke through and the mist lifted, giving spectators a view of the entire course.

Two Canadians Win $100,000 In Irish Sweep

(By The Canadian Press)

At least two Canadians —both of them Toronto residents — won $100,000 in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes today. George Greig, 26, and Ralph Day, former mayor of Toronto, held tickets on Russian Hero, horse which won the Grand National at Aintree.

So far they are the only Canadians known to have held a ticket of the winner. None is known to hold Roimond, which finished second, and Royal Mount which finished third.

Greig, a war veteran and jewelry firm employee, said it was the first ticket he had ever bought. His nom-de-plume was his telephone number. He and his wife shared ownership of the $2.56 ticket which brought them $100,000. Each put up half the purchase price.

Mr. Day, an undertaker who served as mayor of the city in 1938, 1939, and 1940 has been critically ill with blood poisoning and now is recovering. His wife confirmed he held a ticket on Russian Hero.

"He was pleased to hear the news when he told him his horse had won," she said.

Twenty Canadians— and there may be more—are known to have held horses which failed to place. They will get $40.60 each. One of them was Ozro J. Hardwick of Bolton, a Toronto district commissioner for the Boy Scouts. He had promised to build a new arena for the town if he won.

The three top prizes in the Army and Navy Sweeps of Quebec City's residents of the United States Palmina "Signorette of Stamford, Conn., held a ticket on Russian Hero and stands to win $38,000, Claud Jones of New York may win $20,000 with his ticket on Roimond and Alex and Fred Hodell of New York stand to get $15,000 for their ticket on Royal Mount.

THREE SITTINGS A DAY NEEDED TO END FRIDAY

Police Will be Sent to Municipality at Request of Crown Attorney

Toronto, March 26 (CP)— The Ontario legislature may sit morning, noon and night next week in an attempt to reach prorogation next Friday, a government source indicated.

The session which began Feb. 10 already has lasted more than six weeks, average length of sessions. Premier Kennedy at the beginning of the session said he hoped it would be short and businesslike. The session was described as a "caretaker session" because the Premier had said he would relinquish the leadership to his successor at an Ontario Progressive Conservative convention to be held next April 23-27.

A strengthened opposition, however, led by the 21 C.C.F. members, has made the session anything but a "caretaker" one.

C.C.F. and Liberal progressive members Friday fought to the last ditch a government bill extending aid to municipal police departments. They objected to a clause which permits Ontario provincial police to be sent to a municipality at the request of the attorney-general. The House divided 55 to 19 to pass the bill. Liberal members voted with the government.

Unfreeze Vast Wealth

Premier Kennedy Frost introduced a bill which he said is intended to unfreeze the vast wealth contained in charitable foundations and expedite its distribution to the charitable objects which it is intended.

It also is aimed at that the assets of an estate, if exempted from succession duties on the ground that they are being devoted to charitable purposes, are distributed to specific charitable objects within three years. It does not apply to any business left to a religious group.

Consideration of the police bill sparked the debate.

Receives Medal For Chemical Discoveries

Ottawa, March 26 (CP)—Dr. E. W. RMS Steacie, international authority on physical chemistry, today was awarded the gold medal of the Civil Service Professional Institute.

The award is given annually for "outstanding contributions to science, pure and applied, or to social and world welfare especially in other fields of endeavor" by any member of the professional services of the Dominion or Provincial governments.

Dr. Steacie, 48-year-old native of Westmount, Que., received the prize for his outstanding contribution in the field of chemistry. Wartime deputy director of the British-Canadian atomic energy project, he now directs the chemistry division at National Research Council in Ottawa.

BILL WILL SPEED DISTRIBUTION TO CHARITIES

Legislation Introduced May Force Sale of Toronto Daily Star

Toronto, March 26. (CP)— New Ontario legislation seeks to ensure that assets of estates are distributed to specific charities within three years after they have been exempted from succession duties on the ground that they are being devoted to charitable purposes.

Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost, who introduced the Bill Friday, said it also is intended to prevent businesses owned by charitable institutions from discarding the profit motive so as to obtain an unfair advantage over rival firms. It does not apply to a business left to a religious denomination.

William Dennison (CCF-Toronto St. David) asked Mr. Frost:

"If it is not aimed at churches, then who is it aimed at?"

"Use your imagination," interjected A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto Bellwoods) and Harry C. Nixon (Lib.-Brant) put in:

Boost in Price Of Bread Seen

Ottawa, March 26 — (CP) —A boost in the price of bread—bringing it to a new post-war price peak — appears to be in store for Canadian housewives. While the price advance will be dependent on the "individual" baker, it may range from one to two cents a loaf.

The price increase was indicated Friday night in a statement by the National Council of the Baking Industry, following the announcement from Montreal earlier in the day that the Canada League of independent bakers, holding bread prices two cents effective March 1.

The Baking Council said the increase was the "inevitable result of the cancellation of the flour subsidy by the government." This was announced last Tuesday by Finance Minister Abbott when he brought down his supplementary reducing budget in the Commons.

The Council said it was "inevitable" that the bakers would have to pass along some part of the increased flour costs to the consumer.

Will Ask Investigation Of Reports Cardinal Mindzenty Mistreated

Washington, March 26 (AP) — Senator Herbert O'Conner (Dem.-Md.) said Friday he will ask the State department to investigate reports that Joseph Cardinal Mindzenty, convicted by the Communist dominated Hungarian government on treason charges, is being mistreated in prison. He wants visits of United States representatives to the Cardinal's place of detention.

Youth Revived 40 Minutes After Heart Stopped Surgeons Report

Chicago, March 26 (AP)—Two surgeons announced today revival of a 16-year-old youth 40 minutes after his heart action stopped completely.

An American Medical Association source said he believed the instance was the longest known heart stoppage on record to be followed by successful resuscitation.

Reporting in the AMA journal, Dr. Arthur E. Touroff and Dr. Milton H. Adelman said the youth's heart failed during lung operation in Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York, Jan. 16, 1948.

Dr. Touroff immediately began to massage the heart with his hands. Adrenalin and blood were given to the patient. Artificial respiration was maintained with oxygen administered through an anaesthetic apparatus.

During the long period of heart failure, the doctors said, the patient breathed in gasps at irregular intervals, but when heart massage was stopped for an instant there were only a few feeble, ineffectual contractions noticed. A strong heartbeat was resumed unexpectedly, but just as the doctors prepared to operate on the organ.

Alberta Bans Yellow Coloring In Margarine

(By The Canadian Press)

Alberta is going to make sure that margarine to be sold in that province won't look like butter.

Legislation introduced Friday in the legislature of the Alberta Fédération of Agriculture provides that margarine on sale may not be "the natural color of butter or any shade of yellow that might cause it to be mistaken for butter." It also bars restaurant keepers from serving yellow margarine.

The color ruling took the form of an amendment to a measure by which the province specifies the maximum moisture and the minimum butterfat content of the butter substitute.

A bill intended to prevent businesses owned by charitable foundations from discarding the profit motive so as to obtain an unfair advantage over rival firms was given first reading by the Ontario legislature. It does not affect any business left to a religious denomination.

The Prince Edward Island legislature prorogued Friday after approving 77 bills. It sat 23 days.

Budget debate continued in the New Brunswick legislature. Leigh Wilson (L.-Charlotte) commended government efforts to aid the province's fishing industry. He thought the federal government should do more to help.

The Nova Scotia legislature gave second reading to a bill increasing hospital grants. Health Minister L.D. Currie said the change would mean an additional expenditure by the province of $150,000.

The possibility of a public service for cancer treatment in Manitoba was raised in the House at Winnipeg by Lloyd Stinson (CCF Brandon) who said cancer is "in a class by itself" because there is such a fear of it and treatments are long and expensive.

Science Detectives Seek Answer To One of Nature's Greatest Mysteries

Ottawa, March 26 (CP)—Science detectives, the chief of Canada's Chalk River atomic project said today, are following up every clue in discovery one of nature's greatest mysteries — the "immensely powerful forces" by which she binds together the nucleus of an atom.

The solution of this mystery, Dr. David A. Keys told the annual convention of the Civil Service Professional Institute in a speech prepared for delivery, "is the key to the important problem facing the mathematical and experimental physicists today."

Dr. Keys, now in complete charge of the Chalk River project, said many people associate the term, "atomic energy" with a weapon of war, the atomic bomb. "It was a project of war and like so many other such developments it opened up wide possibilities for peacetime applications."

These productions were leading new discoveries in the rubber industry, in the process of vulcanization, the use of natural oil bearings and rubber tires and the self diffusion of metals.

Isotopes of iodine, iron and carbon were being employed in living organisms leading to the development of new drugs for the treatment of diseases.

"The importance of developing nuclear power units, even if it takes 20 years or more, can be appreciated when it is realized that our natural sources of fuel—coal, oil and natural gas — are rapidly becoming exhausted.

"A recent survey of the world supply of fossil fuels indicated that the yearly consumption of coal and oil has tripled since 1900

The present rate of increase indicates an eventual exhaustion of this form of energy."

MAN TAKEN ILL AT INVESTIGATION

The ordinary dignity of His Majesty's court was disturbed briefly Friday at the Royal Commission investigation before Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay when a man in the audience suffered an epileptic fit and had to be carried from the room. Provincial police officers carried the stricken man from the courtroom where an ambulance was called to take the man to hospital.

Upwards of eighty guests of the theatre will see the picture.

Stirling Group Presents Fine Comedy

Tweed (Special) —The young Marrieds' club of St. Paul United Church Stirling, presented a three act comedy, "Small Town Romeo" in St. Carthage's Hall, Tweed, that attracted a large audience.

The play was sponsored by the Women's Association Country Group of St. John's United Church.

There was one scene in each of the first two acts and two scenes in the final act with all the action taking place in the lobby of a hotel in a small country town. The laughs were plentiful and the situation built up by the plot and the dialogue were played to advantage by the well-performed amateur theatrical.

Doug Lowry played the role of Joe Stanford, a breezy young playwright, and Sid Demorest as Ella Perkins, the village constable. The role of Bud Williams, the village mechanic, was well done by Lenora Best, while Josephine Lurry was Miss Gates, spinster and president of the Ladies' Vandervoort played the part of Mrs. Williams, the village Baker's daughter, and Hildegarde Wilkins played the part of Anna Aldrich, the school teacher.

The visiting thespians presented a performance that was appreciated by Tweed residents and it compared favorably with anything presented here.

The Stirling players have had some experience which would appear, in this sort of thing, and they carried themselves with ease in roles which they seemed to enjoy playing accounting in no small measure for the pleasure which the audience, too, experienced from the show.

Mrs. (Dr.) Cornett, former Isobel Sills of Tweed was one of the directors of the presentation.

Petroleum Products Will Supply Exceeding Demand in Next Few Years, Supertest Dealers Told

Canadian production of petroleum products within the next few years will be such as to supply exceeding demand, placing Canada as an export nation in this field and thus increasing her stature in the world economy, said Mr. M. Riley, assistant general sales manager of the Supertest-Petroleum Corporation, Toronto, speaking to dealers here last night.

Mr. Riley was guest of the Belleville district dealers at a banquet in the Hotel Quinte, the corporation executive said that there will be an abundant supply of these products in Western Canada, which will create a buyers market and which will replace Canada on a comparative parallel with the United States.

"United States economists," he said, "when asked to predict where the maximum consumer would stand five years hence, said that by that time gasoline production would be increased 18.2 per cent of 1941 billions, fuel oil 48.5 per cent or seven billion, three hundred million gallons; kerosene, 27.7 per cent or one billion, three hundred million gallons; stove oil, 48.5 per cent or seven billion, three hundred million gallons. They also predicted that the production of stove oil next year would be greater than the entire amount consumed in 1940."

Demand Increasing

"He felt," he said, "that the same conditions applied to Canada. The demand for diesel oil is increasing and has not yet reached its peak."

He glorified verbally the dark days following the war when lack of oil and coal created a serious domestic problem. Gasoline was in short supply and rationing was in force. "Today," he said, "there is an abundant supply of petroleum products in every district. In Western Canada production for the past fourteen months was phenomenal. In five years, he predicted, Canada would be self-sufficient in petroleum products supply. Western Canada will be in a position to export shipping needs which means that wells will shut down or Canada will become an exporting nation — which she will do.

The company slogan, "Cleanliness, Courtesy and Service," Mr. Riley said, "was paramount to sound business. "This has been proven. He warned, however that 1949 would see business in jeopardy unless all are in position to fight for competition. Cold fill officials he quoted, said that 1949 would see the greatest competition in years. "Only the fittest survive."

Business Excellent

"We are living in a land of paradoxes" he said quoting statistics; "Domestic cash sales went up, business was excellent and pawnbrokers were prosperous. "We have a very similar political, economical and social structures, but our forebearers lived through it as did we. We can't see the pot of gold at the end of your rainbow but it is the best system we know. It simply calls for the application of the Golden Rule. Our company's motto 'Cleanliness, Courtesy and Service' has a definite affinity with and should run hand in hand with the ethics of any of living."

Mr. Riley was introduced by Ralph Warren, branch manager of Supertest Petroleum Corporation here, who acted as chairman for the meeting. He was assisted by H.W. Smallman, branch supervisor.

Many Present

Present at the meeting were J.W. McLeod, Sales Manager Toronto branch; R. R. Sharp, district manager tires, batteries, accessories division, Toronto, who gave addresses and S. H. Marshall, sales manager TBA division of Toronto.

The Belleville district comprises area east of Napanee, west of Cobourg, Prince Edward County and north to Bancroft.

A feature of the meeting was the presentation of long-service symbols.

A silver tea service was given to the Price Brothers, Actinolite, with Belleville years with the company, Carl Patterson, Belleville, and Jack Wellbanks, Rosseboro, were presented with certificates and buttons for ten years continuous service. Leo Biggs presided over the 1 p.m. for the general singsong.

Gananoque Team Easily Defeats Hespeler by 11-2

Some boys from out of town came into town and really went to town at the arena here last night. Hespeler boys made the long trip here to meet the Gananoque Legionnaires for the first game in a two out of three series only to be defeated by them 11-2.

Gananoque had a definite edge in the play through most of the game scoring eight goals. They were short handed and letting up only once in the third period when Hespeler counted their only real goal. The first one came when MacDonald came out of his net to meet Follitot and he tripped into him with the puck trickling into the corner of the net. Stoddart was the other marksman for the locals.

Gananoque had a real scoring spree scoring five markers in each of the first two chapters and three in the final stanza. McCarner got the only one he could get the night with two goals and as many assists to his credit. Fair and Jackson also chipped in with their part netting two apiece and Hastie, Keyes, Jackson, Hastie, Atkins, Hudson and Brown getting one goal apiece. Anderson played a very good game for the losers and was the busiest man than four goals for his teammates although he himself did not break into the scoring column.

The two teams clash again in Hespeler on Tuesday night for the second game of the series.

The teams:

Gananoque: Goal, MacDonald; defence, McCarney, Compeau; centre, Keyes; wings, Hastie, Atkins; subs, Anderson, Jackson, Hastie, Wood, Brown, Keys, Burton.

Hespeler: Goal, Hillis; defence, Dadson, Prior; centre, Jackson; wings, Doolpie, Follioit; subs, Robertson, Stoddart, Fair, Carroll, Vines, Dyer, Douglas, Selder.

People Advised To Lock Doors When They're Out

Police Chief Walter Probert today warned city residents to make sure that doors of their homes were locked when they were out for the evening as there have been several instances of homes being entered within past weeks.

Almost without exception these homes have been entered when the occupants have been absent of the family left the home unattended and failed to lock the doors. A few articles of value appeared from tables and other articles have been reported missing. Families were also asked to lock their house doors for the night.

No opinion was forwarded by police as to the party or parties who may be responsible for thefts from the homes.

Smith and Sons Transport Observes 42 Years of Progress in Belleville

Had you lived in Belleville at the turn of the century, or 1907 to be more specific, and moving day with its problems rolled around you contacted the mover of that day and within a few hours you then modern equipage would pull up at the door and whisk your furniture to the new home.

True it took several trips an those days when powerful motor-propelled vehicles were but a dream but it got there, but the job was usually done satisfactorily.

It is a far cry from a horse-drawn wagon to a truck with its fearful motor trucks, but that is the story of the progress and success of the Smith and Sons Transport Service, quartered in a handsome new cement block garage at 434 Bleecker Avenue.

Started in 1907

The now flourishing transport firm was started in 1907 when the late Fred Smith, father of Mr. Smith, present proprietor, operated a one-unit transport outfit, doing hauling jobs in and about the city.

The "unit" was an elderly horse, made of stout, which had a light wagon through the city's muddy streets, drawing furniture or anything required moving.

Business prospered and Mr. Smith soon added three more horses to his stable and then operated two teams and in addition to his transport service with one-horse hansom cabs.

Then came disaster. One night the stable caught fire and three of the horses were burned to death. The other was taken from the stable in time to save its life.

With motor cars beginning to appear Mr. Smith decided to turn to the mechanized field. He bought a Ford car and removing the body used what was called a Smith-Former attachment which converted the vehicle into the first motor truck to operate in Belleville.

Speed of operation saw the Smith family prosper. Three more trucks were added to the original by 1937.

At this time Mr. Smith passed away and the business was taken over by Mrs. Smith and a son, Kenneth, now operating a taxicab business here.

Took Over in 1939

In 1939, Morley Smith, the present owner bought the business from the family and has operated it successfully since.

Fifteen powerful units from one-half ton to ten tons capacity comprise the fleet.

"The Queen of the Fleet" is a handsome new furniture van, 33 feet long with 2390 cubic feet capacity.

The company operated for thirty-five years on Geddes Street and in 1944 acquired the present location. The new garage 170 by 45 feet was erected in 1945.

Present personnel of the company is eight, but this number is augmented in the busy Summer months.

World Service Secretary Speaks To Y's Men Club

A country of great confusion was the description of China given by Edward L. Hazell in an address to the Y's Men's Club of the Y.M.C.A. at the regular supper meeting Thursday night.

Mr. Minard, World Service Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., is spending a few days in Canada having returned to seventeen years in China on leave after three and one-half years of service with the International Committee of the Y.M.C.A. He received his A.B. degree from the University of Southern California, Mr. Minard will pursue further studies before returning to China when he will be responsible for secretarial training on the China National Committee of Y.M.C.A.'s.

Explaining that the country was the size of Europe, with the surface of the globe and a population of 485 million people, most of whom were impoverished and undernourished, Mr. Minard pointed out the conflict between ancient and modern customs and methods. A Machinery and hand manual, labor were the contrasts on farms and in industry. Commerce and trade was carried on by the age old system of barterage and the most ancient of sanpans and each was struggling for business.

Inflation, Said Cause

Inflation was another cause of confusion, with new currency introduced only last year being already related to the place where goods valued at one dollar in August were now valued at $4,000. The currency this represented 12 billion dollars. A YMCA campaign which realized $20,000 last year 'improved' it $30,000 in this currency.

"It is any wonder that the government failed under such conditions of instability?" he asked, "and Chiang-Shek was a man who won the support and sympathy of the United States but failed to rally his own people. The generalissimo had two main ideas. The defeat of Communism was dominant in his plan, which justified his actions in suppressing people. Indiscriminate use of firearms was another worthy of him as a world figure.

Mr. Minard expressed his belief that the Chinese Communist advance was embarassing to Russia who could not absolve their responsibilities with the burdens of Europe. The hope of China therefore was, that it could remain nationalistic. He explained this may be overcome by the church and the YMCA had been able to continue its work. This was a hopeful sign for the future in a country which was coming into an industrial revolution without the heritage of a Christian tradition.

"Even in our democratic countries the question of labor and management arise," he stated. "As we expect better, in China."

As an illustration of the service rendered by the campus which with the churches were the hope of China, Mr. Minard cited an illustration from the 21 Hi-Y Clubs in the war - created Nanking Association. Seventy-five members of these clubs endeavored to stand illiteracy and accepted as a project three hours service a day, for six weeks in which time they taught several hundred illiterates 600 characters of the Chinese language. This association which was bombed during the war has been rebuilt by the same loyalty and commitment of its members with the aid sent to them through the World Youth Fund.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WRITTEN BY E. WILSON

LITTLE KILLER

Only three species of Hawks do more harm than good, and as the biggest of these usually nests far from civilization, it does not worry the farmer. The other two are similar in looks, size, and taste. Female Hawks are always larger than males, so that a small male Cooper's and a large female Sharp-shinned might both be about 16 inches. If the little Sharp-shin is not counted as the worst offender it is merely because it is not as well able to carry off poultry and game birds as is its partner in crime, and must be contented with song birds and a few mice and grasshoppers. Nevertheless it tackles anything up to the size of a Mourning Dove of 12 inches.

This little killer's scientific name is significant: accipiter velox, meaning swift seizer. Perhaps the most agile of the predators, it does not strike on the wing as a Falcon or, on missing, follow up the would-be victim as would a Shrike, but makes just one bold dash, then grasping and killing with strong curved talons. It tears the prey with its cruel, hooked beak.

Rarely do we notice a Sharp-skin sitting on a branch where we are able to see that the upper side is a blue-grey. Our attention is often drawn by a shrill, three-syllabled whistle, and on looking up we find the Hawk's wing over head at a jerky pace: several quick beats and then a sail. The silhouette shows short, rounded wings and long, straight tail which appears to be square at the tip. When spread for steering, the tail becomes more fan-shaped, reminding one of a double-tiered. Using binoculars we see that the white body is barred with reddish, the wings are faintly streaked with fine light and dark lines, and the tail, ricked out at the end to a shallow V, has several distinct dark bars across it.

Near the beginning of April the Sharp-shinned arrives here after wintering in the United States, and soon chooses a site for his summer home. A frail nest of twigs is made 15 feet or so from the ground in branches of a tree. There are laid four or five green-white eggs, artistically blotched with light brown. Curiosities that we see in late summer are not so easily identified, because their top sides are brown, while beneath they are heavily striped with dark dashes.

BLIND ORGANIST'S FEAT

Limpsfield, Surrey, England — (CP) — Frank Cooder, parish church organist, is believed the only blind man to master Brahms' Requiem. He memorized the 100-page score note by note from braille.

SMOKE DRINKERS

Ostersund, Sweden — (CP) — Inhabitants here are not smokers, but they may be smoke-drinkers. Frank Sundey, parish soft drink, dismayed at the high cost of carbon dioxide, found a cheaper way of producing it from factory smoke.

Newfoundland Dog Doubtless Will Ever Preserve His Name, One of World's Famous Dogs

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Port Aux Basques, Nfld., March 28 (CP)—If there is one product of Newfoundland that will never become Canadian, it probably is the Newfoundland dog.

It would be ridiculous, if not sacrilegious, to call the heavy-browed, good-natured beast "Canadian dog"—something like saying that Paddy's pig was raised in Moscow.

Dog Interviewed

This reporter, watchful for reaction of Newfoundland's impending union with Canada, interviewed a Newfoundland dog in the hope of ascertaining his views. It was obviously useless to write a straight article about him, because that has been done so often before. Robert Burns, Lord Byron and Sir Walter Scott were among those extolling his virtues.

But the dog wouldn't talk, although he sniffed a bit when we were introduced.

Perhaps he was thinking about his ancient lineage. It is likely that his ancestors were taken to Newfoundland by Basque fishermen who visited these coasts early in the 1500s.

True to the traditions of his seafaring masters, the Newfoundland dog is practically amphibious.

Hon. Harold MacPherson of St. John's, leading authority on the animal, has many stories to tell of the big dog's incredible courage and intelligence. The dog, usually black, often reaches a weight of 100 pounds.

The dog finds his greatest utility in the northern parts of this island in hauling sleds during the long, bleak winter, when he provides the only form of transportation apart from snowshoes.

Pyrenean Ancestry

Mr. MacPherson says the Newfoundland's chief ancestor - must have been "that most beautiful of dogs whose conformation is identical with his own, the Pyrenean sheep-dog."

The dog has been exported during the years to most parts of the world. Mr. MacPherson, who maintains a farm near St. John's where he breeds prize Newfoundlands, often receives orders from such places as Vancouver, B.C., Mexico City and United States cities.

Baby Recovers From Burns in Basinet

Peterborough, March 25 (CP)—Rescued from her blazing baby bassinet by her five-year-old brother, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Black today was home from hospital, almost completely recovered from head burns.

The fire started in their home at Omemee village, 12 miles from here, when five-year-old Lewis Ilt an oil burner while his mother was outside. The burner ignited lace on the bassinet, enveloping it in flame. The small boy pushed the bassinet from the table and took four-month-old Barbara Ann into the bedroom. Then rushing to his mother, he screamed:: "Mommy! baby's basket is on fire."

Mrs. Black hurled the bassinet outside before the fire spread and rushed Barbara Ann to hospital.

Princess May Deputize For the King In Ceremonies on His Birthday

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 26 — (CP) How the King's birthday will be celebrated next June is receiving serious attention at Buckingham Palace.

The time-honored ceremony of trooping the colour will be performed by the Brigade of Guards but it is considered unlikely that the King will be permitted by his doctors to take the salute and inspect the parade.

Normally this is always done by the sovereign as Colonel-in-Chief of the Guards, wearing the uniform of whatever regiment is trooping its color. He rides horseback in procession with the other guards' colonels—among them Princess Elizabeth who is colonel of the Grenadiers.

The ceremony is fairly lengthy and would be a strain on the King, especially as he has not ridden a horse for some time.

Genuine impression in court circles is that Princess Elizabeth will deputize for the King. She deputized for him on one troopling parade in 1947.

Another matter receiving serious consideration at Buckingham Palace is whether the King will be able to attend this year's Royal Ascot meeting.

Though a race meeting is less tiring than riding horseback at a military parade, it still involves a good deal of walking and standing—two things the King is forbidden to do except when absolutely necessary.

Here again Princess Elizabeth would be a willing deputy; for she is keen on racing and has arranged to make her Ulster visit with the Duke of Edinburgh by air to enable her to get back in time for the Ascot meeting.

Meanwhile, the King will begin a new phase of his convalescence at Easter with a six weeks' stay at Windsor Castle. He will go for drives in the extensive grounds and also take walk in the gardens.

Members of the Royal household say it is even possible the King may be able to do a little riding, one of his favorite pastimes.

MR. CHURCHILL VISITS U. S.

The man who carried one of the heaviest burdens in history in the Second World War, Winston Churchill, is now visiting in the United States and was given a rousing welcome as he reached New York. Though he is on his way to his seventy-fifth birthday he is full of energy and according to the press is in the pink of condition.

A supporter of the Atlantic Pact, Mr. Churchill on his way in Bernard Baruch's motorcar noticed a group of demonstrators bearing signs saying, "We cannot be sold on war, Mr. Churchill." The man who did as much as or more than any man for democracy and freedom deserves the admiration of the world. He waved gally at the pickets as he had to all others gathered along the streets to see the great leader of war days.

In his visit to the United States, Mr. Churchill is on familiar ground, the country of his mother and the land where he had visited years ago and in the forties in the Second World War when he and the former President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, held those momentous meetings which had so much to do with winning the struggle against Nazi Germany.

Mr. Churchill like Mr. Roosevelt is a man who has brought together very closely the two great branches of the English-speaking race, the people of the United States and the people of the British Commonwealth.

No man receives a warmer welcome in the Republic than Mr. Churchill whose great service to freedom in the Second World War made him one of the greatest figures of any age.

PEACE THROUGH STRENGTH

The Atlantic Treaty marks a new departure in American foreign diplomacy, according to the New York Times. "It associates the United States for the first time in peace time, and in a much more concrete manner than does the United Nations Charter, in a collective security arrangement with nations outside the Western Hemisphere. But, as Mr. Acheson, said yesterday, in so doing it merely recognizes the facts of international life — the most important of these facts being that Soviet Russia has wrecked the peace and assumed an attitude which forces the Western nations to look to their defences."

The New York newspaper sees that the real purpose of the pact goes beyond defence. For its ultimate aim is to restore a balance of power in the world which will not only discourage aggression but also pave the way toward real peace. It is designed to lift from the world the terrifying sense of insecurity and thereby promote both economic and political recovery. By balancing Russian strength with Western strength it is intended to persuade Russia to come to terms and establish at least the same kind of modus vivendi between itself and the rest of the world that enabled both sides to live in peace after the revolutionary wave had exhausted itself following the First World War. Once peace has been established between Russia and the West there is hope, that, with French security assured, a way will be found to conclude a formal peace with our former enemies, Germany and Japan."

So the pact is not at an end but merely the beginning of a larger task. The attempt to attain peace by weakness and disarmament has failed. There remains only one alternative, and that is to seek peace through strength."

MONT BLANC TUNNEL

Mont Blanc is to have a hollow steel tube driven through this highest of the mountains of the Alps, so as to secure uninterrupted road communication between Paris and Rome. The tunnel will penetrate the mountain which is 10,000 feet high at a height of 3,005 feet on the French side and emerge on the Italian side at 3,065 feet above sea level.

Something of the history of tunnels is given in the Sheffield Daily Telegraph, which says:

"Judging from the experiences of the men who built three other tunnels, the Simplon, (12 and a half miles long), the St. Gothard (nine and a half miles), and the Mont Cenis (seven and a half miles), the Mont Blanc project will not be without its hazards.

The Mont Cenis was the first of the great Alpine tunnels and excavation was started by manual labor in 1857. No machinery was introduced until four years later.

During the construction of the St. Gothard tunnel thousands of human moles burrowed through the foundation of the Alps in an average temperature of 100 degrees fahrenheit.

The Simplon tunnel, opened in 1905, was less of a problem because of the great advances made in engineering during the intervening years."

TRAINING

Rain and sun by the Lord are sent,
And earth will furnish the nourishment.
But the climbing rose on the lattice wide
Man and woman must train and guide.

Little there is that is left to chance
That can surely to pride and worth advance,

For the climbing rose will run astray
If nobody cares for it, day by day.

As with the flower, with a child 'tis so.
Some one must teach it the way to go.
For even the love of the Lord in vain
If no one is willing the child to train.

A ferocious game of hockey was played at the rink this evening between the Herwin and the Junior Victorias. The result was doubtful. The Herwin got the score was 3 to 2, but an imposing deputation from the Vics. visited the Intelligencer office to impress upon us that the score was 3 to 4 in their favor. We decline to compromise our personal safety by meddling in disputes. The following composed the teams:—Herwin—Goal, Collins; point, Wilcox, G. Bates, G. Flynn, T. Sullivan and G. Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE SET OF THE SAILS

The earliest sailing ships were completely at the mercy of the wind. If a mariner wanted to go where he was going, he had to hope wind which would blow his ship in almost that direction. To go south, he must await a north wind. Then, as the winds varied, he shifting sails to different angles, they could make a north wind take them almost due west, but west or east, and even northwest or northeast, it was the same wind — but the sailors had learned how to make the best of it.

Some of us are as helpless as our early ships were in the early mariners. We feel completely controlled by outside circumstances — our jobs, our education, the place we live, the amount of money we have. We would like, perhaps, to live better, richer, fuller lives, but we are subject to the same old direction by existing conditions.

Perhaps we cannot change the conditions, but we can make the best of them, instead of letting them run us. That old job can be new and interesting if we bring into it a new interest. The same town with the same people can be an exciting place in which to live if we make it such. As a familiar poem says, "It is not the gales, but the set of the sails" which determines our direction in life.

Romeo Brassard Will be Hanged For Slaying Wife

Cochrane, March 26 (CP) — Romeo Brassard will be hanged June 15 for fatally shooting his 210-pound common-law wife whom he accused of stepping out with another man.

The 37-year-old Northern Ontario lumberjack was convicted late Friday of murder. A jury which deliberated three hours and 40 minutes recommended mercy.

Evidence, including statements which police and a handwriting expert said were written by Brassard, was that Brassard fired two revolver shots into his wife's body as the climax of a bedroom quarrel Feb. 19 in a tiny cabin called Hearst. He had accused her of going with another man to a hotel in Hearst, an accusation the woman denied.

Police quoted Brassard as saying:

"Here's my gun, it's me you're looking for. I did it and I had a good reason for doing it."

Brassard was taken into custody near Hearst, a little railway town at the point where the northern tip of the Algoma Central Railway meets the northern line of the C.N.R. about 300 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

William Hatch of Cobalt, Brassard's lawyer, called no witnesses for the defence. He suggested in his address to the jury that the shooting might have been accidental. Crown Attorney S. A. Caldwick of Timmins asked the jury to convict Brassard of murder.

Moscow's Answer To Atlantic Pact Not Yet Known

By SIGRID ARNE
(The Dewitt Mackenzie)
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Just what Moscow will do in answer to the North Atlantic Pact is the object of a scientific study on the part of a good deal of wary watching in Washington where the point is due to be signed.

Soviet propagandists already are busily at work denouncing the pact but diplomatic gossip here wonders whether that will be enough for the Kremlin masters.

One of Europe's most seasoned diplomats thinks not. He is an exile living in Washington, and can't be identified because the family at home still living behind the iron curtain.

Spitzbergen in News

He told this reporter that he expects Russia to take some action in the Spitzbergen under the Red flag. Since the war, Spitzbergen has been under the joint protection of the Norwegians and the Russians.

Spitzbergen, largest in a group of islands that lie half-way between Norway's most northerly tip and the north pole. They are under Norwegian rule through a decision of the Allies of the First World War.

Important Factors

Spitzbergen has two things that are important in a world where two great blocs are at odds. It has weather stations which, under the old agreement, give their findings freely to anyone who wants them.

Much more important, it is fairly large number range of important European cities.

From Spitzbergen it is roughly 1,200 miles to Scotland, and something like 1,600 miles to Leningrad. Those distances could be important, if the North Atlantic powers held the Spitzbergen as a base and wanted to remind the Kremlin that they would frown on any further Russian aggression.

Spitzbergen in Russian hands would make the North Atlantic powers feel unsafe. Russian planes, based there, would be within easily easy striking distance of that famous, deep-water home of the British fleet, Scapa Flow, and island locked Scottish harbor.

Further, planes from Spitzbergen could swing down over some of the major European cities with little or no opposition from western fatety orbit.

For that reason any proposal regarding Spitzbergen coming out of the Kremlin for discussion to bring about a quick closing of the ranks among the western partners.

COMMONS CLEANS

Mr. Bracken, former Progressive Conservative leader, urged the government to get out of the business of making food controls and leave it to those who grew foodstuffs. At the same time, it should make efforts to overcome the currency problems which were causing profiteering markets.

Farmers Justified

Mrs. Strum called for a "shelf of assistance" for the family, floor on which no one's income would drop.

Mr. Moore felt there was too much talk about the constitutionality of the legislation. Actually it should be extended beyond the one-year period contemplated.

Mr. Quelch said farmers were justified in asking for long-term legislation which would assure them of stability in return for better prices at which their produce was sold during the war. Prices support legislation should be made part of any long-term policy on agriculture.

Mr. Hazlewood said the legislation had been aimed at bringing stability to markets for farm produce, but actually it had failed in that purpose. The government's policy of making food a matter of state marketing, also had failed to bring market stability and profit should be thrown out.

Mr. Quelch said he defended the legislation and said there should be similar measures for other products other than bacon, cheese and eggs covered in the bill.

Mr. Fulton said he thought the act was unnecessary. He suggested it be replaced by a Producers Marketing Act which would give farmers control of the marketing of their goods. If the government wanted to fill the British contracts, it could enter the free market and not use an "arbitrary and irresponsible" control which gave it dominance over every feature of the agricultural industry.

Gauntlet Lost From Plane Over Holland Seven Years Ago Returned After Long Journey

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, March 25 (CP)— Another unusual story from the great war of 1939-45 has just been completed. In personnel, it involved a German who was a wanted prisoner of war, an American who was a flyer for Canada, the Red Cross, RCAF headquarters and the American embassy in Ottawa.

Its crux was an airman's gauntlet lost in the rear of seven years. In January, the Red Cross in London received a parcel from the German prisoner of war camp at Lamsdorf, containing a gauntlet he had picked up on the coast of Holland in late October, 1942. It held the name Sgt. J. A. Potts and a regimental number of the RCAF.

A place, thought to be Britain had crashed in the sea the night before. Hohn assumed the owner was lost.

The RCAF found that Potts had never been in a wreck, had in fact finally transferred out of the RAF, and is still alive. It got in touch with Potts.

Explanation

An amazed Potts wrote back. He'd been asked to mail a sick air gunner Oct. 27, 1942, in a Wellington bomber attack on Emden, he recalled. They had done the job, been searchlighted and blasted and coons out without a scratch. Enroute home, he found his gloves and wondered for enemy planes. After a brush with a plane he noticed that his gauntlet was missing. Perhaps recently hurled out of the turret or blown out by the wind through the partly removed plastic around the guns.

Mr. Hohn's crashed aircraft, said Potts, must have been German.

He got his gauntlet back through the U.S. embassy. He said he would write Hohn thank him personally.

ANY IRON TODAY, LADY?

It has become increasingly difficult, in some communities, to obtain ammonium citrates in garnet-red scales, or only form of iron suitable for preparing home-made blood — tonic in my opinion. I have learned from experience to suspect that readers who complain of irritation of stomach and bowel by the homemade iron tonic have been using brown or green scales or granules instead of the thin, transparent garnet red scales which the U.S. and British pharmacopoeias specify and I have always insisted on.

If perchance you can still obtain this transparent garnet-red scales of iron and ammonium citrates, not brown or green scales or granules, put half an ounce of the scales in a previously boiled (sterilized) wide-mouth pint bottle fill the bottle with distilled water, pure rain or snow water which has been boiled five minutes (sterilized). Cork the bottle with a boiled (sterile) cork. This makes a clear red solution without cloudiness or sediment, enough to last a week. The dose of this iron tonic for anaemic women's blood is a teaspoonful twice a day for youths and adults, a teaspoonful once a day for children.

The taste of this home made blood tonic is the best, especially when it is taken, as it should be taken, in an inch of water to which has been added milk sugar or syrup and flavored with fruit juice of your like.

The medicine keeps longer in a cool place or in the refrigerator, so bring about a quick closing of the ranks among the western partners.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Frozen Food

I buy all our food once a week, store meat, wrapped in oil paper, in the cold compartment of refrigerator. Husband thinks this is unsafe, for the lack of circulating air in the freezing compartment will favor development of trichinosis and botulism. (Mrs. J. C. T.)

Answer—our practice is perfectly safe and does not favor development of either trichinosis or botulism.

What, No Worms?

I'm sure I have read in your column about children with worms. The young doctor we have in this village ridicules the idea and says neither children nor grown-ups ever have worms. (L. B.)

Answer—Maybe not, in your village. They have 'em in other villages in this country. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet Unbidden Guests. It deals with pin-worms, round worms, tape worms, hook worms, whipworms, ringworms, lice, bedbugs, spiders, mosquitoes, flies, ticks and fleas.

Sitting on the Cold, Cold Ground

Mother-in-law claims you can get piles by sitting on the cold ground, cement or stone steps. My husband is hounding me to send for your pamphlet "How Women Suffer from Piles." so. (Mrs. L. C. W.)

Answer—The pamphlet is available to any reader who asks for it in writing (do not use a postcard) and inclosed stamped self addressed envelope. Don't let piles get you down. Sit with mother-in-law, but first between cornstove you sit on a soft surface — it never causes any kind of piles.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Right now, and for the next two or three weeks, creatures that have been born all over the Dominion. On the farms, lambs, calves, colts, a baby woodchuck, fox cubs, wolf pups.

In the melting snow dens, the bear cubs are already born in January, the tiny hairless mammas. One of the three annual litters of muskrats is already in the nests in the lowland muskrat houses, though the ice hasn't gone out in the lakes and ponds, the raccoons are expecting their babies, the bright eyed horned owl has already hatched his young; and if they are not yet flopping heavily out of the nest, eyeing each other brilliantly and fiercely, they soon will be. Crows are brooding everywhere. Red tailed hawks will soon be carrying food to their nests.

These creatures that eat others, like the owl, wolf, fox, are particularly anxious to get their young born and up on their own feet before the season is too far advanced. It is not easy to find enough food now to hunt after vegetation offers concealment to their lawful prey. By the time the young ones have come back and reared their young, the nest, and the mice and chipmunks are into their summer litters. Hundreds of the hunters have learned already how to survive.

In the case of wild things now being born, millions will not survive long. They are provided as sustenance for creatures that will survive. A great harvest owl usually lays only two eggs. But the mice, rats and other creatures it preys on, provide large litters.

Humans, whose only really efficient enemy is other humans, usually produce one at a time. Apparently nature expected them to survive, ultimately.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE COMMON TOUCH

In my newspaper I recently read of the death of a useful man, in which the writer referred to him as one who never lost the common touch. I like that expression. He was a very successful business man, interested in all the civic enterprises of his town and a man who inspired all with whom he came in contact. Great world did not separate him from those of humble character and here his friends. He was the friend of all.

With so many problems embroiling the earth, and with money so much the god of many, those with the common touch are rare. Yet how much more to be desired is this than merely to have attained great wealth or position. Both are longer with and helped most to make people better and happier.

There is a universal spark of understanding that is kept very alive, awaiting its opportunity to contact another, whose like spark is ready to receive it. There is hope that creates this thing which we term the common touch. And that contact becomes an event in the life of a person. It becomes this event has become historic!

I have referred before to the late Robert Burns (Robbie) (Lord Tweedsmuir) and what a notable example he was of one who had this rare quality of the common touch. His sympathy with writers at his time with those who had this same common touch. Who knows Lord Tweedsmuir used to say that no conclusion which he ever reached of any use to him until he could put it into plain English. He could understood by the ordinary man."

Mankind is getting too restless, too experimental, too full of fears. We are even speculating upon shooting a man to the moon. What a journey that would be! Suppose he wouldn't want any of our kind up there if there are any living ones there as inhabitants. We need the common touch right now more than ever. Happiness is to be found among happy people like those with the common understanding and common touch.

Hobby Fair at Queen Mary School Presents Great Variety Handicraft

Last evening, Queen Mary School presented a scene of intense animation and activity when interested parents and friends thronged the rooms and corridors to view the exhibits of artcraft, handiwork, and hobbies, sponsored by the teachers, pupils and parents.

Along the walls the class work exhibits of the different classes, ranging from the Kindergarten, all the way up to grade 8, were arranged; each showing the varying degrees of skill in the use of science, paper, plasticene, crayon and pen, in corresponding advance of the grade. In the Kindergarten, the tiny tots had made some highly interesting representations of birds, cats, mice, dogs, baskets of paper flowers, Dutch windmills, using as their medium, plasticene, or paper, as the occasion warranted. One rather amusing specimen in plasticene was that of a horse with a "lean and hungry look" whose east and west parts were loath to join issue; the head was eagerly looked over, for birds, cats, mice, dog, longed-for fodder, while the rear legs, entwined in the famous Charlie Chaplin pose, seemed to say the effort was scarcely worth while.

Bewildering Variety

Grade 1 showed some nice work in paper, depicting a horse and milk wagon, the wagon bearing the inscription, "Milk for Health" as well as the plasticene cats and mice, some very well done free-hand cut-outs, and night scenes on black paper with scintillating stars. Grade 2 had harvests in pretty colors, and more animals in plasticene showing animation, with definite improvement in the contours, including pigs and turkeys. Another little group of colorful cut-out work was the different designs of snowflakes, which were shown in large size and in intricate patterns. In grades 3 and 4 the work was varied in subject and in clearness of outline. The crayon paintings and Easter illies blanks were outstanding. In grade 5 an eyecatching exhibit was a rug of rope weaving, which were scattered various kinds of leaves, in cut-out form, and which added to the effect. Also showed a real grasp of form and color.

Grade 6 was noteworthy for its picture names, India ink sketches and soft pencil drawings, and the spatter-work; while grades 7 and 8 showed skill in their pencil drawings, and intricate cut-out silhouettes, excellent subject matter depicting ballet dancers and reindeer.

Special Display

One exhibit deserving special mention was that done by those pupils who do not find the educational curriculum an easy one to follow; for these is provided an extra course, one which will bring out latent talent along each pupil's particular inclination. In this exhibit was a display of leather work in the form of purses; woven hot-mats; pictures in composite form, depicting Scottish dancers; and several others, some which were some done on the typewriter, difficult of execution as well as a relief map of South America, made with salt and flour, and colored appropriately.

In the centre of the room were two long tables, and on these were the "Hobbies." One table displayed a doll, dressed as a bride; a cushion crocheted in shades of green, red, pink, beige, yellow, and in the shape of a silk form; a knitted sweater in grey, very carefully done; dainty aprons; dollies in crochet; and table runners; cozy-blocks, and needle work. This was the girls hobby table.

On the boys hobby table were various designs in wood working, showing many an exhibit based; models of dog houses; aeroplanes; ships; derricks made with meccano sets; a board on which were all manner and types of rope knots, and splicing, and braiding.

Parents' Hobbies

Across the corridor was to be seen the "parents' exhibit." Here were several fine specimens; two-depicted houses, one a bungalow in clapboard, with picture windows, shingled—hoop—completely furnished with bedroom, bathroom, nursery, and living room, and modern kitchen, with all modern appointments. The other, was in a colonial design, two storey, completely furnished, and featuring the modern bow window in flexi-glass. This house was finished in stucco with blue trim, the architect being Mr. J. Beeby. Mr. L. H. Beeby exhibited two pictures of Indian beads in water colors, very beautifully done.

Another splended exhibit was the engine and tender designed and built by Mr. P. C. Gilpin, after the New York Central model, and capable of carrying from 10 to 12 persons. A pigeon loft shown by Edwin Coleman of grade 8. Don Ferguson exhibited a fine outboard motor boat, as well as did Ray Poste. Mrs. (Rev.) Anderson had two lovely table cloths in crochet of different patterns. Mr. G. Gill had a metal alligator on display. There were also some lovely crocheted baby jackets and hoods, and shell work by another parents Mrs. C. Hyde.

Bazaar Well Patronized

In another room a bazaar was being held, where delicious cakes and pies, tarts and cookies were available, exchanged for their equivalent, as were the dainty aprons, dollies, table towels, and embroidered runners, boxes of candy of all kinds, as well as the various items displayed in the elephant table. Down the corridor, at strategic points, could be read signs of "Hot Dogs," "Ice Cream and Candy," and "Coffee" doing a flourishing business, as practically everyone seen was partaking of same, for the exhibit adroitly endeavoring to escape the hungry pending throng of youngsters, with smiling faces, and ice cream laden hands.

Down stairs some children were enjoying the dance, while others, out of range of the dance, and wherewithal of future drinks or sodas, danced to the music keeping the space of rhythm. Upstairs the children, whose time had been so kindly donated by various sources, had long since been fashioned by the teachers, and if appearances count, the hobby show has been a fine success; and to the teachers, to the parents, to the pupils, and to each and all who contributed in making it so, much appreciation is due.

3-Act Comedy At Tabernacle Church Enjoyed

On Friday evening, Tabernacle Young People's Union presented Sally Shute's three-act comedy "Girls' Fortune" to a large and enthusiastic second night audience gathered in the church parlors. Under the direction of the Rev. Frank Harback, the farce is an amusing development of the familiar "If I had a million" theme complete with missing heirs and mysterious strangers. The production, an unpublished, no-holds-barred amateur effort, was successfully intended for the hilarious entertainment of the packed cast alike. To quote from the directions literally, "if someone on the stage makes a mistake, as some one most certainly will just go ahead and laugh". In point of fact, mistakes were few and far between, and none at all had been made in casting the play.

Miss Zina Kolver played Mrs. Samuel Warren, giving a sympathetic portrayal of a lady in reduced circumstances, whose wellmeant efforts to rescue her family's very fickle fortune led them into many mishaps. The outstanding part of Miss Gloria Warren was colorfully, enacted by Miss Marion Brennan. Her refreshingly frank fortune-hunting and horrific temper were keynotes of the drama.

Miss Vivian Coon's Roxanna Blossom" was an excellent study of the low-principled gold digger, retainer, New England accent and all. Young love triumphant, in the persons of Juliette Warren and Brant Allen, proved eminently suitable parts for Miss Shirley Taylor and Roger Cornell. The latter Thespian proved his versatility by portraying a Swede as extraordinary to the company.

Fine Performances

Miss Myrla Goodfellow and Miss Grace Hirth, as a pair of omniscient parlor maids, had the parts to the life. Their plotting and scheming in the opening moments of the second act and fully developed the comic situations of "Lilly" and "Mac-ie". The part of Cuppers, the butler, a man of surprisingly many parts, most happily fell to the lot of Garnet Riley, who agilely followed his rapid change of fortune, and gave a very flexible performance.

A small gem of character portrayal was the part of Emmerson Hawley, that 'le ne sais quoi' young man. In the hands of Don Charlton, this minor part added much to the stature of the production. The indefatigably jaded Sadie Tweed, wrapped up, heart and soul, in her good works, was convincingly played by Miss Gwen Henderson.

A performance of particular merit was that of Miss Rosemary Hunter, as the mysterious Mrs. Merry. Her facile changes of mood from lost and bewildered old lady to domineering harridan were a pleasure to behold. John Irwin was at least adequate as "Stevens", Cuppers' successor in the butler's pantry of the Warrens.

Stage sets were designed and built by the Young People's Union under the direction of Bud Garlepp. The production gained much in appearance from the generous use of attractive curtimes and imposing furniture. Intermission entertainment was provided in the form of a number of pleasant piano duets, performed by Miss Loreen May and Miss Phyllis Kane.

Woman Forecasts Bermuda Weather

Bermuda, (CP) — In an area where hurricanes can blow up faster than you can say "Bermuda sunshine", Ruth Hussell, is responsible for forecasting the weather.

Twenty-seven-year-old Ruth is Bermuda's first woman forecaster. She took up meteorology as a career after graduating from the University of London in 1941. She was one of the first ten girls to enter the W.A.A.F. as a meteorologist.

In 1944, she left the W.A.A.F. and took up flying. After obtaining her pilot's license, she ferried planes in England for the Air Transport Auxiliary. When the war ended, she went to work for a London publishing house.

But these duties seemed dull in comparison to forecasting. So in 1946 she got her old job back with the air ministry and shortly afterwards was posted to Bermuda.

Now, as forecaster for this island paradise, she is responsible for handing out weather information not only to ship captains but also to airline captains and local citizens.

A captain of a freighter, the Alice Pioneer, was astonished to find the Bermuda forecaster a woman but the next skipper who calls at the Bermuda Meteorological office to pay his respects will not be so surprised.

Ships "speaks" are busily sending out word that "Bermuda has a weather girl!"

GOOD MANNERS

Today's Good Hint for Good Friendship: Don't use your friends as a dumping-ground for your grievances . . . your grievances about your family, about your relatives, about a friend, about your job or your employer . . . or about the world in general. Remember that your friends have their troubles, too . . . if perchance they don't indulge in the habit of talking about them, it's doubtless because they carry their troubles with a better grace, with poise, and in silence. "Pack up your troubles in your own kit bag."

What "Lingering Lure" Should Realize

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been going around quite a good deal with a man whose manners I very much admire, but last evening when we were dining in a restaurant with another couple, he did something that I would consider a bit, too "finicky." A few minutes after we had given our orders, a woman whom we four at the table know quite well, came to the table and greeted us. Both men rose at once, and the visitor, who was standing, said most graciously and I thought most considerately, "Oh, please don't stand." The other man at our table immediately down, but Bill remained standing, paying no attention to her request. When she said good night and left, Bill sat down, but, although she doesn't know what I did not say anything, he looked as if he were wondering why Bill didn't sit down. What about this, Mrs. Beeckman?

S. D.

Bill didn't sit down because he knows what's right . . . and the wonderful hostess-table asked the men at the table to be seated because she doesn't know what's right. It's amusing to watch the wrong self-satisfaction of a young man in a restaurant as, stopping to talk at a table, thinks she makes her lingering quite all right if she says to the man or men who rose when she came to the table, "Please don't stand" or "Please be seated" . . . or even . . . I'm going in a minute." A gentleman would not follow this misguided suggestion . . . for he knows that he should remain standing while a woman is standing, and that this courtesy isn't negated by her inappropriate suggestion. Also, and very important, anyone who sees him seated while the woman is standing would think him either ignorant of what he should do, or wilfully discourteous to the woman.

About Self-Service . . . Flowers . . . While Dressing

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a girl and man are setting together in a self-service restaurant, who carries the trays to the table?

2. How are flowers worn?

3. When is the correct time to start wearing a white suit or jacket?

Nan

1. This kind of restaurant is generally so busy and too crowded for the customers to stand on ceremony . . . so the girl carries her tray, and the man his. However, if they happen to arrive at a fairly busy hour, then the man may have the pleasant opportunity of courteously carrying the girl's tray.

2. Flowers are worn with the blossoms up, as they grow.

3. This depends on the weather . . . generally . . . between the middle and last part of June.

Choosing a New Hair Style

A modern version of the Empress Josephina coiffure is this smart bairde. Designed by a famous New York hair stylist, it features soft, graceful curls.

By HELEN FOLLETT

HAIR styling has developed into a fine art. It is surprising how many variations there are of the short cut. Perhaps you have seen the one that has a V at the nape line, with ends tapered and fringed up and upward. Just the ticket for the girl whose neck is short and stubby.

The neat, tailored head is distinctly of the mode. But there are many youthful women who will stilt rely upon the permanent to give them ringlets that form a soft frame for the feminine phiz. Exotic faces, the joy and despair of coiffure artists, can get away with plain, sleek arrangements that carry the chignon. Oh, yes, new little chicadees, there are those among the sisterhood who refuse to be shorn lambs. They are hanging onto their nigtail maternal, believing that the cropped thatch may suddenly finish its term.

Women of small stature are likely to select a mode that has a youthful nausiness; it suits the type. Taller ones take to rather formal designs and that is wise of them. Down around the cheeks of high school and college age contrast minus to have flowing locks. They love them.

Change have come back in full force. Nothing surprising in that; the short cut lends itself to forehead fringes.

A new fancy is to brush the short ends up at the sides as if one were starting an upsweep hairdo, forgetting that the tresses are limited in length.

Whenever there is a new twist to a hair mode, when locks are placed in entirely new patterns, do not expect them to be amiable at first. Do brushing vigorously, coddle and pet them; they will soon conform to the new arrangement.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SPENCER (wife of Lieut.-)e Letters and Answers

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We have been going around with a very close friend of ours for about five and a half months. But now we have had enough. This girl curses, tells dirty jokes to girls and even to boys, and has an insult for everything we say. We have told her many times we don't like it, but it doesn't do any good. We really don't know whether to stop going with her or not. Can you tell us what would be best to do?

"Rosemary and Adrene"

Dear "Rosemary and Adrene":

If this friend of your hasn't got a very poor reputation now, she will have soon, and you girls certainly don't want to have people think you are the same type just because you associate with her. If she refuses to change her ways, you would be very foolish to keep up your friendship. You had better tell her that unless she stops her objectionable practices you want nothing more to do with her, and then show her that you mean it.

• • •

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married a year and am about to have a child.

My husband says he isn't treated as other married men are. It seems he is never happy unless I'm in the house. He says he should have at least a couple of nights a week, and that he especially likes to go and see an old girl friend of his, and I feel that he shouldn't go because of my condition. He persists in having this girl every chance he gets, but he still doesn't want a divorce or separation from me because of the baby. What shall I do?

"M. C."

Dear "M. C.":

I don't know exactly what you mean when you say your husband thinks he isn't treated as other married men are. If you mean that he thinks he doesn't have as much freedom as they do and about as he pleases, then I think he is simply trying to make you believe something that is not true. Most married men, I think, have a more reasonable idea of their obligations to their wives and families than this.

Of course, there are many men who are so inconsiderate as to neglect their wives when they are pregnant and unable to go out much with them. Unfortunately they have the same excuse after the baby is born, because their wives must stay home then, too, to look after the infant. Such men seem to have no idea at all that the child they are responsible for having brought into the world is any concern of theirs.

You are certainly not going to get anywhere by quarreling with your husband about the situation however. If he doesn't love you enough to be even more thoughtful than usual about you under your present circumstances, I am afraid there is nothing you can do about it, unless, of course, you want to take the definite step of obtaining a legal separation from him.

I think, however, you would be wiser to wait and see if the situation changes any after the baby's birth. If your husband is otherwise good to you, you have more than you would gain by leaving him.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Giving Hands Their Due

"Pale hands, pink-tipped like lotus buds." Sounds delightful, but if you have just been giving your house a going-over and have been wiping up bathroom floors, you may decide that your hands are far from pale—in fact, they look as red as two beets—and you cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, compare your nails to lotus buds. Well, the house must be taken care of and the boss of the domestic treadmill must work, but the fact remains that she should give her hands their due Housework tasks take a heavy toll, no doubt about it. Not all women realize that brushes can take the place of hands for many jobs. We have better soaps than our grandmothers had, and it is not wise to economize on even those that are used for dishwashing. Plenty of punishment is meted out by soap suds and, for that reason, lotions must be used freely and often. Not only lotions, but oily cosmetics to compensate for the loss of the natural oil.

Hands are ever on display. You can't hide them, especially during the bridge game. They must be kept in perfect condition, and they can if one makes every effort to protect the skin. Once or twice a week the hands should be given a comforting massage with lanolin or cocoabutter, soothing agents that will keep the flesh from taking on a withered appearance.

Hands Are Always on Display

Many beauty shops give hand treatments that are unobtainable. Operators say that they find the greatest need of these attentions in "housework hands," in those of the career girl who types all day and in athletic hands that are toughened by summer sports. Somewhat the discolorations caused by continued exposure to strong sunlight often linger through the winter. Also, excessive tanning tends to make the skin coarse and leathery. Better keep the fact in mind when the silly season comes around and you feel that hand care is not necessary.

The treatment starts with a soapy scrubbing with a brush, the hands remaining in the suds for several minutes to soften the flesh. A heavy lubricating cream is used, a softening oil is worked in around the nails. Each finger is treated to a rotary motion of the operator's thumb, working from base to fingertip. The inner surfaces of the fingers get special attention. From the wrist to the elbow smoothing strokes are used with the thumb pressing deeply into the flesh to hustle up circulation.

Complexions Need Creaming

A nightly complexion creaming will keep your skin fresh, supple. Apply the cream in a clean skin that has been thoroughly dried, massaged

By HELEN FOLLETT

Facial massage, properly given, together with the application of a nourishing cream, will do much to restore a complexion that has fallen into a state of depression. That can happen to any woman. Maybe her diet isn't feeling up-top. Perhaps the worry bugs have been biting her. The cutaneous coating upon her countenance can reflect the state of the health, the state of the mind.

Even five minutes of patting and tapping at bed time will remove the tense appearance, tone the underlying fibers, give the surface a grand old cleaning. There will be a fresh look in the morning. And you will have a righteous feeling, knowing that you are taking out an insurance against the ravages of birthdays. One can't start too soon in the war against time.

Clean Skin

Apply the cream to a clean skin that has been thoroughly dried. Place the finger tips on the forehead. As one group goes up, the other group should go down. Do circles around the eyes to erase turkey tracks that may be in the process of forming. To prevent frown lines from digging in, do cross wise movements with the first finger of each hand. Then, placing the thumb at lower end of line, first finger at upper, hold the finger stationary, iron upward with the thumb.

Placing the thumbs under the chin, smooth upward to the earlobes. Stroke the neck up and down. Have the head thrown back. The usual double chin will vanish. Massage is more effective when the muscles are relaxed.

Slap the cheeks briskly. Never do large circles over the cheeks because you will be likely to send the delicate tissues under the eyes into folds.

While the cream remains on, give yourself an ice friction. If contact with the ice cube gives you goosie flesh, wrap it in gauze. Let the cream remain on over night. By morning it will have disappeared.

Fashion Flashes

Another lost sheep returning to the fashion fold after a long absence is the watch compact. Improved manufacturing methods secure the watch, set in the top lid, from any possible stray powder particles.

Delightful detail marks some of the clothes designed for late Spring and Summer gala evenings. Gray chiffon is used for a dainty dance dress—snug of bodice, wide of skirt. Appliqued on the bodice in cluster form, and an the capelet, which is like a deep Peter Pan collar, are tiny white flowers of tissue felt.

Indispensable for a crowded late-afternoon-into-evening calendar is the neat suit of crisp silk—good on its own, under a coat or with little furs. Light navy has taffeta with big wyven cobdots in dark navy satin, is used for a handsome suit that fastens with rhinestone—rimmed fake sapphire buttons, also used for the pointed flap pockets.

This is the time to stock up on such items as the soft shirtwaist dress of fine fabric, and the deep-plunging neckline blouse for which so many of us have been reading for years. It is not wise to be too much exposure, invest in some of that nylon ruffling; use it also as a sleeve softener.

Senators Approve Bill to Extend Life of Company

Ottawa, March 26 (CP)— Two Liberal senators who were members of the cabinet at the same time fell into a squabble Friday as the Senate—not without protests—received, considered and approved one of the government's five emergency bills in one afternoon.

They were senators Wishart Robertson, government leader in the Senate and still a member of the cabinet, and Ian Mackenzie (L-British Columbia) who left the cabinet last year, but was involved a bill to extend the life of the Canadian Commercial Corporation, government purchasing agency, indefinitely and to grant it powers to borrow $10,000,000 from the treasury.

Senator Mackenzie protested that it was "a complete negation of Liberalism and of Democracy", to repeal the section which set a time limit on the measure; the three year limitation which brought it up again now was placed by the Senate.

Senator Mackenzie protested that he had had nothing to do with that. "There were several things done that I was not in accord with," he said.

A Purchasing Agent

Senator Robinson, is piloting the bill, said there would be no legislation based on the purchasing action if it said senators were given the measure by midnight Saturday. The corporation was primarily a purchasing agent for the defence department. It acted for private firms if they found they could not get certain purchases directly and bought up scarce materials for Canada and government thought it necessary.

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative, also objected that it was "not fair to the public" to say that such bills should be brought down to the Senate at the last moment.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L-Ontario) protested against the late sending the bill and the rush to get it through. He objected, too, that it "is not the proper function of government to be able to buy and sell on the market, in Canada or overseas, but withdrew this objection after hearing Trade Minister Howe testify in committee.

In committee, Mr. Howe said no Canadian firm was prevented from making foreign purchases because of the corporation's existence. But, say, a firm found it was unable to buy something from a state corporation in Czechoslovakia it could ask the corporation to do it.

Mainly, however, it was the purchasing agent for the defence department. Last year, he said, $60,000,000 worth of business since 1946 at an administrative cost of 6-10ths of one per cent.

BIG SAVING

Montreal — (CP) — The plans for turning nearby St. Helen's island into a recreation centre will be drawn up this year, but no city will save $50,000. If the drawings make it cchiaage a customs tax of three per cent of the cost of the project would have been charged.

Judge Lane States He Asked Const. Keays be Kept Out of P.E. Cty. as Investigator

Judge Wilfred S. Lane, county judge for the county of Prince Edward three years ago requested of the district inspector of provincial police to keep Constable J. E. Keays out of the county.

Judge Lane told the Commission inquiry investigating charges by Keays, Judge Lane Friday afternoon told Commissioner Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay that he had little use for Keays as an investigating officer and had requested that he be kept out of the county.

The weekend adjournment came at the end of the third week of Commissioner Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay's inquiry into allegations of Const. J. E. Keays against Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan and police officers.

Thus far 14 witnesses have been called to testify at the $60,000 hearing been written into the transcript and 144 separate exhibits filled.

Judge Cites Instance

The judge stated that when he first knew Keays the latter brought a great deal of him as an investigating officer considering him a capable man not worthy to be believed under any circumstances anywhere. Judge Lane heatedly answered.

He then produced knowledge that ranking officers, including Col. Cecil Todd, had cottage built of materials stamped "Dominion View Air Station?" asked Keays.

"That statement I made, I understand was not called as a witness before the court," replied Judge Lane.

He was subpoenaed but had skipped to the United States."

"He was in and out of the court house many times during the court," replied the judge.

Judge Lane was first examined by Malcolm Robb, counsel for police officers charged in the investigation and was then examined by Col. B. C. Donnan, county crown attorney, who is charged by Keays to have interfered with investigations.

Crown Attorney's Question

Col. Donnan referred to the Ralph Turney trial at which the former Coe Hill man was convicted on charges of indecent assault. He asked Judge Lane if at the time during the trial the crown attorney had been intoxicated.

Keays heatedly objected here claiming he had never stated the crown attorney was intoxicated at the trial. "I merely stated the crown attorney left the court room for his lunch very shortly after 12 o'clock noon.

"The crown attorney was not intoxicated at any time during the trial," Judge Lane answered. "If he had been I would have asked that he be removed from the court room."

"I expected that," replied Mr. Donnan, "knowing you do not drink yourself."

Under cross-examination by Keays, Judge Lane stated he had known Keays since 1940 or 1941 although he admitted this date was just an estimate. Keays claimed he had known Judge Lane only since 1944 and stated he had never given evidence in a trial where Judge Lane was still acting as crown attorney.

"I think you did," was the reply by Judge Lane. "I think you gave evidence on a number of occasions while I was crown attorney."

Judge Says Statements True

Keays denied the statement and suggested Judge Lane was being unfair when he had denounced Keays as he did in asking that he be kept from Prince Edward county.

"And those statements were true, whether you or any one else is hurt," answered the Judge.

Keays asked what evidence had been submitted at the Armstrong election to cause Judge Lane change his mind with respect to Keays.

He can't recall but the evidence of two later witnesses made it clear to him that a complaint or statement was admissible. Their evidence conducted directly with yours," was the reply.

Keays here brought the name of Crown Attorney Gordon of Walmsley, K.C., into the picture, claiming that he had acted very unfairly when he had insisted that only the warrant officer should be charged when he said ranking officers had built cottages with public materials.

That these officers not be charged under strong instruction from the Crown Attorney, alleged Keays.

Judge's Answer

"That you say that against Gordon Walmsley who is well known throughout the province as being a man not worthy to be believed under any circumstances anywhere," Judge Lane heatedly answered.

Keays then asked knowledge that ranking officers, including Col. Cecil Todd, had cottages built of materials stamped "Dominion View Air Station?" asked Keays.

"That statement I made, I understand was not called as a witness before the court," replied Judge Lane.

He was subpoenaed but had skipped to the United States."

Earlier Judge Lane change his mind with respect to Keays.

P. M. TO VISIT OSHAWA

Ottawa, March 26 — (CP) Prime Minister St. Laurent, accompanied by Mrs. St. Laurent, left Ottawa Friday night by train for a weekend visit to Oshawa.

Mr. St. Laurent will be guest at a civic reception Saturday and will participate in the opening of the Central Liberal Convention. He will address a public meeting in the evening after a brief visit to Ajax.

BILL WILL SPEED

"Why, the Toronto Star."

Mr. Nixon's reference was to the Atkinson charitable foundation, set up in 1943 with the Atkinson family as trustees, which owns the controlling interest in the Atkinson publications, the Toronto Daily Star and Star Weekly — to charitable, religous and educational organizations as determined by a board of Trustees controlling the Star Publications Limited. The foundation became operative after Mr. J. Atkinson's death.

Value of the Atkinson estate was put at $8,767,854, with $7,-688,466 of that amount being properly going to the Foundation. The remainder went to Palmatore Storey Star Building of downtown King Street West.

Alexander Stark, a trustee of the Foundation, said Friday night that he knew the legislation would affect the Foundation.

"It looks as though this government bill is aimed directly at the Star," he said. "The bill is a big surprise to the directors of the Foundation. We were not consulted or informed of the government's intention to carry out this legislation. We intend to carry out the wishes of the will of the (Atkinson) will as closely as possible.

"The unfair part of this proposed legislation is its attempt to alter the provisions of a will. Most of no law like this in the civilized world. The Atkinson's will disposed of his estate as he saw fit. Now, after his death, the government proposes to make retroactive legislation to disturb the terms of that will."

Not Business Company

The legislation will not affect the St. Lawrence Foundation, incorporated to handle the entertainment earnings of Canadian skater Barbara Ann Scott. Mr. Frost said in an interview that he did not consider that Foundation, formed when Miss Scott turned professional after winning the Olympic figure-skating crown, "a business company."

Al Sudbury, a charitable foundation similar in purpose to that of the Atkinson Foundation became operative following the death last year of W. E. Mason, publisher of the Sudbury Daily Star. The bulk of the $1,352,352 Mason estate was left to the W. E. Mason charitable foundation, with about 40 per cent of the proceeds set aside for a proposed Sudbury district hospital.

Must Dispose of Excess

The rest of the proceeds go to various charitable, religious and education undertakings.

Under the bill's terms, if a charitable trust or foundation holds more than 10 per cent of the interest in any business, it must dispose of the excess. No charitable trust or foundation may own more than 10 per cent of the capital stock of any undertaking. Trusts and foundations now established have until April 1, 1953, to comply.

Mr. Frost said the bill in no way imposes any additional taxes, nor does it attempt to tax charitable foundations.

"The whole policy of the government is to the contrary. It desires them to be such as not merely charitable trusts and foundations as a cloak for something else."

East German Night Life Outdated After Years of Hitler and Soviet

By TOM REEDY

Leipzig, Germany, March 25, (AP)—Anybody who can Charleston is an immediate hit in the night life of Soviet Germany.

The annual Leipzig Fair has created a holiday atmosphere here, deep in the Russian zone, and turned back the calendar to the roaring '20's for United States visitors.

After 12 years of Hitler and almost four years for the Russians, the Eastern German is about two decades out of date. Dancing in the night spots reminds one of the postage stamp floors, dubious booze and fancy prices of pre-prohibition era in the United States.

All the Germans dance the old-fashioned "toddle". You don't see any Russians in their night clubs. The "no fraternization" rules of the Russian army isn't just talk.

What the girls do for evening clothes is the best they can. They improvise here, pin up there, and come out in a patchwork of good way. The men don't make it so well. In one night club the only man with matching coat and pants turned out to be the Communist proprietor.

The beer is good and packs a wallop. The German cognac beats a lot of the dubious fluid that poses under fancy names elsewhere. For 20 East Marks a German can have a time for himself.

Now American cigarets are on this deep into the Soviet zone is a caution, but many German girls would sell themselves for them.

The waiters spot a foreigner immediately and he gets excellent service for American cigarets, of course.

Everywhere there are three women to one man. It's "Dutch Treat"—everyone pays their own way, including the women.

By midnight, the spots are at their zenith of noise. Closing time is 2.30 a.m.

Everybody piles into taxis which are expensive. But a mark is a mark, so six or seven get into one built for four. Those who have spent their last mark wander arm in arm down the streets, singing.

Whistle of White-Throated Sparrow One of Spring's Sweetest Sounds

Written For The Canadian Press
By PERCY GIBENT

There is no springtime music more delightful than the sweet and pensive whistle of the white-throated sparrow.

When pioneer settlers from staunch old stock in the woodlands of New France beside the St. Lawrence, they paid it the highest compliment they could think of by calling it the rossignol, the French Canadian name for nightingale. The bird Canadians should love and admire throughout its wide range from the Maritimes to the Mackenzie River, for it sings of their country.

In the United States they call this musical sparrow the Peabody bird, because of its fancied resemblance to English has an imaginary resemblance to "Old Sam Peabody, Peabody, Peabody." What the bird does and says, in nature and any careful listener will confirm, is "Sweet, sweet, Canada, Canada, Canada."

A bird with a high economic value, the white-throated sparrow eats a great variety of insect pests — such as destructive bees, grasshoppers and locusts — as well as the seeds of troublesome weeds. Where its breeding haunts are the glades of coniferous forest with a special affection for the northern pine and spruces. Definitely, it is a bird which Canadian tastes both in music and habitat!

Tested Black Widow's Bite

Drop for drop, the poison secreted by the black widow spider is said to be more deadly than that of the rattlesnake. Yet, in the full knowledge of the grave risk he ran, Dr. Allan Walker-Blair, Canadian radiologist and cancer specialist who died at Regina in November, once placed a hungry specimen of the venomous species on his hand and watched it take a 10-minute bite into the little finger.

It was while Dr. Blair was associate professor of pathology and bacteriology at the University of Alabama in 1933, that the grim experiment was made. At the time, the precise effect of the black widow venom on the human body had not been adequately investigated, and the scientist submitted to the bite so that his colleagues could study such effects at first hand.

Six years was the agony induced by the poison that Dr. Blair was forced to bring to a number of sick Eskimos to hospital here.

First word of the Fairchild's predicament came on Wednesday night, when a radio message said the plane was going to crash-land because of fuel shortage. For many days before the spitfire Dr. Blair, 14 diet of house and beer fillies kept the Eskimos from make it bite with test.

The black garb of the widow spider is not associated with mourning. She is a self-made "widow" in that she eats the male of the female of the species to devour her mate.

Pyramid Clubs Will be Banned By Toronto Police

Toronto, March 26 — (CP) — Prosecutions will be launched against persons in Toronto connected with pyramid clubs, Inspector Albert Lee of the police morality squad said Friday.

His statement followed reports that pyramid clubs, a variation of the old chain letter craze, were being organized in the city.

Developed in the United States, the clubs, designed to bent postal regulations which stamped out chain letters, are held as parties in homes instead of using the mails.

Mrs. Frances Campbell, a charter member of a newly-organized Toronto pyramid club, said $2,000 was collected approximately $2,000 when she left the home of the pyramid.

And this is how it works, Mrs.

THE NEW BUDGET

The proposed tax credit of 10% of common dividends is much more important than people realize, particularly to those dependent entirely on investment income. Our interpretation of the provision is that the Income Tax is that the taxpayer may deduct from the tax payable (not from the taxable income), 10% of the income received as dividends on common stocks.

Taking as an example a single taxpayer with income of $5000, all from common stock investments, the difference in tax payable would work out as follows:

	1948 Tax	Proposed 1949 Tax
Net Income	$5000	$5000
Less Exemption	750	1000
Taxable Income	4250	4000
Basic Tax (approx.)	835	700
Investment Surtax	128	104
Total	963	804
Deduction of 10% of common dividends received		500
Total tax	$ 963	$ 304

Under the proposed chance, it is obviously very advantageous to hold common stocks rather than preferred stocks, Class A stocks with a dividend preference, or bonds.

We shall be glad to offer suggestions for suitable portfolio changes to meet individual requirements.

Planes Searching Arctic Wastes for Missing Craft

Edmonton, March 26 — (CP)— Search planes today scoured the barren Arctic waste in an intensified search for a United States plane that crash-landed on the ice of Barrow Straits some 350 miles north of the Magnetic Pole.

The seven men aboard the crashed plane, an American Air Force C-82 Fairchild Packet, have kept in touch with civilization by radio and it is understood that all are safe and uninjured.

The plane made a forced down on a 1,100-mile flight north from Frobisher Bay to Resolute Bay. Frobisher Bay is on Baffin Island and is divided from the northernmost tip of Quebec province by Hudson Strait. Resolute Bay is on the Cornwallis Island, some 1,200 miles north of Churchill, Man.

(A dispatch from Goose Bay, Labrador, last night said that all seven men were safe and uninjured, following a successful belly-landing. The men were reported to have plenty of equipment and supplies.)

Meanwhile, a specially-equipped Dakota is scheduled to leave here today to take part in the search. Aboard the plane will be Air Commodore Martin Costello from a mercy flight to Fort Ross on Somerset Island on the south side of Barrow Straits. The plane had left Edmonton earlier in the week to bring a number of sick Eskimos to hospital here.

First word of the Fairchild's predicament came on Wednesday night, when a radio message said the plane was going to crash-land because of fuel shortage. For many days before the spitfire Dr. Blair, 14 diet of house and beer fillies kept the Eskimos from make it bite with test.

Guests keep coming and more parties are held and the top person receives about $2,000, then it goes on down the line.

"It all sounds very complicated," Mrs. Campbell admitted, "but it works out wonderfully well."

Newfoundland Ready to Become 10th Province

Ottawa, March 26 — (CP) — Newfoundland will become the 10th Canadian province at midnight March 31, Premier Louis St. Laurent announced in the house of commons today.

All legislative measures necessary to give effect to the union of the ancient colony with Canada have been passed in the parliaments of Canada and the United Kingdom.

Only formal measure, and it would not necessarily have to be passed before union was completed, was given royal assent here Friday, it concerned making provisions of the Canadian statutes applicable to the new province.

Because the date of Newfoundland's accession as a province does not come at suitable season to invite a public festival the celebration probably will be fixed for a date later this year.

However, the historic event will be preceded April 1 in a national broadcast including Canadian and Newfoundland voices. The broadcast will originate in Ottawa and St. Johns and announcement of its details is expected Monday.

The April 1 procedure involves the swearing in of a lieutenant governor if one has been selected at that time. Sir Leonard Outerbridge, St. Johns' lawyer, is expected to be named.

The lieutenant governor will be presented April 1 in a ceremonial

Marlboros Win All-Ontario Senior Hockey Crown Beating North Bay Black Hawks 4-3

North Bay, March 26 (CP) — Toronto Marlboros today hold the All-Ontario hockey championship, but in winning the second game of their best-of-three game title series they ran into a brand of opposition which not many expected.

Smarting after a 10-1 licking on Toronto's home ice Wednesday night, the Hawks came through with their best fighting performance of the season before dropping a 4-3 thriller here Friday night to give the Dukes the Ontario crown in two straight games.

After the game Toronto coach Joe Primeau gave a murmur of relief: "We had trouble all the way and were a trifle lucky taker that one."

The Toronto squad will stand by now to take on the winner of the series between Sydney, N.S., Millionaires and Pembroke, Ont., Lumber Kings in the second round of the Allan Cup fight.

Lanky Johnny McLellan Friday night strengthened 'his claim to the title of Toronto's best goal maker. He shot the prediction - passing Dukes into a two - goal lead with a double scoring performance in the first period. The Hawks fought back and got their first goal late in the first period when 38-year-old Willie Meloche snapped the puck past Goalie Harvey in the Toronto cage.

In the second session Toronto's Red Johnson slid home a goal from a wild scramble in front of Harry (Pic Cat) Lalanda, North Bay's able netminder.

Jim Dewey, a Sudbury recruit for the Hawks, climaxed a starring role for North Bay by notching their second tally but Ray Hannigan pushed the Marlies two goals up again before the period ended.

The North Bay fighters were rewarded in the final period as they outscored the invaders for the only period in two games. Terry Talentino put a bullet past Ray behind Harvey on passes from linemates Jim Dewey and Ray Mastonnevre. A sustained North Bay offensive up to the final ball could not gain them the tying goal.

With any luck the Hawks might have gained either a tie or even a victory. They were seriously handicapped by the loss of veteran skating Frankie Ringler, who was sick in bed.

Dewey was one of the best men on the ice, playing a brilliant two-way game for the battling Hawks.

Leafs, Bruins Ready for Third Tilt at Toronto

Toronto, March 26 — (CP) — Two hockey machines converged hdtir on Toronto today for their third meeting of the week in a Stanley Cup semi-final playoff.

From the east came the Boston Bruins by train, eager to take their first win in the best-of-seven series. And from their quiet training camp at St. Catharines, Ont., came Toronto Maple Leafs by bus, equally eager to add a third victory on home ice after 3-2 and 3-2 decisions on Boston ice.

Others converged on the Maple Leaf Gardens too. Hockey - mad Toronto fans lined up at 3 p. m. yesterday, armed with blankets and coffees and prepared to stay until the ticket windows opened at 10 a. m. today.

With the objective of taking the Stanley Cup for the third successive year, which would be a record, the Leafs' only fear seemed to be over-confidence.

Said team captain Ted Kennedy: "The Bruins were tougher in the second game than in the first. I hope our team doesn't get over-confident but I don't really think it will."

Lined up in front of Boston goalie Frank Brimsek at the opening whistle tonight will probably be Pat Egan and Jack Crawford on defence, Ed Sandford at centre, flanked by Woody Dumart and Jimmy Peters, and a goal be Boston front wall.

Hashing Bill Ezinicki and Garth Boesch are likely blue line supporters of netminder Turk Broda, with Bill Barilko and Gus Mortson, Ray Timgren and Joe Klukay on the wings. If coach Hap Day decides to repeat the starting line-up of Thursday's game.

Canadiens May Take Detroit On Home Ice

Montreal, March 26 — (CP) — Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens continue their feudin' and fussin' at the Forum tonight, and if home ice means anything, the Habitants should be favored to take a lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series.

Canadiens, who finished third behind the pace - setting Wings and Boston Bruins in National League campaign, did right well for themselves in gaining a split at Detroit in the first two games, both overtime contests. Detroit took the other at Montreal, the second 4-3.

Both coaches plan to dress the same team that started in the last game, although there is a possibility that Canadien centre Elmer Lach may be able to see action. Dick Irvin isn't too optimistic about the chances, though.

Lach is troubled by a sore jaw, the result of the third-to-last game of the regular season when he had two teeth knocked out by Detroit's Leo Reise.

The playmaking ace started the first game but was sacked in the mouth by Jack Stewart of the Wings, and the jaw started to swell up. Lach left the ice, he might don a plaster face mask for tonight's encounter.

As for Reise, the Wings' blond blueline blocker, is the only casualty in the Detroit camp, but his injuries won't keep him on the sidelines. Reise pulled a hip muscle in the opener and was used sparingly in the second contest.

If Lach doesn't dress for the Habs, his place will again be taken by the American League's all-star centre, Murdo McKay of Buffalo.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Bill Hastie's Gananoque Intermediates had little trouble with the Cornwall Hospitler team last night in Memorial Arena skipping the westerners by an 11-2 score with not extending themselves too much. Even at that the Gananoque crew did not attempt any terrific scoring efforts. They appeared to be content to give a demonstration of passing in front of the Hospitler nets, but were the occasional deadeye that netted in and scored goals. The Gane appear to be a well-balanced team with plenty of speed and if the Hospitler display last night was typical of the team the Gaddesperts of the Thousand Islands should brush them aside quite handily. It was a good game to watch from a Gananoque point of view. Personally we yawned through the better parts of a period or two—then decided to call it a day.

We hear, via the grapevine that Peter Jones and Johnny Green will be given tryouts with the Chicago Black Hawks farm squad in Galt next season.

In similar vein, Joe Kavanagh, Bancroft, has been invited to don a Maple Leaf uniform with the Georgetown farm team come another frosting. Kavanagh is 18 years of age and the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Kavanagh of the northern village. He did his puckhanding with the Bancroft Trappers this season. How those Maplecs scouts get around.

The only thing better at the moment than the south end of a fiver is the Toronto Maple Leafs Hockey Club. The rejuvenated Mapleos, reinforced by flaming hockey youth have ripped the erstwhile bested Bruins up the sell-known slats in the first games of the Stanley Cup "B" series, and appear to be well on their way to a more or less sensational series victory. Tonight the speeding Smythemen are back in their Fleet Street ballywick where they again oppose the defiated Bruins in the third game of the series. And according to early week performances the Leafs should tuck this one away.

On the other side of the picture the National League champions from Detroit are not finding the going so easy against the Montreal Canadiens. They lost the first game of the series by a 2-1 count but the Habs roared right back to even the picture with a sparkling 4-3 overtime win on Thursday night. The Canadiens journey to Detroit tonight in Montreal, and the Forum will likely be packed with the Montreal faithful. Should be a first lusty brawl.

Hockey horsehoofs in the Marmora Millionaires in desperate action in Memorial Arena tonight against the starry Sandridge Beavers in the second game of their Intermediate "B" playdowns series. The Millionaires are in Bucko McDonald's 11-5 setback on Thursday night in Brancebridge and tonight the village crew with the Beavers in the wall will be out there in an all - out effort to knot the series. A strong delegation from the mid-Hastings village will be on hand to support their favorites tonight. The game is under way at 9 o'clock.

Runner up Sid Smith of the Pittsburgh Hornets had 37 points.

• • •

In addition to the league bonus of $250.00 which will go to Liscombe, he will also be awarded the Leslie Cunningham Trophy, which was donied by the St. Louis Flyers Booster Club. This trophy, presented for the first time this season, will be given to Liscombe upon the occasion of his first visit to St. Louis next season, with the Providence club. It is a permanent trophy and Liscombe is entitled to it retain with a new one being presented each season.

Toronto, March 25 (CP)—The National Hockey League is becoming an employer in a big way, including a pension plan for players who have played 10 years or more in the league.

When the N.H.L. starts paying, it will have a pot of about $2,000,000 to dig into, calculates Dan (Kitchener-Waterloo) Reconditi Odette.

The plan is "one of the greatest advancements in sport" and is helping the right people — the players who make hockey the big business it is, Odette writes.

Inaugurated at the start of the 1947-48 season, the pension plan is one to which players and teams contribute. Each player pays $600 a year while the N.H.L. kicks in with $60,000 annually.

Odette figures that with 20 men to a team contributing, the amount turned in each year by the six teams is about $168,000.

"Since pensions aren't payable until a man reaches 65 and no man in the league is over 35, that means first payments will not be made for 10 years hence.

"By that time, annual payments from the players will total $1,080,000 and the N.H.L.'s share will be $600,000."

Every player signed to an N. H. L. contract is covered.

"If a player has nine years of service to his credit and has paid his assessment for the 10th year he will be entitled to the full pension of $80 a month for life when he reaches the pensionable age of 65...

"If a player dies his widow succeeds to his rights."

Odette thinks these pensions are fine but he regrets that the plan came too late for the players of by-gone days.

Hockey Gossip

Hockey is turning into a merry-go-round, says Red (Guelph Mercury) MacLeod. Players start young in junior ranks, work up to the senior outfits, in N.H.L. and then back down to the senior with their amateur cards in hand.

Senior hockey took a back seat to the junior teams a few years back, says Rex, but now a senior outfit has little trouble whipping the junior teams, because of the return of former N.H.L. stars to senior ranks.

Check up on Fishing Tackle

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
Noted Sportsman, Author And Creator of Solunar Tables

Along about now is the time that a great many anglers are getting tackle in shape for the busy fishing season. Old grease is being scrubbed out of reels (at least it should be) to make way for a fresh oiling job.

Fly lines are being washed clean with warm water and neutral soap flakes and then re-dressed with one of the standard line dressings. Not a deer fat or any other animal or vegetable oil on your fly lines. These oxidize quickly and in turn induce degradation of your line finishes. Stick to the petroleum derivatives and play safe.

Check Rod Guides

While you're at it, take time out and look at the guides on your rods. Use a good magnifying glass so that you can be sure. Worn guides will develop flat sides and sharp edges that soon ruin line finishes. Better replace them with new guides while you have time.

If any of your rods need refinishing and you enjoy fussing with rod finishes, there are a few things to remember. Let's take a quick look at some of them.

When you are removing old varnish from a rod, don't scrape it off with a knife or a piece of broken glass. Too many rods are ruined that way each year. No matter how careful you are when you scrape a rod you can't help taking off some of the wood with the varnish. That is very bad.

The flexibility of a rod varies as the cube of the diameter. Thus, even as little as a thousandth of an inch that you may scrape off will have a definite effect on the rod's action.

Soften Old Varnish

To do the job right, soften the old varnish with varnish remover and then rub it off with a clean cloth. The word "clean" is emphasized to avoid the possibility of getting oil or grease on the wood. If you brush fresh varnish over an oily spot, it will stay "tacky" and refuse to dry.

Use one of the proven spar varnishes on your rod, and give it at least three coats. Best apply that first coat before you put on any wrappings. That way your rod is waterproof under the guide stations.

Steer clear of "color preservatives" on your guide and ferrule windings. Buy your winding silk in light pastel shades that will take down to dark colors when the varnish is applied. This will give you a solid, waterproof job.

When wrapping ferrules, always begin the winding exactly where the metal meets the wood and then wind up over the ferrule. If you allow the winding to extend down over the wood, you are in for trouble eventually. These windings will crack at the junction of wood and metal, leaving a spot where moisture can reach the wood.

Sure, I know that some of the factories finish their rods that way, but they shouldn't. It's bound to cause trouble sooner or later.

Easy to Remove "Set"

If your rod has developed a "set", don't worry about it. Sets are fairly easy to remove. Mild heat—and I mean mild—will make the wood flexible enough to let you bend out the set with a gentle pressure.

Simply heat the wood—slowly so that it will heat clear through, and never so warm that you can't hold it comfortably in your hand.

Then steady the rod section with the finger tips of one hand while you bend out the set-over bend (or that hand. Don't bend too much. Repeated heatings and gentle bendings will take out sets that look hopeless at first.

Some folks like to varnish a rod by dipping a finger in the varnish and using the finger as a brush. Frankly, I've never bought much of finger varnishing. That way you can't get positive application around the guides. With a brush you can.

Beware of Dust

Do your varnishing in a warm room that has been closed and quiet for several hours so there is no chance of any dust being in the air. Flow on your coats and then finish them with a brush that has been wiped almost dry. That way you'll get a nice smooth job with no "rags."

Oh, yes—while I think of it, don't forget to fasten a paper clip in the lid of your tackle box so that you will have a handy place to carry the Solunar Tables. Then take the weekly schedules from your newspaper and slip them under the clip. That way you won't forget them. A strip of adhesive tape and a wire paper clip will do the job for you. With the weekly schedules always handy you won't have any trouble keeping track of the daily Solunar Periods.

Winnipeg Team Selects Larson As Team's Coach

(By The Canadian Press)

Winnipeg Blue Bombers ended weeks of speculation Friday night by disclosing that Frank (Butch) Larson, one time all-America football end from University of Minnesota, had been signed to a two-year coaching contract.

The 36-year-old Larson, nominated to the All-American team in 1933 and again in 1934, succeeds Jack West, another American.

Some 80 young hockey players turned out Friday at Guelph under the watchful eye of New York Ranger experts for the first day of the National League Club's spring hockey school. The school, first of its kind to be instituted by the Rangers, will continue for eight days at Guelph Memorial Gardens. Manager Frank Boucher, Ranger coach Lynn Patrick, and Neil Colville, coach of the Ranger farm team at New Haven, Conn., were present to look over the players.

At Toronto, Andy Grant of the Toronto Royal Canadian Club Friday captured the Brereton-Haw trophy of the Granite Club mixed bonspiel, defeating H. F. Gorrie of Hamilton Thistle 13-9 in the final. Grant, skipping the rink for Roy Smith who was called out of town on business, entered the final by winning 15-8 over Stew Graham of Toronto. Gorrie downed T. G. Dewar of Bobcaygeon 8-7 in the other semi-final.

At New York, defending champion Billy Talbert of New York crushed Fred Kovaleski of Detroit, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1, in the semi-finals of the United States indoor tennis championships Friday night and will meet Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles for the title today. Gonzales, the top - seeded turf court titleholder, won his way to the finals by turning back former indoor champion Don McNeill of New York in the other semi-final 4-6, 6-4, 9-7, 6-3.

Ray (Sugar) Robinson, world's welterweight champion, outclassed squatty Bobby Lee, Baltimore, Md., winning a unanimous 10-round decision before 7,736 spectators in the Chicago stadium Friday night. It was a non-title bout.

United States sportsmen have raised $291,000 for improvement of duck breeding ground in Canada this year. This was reported Friday at the opening session of the annual trustees meeting of Ducks Unlimited in Reno, Nev. Robert A. Jeason, Boston industrialist and president of Ducks Unlimited, expressed appreciation to the provincial governments of Canada for their co-operation in the program.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Lamotta Given Split Decision Over Villemain

New York, March 26 (AP) — Three fighting mad Frenchmen gave out with a Gallic version of "we was robbed" today, and they had a lot of people on their side.

Among them apparently is Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, who promised he would investigate the official voting which gave Jake Lamotta, the 2-to-1 favorite, a split decision over Robert Villemain of France Friday night. Obviously angered at the vote, Eagan said immediately after the 12-round bout in Madison Square Garden that "the commission will look into the matter."

"They gave the decision to the actor and not the fighter," manager Jean Bretonnel said as he tried to soothe the disappointed little Villemain.

Judge Charley Shorieli voted for Villemain, seven to four with one round even. But judge Harold Barnes and referee Harry Ebbets cast the decisive ballots for the fading 28-year-old Lamotta. Barnes scored it 6-5-1 while Ebbets had Lamotta ahead 8-4 with two even.

The Associated Press gave the fight to Villemain, 7-4-1. Ten of 11 boxing writers polled at the ringside said they had scored the bout in Villemain's favor.

Sportsmenship

The Cavalier Specialists' golf tournament at Virginia Beach will have four-man teams this spring, instead of two larger teams . . . At least three Chicago Bears have taken on special coaching chores at colleges for spring practice, including Johnny Lujack at South Carolina, Pat Preston at Wake Forest and Bobby Layne at Texas . . . Joe Rue, who used to umpire in the American League, operates a shoe salon in Santa Monica, Calif. . . . An ump always did need good footwork.

Weak End Notes

Ben Buker, the Spanish welterweight, made such a hit in Boston that he's going back Monday against Canada's George Ross . . . Henry P. Davis is compiling "the dog encyclopedia" which will have an estimated length of 464,000 words, not including "mutt" . . . Dale Mitchell, Oklahoma U. quarterback, won't be eligible next fall because he played five minutes as a Texas freshman in 1942 . . . Five minutes in Texas, suh, is as good as a lifetime anywhere else.

Paul Bibeault Most Valuable Player in Loop

Minneapolis, March 26 (AP)—Paul Bibeault, Dallas goalie, today was awarded $500 cash, two trophies and a gold puck as result of his play this season in the United States Hockey League.

In voting by coaches of the eight teams in the loop, Bibeault was acclaimed as the most valuable player for a trophy and $250. Another award, plus $500 cash, followed his choice as best goalie. And $300 more, plus the puck, was won for getting on the first All-star team.

Jim Unlac of the Omaha Knights won out as "rookie of the year" and will get a trophy and $250.

The first and second teams as chosen by the coaches:

First team: goal, Bibeault (Dallas); defence, Ailsby (St. Paul) and Forbes (Omaha); centre, Powell (Kansas City); wings, Butler (Tulsa) and Jukes (St. Paul).

Second team: goal, Bell (Omaha); defence, Rockey (Dallas) and Schertel (Tulsa); centre, Ashworth (Tulsa) and Kennedy (Fort Worth) (tied in voting); wings, Brown (St. Paul) and Joe Bell (Dallas).

In the league's post - season playoff series, Omaha eliminated Kansas City from the running Friday night. The Knights beat Kansas City 4-3 and will meet St. Paul in northern-division finals.

In the southern-division final playoffs, Dallas will meet Tulsa in the first game of a best-of-three series at Tulsa tonight.

Omaha and St. Paul, the northern-division finalists, open their series tomorrow at St. Paul.

CONSERVATION PLAN

Brantford, Ont. — (CP) — A proposed storage dam on the Conestogo River will cost $3,812,000, the Grand River conservation commission was told by engineers. The commission decided to seek the support of provincial and federal governments on construction.

Lou Boudreau Says Cleveland Team to Beat

Los Angeles, March 26 —(AP) —The odds against a pennant-winner repeating in either Major baseball league appear to be getting longer all the time, but Cleveland Indians have so much solid class that they should escape the jinx which has tripped the last five American-League champions.

Lou Boudreau says an infinitely stronger and more confident outfit than they were in the spring a year ago, and they boast more pitching and reserve strength than when they beat Boston Braves in the World Series.

Even manager Lou Boudreau, who wouldn't predict better than a third-place finish for his club last spring, now says firmly that "we are the club to beat — not the Boston Red Sox."

Bobby Feller, Gene Bearden and Bob Lemon, the "big three" of the mound staff, are going to engage in a serious rivalry for the distinction of winning the most games.

Some observers close to the club predict that Steve Gromek, who pitched a much-needed victory in the World Series, will be right up there with the top three. Boudreau intends to carry 10 pitchers.

Don Black, whose pitching career apparently was ended by a freak accident last summer, is working out slowly and cautiously. There is yet no indication whether he will pitch again. He complains of extreme nervousness.

A decision Boudreau must make fairly soon concerns Oreste Minoso, the Cuban Negro third-baseman who has been just about the hottest thing in the West for the past three weeks. He has proven that he can hit and throw and run like a deer. His fielding is the only question.

The Indians already have a top third-sacker in Ken Keltner, as well as a promising understudy in Al Rosen, who hit .337 for Kansas City last year.

Inkerman Rockets Win 3 in Row

Ottawa, March 26 — (CP) — Inkerman Rockets, red-hot for a Memorial Cup berth, Friday night earned the right to meet Montreal Royal Juniors in the Eastern Canada junior semi-finals, by outing Halifax St. Mary's.

The Maritime junior champions, no match for the more powerful Rockets, dropped the third straight game to the Ottawa district color-bearers 13-1. They lost the first two games 12-3 and 8-0.

St. Mary's was hopelessly overpowered in each game.

Bonnie Cole, who played goal for the first game, and Ernie Vandon for the last two, were given little support. The speedy Rockets were allowed to roam around the nets almost at will.

By SAM GORDON
The Jibitzer

A jibitzer lends spice to all and sundry party rants. No harm in his advice unless he gets too smarty pants. But one who rates a rare is Jacob Moriarity. The complex that he has is inferiority.

The guy who breathes down your neck may know what he is talking about. But not all he knows and says is necessarily correct. He may be quoting the wrong conclusions of opinionated experts.

Some of the bridge bugs going the rounds are simply opinions. They are decisions based only on experiences. And no human lives long enough to get his average of what a bridge pack contains.

South opened with one spade and north gave a response of one no-trump with this hand:

♠ 6 2 3
♥ 9 4 3
♣ Q 6 4 3

South then bid two hearts and the north hand passed. The critic behind his chair handed a recall, telling him: "He bid two suits. You should have given him a choice. Take him back to spades."

Choice, my eyebrow. A player does not ask for a choice when he bids two suits. Unless he rebids one of them. And south has bid both his suits only once. Neither was then rebid.

AT THE RELLE — Melvyn Douglas is starred with Cary Grant and Myrna Loy in the film comedy, "Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House," showing today and Tuesday at the Belle.

When a player bids a suit only once he asks partner only if he has adequate support for it. When he bids two suits he asks partner only if he has adequate support for either.

When does a player ask for a choice? When he rebids one of two suits he has mentioned. At least one of his suits is long. Maybe both. One should be trump. It asks for a choice whether or not partner has support for either. Lack of support is then assumed.

What is the harm of showing a choice when each suit is bid only once? Partner never knows when you have support. Any time you decide out of two suits he has bid he is in doubt.

Too many endure advice that is poor.

Stratford-on-Avon Company May Play Canadian and U.S. Theatres Next Autumn

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, March 26 (CP) — The Shakespeare Festival Company of Stratford-on-Avon may play before Canadian and American theatre audiences next autumn.

The Theatre Guild and the management of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre worked out tentative plans for the tour at a meeting here. It is subject to approval of the Guild's Board and of the management of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, says Lawrence Langner, co-administrator of the Guild.

The plans calls for a company of 42 players to arrive on this continent late in September. The tour would start with four weeks in Canada, followed by 10 weeks in the United States.

Newfoundland Tune Poem

"Terra Nova," a tone poem based in part on the folk tunes of Newfoundland fishermen, will be given its first performance by the philharmonic-symphony orchestra in a concert at Carnegie Hall April 2. Leopold Stokowski will conduct in this rendition of the poem by Theodore Fitch. it is being played in commemoration of the union of Newfoundland and Canada which comes into effect March 31. Fitch says some of the themes are based on folk tunes he collected among fishermen during a nine-week trip through Newfoundland and Labrador in 1940.

Tour Finished

North Drewett, pianist, and Geza de Kreer, violinist, noted Canadian sonata team, have just completed a tour in the United States which ended with a recital at New York's Times hall. Local music critics hailed their performance with the New York Times remarking "their ensemble work was admirable in its accuracy of attack, distribution of light and shade and attention to phrasing..."

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 26 (AP) — Let's take a peek inside a radio gag factory.

The profession of putting jokes into comedians' mouths is much maligned. People conceive of gag writers as ulcer-wracked, whip-lashed descendants of Joe Miller. I sought out a couple of them to find out what the species is really like.

The subjects were Ben Freedman, studious-looking co-author of the best-selling "Mr. Mike," and John Murray, a gilb-talking former bellhop. They create the funny stuff for Red Skelton.

"Our routine is different from writers for other comedians," said Freedman, who has worked for them all. "There are no conferences, no rehearsals, no pressure."

"No jokes," ad libbed Murray.

Each week the boys receive an outline of the next show from Edna Skelton Borrags, Red's former wife and mentor. It's a dummy script containing story line filled in with used material. The two boys retire separately to their homes and substitute the old material with new.

They send their scripts to Edna, who literally pieces them together with scissors, paste and rags of her own. The show is previewed about twice as long as it should be, the giggles are weeded out from the boffs and the final script emerges.

The unused material is catalogued and filed away for another day. This requires Murray and Freedman to dream up new material weekly. There was but one requirement when they were hired years ago: "We had to swear we didn't know any jokes from memory."

Red's biggest laughs often come when he muffs lines. Yes, the bobbles are sometimes written into the script.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and ma were going out to supper, and ma said, Are you all ready, William,

Yes as ready as I'll ever be, considering I'd mutch rather stay home, pop said, and ma said, I suppose you're wearing a sleeveless sweater instead of a vest.

The 2nd law of nature is to be comfortable, pop said.

Meaning she supposed rite, and me said, As long as you insist on wearing a sleeveless sweater you mite at least make a special effort to put in on rite side out.

What makes you think I didn't, my dear? pop said, and ma said, Because you invariably put them on wrong side out, and that's how you've got that one, I'll bet anything.

Then you'll lose anything, pop said. Look and admire, he said.

And he opened his coat and showed his blue sleeveless sweater on rite, and ma said, Sutch a man. Really, William, I mean really, you're the most contrary person I ever encountered in all my long life, she said.

Well for Pete sake, if I'll make you any happier, I'll reverse it for you and wear it inside out, pop said, and ma said, Oh, don't bother going to any trubble for my sake, but you really are an irritating individual.

Yes gods, will you take pity on a dizzy man in the dark and shed a little lite on what you're talking about? pop said, and ma said, I was downtown shopping with Helen Annias today, and I happened to see some men's reversable sleeveless sweaters red on one side and blue on the other, in other werds with 2 rite sides and 2 wrong sides, and I said to Helen, "Helen, I'm going to get one of these for my husband. He's never put a sleeveless sweater on rite side out in his life, but with this one he'll be trapped so he abslutely cant put it on it back again.

U.S. WAR DEAD LIE IN EXTINCT VOLCANO CRATER

By DON H. CARLSON

Honolulu, (AP)—In the peaceful crater of an extinct volcano overlooking the broad Pacific, the United States Army is interring and burying hundreds of American war dead.

Soldiers, sailors and marines who died on battlefields across the Pacific are being brought to their rest in the new national cemetery of the Pacific.

An unknown serviceman who died in the Pearl Harbor attack on Dec. 7, 1941, was the first to be interred in the new cemetery. He was buried Jan. 4. About 200 of his Second World War buddies are being buried there.

The body of Ernie Pyle, beloved war correspondent of the GI's who was killed by Japanese machine gun fire near Okinawa will be brought here for burial.

Each grave will be marked only by a simple granite stone set flush with the ground.

In the cemetery of the Pacific there will be no segregation of graves, Lt.-Gen. John E. Hull, Pacific army commander, said. Privates and colonels, apprentice seamen and commanders will be laid side by side.

To Bury 16,000

By the end of February, it had been announced, 1,400 servicemen have been buried. These dead, representing almost half the number to be buried in the red soil of the 2,000-acre park, were given traditional military burials.

The national cemetery of the Pacific is in the crater of a volcano which has been inactive for hundreds of years. The volcano, Punchbowl, is one of the last civilizations of volcanic activity on Oahu Island. It is a sister volcano of Hawaii's famed Diamond Head.

In historic legends Punchbowl is described as a "mountain of sacrifice." Natives were immolated in the old crater for breaking taboos of ancient gods of chiefs.

Records reveal that Punchbowl was first suggested as a cemetery site 50 years ago when Hawaii was still a republic. Sanford B. Dole, president of the republic and later the first territorial governor, vetoed the proposal.

Following the First World War veterans' organizations began a campaign to have a national cemetery located in the crater. The drive died out, but was resumed as the outbreak of the Second World War.

Winnipeg Writer Plans New Novel on Norse Heroes

By GRAHAM TROTTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, (CP)—Laura Goodman Salverson, noted Canadian novelist, is going to do some more "rattling around this continent." This time she will be in quest of more material for her next work —a historical novel covering one of the many storied exploits of her Icelandic ancestors.

The 59-year-old author of "Confession of an Immigrant's Daughter" admits to 53 moves in the last 35 years. Research for the novel will take her to eastern Canada and possibly to Europe. Then she hopes to make her home at the west coast. Despite her Icelandic ancestry, she "hates" the cold weather of her native Winnipeg.

Research for her novel on the Kensington Stone will take two or three years to compile. The stone is said to have been inscribed by a priest included in a band of Norsemen supposedly massacred by Indians after settling in Minnesota in the 13th century.

Only Canadian author to win the Governor-General's awards in two literary divisions, Mrs. Salverson has written seven novels, some poems and her autobiography. She has also done newspaper work. She is a good authority when it comes to handling out advice to budding Canadian authors.

"They should not write just to keep up with the Joneses. Instead, they should attempt to be helpful and progressive in their writing. Anyone wanting to make a success of writing should watch world trends in general, against being provincial and 50 years behind the times.

Experience Important

"By understanding the new needs and the new interests of the world in which they live, they can offer something of literary value. If you are to be an honest writer, you must draw on something you have experienced yourself."

Mrs. Salverson, daughter of Icelanders who came to Canada in the mass migration of the 1880's after a volcanic eruption ruined their land and homes, sees an improvement in the trend of modern writing, especially in Britain.

"The adolescent hard-boiled writing is on the wane. People are fed up with it. Our generation has gone through two world wars and has got enough horror in factual reading."

Mrs. Salverson first love is writing. She hates housework. And if she wasn't literarily inclined, "I'd like to paint or take up the theatre."

She was the first spokesman of a Canadian minority. But despite being awarded two writing, the autography "Confessions of an Immigrant's Daughter" is hardly known in Canada. It was first published in England where it was hailed as a literary event, but the outbreak of war halted complete distribution. It is now being published in Canada.

In 1937 her novel "The Dark Weaver" won the Governor-General's award and two years "Confirmation" won the award for prose non-fiction. The latter book, a brave and authentic work of the struggles of the author and her family to make their own place in a land then cold towards new settlers, is recommended by the United Nations for information of people in other countries.

Drew Says Budget Is 'Politically Significant'

Ottawa, March 26 (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, on Friday told his weekly press conference the budget presented last Tuesday was the "most politically significant" of any since confederation.

He was referring particularly to tax reductions and exemptions being made retroactive to Jan. 1 and stating that by dating the budget, was presented.

This "device," he said, meant that many taxpayers would be getting refund cheques at a time when it would be most useful to the government to be inspiring a sense of gratitude for "favors."

However, the opposition leader said he was glad to see the tax reductions.

"I welcome this partial return to sanity in budgeting—but it is only a partial return."

Mr. Drew said the budget provided that all previous statements about surpluses and the wisdom of keeping taxes up were "a fraud." If there were reductions and lowering taxes last year the same reasons existed today.

Mr. Drew said he would have considerable to say about the North Atlantic treaty in the debate scheduled for next week.

He did what he claimed to be "dishonest" statements that he and his party had one policy for Quebec and another for the rest of Canada on the question of collective security.

TRACING 300,000 MISSING CHILDREN EUROPEAN PUZZLE

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lake Success, N.Y. (CP)—More than 300,000 European children "lost" during the war are still missing.

The International Tracing Service, a branch of the United National International Refugee Organization, is searching for them today.

In a recent report, I.T.S. said Poland alone counts 100,000 of its children are still missing. The I.T.S. is concentrating on locating Allied children taken to Germany by the Nazis.

Every day the Child Search Branch of the organization receives individual inquiries from parents seeking help to find their children. There are 19,000 unsolved child inquiries on file.

Probably the world's largest bureau of missing persons, I.T.S. operates from headquarters at Arolsen, Germany. It handles as many as 8,000 cases a month — including adults and children — working from a master index which contains information on nearly 3,000,000 persons.

It acts as a detective agency which traces missing persons of more than 30 nationalities.

The tracing bureau was set up in 1945 by the Big Four powers to put users of displaced persons in touch with each other and to collect evidence on the whereabouts or the fate of Allied nationals missing in Germany.

Search Records

Some 65,000 cases have been solved to date.

The information is collected from German labor camps, police, hospitals, concentration camps and other sources.

From the records of Buchenwald, Dachau and Mauthausen, I.T.S. is able to supply proof of the fate of prisoners of the Nazis.

I.T.S. does not furnish death certificates, but supply the documentary evidence that European courts may take decisions regarding wills, property, remarriage and other civil contracts.

When information on one of the 3,000 monthly inquiries is not available in the I.T.S. files, the name is publicized over radio, in the press and in movies across Europe.

The organization has a staff of 975 recruited from 20 nationalities. Maurice Thudichum is head of the I.T.S. During the war he was in charge of the prisoner-of-war department of the International Red Cross.

The I.R.O., a specialized agency of the United Nations, estimates more than $1,000,000 a year for I.T.S. work.

Government Hotel Termed Expensive in Commons Talk

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa (CP)—Each guest who stays at the government's own nameless hotel in exclusive Mayfair costs the country $7.12 (£2) daily.

An attractive Commons recently heard Glenvil Hall, financial secretary to the treasury, explain that what he called the "government hospitality centre" entertained 96 guests from May 10 to Dec. 31, 1949. In this time, accommodation, food, cigars and cigarette cost £12,800, an average of £.5. 10s a guest, to which must be added £4. 10s each for overhead.

Oliver Stanley, former Conservative colonial secretary, asked if government guests could not be entertained at half the cost in ordinary hotels.

Hall said hotel space had been scarce in recent years and the hospitality centre costs were "not vastly in excess" of hotel charges. Britain was a great country and had to accommodate distinguished guests in a proper manner.

William Teeling, Conservative, Brighton, said he could give the names of government guests who felt they would have been better treated at a hotel, and E. J. Keeling, Conservative, Twickenham, said guests at the hospitality center had felt they were there because the government wanted to keep an eye on them.

No! Fully Occupied

After the Commons discussion, London hotels said they could have accommodated guests for half the price charged by the government centre.

Reporters who visited the centre at 2 Park Street, Mayfair, found what the Daily Mail hailed "the usual hive of inactivity."

Of the 60 suites, only 12 were occupied and never more than 20 have held guests at one time in the last four months.

There is a staff of 55 and some staff members complained they were busy only when government hospitality banquets were arranged at the centre.

The eight storey building was converted to its present purpose early last year. The purpose was to provide government guests, like some of the Dominions' staffs here for the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' conference last year, with the amenities they would have in a private house.

Apart from these visitors who sign "chits" for everything they order and leave it to the government to pay, the centre accommodates business men and others with government backing who have trouble in finding hotel rooms. They pay for everything at prices not much lower than those at top-class hotels.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman, Nichols

In the hall Karen put on her hat and coat. On the street she walked quickly toward no destination, visualizing Roxanne and Bill together in that dim room.

Quite suddenly she realized that she was passing the church in which Phillip and Lilyan would be married. And quite suddenly she realized that she was standing in a place where they would walk as they came from the church as man and wife. Would she be invited? Would she go? Would she go and see Phillip take Lilyan as his wife, and sit as if she were a vice and bite down on her lips to keep from crying out?

She walked until she was tired and chilled and then returned to the apartment. Knocking before she entered, she heard Bill call to her to come in.

Roxanne came out of the bedroom with several dresses over her arm. She had been crying but she was smiling now. But when she spoke, her voice was embraced and a little broken. She went to Bill and put her arm through his and looked at Karen.

"He thought I cared that he'd never make much money! We're going to Richmond tonight and we're going to be married there! I called my boss and told him I can't step into my place. Now I — I won't be able to whistle from the gallery for you, Karen."

Karen asked, "Can't I help you pack?"

"You bet you can! But what—what are you going to do with the apartment? It won't be for long. You'll have a place on Park avenue."

Karen laughed. "Stop thinking about me. I'll be fine."

At midnight she stood between them as they stood beside the waiting train. Roxanne embraced her.

"Don't forget Mr. and Mrs. McGrath in Richmond! Think about us tomorrow. It's our wedding day!" She blinked happy tears as she looked at Bill. "Mr. and Mrs. McGrath. Doesn't that sound swell!"

Bill gripped Karen's hand. He didn't say anything — he could not. But he gripped her hand so tightly it hurt.

As the train moved slowly away, Karen saw them sitting side by side looking young and very happy. More than any two people she knew, they had earned their happiness. When you suffered and wept and sacrificed for it, you had earned it.

The next morning Brenda called Karen and said that she would stop at the apartment and that they would go to the theatre together later, wearing a fall suit and twin fox furs, she came into the shabby little apartment for the first time. Hiding to the theatre, Karen told her about Bill and Roxanne.

"And now you're alone!" Brenda asked. "And you've earned almost nothing since you've been here. Come and live with me, Karen. At least for a while."

She knew that alone Karen would think of Phillip too much.

"You're on stage that are leading you up, my dear. Some day you'll meet a fine young man in the apartment of your own with everything just as you want it. We like to do that, you and Phillip. Pack your things tonight and come."

Then she asked, "Did you enjoy Craig last night?"

"It was one of the nicest evenings I've ever had. You're sure I won't be in the way, Gail—"

Brenda laughed. "You'll be good for me. I'll be good for you. I'll teach you everything I know. You don't know what finding you has done for me Karen." She frowned. "Oh, I nearly forgot. Do you remember Helene Ward? She's in town again and having a baby. She heard that you were my protege and invited you. Let me buy you a new frock and find a young man to take you."

Did she remember? She would never forget Mrs. Ward's cold scrutiny of Phillip, her severe suit and her feeble smile. Nor would she ever forget the tall dark woman in red who had asked mockingly, "Since when had Phillip Ashley taken to picking up girls?" And the man's reply, "Since Lilyan Kane went to London." And now Helene Ward had invited her.

Brenda said, "I'm sure Phillip and Lilyan will be there. I thought you'd like to meet Lilyan. You'll like her. You'll like her so much you won't be jealous of her. Usually you think that the man you love is being coerced into marriage by a scheming, selfish girl. But not in this case. Lilyan is a charming and lovely person."

Later that day she went with Brenda into the exclusive shop where Brenda always bought hers. Many times she had passed it and looked in, thinking for herself as a hungry child staring in a bakery window. And now after today she was going to live with Brenda.

Suddenly she remembered what Jerry Fraser had said in the long ago of June that Sunday afternoon when she told him she was going to New York to go on the stage: "New York. Anything can happen there."

It was Roxanne's wedding day. Karen had a clear picture of a living room in an old brick house in Richmond and of Bill and Roxanne before a clergyman with Bill's parents looked on happily. They had their own son now who could see! Now they had a daughter, not the kind of daughter Bill had wished for, but their son had fallen in love with a blonde night club girl and Roxanne accepted her because he loved her.

In the dressing room of the exclusive shop Karen tried on many dresses.

Brenda said, smiling, "I'll never forget your little gray chiffon frock made of plain. Karen. It served you well when you sang on the hotel roof. It nearly cost Tommy a wife because it was so becoming to you. He couldn't resist sending real violets." She turned to the saleswoman. "Have you something in red chiffon?" looking back at Karen she laughed. "Humor me and let me pick out your new frock. I'd like to see heads turn when you arrive at Helene's."

"Then why did the last time," Karen said with a smile. "They were laughing at me."

"You'll have the proverbial last laugh this time, darling! I'll live for Phillip to see you looking your loveliest. I'd like for him to think he is meeting you for the first time. That's cruel to Lilyan, isn't it? But I'd so much like for Phillip to fall in love with you. You're an actress. You can say you're an actress now. You and Phillip, the playwright, would make such a perfect combination."

A red chiffon dress, the sort of dress Karen had always dreamed about, was brought in.

"It's perfect for you," Brenda said. "And now some gold sandals. The sentimental about gold-en slippers."

When the girl left, Karen asked, "What have I done to deserve this?" Brenda's generosity and kindness embarrassed her.

And Brenda's smile was suddenly sad.

"Because you are you, Karen. And never ask me that again."

Seeing the girl come back with the gold sandals, she laughed and said, "You have such ridiculously small feet and these slippers will make them look even smaller."

And Karen knew that because she wished to avoid being questioned.

Brenda insisted on returning to the apartment with her while she packed her things and even assisted with the packing. How cheap and shabby she must think her clothes, Karen thought.

As she took Aunt Hetty's photograph from the desk, Brenda asked "Who is that?"

And together they looked at the round, honest face and clear brown eyes.

"That's Aunt Hetty who adopted me."

"You never called her 'Mother'?"

"She wouldn't let me. She did not think she had the right to be called that. But my own mother couldn't have been kinder to me. I think that my being the daughter of her friend appealed to her. She had a dull, unexciting life but she got the most happiness from living for others and helping other people."

"You told me about your mother, the little you know of her, Karen. Have you ever thought about your father?"

"Only a little. I suppose I've thought of him as one of those people in Harriston saw her and remembered her. They said that she had married beneath her.

"I'm sure she was. Let's—let's have a bit and get through."

Grey-haired, motherly Mrs. Reid, Brenda's servant for many years, opened the door of Brenda's apartment.

"Miss Mallare is coming to live with us for a while," Brenda said.

Throwing off her furs, she led Karen into the front room furnished with ivory colored modern pieces, a blue chaise-longue, and several white tables with blue lamps on them.

Brenda's violet eyes Karen looked at the room. How incongruous her cheap and shabby clothes would be here! Again she wanted to ask, "What have I done to deserve this?" But the question would make Brenda smile her wistful smile and say:

"I won't be able to sleep for admiring the room," Karen said.

Brenda did not look at her when she said, "I'd like you to have the room. I've decorated it at last, Karen. Feel that this is your home for as long as you wish to. It is yours."

* * * *

Helene Ward's party was on Saturday night; the play opened in Baltimore on Monday.

In a dull white crepe dress, Brenda came to Karen's room on Saturday evening. And in the hall stood a package. Karen was like a flame in her red dress, she thought. Her black hair with its definite center part shone. Brenda thought but decided not to tell Karen that she wished that tonight She thought of Phillip who created night club girls in exile and Karen was no longer a shabby frightened, defiant girl in cheap clothes who had amused him that first night when he had looked at her with such real naval bases. From there they mounted scorn. Now she carried them to Tokyo and victory.

Brenda said, "I'll never forget your little gray chiffon frock made of plain. Karen. It served you well when you sang on the hotel roof. It nearly cost Tommy a wife because it was so becoming to you. He couldn't resist sending real violets." She turned to the saleswoman. "Have you something in red chiffon?" looking back at Karen she laughed. "Humor me and let me pick out your new frock. I'd like to see heads turn when you arrive at Helene's."

"And now you're alone!" Brenda asked. "And you've earned almost nothing since you've been here. Come and live with me, Karen. At least for a while."

She knew that alone Karen would think of Phillip too much.

"You're on stage that are leading you up, my dear. Some day you'll meet a fine young man in the apartment of your own with everything just as you want it. We like to do that, you and Phillip. Pack your things tonight and come."

Then she asked, "Did you enjoy Craig last night?"

"It was one of the nicest evenings I've ever had. You're sure I won't be in the way, Gail—"

Brenda laughed. "You'll be good for me. I'll be good for you. I'll

$10,000 House Plus Extras is Nice But Price Wrecks 'Moderate Budget'

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

One of the biggest worries of a lot of Canadians today is the matter of a place to live.

People come up with various ideas, but the more you hear them, the more you wonder whether they have their feet on the ground at all.

They may build them of sticks, of logs, or any of the marvellous new materials which are supposed to mark our post-war world, but mostly they still talk of houses in the neighborhood of $10,000, plus the cost of land, plus the extras of getting a new home in shape, not to mention furnishings.

Beautiful Bungalow

There is, for instance, on display in Toronto (at the T. Eaton Co. Ltd.) an aluminum house at $10,500 plus land, described in the advance notices as "a new departure in low-cost housing."

It is a beautiful bungalow, designed for a spacious lot, but open a concrete slab, with good heating unit on the single floor.

If you are a dreamer, with one child, aged about eight, and pretty sure you are not going to have any more, you can probably dwell there in gracious living—if you have the price.

The place on display is tasteFully, but not ostentatiously furnished, at a cost of more than $5,000.

So there you have $10,500 for bungalow, perhaps $1,500 for the land, and $5,000 for the furnishings—total $17,000, and good knows how much more for extras.

Not many people will afford $17,500 or so, if this particular sized bungalow suits them. It looks like a good buy.

But the literature describes it as "completely furnished and decorated in a modern style and to a moderate budget."

Many but not one doubts that it is a moderate budget as underwritten by the manufacturers.

The house on display happens to be of aluminum, but the story is the same whatever material is being shown.

Only Foolhar Ourselves

What one is forced to ask is whether it is impossible to put together four walls and partitions, with decent plumbing, in which families of four, five or six can live in reasonable graciousness, at something not less than quoted prices.

Perhaps it is impossible. But if it is impossible, it still seems unrealistic to kid ourselves that $10,500 plus land, plus extras, plus furnishings, is designed for a "moderate budget."

Besides that, it is beginning to appear that even at this figure we are fooling themselves out of the range of their would-be customers, in other words, that they won't sell.

Aussie Navy Takes Over Island Base

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, (CP)—The Royal Australian Navy has begun the task of taking over the former United States naval base at Manus Island into a "Scapa Flow" of Australia.

A party of R.A.N. officers and ratings have landed on the island to do the advance work before commissioning the once powerful U.S. base.

Manus is in the Admiralty group of islands in the Pacific near the equator and 240 miles north of the eastern tip of New Guinea. The U.S. navy spent approximately $128,000,000 in making Manus one of the world's great naval bases. From there they mounted the offensive that carried them to Tokyo and victory.

After the war Australia took over sovereignty of the island and allowed the base to fall into disrepair, in asking the Americans to leave, Herbert V. Evatt, Australian minister of foreign affairs, claimed that the presence of American forces in peacetime touched on Australia's sovereign rights.

Deprived of Manus, the Americans found new bases and cut terminals from the Southwest Pacific.

Critics of the government have condemned refusal to allow the U.S. navy to continue occupation of the base as a shortish sighted view that can now be seen as possibly the most straight thing of its Australian history.

Navy Minister William J. Riordan announcing resumption of work said that the real value of Manus lies in its strategic usefulness for fuelling and repairing ships in Australia were forced into war again.

When the base has been established Australia will possess an extremely valuable asset for any peacetime purposes which could be readily used again if it "ever need," added the minister.

Well-informed sources here say that Washington is not altogether happy about Australia's intentions regarding Manus, many believe that Australia has neither the will nor the means to develop and maintain Manus as anything more than a token base.

The R.A.N. is transferring its base to Dreger to Manus. Machinery, cranes and a small floating dock are being moved.

It has been announced in Melbourne that 250 Japanese war criminals from the prisoner-of-war compounds in New Guines are working on Manus. They are engaged mainly in clearing the work, dismantling surplus huts and generally cleaning up the jungle which has covered the base since the Americans pulled out.

Huts and water supply materials will be shipped from Australia to be re-erected as temporary accommodation for about 30,000 men originally expected from Europe next year.

Winnipeg (CP)— People who come to Canada from Europe have "wonderful standards," strange customs and ideas; but Canadians must learn to live with the same way, says Alex Alexander Sexton of Saskatoon.

Many newcomers, asked for impressions of Canada, have expressed surprise over the complaining attitude of Canadians in a land "where they are free and have so much. Others can't understand why, with shops laden with meat and other foods, breakfast in many Canadian homes consists of porridge, toast and coffee.

Still others, Mrs. Eason said, have difficulty understanding Canadian shopping methods.

INEXPERIENCED NAVAL RECRUITS HELD RESPONSIBLE

Believed Subversive Elements as Communists Edging on Personnel

Ottawa, March 28 — (CP) — The possibility appeared today that inexperienced naval recruits, signed on by such subversive elements as Communists, may have been responsible for three recent disturbances aboard naval vessels, involving a total of more than 100 ratings.

It was learned that naval headquarters, pending over the disturbances, intent of which was aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent, will launch a general inquiry early in May, after the three ships, the Magnificent and two destroyers Crescent and Athabaskan, reach home ports.

Both officers and ratings aboard the three vessels, it was understood, will be involved in the inquiry. The ships have crews totalling more than 1,500.

At the same time it was also understood counter - intelligence officers at naval headquarters have started a check of their own into the possibility that Communists or other subversive elements may have slipped by screening nets and gained entry into naval establishments. Naval headquarters would make no comment on this point.

Fifty Take Part

Counter - intelligence officers launched their investigation, it was believed, when the first of the three disturbances was reported aboard the Athabaskan Feb. 26. It appeared likely that about 50 took part.

Second of the disturbances broke out early in March aboard the Crescent while on duty in the Far East. It is believed that approximately one-third of the ship's crew of 650 failed to obey an order.

Third of the disturbances was reported, aboard the Magnificent March 22, while the carrier was in company with the Athabaskan and a Canadian naval task force participating in exercises in the Caribbean.

Of the ship's crew of 1,000, 32 naval control ratings failed to muster for duty to clean out messdecks.

While ratings aboard the Athabaskan were charged with "insolence," a minor breach of discipline, it was learned today, if any, charges were laid aboard the Crescent or what charges, if any, will be laid aboard the Magnificent.

In all three cases the disturbances were cleared up "on the spot" by the commanding officers of the ships. Reports of these commanding officers are expected to be examined when the ships dock at their home ports.

The Magnificent is expected back at Halifax April 8, the others at Esquimalt at the end of April.

Commissioner Reprimands Keays for Suggesting Inquiry Not Being Conducted Fairly

An inference by Constable J. E. Keays that the Royal Commission investigation was not being conducted fairly brought a sharp reprimand from Commissioner Mr. Justice Mackay.

As the morning session opened, Keays claimed Commission Counsel C. P. Hope was fairly carrying out his duties as such.

"The unmitigated audacity of any person to even suggest the Commissioner is not conducting this commission fairly!" interjected Commissioner Mackay. "Never in my 14 years as a judge have I heard such a suggestion."

The sudden flare-up by Constable Keays and the reprimand from Commissioner Mackay came following the introduction of the Semi-Mikl inquest sheet by C. P. Hope.

Makes Accusation

The witness sheet had earlier been asked for by Keays apparently on the expectation that it would show Geo. Smith had not testified at the inquest. The name George Smith appeared on the witness pay sheets.

Keays then accused the commission counsel of fabricating reports and trying to mislead the commissioner.

He claimed that Keays was not a lawyer. He said he was a police officer—but a decent one. He continually made reference to his uniform being "clean."

The commission even pointed out that Keays had made some 68 separate allegations against the various Attorneys and police officers and these allegations must necessarily be supported by evidence.

Cannot Continue Indefinitely

Woman's Death Due to Inhalation Of Smoke

Montreal, March 28 (CP)—Coroner Richard L. Duckett said here today that the death of a 54-year-old Ottawa woman in a fire at the Laurentian Hotel early Sunday was caused by the inhalation of smoke.

Coroner Duckett said the woman, Mrs. W. Fogarty, had died of acute congestion of the lungs resulting from the inhalation of smoke.

A second death, at first believed to have been caused by the sixth floor fire which caused $1,-500 damage, was found due to natural causes after a preliminary examination showed that the victim, A. E. Grasse, 50, of Sherbrooke, Que., had died in his room more than five hours before the fire.

New Plants Such as Earth Never Saw Aim of Experiments With A-Energy

By HAROLD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Oak Ridge, Tenn., March 28, (AP)—A new era in creating atomic energy to make better and bigger crops started here in Spring.

Crop seeds are getting a radioactive making such as no seeds on earth ever before received. The purpose is to produce new types of plants, in numbers greater than ever have been possible by other methods.

The seeds are placed in long, thin trays which are thrust completely through the massive concrete wall of the Oak Ridge pile. Oak Ridge atomic over or reactor. There they are exposed into the heart of this pile, in holes in the graphite and uranium where atoms are splitting on all sides.

The tremendous rays produce mutations, that is, new types of plants. This kind of radiation—usually given by X-rays—produces only one good plant to thousands which are useless.

The atomic pile is expected to increase the number of mutations. The percentage of good ones is expected to remain constant. In this way it is hoped that a far greater number of useful changes will be obtained.

From corn seeds new plants are sought that will produce more sugar to make better silage or that will produce more grain beginning to attack American bread corn.

Other specific corn improvements are sought so that the agricultural value of the plant will grow not just one kind of corn, but various ones each for special uses.

For potatoes, Lilienthal says, bigger and heavier tubers are sought, also potatoes that will keep longer in storage. Another goal is to rest nematodes and wire worms which are depleting numerous potato areas.

The Oak Ridge farming so far has been cotton and soybean seeds for the Robert L. Doreh Seed Farms, Scott, Ark., corn for the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, and six cans of seeds, types not given, for the University of Michigan Botanical Gardens.

The Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago has been trying long corn tassels and corn silks and seed.

ELEVEN RESCUED FROM MIDDLE OF PACIFIC OCEAN

Flying Boat Down With Dead Engine

Pearl Harbor, March 28 (AP)—Eleven survivors were rescued from a sinking flying boat in the middle of the Pacific Sunday midnight.

A navy L-5.M. (landing ship medium) picked up the airmen nine hours after receiving word from Brief radio contact said merely the men were rescued. No further details were given.

The landing ship was ordered to take the survivors to Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands, their starting point. The Catalina went down in the sea with a dead engine, 600 miles southwest of Johnston Island, 700 miles southwest of here.

After pitching down on the rough sea the flying boat radioed it was leaking badly and could not stay afloat much longer.

The navy sent 15 other planes to the area.

An air force B-17 from Hickam Field hovered over the bounding flying boat until the rescue ship arrived.

The L.S.M. was 75 miles north when the twin-engined Catalina went down. Its pilot sent out a radio operator had gone off duty but had left his receiving set on and got the relayed distress call from the navy here. Seven minutes later they had lost her.

The spot where the Catalina went down is one of the loneliest in the Pacific. It was not far from where Amelia Earhart lost her life in the same general area.

BURIED AT SEA

Portsmouth, England, March 28 (CP)— Commodore Ronald Ian Agnew, senior Canadian naval liaison officer in London, today was buried at sea with full naval honors. He died March 22.

All warships in Portsmouth harbor were at half mast as the destroyer H.M.S. Finisterre put out to sea carrying the Commodore's body.

Commodore Agnew was naval liaison officer to the Canadian high commissioner.

Parliament of Europe, Age-Old Political Dream, Shaped by Ten Nations

London, March 28 (AP)—Diplomats of 10 countries began shaping the final details today of a long-sought political dream, a parliament of Europe.

The 10 countries are Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Italy and Eire.

They expect to spend the next week or two settling the few remaining differences and the stage cleared for the big step toward European unity.

The Foreign Ministers of the 10 countries probably will meet in London soon after Easter to give their final approval.

The first parliament of Europe may convene this summer, probably at Strasbourg, France.

The present talks centre on a draft constitution. It was drawn up by the five Brussels pact powers, Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The Brussels powers invited the other five countries to join the movement as founding members.

The talks are for a series of ministers—virtually a cabinet of Europe—and a consultative assembly for debate and for making only recommendations. It will not deal with military or defence matters.

Provision also is expected for enlargement of the parliament. Western Germany may later be asked to send representatives.

Former Empress Of Iran Weds Ismail Bey

Cairo, March 28 (AP) — Princess Fawzia, the beautiful former empress of Iran, was married today to Ismail Shirine Bey, a distant relative of Egypt's Royal Family.

The marriage was the second for the 30-year-old Princess, who is the sister of Egypt's King Farouk. She had been married to the Shah of Iran until he divorced her last November. She had borne no one to inherit the Iranian throne.

Today's ceremony was a simple Moslem one and strictly private.

Two U.K. Mothers Return to Live In Old Country

Liverpool March 28 (CP)—Two British mothers, who encountered misfortune in Canada, disembarked from the liner Athenia Sunday with their children to take up life again in the old country.

They are Mrs. Jean Knox, 30, formerly of Toronto, and Mrs. Mary Straughton, who lived a short time in British Columbia. Friends on sides of the Atlantic helped them get home.

Mrs. Knox, the former Jean McKenzie, of Greenock, Scotland, last saw her husband Sept. 18 when he gave her a fat envelope and later telephoned to say he would be home at the usual time.

"I have not seen him from that day and I know in my heart he's alive or dead," Mrs. Knox said.

Canadian well-wishers and the Toronto City Council provided the money for the Knox passage and that of her five month old baby. Mrs. Knox got a $14 weekly allowance "until I get going."

Mrs. Straughton and her husband saved up for years to go to Canada. They left with their four children last December and within a week after arriving in British Columbia the husband died.

When the Cumberland village of Great Clifton, where Mrs. Straughton was born, heard of her plight its 1,200 inhabitants raised money through whist drives, dances and concerts to bring the family home.

RADAR SITES AND BUILDING PLANNED SAYS CLAXTON

Dominion Spending Will Be Comparable to U.S.

Ottawa, March 28 - (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said today at a press conference that Canada will spend in the next fiscal year amounts for radar equipment and construction on a comparable basis with the $161,000,000 American program.

He declined to estimate how much Canada would be spending. Mr. Claxton also said that advanced plans call for laying down this year of three of the new high-speed jet-with-turbines escort vessels. He said it had not been decided where work would be done.

Mr. Claxton reiterated that none of the U.S. radar equipment will unfold on Canadian soil. However, the studies of the two countries have been put together and Canada would keep pace. The figure Canada will spend this year on radar is believed to be somewhere in the vicinity of $50,000,000 to $12,000,000 and this sort of money is liable to go into the scope of defence preparedness for some years.

The minister said the construction will include radar sites and buildings, life didn't say so but presumably all of the new radar will be a defensive screen around key points and not a part of any strategic points like the Sault Canals.

Mr. Claxton said the regular forces are aiming for a manpower level of 60,000 and whether they peet to reach it late this year or later is plain. Their present strength is 40,811.

Two Years to Complete Ship Three Escort Vessels

The construction of the three escort vessels, would be the start of a pilot or development program. The ship represented a Canadian modification of both American and British designs and would use equipment from both countries. It would take about two years to complete the ship.

There was no indication yet that the navy would request standard for general allied use. It was "our approach to the problem."

Mr. Claxton said the opening of the Cornwall canal to take new recruits "will not represent any real change in the size of the establishment." The east coast as there will be an offsetting increase in trained personnel there.

He indicated that some new types of equipment will be purchased for the army this year but declined to go into detail other than to mention radar, vehicles and various stores." Any new equipment would not be purchased in large numbers.

Part of the large increases in defence spending this year would go into the long range, new weapons and equipment developing at Malton. First tests should be held this year.

Two Taken After Mad Chase And Crackup of Stolen Car

Hamilton, March 28 — (CP)—A mad chase over provincial highways from Malton to Waterdown ended there Sunday night when provincial police officers cornered a stolen car after it had gone through a stop light and crashed into a passing car, seriously injuring the driver.

As the stolen car careened across the highway and smashed into a hydro pole, the three occupants leaped out. One of them, drawing a revolver, fired two shots at almost point-blank range at Provincial Constable Douglas Hodgins, Paris, but missed him.

The officer pursued the gunman and emptied his revolver after him but apparently without results and the man escaped into the darkness behind some buildings.

Meanwhile, other provincial policemen arrested the two other occupants of the car.

Two Men Remanded

In court this morning, two men appeared before Magistrate Cleave W. Hopkins, were charged with car theft, and remanded for eight days. Bail was set at $10,000 for each or two sureties of $10,-000 each.

The two men charged were Marvin Edward Gould, 20, Toronto and Joseph Long, 34, of no given address.

Seriously injured in the crash which preceded the chase, according to the police was Murray Bucan, 18, of Waterdown. He was just driving away from a local restaurant when the speeding car smashed into his automobile and wrecked it. He was taken to the General Hospital with serious internal injuries and was operated on at four o'clock this morning. His condition was reported as only fair.

FRANCE TAKING SWING TO RIGHT SAYS SOCIALIST

Communists Take Severe Licking in Cantonal Elections Held

Paris, March 228 (AP)—Interior Minister Jules Moch, a Socialist, today said France has taken a "swing to the right" in the Cantonal (county) elections, in which the Communists took a licking.

The Cantonal elections ended Sunday. Final results showed that 135 Communists incumbents were defeated and only 34 Communist incumbents were returned to office. The parties making up the middle-of-the-road coalition government swamped both Communists and the Gaullists of the extreme right.

The Socialist ranks 150 incumbents were defeated and only 270 of 470 former office holders were returned to their jobs. Results have been left of centre, bug have been investigated with the Communists.

Popular vote figures were not released for the present. Last week, in the first round of Cantonal elections, Gen. Charles De Gaulle's Rassemblement Du Peuple Francais carried about 38 per cent of the popular vole, more than any other single party, and it appeared that the Gaullists controlled that trend yesterday.

The parties making up the present government won 1,083 seats in 589 per the De Gaullists and 97 for the Communists. Ninety-nine seats went to independents. The De Gaullists, however, won more seats than any single party.

The election was held in several councillors who help run the departments and was important chiefly as an indication of popular feeling. However, there was no voting in Paris, where the Communist vote is generally large.

It is difficult to compare this balloting with the last Cantonal election in 1945. At that time the Communists joined forces in the government and the De Gaullists had not yet formed their own party—Reassemblement Du Peuple Francais.

Sunday's voting was the second round in the election. The first was March 20 and it surprised districts the issue simply became one of Communism and Anti-Communism.

Espanola Man To be Questioned In Woman's Death

Espanola, Ont., March 28 (AP)—An Espanola man is being held for questioning in connection with the strangle-slaying Friday night of Mrs. Harry Cleland, 71, whose partly clothed body was found in a swamp 100 yards from her home.

Police said they believed the Scottish born woman wife of a retired sawmill worker was set upon as she walked home alone from a bingo game in Espanola. Bobby Ross and Gloria Cameron, both 11 found her body Saturday when they went to play near a highway.

Mrs. Cleland left the bingo game about 11 p.m. Friday and Mrs. E.L. Hennessey told police she spoke in a confectionery store about 11:10 p.m.

"She was in good spirits and talked about the bingo," Mrs. Hennessey said. "She left for her leave for home, which is about a third of a mile away."

Stock Moved to Second Storey Barn Floors in Cornwall Area Nation River on Rampage

(By The Canadian Press)

With 15,000 acres of low-lying land under water, Ontario's Cornwall district today bore the brunt of spring flood conditions, Canadian Press survey showed. Elsewhere in Eastern Canada no danger points centred in the central provinces.

Country roads in the Cornwall area were generally impassable and flood waters of the Nation River were reported on the rampage Sunday were threatening to curtail traffic on Highway 31 which connects Montreal and Ottawa.

In some farming areas, milk deliveries were made by boat, and farm stock was moved to second-storey floors of barns.

From Quebec's Beauce county, the Chaudiere River was reported to have risen 18 feet in the last 24 hours at St. Joseph, 40 miles southeast of Quebec City. Flowover, the river has not burst its banks and no danger was reported.

In the eastern townships, where the Eau Claire and Coaticook last year caused $1,000,000 in damage in Bromptonville, the water level was receding after reaching the danger-point Saturday.

The Maritime provinces reported no flood threatens yet.

In New Brunswick it was reported, gates of the Grand Valley dam near Fergus were opened Sunday to relieve pressure on the dam's wood, to run off. The Grand at Grand Valley rose six feet above the normal level and was still rising. Basements in the village are were flooded, and part of the highway, 12 miles to the east, was under water.

At Galt release of water from the Shand dam resulted in the Grand River level rising several feet but no immediate flood danger was reported.

Dominion Speending Will Be Comparable to U.S.

Ottawa, March 28 - (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said today at a press conference that Canada will spend in the next fiscal year amounts for radar equipment and construction on a comparable basis with the $161,000,000 American program.

He declined to estimate how much Canada would be spending. Mr. Claxton also said that advanced plans call for laying down this year of three of the new high-speed jet-with-turbines escort vessels. He said it had not been decided where work would be done.

Mr. Claxton reiterated that none of the U.S. radar equipment will unfold on Canadian soil. However, the studies of the two countries have been put together and Canada would keep pace. The figure Canada will spend this year on radar is believed to be somewhere in the vicinity of $50,000,000 to $12,000,000 and this sort of money is liable to go into the scope of defence preparedness for some years.

The minister said the construction will include radar sites and buildings, life didn't say so but presumably all of the new radar will be a defensive screen around key points and not a part of any strategic points like the Sault Canals.

Mr. Claxton said the regular forces are aiming for a manpower level of 60,000 and whether they peet to reach it late this year or later is plain. Their present strength is 40,811.

Two Years to Complete Ship Three Escort Vessels

The construction of the three escort vessels, would be the start of a pilot or development program. The ship represented a Canadian modification of both American and British designs and would use equipment from both countries. It would take about two years to complete the ship.

There was no indication yet that the navy would request standard for general allied use. It was "our approach to the problem."

Mr. Claxton said the opening of the Cornwall canal to take new recruits "will not represent any real change in the size of the establishment." The east coast as there will be an offsetting increase in trained personnel there.

He indicated that some new types of equipment will be purchased for the army this year but declined to go into detail other than to mention radar, vehicles and various stores." Any new equipment would not be purchased in large numbers.

Part of the large increases in defence spending this year would go into the long range, new weapons and equipment developing at Malton. First tests should be held this year.

Buyer's Market for Lower-Priced Car May Return by Late Summer

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Automobiles are becoming somewhat easier to get but nevertheless it is a seller's market still can look forward to a good year, selling about all it can make.

The informed source within the industry gives this balloon picture:

Sales in the medium-high price brackets are more readily available than they were a year ago and, in some sections of the country, buyers can obtain deliveries of this type in a matter of weeks.

Demand for the lower-priced cars continues heavy, but in some territories dealers report their lists of orders are growing shorter. It would not be surprising if the buyer's market for lower-priced cars were to return by the late Summer or early Fall.

The market for light trucks continues brisk, but in some areas there has been a tapering off of demand for heavy trucks.

Observers of the motor car market believe the transition from the seller's market to the buyer's market will be gentle. It will not affect parts of the country at the same time. Cars continue to be in short supply in some parts of the country for a relatively longer period than in others, pockets because of local conditions, heavy increases in population in certain years unusual prosperity here and there and other factors.

There is no great reason for pessimism in the automobile business. Although buyer-demand undoubtedly is levelling off, this was to be expected. It means that if the high volume of sales is to be maintained, manufacturers and dealers will have to put more effort into selling.

The purchasing power of the Canadian public remains high, and will be given great stimulus this year because of refunds of compulsory savings. These factors alone should create enough new potential customers for automobiles to keep the motor-car factories running at high-level schedules for the next 12 months.

House Saved By Prompt Action Of Motorists

Prompt action of passing motorists averted what might have been a serious fire on Saturday night at 151 North Front Street.

A group of boys had hurled lighted firecrackers at the house. One of the crackers ignited a davenport couch on the verandah. Passing by the house in their car, motorists noticed the blaze, stopped and extinguished the fire. They notified the occupants of the dwelling who in turn notified police. The boys, however, had disappeared by the time the law arrived.

Severe action will be taken against these fire-cracker-throwing gangs when they are apprehended, Chief of Police Walter Probert said today.

Sea Cadet to Hold Open House On Cadet Ship

Just what sea cadet training is doing for the youth of Belleville will be indicated to Belleville residents who are sufficiently interested on Thursday evening to attend the annual meeting and open night at the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet ship on South Front Street.

The annual meeting will commence at 8:15 when reports from committee heads will be heard and election of officers for the coming year will be made. The general public is cordially invited to attend the meeting and enjoy open night in the cadets.

At the same time they will be given the opportunity of viewing the ship "Quinte" which is headquarters for the local cadet corps. During the past season considerable money has been spent on an addition to the building and through the installation of a new heating plant to make the "ship" suitable for winter training. Other conveniences have also been added at the building.

Pretty Girl Laughed at Gun That Killed Her

Millwaukee, March 28. (AP) — Pretty Pat Birmingham, 16, laughed at the gun which killed her.

That was the story told to District Attorney William McCauley Saturday, by Milton Babich, 19, who McCauley said admitted the slaying. He has been charged with first degree murder.

Babich eloped March 18 with Patricia's sister, Kathleen, 17. That was just two days before the high school girl's body was fished from the Milwaukee River.

She had been shot twice through the head. A concrete building block was attached to her feet with wire and scraps of a torn, blue pin-stripe shirt. She had been missing since Feb. 10.

McCauley quoted Babich as saying she girl was killed because she knew her older sister was pregnant and threatened to tell her parents.

As told by McCauley, these are the details by Patricia's death:

Babich purchased a .22 calibre pistol, made a date with Patricia and, driving his parents' automobile, picked her up on her way home from school.

". . . . I told Pat that Kay and I were going to leave and I told her that she knew Kay was pregnant and was wishted she would stop making all those remarks about her," the statement said.

He said she started laughing and then he showed her the gun, hoping the sight of it would frighten her. "She didn't say anything then. She just looked laughing and reached with one hand and started to lift it up by the barrel. I thought then so that she wouldn't take it," McCauley quoted Babich.

As he grabbed the gun to take it away from her, he said, his finger hit the trigger and the gun went off.

McCauley said when he asked Babich why a second shot was fired he replied: "I didn't know the first shot was fatal."

Babich next slipped at a line of houses under construction and procured the concrete building block and fastened it to Patricia's feet with wire and rags from the trunk of the car.

He said: "I had read in magazines how to dispose of bodies, so I went out looking for water. I figured that by dropping the body in water I would have everything covered up."

GOOD CATCHES REPORTED

Fort Erie, March 28 (CP)—Fort Erie fishermen got out their fishing gear to meet the annual migration of Lake Erie fish into spawning beds along the Niagara River . Anglers reported good catches of pickerel, perch and pike.

Dramatic Rescue Of Seven Airmen Made in North

Edmonton, March 28 (CP) — A joint Canadian-United States rescue mission was ended today following the dramatic rescue of seven American airmen from barren Ellesmere Island deep within the Arctic Circle.

The rescue was carried out with cool, clock-like precision by a ski-equipped U.S. Air Force Dakota Sunday. The plane touched down on the island where the airmen had been forced to crash-land their plane last Thursday, picked up the human cargo, and took off for the 1 1-2 hour return flight to Thule, Greenland. None were injured in the crash.

From Greenland an American B-17 was scheduled to take the rescued fliers to Goose Bay, Labrador.

The rescue brought to an end the widespread search across the vast, barren stretches of Arctic waste that swung into action last Thursday night, when a distress signal was received from the aircraft. Completely lost and running short of fuel the crew of the U.S. Air Force, C-82 Fairchild packet message said they were going to attempt a crash-landing.

The following day, as R.C.A.F. and U.S. planes scoured the snow and ice fields of the north, a wireless message was received from the crew of the downed aircraft, stating that all crew members were safe. Spurred on by the report, an armada of about a dozen planes continued the search Saturday until a U.S. B-17 spotted the plane on Ellesmere Island. The B-17 dropped supplies to the stranded men and plans that required in their pickup were put into action.

The aircraft was about 700 miles off course on its flight flight, north from Frobisher Bay to Resolute Bay, some 1,200 miles north of Churchill, Man. The region in which it was flying is one of the most difficult known for accurate navigation. The relatively close proximity to the magnet pole makes use of normal compasses practically impossible.

the Commission Counsel to prove them. The Commission Counsel has repeatedly said he was willing to produce exhibits or call any witnesses. What more can you ask him to do?" asked Commissioner Mackay.

Mr. Justice Mackay went on to say that the inquiry could not go on indefinitely. The taxpayer must be considered. There must be a limit somewhere."

Keays replied he had not been responsible for naming the Royal Commission. He said the matter could have been investigated within the department.

"Surely there can be but one answer to that," said Mr. Hope. "There were allegations against the police commissioner and against a crown attorney. The

Questioned on 'Diary Entry'

Corporal Sam Ervine returned to the witness box and was questioned by Keays with respect to an entry in his diary which indicated the witness had observed broke-guard rails at the scene of the LeRoy-Woods' accident on Sept 28th, 1947, two months before the accident.

"You still say your answer is true knowing a young officer will say the entry was not made until later?" asked Keays.

"I still say it is true knowing the police commissioner could not investigate himself," was the reply.

Cpl. Ervine is alleged by Keays to have committed perjury in the witness box to exonerate Woods on a charge of drunk and dangerous driving.

Asked to read from a weekly report for the week ending Oct. 4, 1947, Cpl. Ervine declared the signature not to be his although it was purported to be his report. Says Signature Not His Commissioner Mackay examined the signature on the report and compared it with a signature admitted by the witness. No comment was made.

"That is not my signature and Const. Keays knows that," stated the witness.

Repeatedly to questions put by Keays, Cpl. Ervine objected that the question was "trickery, absolute trickery."

The commissioner advised the witness to listen carefully to the question and then to answer it.

"We are getting entirely too much verbiage," said the words," stressed the commissioner.

Staff Inspector Arthur Moss objected to what he termed as "slurring remarks" by Keays when he asked for the production of a certain exhibit.

Objection Upheld

The objection was upheld by the commissioner who stated that the witness had all rules of evidence had been abandoned. He pointed out the time for comment by counsel was when argument by counsel was being presented.

"One of the first rules of court procedure is that 'counsel refrain from making remarks during presentation of evidence," he said.

Keays asked Cpl. Ervine to state his military service and witness complied as to a point where he had been sent overseas during the last war.

Details of his overseas service were declined to be given other than to style a "certain number of field officers proceeded overseas on a special mission." Further than that the witness declined to go stating the commissioner would understand.

"Oh, a secret mission?" asked Keays, as he stated he would withdraw if the commissioner understood.

"I think you better," advised the commissioner.

"I had to take an oath before I left," stated Cpl. Ervine by way of explanation, "but Const. Keays would not understand that."

CHINESE MINISTER REFUSES POST

Moscow, March 28 (Reuters)—Chinese Ambassador Fu Ping Chang today cabled the Nanking government that he declined to accept the post of foreign minister.

His statement followed a Nanking announcement that a cabinet including Fu as foreign minister had been approved by China's two highest policy-making bodies.

Fu was reported to be hesitant about accepting the office because he felt himself out of touch with Chinese affairs.

What's happening in Alberta is good for everyone

What's happening out in Alberta these days? Plenty! New oil is being sought and found. Money's flowing faster. There's lots of activity, lots of opportunity. And as a result all Canadians are better off.

For instance, oil from Alberta's new wells is expected to save 68 million U.S. dollars yearly! That's one of the big reasons for Canada's better trade position, one of the reasons we are able to buy more U.S. goods.

The new discoveries have meant lower cost operation in Alberta and Saskatchewan for farmer and industrialist, and this must ultimately help all of Canada.

Then, too, it takes a lot of money to find oil and lots more to develop a field once it's found. Two million dollars a week is being poured into oil exploration and development in Alberta today. That spending creates new markets for the things most of Canada has to sell.

And finally let's recall that in the war years—and after—we were dependent on foreign oil for roughly 90 per cent of our supplies. This year prairie production should exceed prairie demand. With continued effort and reasonable success it is not too much to hope the men who search for oil will make Canada self-sufficient in petroleum in years to come.

Everywhere in Alberta you hear about new oil discoveries —all the more because they followed the long years when nature baffled the oil searchers. Years when men drilled holes two miles deep and found only water. Years of million-dollar disappointments.

In 1947 the tide turned. First it was the Leduc field . . . then the Woodbend field . . . next Redwater . . . now, still untested by time, other discoveries give new promise and the hope of still greater benefits for all Canadians.

IMPERIAL OIL LIMITED

If you're interested in facts : : :

Consumption of oil in Canada is the second highest in the world on a per capita basis. United States alone is higher.

Canadians are using twice as much oil as in 1939 and more than three times as much as in 1932.

At the beginning of 1949 Canada was importing 84 per cent of her oil.

During 1948 Imperial Oil drilled a total of 136 wells in its search for oil and in developing the new fields of Alberta.

The oil industry is spending more than $400 million in exploration and development in Alberta this year.

Bringing you oil is a big job—and a costly one

CONFEDERATION WEEK

This week brings the day of the entry of Newfoundland into the Dominion of Canada as the tenth Province. This historic laland with a history as old as the oldest lands in the New World will be welcomed by the people of Canada as rounding out the principle of Confederation which has worked so successfully for the other Provinces of the Dominion.

In this unity there will be strength in the new Province as there has been strength of a larger nation as the other nine provinces united to form that nation of which Canadians are so proud.

It is one of the happiest facts that the union which Confederation has meant to the nine provinces and will mean to Newfoundland which is the tenth has brought about a great democracy which extends from ocean to ocean and from the boundary of the United States to the North Pole.

Confederation is a pattern of the British way of growth and the Canadian way of manifesting their democratic spirit as they labor for unity. So Canada as it is today and Newfoundland will in their union be an emblem of the British and Canadian peoples' way of progress.

Newfoundland enters Confederation not as a well-known colony, the oldest in British history. She has had a long life story and will be still a name in history that is to be made in the future.

FRONTIER COLLEGE

Work done by the Frontier College, one of the most unique institutions of learning in America has produced results in its fifty years of service in Canada's hinterland, according to Dr. Bradwin, principal of the College.

What it has achieved for and with the men who work in the north was indicated by the head of the institution who said that thousands of laborers in isolated mining and lumbering camps had added to their knowledge and had become better citizens as a result of Frontier College. What it has done for the immigrant who has entered the country with little knowledge of the language can be understood.

It is a unique school, its staff being chosen from university students who have here one of the noblest callings, that of instructing those who seek knowledge. They make their instruction practical. The principal has found that happy circumstance that there were young men of training who were pleased to spend their vacations instructing their fellowmen who desired to make more deeply of the well of knowledge. More than 2,500 students have taken the task gladly to their hearts.

Dr. Bradwin has an inspiring story to tell of the desire of the newcomers to Canada to learn English. With basic English more than 69,000 newcomers have learned the English tongue in this unique college. That is speaking well for the ideals behind the university, for the thirst for knowledge and the desire to be of real status in the Dominion on the part of these newcomers and for the teaching methods and the idealism and practical training given by the staff of the College.

The reasons of many newcomers is an inspiration to their fellows and to the people of Canada for it indicates how highly latest arrivals look upon Canada and her institutions.

Frontier College is an institution which has served and will continue to serve Canada and those working Canadians of the north. It has taken a vision and an understanding to the young students who compose the staff.

WHO IS BEST DRIVER?

He who is a smart driver is not necessarily the safest, says the traffic expert of Northwestern University, who gave as his opinion that "high grade morons make the best automobile drivers." The Stratford Beacon-Herald, commenting, quotes the Northwestern expert as saying that intelligent drivers "seem to count on their intelligence to solve their problems as they go along and fail to develop driving patterns which are almost instinctive." These statements have stirred up controversy.

The expert states that evidence seems to indicate very definitely that the brightest people are not the very best drivers. They could be, quotes the Beacon Herald, "but there is at least strong suspicion that these people learning the routine of operating an automobile very quickly, find it no longer absorbing. "So they let their minds wander to more interesting subjects and do not concentrate on their driving."

BOYS

There are men our glorious nation will be needing later on.
At the moment, they are youngsters and their names are known to none.
They possess the seeds of greatness; they're equipped for life complete,
But they'll miss the way to manhood if we leave them to the street.

They are full of fun and mischief; there are twinkles in their eyes.
From their numbers in the future some to fame will surely rise,
But they need our friendly guidance if their paths they're going to meet,
And it isn't safe to leave them to the hazards of the street.

They'll be doctors, lawyers, preachers with a little friendly aid.
With encouragement and training they'll bring skill to every trade.
We can fit them for the future; on the right path set their feet.
But we'll throw away their talents if we leave them to the street.

WHAT ABOUT CLASSES?

We wonder sometimes as we read of controversy in legislative halls and elsewhere, whether the people involved in the controversies are thinking of their own class or of their country. There are businessmen, for example, whose whole of life is purely a matter of increased dividends and bigger salaries. There are labor leaders who would gladly disregard such as it is if, out of the chaos, they could create what they are pleased to call a classless society.

The truth of the matter is that there will probably always be considerable class consciousness in the world. It does not have to be snobbish; it may quite legitimately centre about certain varied desires and achievements. If we put our country first, then all the class problems in the country will take care of themselves.

There do not have to be higher and lower classes. Classes can exist on an equilateral basis, one group of men being interested in one type of activity and another group of men in another type. But let us remember that it should ever lose our country, we should lose with it the multitude of blessings which exist within the scope of our national life.

God first, then country — out of this initial arrangement of life's values, concord and true prosperity will grow.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TOOLS

I have been reading a most beautiful book about tools. Its little spots of sound sense and philosophy fascinated me and it put a glow to my mind. The book is called "Northern Farm, A Chronicle of Maine," by Henry Beston.

Here is one of the sentences from this book that attracted me: "We may have the best intentions in the world, but if we approach our pencils with a dull knife or built a house with a faulty rule, the pencil will be ill-sharpened and the house will have an odd little way of showing doors by itself and leaning to one side."

You can always tell the workmanship of a person by noting the kind of tools he uses. I have watched carpenters, and the good ones are always known by their tools, which are sharp, sturdy, and kept in the best of shape. They want no one else to use them. They are a part, somehow, of themselving doors by tools produce poor work. The finest instruments, for any work, are the cheapest. The finest tonal instruments are those of the soul that has been made of the best possible materials, and by the most expert workman with the finest tools.

This idea of good tools and good work is what gives satisfaction and permanence, and these can be gained in no other way. Dull and will to be!

Another thing about fine tools is that they accomplish most in the shortest time. They are exacting and efficient in the hands of those who know how to use them. I have examined the tools that the etcher uses, and the tools that a maker of beautiful bindings uses. They are of the best workmanship in the world. Self-educated surgeon takes a human life into his hands must have tools that match his skill.

And the Creator has endowed each one of us with the tools for a successful and happy life. He has given to us a mind, hands, eyes, ears, and the power of voice and speech. What we do with them all is what measures out our worth in the world. Self education is everything. We are architects of our own fate. We can be what we choose to be.

St. Laurent Visits Oshawa, Evades Election Question

Oshawa, March 28. (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent laid lighting weekend siege to industrial Oshawa Saturday and upheld himself as one of the common people who wishes to legislate for the interests of all.

He descended on this city of 35,000 at noon, paraded behind two bands through streets lined with thousands of people and pitched into a four program which included four speeches, two dinners, a civic reception, a parade of a wreath on the local cenotaph and a visit to a federal housing project, all in between.

Adding to the political war of nerves, Mr. St. Laurent told a night audience of 2,000 with a twinkle in his eye: "Nobody knows whether the election will be this year or next."

Wants More Members

But he had Senator J. Gordon Fogo, former national Liberal Federation, with him and the Prime Minister told a dinner the annual convention of the Central Ontario Liberal Association that he would like to see this section better represented in the new government he hopes to form after the election. The district largely went Progressive Conservative in 1945.

In a night which returned CCF candidate Arthur Williams in a by-election last year, Mr. St. Laurent did not mention either the CCF publicity. He saved his main commitment for the dinner of the Canning and Preserving Company.

Mrs. John Neate and Miss Backus are visiting in Toronto.

Prof. Phelps addressed the men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday afternoon.

Drew After Deadlines

Mr. Drew, he charged, is not really concerned with the people's business because he is interested rather with publicity stunts designed to get headlines in the press. He admitted that this campaign had been successful and said Liberals must not permit themselves with the facts so they could counteract the opinions of those who were swept away by headlines alone.

"The official opposition has taken the same attitude about nearly every measure before parliament," he said. "They have not dared to say our measures are not good measures. In fact you could really say the opposition stand this way: The government is doing the right thing but doing it the wrong way."

Mr. Drew has accomplished nothing for the Conservatives may have more headlines, Mr. St. Laurent said, but after all, we have the goods."

Planned to Please

Mr. St. Laurent contended, too, that the Drew stand on entry into Newfoundland into confederation with the provinces was "no doubt planned to please friends of all the Tories in Quebec." He noted that Premier Duplessis had made the same argument before Mr. Drew had.

The Prime Minister, throwing new light on one phase of the Liberal social security program, said the government wants to see Canada have more hospital beds than the United States before it brings down any such measure as health insurance. The $50,000,-000-a-year grants were aimed in this direction, he said.

At the civic luncheon, he called for labor to identify its objectives with those of management as a whole, because in that method there lay safety for all.

He had never seen, he said, any need for labor to form an equivalent of the Tar-Hartley law. The rights of labor to organize and to bargain collectively were essential to the prevention of class clashes which would be the greatest aid for communism.

At the public meeting, he declared, "We (Liberals) are ordinary, everyday people. The Tories are not."

He pictured Oshawa as part of the industrial development of America, which stood behind the Liberal Party. Canada's present position he present such a front that any aggressor would know he would be overcome before all if he tackled one.

Eastern Canada's Fatality Toll 13 Over Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Eastern Canada's death toll reached 13 over the weekend with two double fatalities — an automobile crash in Sydney, N. S., and a hotel fire in Montreal.

A compilation by The Canadian Press showed six deaths in Quebec, five in Montreal and two in Nova Scotia.

Ed Walsh, 19-year-old pilot of a light plane, and his passenger, Bill Butler, 20, died in Sydney, N. S., died a few minutes after the plane rose from an airfield at Sydney.

In Montreal the deaths of Mrs. W. J. Spence, 56, of Ottawa, and A. E. Gosselin, 50, of Sherbrooke, Que., were attributed indirectly to a fire which damaged eight rooms in the new Laurentian Hotel. Both died when a stairway brought on by excitement.

Northern Ontario are probing the strangulation death of 45-year-old Mrs. Jessie Cleary, whose body was found Saturday night in her home at Espanola. A 24-year-old man is being held for questioning.

Two pedestrians were killed by a motorist Saturday night in two miles from Toronto — Ernest J. Mills, 76, at Mount Dennis, and Mrs. Alice Wood, 42, at Bradford. Guy Aickin, 21, was drowned in a cab of a truck that dived through a bridge at Stratford Saturday night.

Fifty-six persons in hospital at Stratford, 70, missing since last Nov. 2, was found in a canal.

Fred Kealy, 49, was paralyzed by gas fumes in his Montreal home. Howard Miner, 17, was killed by a train near Sutton, Que., and Richard Watkins, five, struck by a truck died in hospital at Waterloo, Que. Amable De Montigny, 75, died in an auto collision at St. Julienne, Que.

Sforza of Italy Leads Parade To Sign Pact

Washington, March 28 (AP) — Count Carlo Sforza of Italy today lead the parade of foreign ministers converging on Washington to sign the North Atlantic security pact.

Sforza flew to New York, one week ahead of the others, and then 12 foreign ministers are scheduled to sign the treaty that would bind the United States to the defense of Europe.

A second batch of foreign ministers, headed by Robert Schuman of France, is scheduled to reach the United States by plane Thursday and Friday.

Sforza's early arrival threw aroused speculation that he intends to discuss some strictly Italian problems with the state department. These would include the odds up to the colossal cat-and-mouse game now going on in Belgrade.

Right now Washington is feeling out the soft spots in Belgrade. So are the Russians, if Yugoslavia's dictator Marshal Tito, finally breaks with Moscow and links his country with the west, the defection will certainly raise problems of the whole European capitals.

Yugoslavia was kicked out of the Second World War with Moscow-trained Tito at its head.

The last assertion by the Cominform east of Tito, saying that he was pursuing a "nationalist policy."

Tito has counterred in several speeches since then.

Own Industry

Yugoslavia wants some of its own factories. Yugoslavia has valuable mineral deposits. It wants, at least, a small steel industry.

Moscow promised Yugoslavia some machinery, but there is no certain way for Russian industrial experts to know whether Russia has ever delivered.

Both the London and Washington there are signs that Tito is not satisfied with the way in which both governments will decide to back him by letting him buy arms and other goods to strengthen his country, and hence his independence of Russia.

The British minister of state, Hector McNeil, has told the British House of Commons that he hopes no British move "will embarrass the Yugoslav government." He thought the country had been humiliated by Russia by the Soviets, the Poles and the Albanians.

American policy makers are less outspoken right now. But they are watching Tito for what power he has to hold on to government, and to hold it to the purely "what is good for Yugoslavia" line.

When and if they decide he will not be shoved around by the Kremlin he will get permission to buy the sort of American machinery he needs. That may come soon.

Mackenzie's Column: Diplomats Play Game For Nation In Yugoslavia

Washington, March 26 (AP)—Yugoslavia's capital, Belgrade, has become one of one of the exciting cat-and-mouse games for the diplomats.

The prize played for is nothing less than a nation. Will Yugoslavia break away from Russia or will it join the western world.

Royal Canadian Air Force Notes Silver Jubilee

Sports in the RCAF's First Quarter Century

In its first quarter-century the RCAF has rolled up an impressive record in the skies, and the men in Air Force blue have also found time to gain prominence in the field of sports. Wherever there is an Air Force unit there is an Air Force team playing in the local hockey, basketball and baseball leagues, and both teams and individuals wearing RCAF colors have gone on to win national and even Olympic honors.

Participation in organized sport has been a "must" for personnel of the RCAF ever since it was created in 1924. Among the "old-sters" still in the service are many who were headlined in yesterday's sport pages, and the winning of the Olympic and World ice hockey titles by the RCAF Flyers in 1948 was classed by many of Canada's most astute sports writers as their "Thrill of the year."

As early as 1925 the Air Force rugby team from Camp Borden was a member of the Ontario Rugby Football Union. Many of today's top-ranking officers were stars on those early teams. Names appearing in early line-ups include A. L. James, now Air Vice Marshal at AFHQ, Ottawa; Dave Harding, of Sarnia, one of Canada's all-time great athletes, now retired as a Group Captain; the late W. D. Van Vliet; "Dave" MacKell, an Air Commodore in Ottawa; W. W. Brown, Chief Staff Officer at Trenton, Ont.; R. A. Lendon, now Air Commodore London; Group Captains "Scotty" MacCaul of Ottawa, and F. A. Sampson, Canadian air attache in Argentine; and Wing Commander Ted Lake. These men were some of the country's gridiron stars.

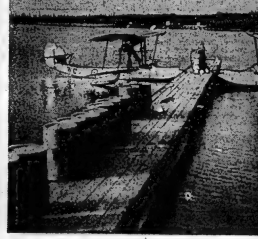
Top honors were not won on the gridiron by the RCAF until their wartime Toronto Hurricanes, coached by Lou Hayman, then a Flight Lieutenant, took the coveted Grey Cup, emblematic of Canadian football supremacy. And today, of course, the man known in Canada as "Mr. Football," Tony Golab is a Flight Lieutenant pilot of 412 squadron, flying regular scheduled transport runs out of Rockcliffe, near Ottawa.

Air Force hockey and lacrosse teams have played in leagues all across the country, but it was not until 1942 that a Dominion championship was won by the RCAF. That year the RCAF Flyers won the Allan Cup, as Canada's best amateur hockey team.

In 1948 a new edition of the Flyers was assembled by S/L A. G. "Sandy" Watson, senior medical officer at Air Force Headquarters, Ottawa, and received the bid to represent Canada at the Winter Olympics at St. Moritz. Coached by Sgt. Frank Boucher, an accountant at AFHQ, the Flyers travelled to regain for Canada the Olympic and World hockey championship, the former having been won by Britain in 1936, the latter by Czechoslovakia in 1947. During the season, which included a series of exhibition games in the United Kingdom and on the Continent, the Flyers were lauded as good-will ambassadors for Canada, because of their sportsmanlike conduct both on and off the ice.

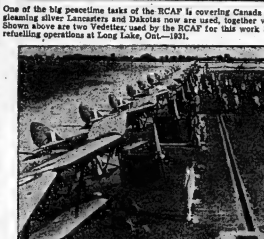
Squadron Leader Harry Cobb, now stationed in Ottawa, won the Ontario light heavyweight boxing title in 1935, and again in 1937, in the latter year he also won the Canadian championship.

In the 1948 Summer Olympics Sgt. Morgan Plumb of Toronto, represented Canada in the light-weight wrestling division, and Sgt. Jim Vanleeu, of Overbrooke, Ont., broke the existing Olympic weightlifting record and gained points for Canada's team.



In line with its policy of stressing the importance of organized sports, a special sports coaches school has been established at Trenton, Ont. Men of all ranks and trades are posted to the school for courses in every sport. Graduates then return to their home stations where they assist in sport coaching in addition to their normal duties.

In 20th year finds the RCAF pressing forward in the skies. It finds it, too, keenly alive to the importance of a healthy group of men who will do their best to maintain the standard of play established by their comrades in the past quarter-century, stressing sportsmanship, teamwork and competitive spirit.



Members of the Women's Division played a big part in the wartime flying scheme. Here a dungaree-clad member of the WD's is cleaning the perspex nose window of an Anson trainer at a Canadian flying station—1942.

One of the big peacetime tasks of the RCAF is covering Canada by means of aerial photographs, and gleaming silver Lancasters and Dakotas now are used, together with long-range Canso amphibians. Shown above are two Vedettes; used by the RCAF for this work before the last war. The scene shows refuelling operations at Long Lake, Ont.—1931.

The famed British Commonwealth Air Training Plan is a chapter by itself in the 25-year history of the RCAF. This wartime shot shows student pilots at a Canadian training school walking out to their Tiger Moth trainers, to begin another day's flying.—1941.

One of the RCAF's greatest contributions during the Second World War was its famed bomber force. This wartime picture shows an RCAF Halifax being bombed-up, in readiness for another strike against the enemy.—1943.

Solid Service for Silver Anniversary

Five RCAF men can look back on a quarter-century of unbroken service to April 1st, 1924, the birthday of Canada's present Air Force.

The five, who were among the slightly more than 300 who made up the original "Few," and saw it grow in stature to a wartime strength of over 215,000, are: Air Vice Marshal K. M. Guthrie, C.B., C.B.E., retiring head of North West Air Command, Edmonton; Air Vice Marshal C. R. Slemon, C.B., C.B.E., Air Member for Operation and Training, Ottawa; Air Commodore D. E. MacKell, C. B. E., Deputy Air Member for Personnel, Ottawa; Group Captain A. O. Adams, O.B.E., Officer in charge of Logistic Planning, Ottawa; and Wing Commander A. E. Warner, Staff Engineering Officer, NWAC, Edmonton.

Air Force Has Proud History Over Initial Quarter Century

The RCAF pauses on April 1st, 1949, to note the Silver Jubilee of Canada's youngest fighting Service, and to look back over 25 years of accomplishments in peace and war that have helped to gain recognition for Canada around the globe.

A tiny Force of somewhat over 300 when created on April 1st, 1924, the RCAF flew its aircraft, flimsy by today's standards, the length and breadth of Canada, much of its work of civilian nature, aimed at developing the North and aiding flying in general. Through the grim depression years its members struggled to maintain for Canada 'the nucleus of an air defence, should the need arise. Then, in the Second World War, the RCAF grew to a Force of 215,000, playing a major share in the air battle against the enemy.

Its 25th anniversary finds the RCAF working hard to build itself up to a fully-trained, compact Force, capable of providing immediate interceptor-defence for of Canada, and able to expand rapidly for more general operations.

Even before the RCAF as such was created, Canada's young men had won their spurs, having served by the thousand in the First World War, flying with the Royal Air Force.

A Canadian Air Force came into being in 1920 as a non-permanent, non-regional body under the Air Board formed the year before. Then, in 1924, a permanent Air Force—the RCAF—was created.

Most of the Force's time was taken by photographic survey operations, anti-smuggling patrols, forest fire patrols, treaty money flights, fisheries patrols, and similar work, although by far as able the Force carried on normal military training. Activities steadily increased during the next seven years. New bases were opened, more Canadian aircraft were obtained replacing the wartime planes which the British government had given to Canada following the war's end, and military training increased, as did the matter of civilian operations carried out. Included in these operations were experimental air mail runs. Total strength rose from under 100 to over 900, and appropriations from 1½ million dollars to nearly 7½ million.

Then came the depression years, and the RCAF suffered severe cuts. Nearly one-fifth of its personnel were released, and appropriations dropped drastically. The Service survived, however, and began to build up once again. The first Auxiliary Squadrons were formed in 1932, in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. More military training was carried out, and the Force was relieved of many civilian commitments.

By the latter 30's the RCAF was showing new life, with addition of new stations and more modern aircraft, and sharply increased appropriations. In 1938 the RCAF, for the first time, became an independent Service, directly under the Minister, with its own Chief of Air Staff. Before this it had been under the Army Chief of General Staff.

Outbreak of war found the RCAF with 4,000 officers and men, and no one could have foreseen the tremendous part it was to play in the war against the enemy. Plans were made for the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, which opened in April, 1940, and it was decided that most of the Permanent RCAF would be needed at home to run it. However, one Army Co-operation Squadron, No. 110 (City of Toronto), arrived in England February 25, 1940. Four months later two more squadrons (renumbered, No. 112 (City of Winnipeg) and No. 1 Fighter Squadron, the latter, flying Hurricanes, fought in the Battle of Britain.

The trickle of RCAF members arriving overseas soon became a flood, and more Canadian squadrons were formed. In January, 1943, the famed all-Canadian

The RCAF's wartime Coastal Command squadrons struck many damaging blows at the enemy. Here is an RCAF rocket-firing Beaufighter following in his attack on a German vessel off the French coast—1944.

Royal Canadian Air Cadets

Brief Historical Summary

Although the history of the Royal Canadian Air Cadets dates only from 1941, this youth movement is now recognized as a vital adjunct to the Service. The Air Cadets, therefore will join hands with the RCAF in celebrating its twenty-fifth year of achievement.

Canada's one hundred and eighty-one Air Cadet squadrons operate under the aegis of the Air Cadet League of Canada, a civilian organization composed of outstanding business and professional men. The League functions through a national board of directors, provincial and regional committees, and local sponsoring groups behind each squadron. Briefly speaking, the RCAF is responsible for training the cadets and supplying all training equipment, while the League administers squadrons, raises funds, and promotes public interest in the movement.

Formed in 1941 primarily to provide a crew of pre-trained recruits for the RCAF, the League later reached a peak strength of 20,000 cadets in 375 squadrons. Over 30,000 Air Cadets entered the wartime RCAF, more than a score of whom were decorated for gallantry. Many others joined the Army and Navy when RCAF recruiting came to a halt.

In 1945, the League and the RCAF commenced the development of a training program based on the needs of peace. This program — one of the finest ever developed—stresses aviation, and citizenship training, and offers a host of rewards for outstanding proficiency. Training is given to young men between the ages of 14 and 18 years.

Air Cadets can qualify for annual trips to summer camps, free flying training courses, and "exchange visits" with cadets of the United Kingdom and U.S.A. They are also eligible for educational scholarships permitting them to attend the Canadian Services Colleges at Royal Roads, B.C. and R.M.C., Kingston. Another scholarship, named in honor of the late Sir James MacBrien, covers the first year of an aeronautical engineering course at the University of Toronto.

Current strength of the Royal Canadian Air Cadets is 15,000 in 181 squadrons. Interest in the movement is now at such a high level that many squadrons have been forced to set up waiting lists in order to accommodate new recruits.

Bomber Group came into being. Canadian squadrons, doing many jobs and flying in different parts of the world, soon forged a magnificent record. Forty-eight RCAF squadrons flew overseas, while thousands of RCAF aircrew flew with the RAF.

Canada's women played their part in the wartime RCAF, the Women's Division being created in July, 1941, and disbanding in December, 1946. Its members served with distinction, at home and overseas.

A major factor in itself was the BCATP, which was administered by the RCAF and which trained over 131,000 Commonwealth aircrew, well over half of them Canadian.

Now, in peace, the RCAF is in the latter stages of a programme aimed at building up a Force capable of playing its part in defence of Canada and of Freedom, should the need again arise. While building up as a modern military force, the Service continues to play a big part in the development of Canada. Equipped with new aircraft, the photo survey squadrons are continuing, on a greatly expanded scale, the work of covering Canada by aerial pictures. An extensive post-war Search and Rescue organization has saved hundreds of lives since the war, and has carried out hazardous operations into the Far Arctic that have brought world wide attention.

The Service is busy training young Canadians to fly and navigate its aircraft, and thousands more are being taught the ground skills necessary to keep the planes flying. New aircraft are being obtained, and across Canada construction work is going ahead, on repair and extension of wartime stations and the building of married quarters.

The RCAF is looking ahead, and it has little time to glance backward. But on April 1st it does so, with justifiable pride, for stretching behind it is a proud record written in the skies through a quarter-century of service to Canada.

An important part of the present peacetime Air Force are the Auxiliary Squadrons. Shown here are Vampire fighters of No. 400 (City of Toronto) Squadron—1948.

PICTON

60th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

Picton, March 28 — Mr. and Mrs. John W. Ostrander yesterday celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding. They were married in 1900 by taking a motor trip with their family and parking their car in Kingston. Both are in good health. Mrs. Ostrander was formerly Emma D. Scott, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Scott, and Mr. Ostrander was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ostrander, both of Ameliasburg. They were married at the home of her parents and took up residence on a farm near Milford. Later they moved to a farm near Blobnfield where they resided for 43 years, and six years ago moved to Picton.

Sunday's very mild weather was a great contrast to that which prevailed on the day they were married. There were snow banks as tall as a man, Mrs. Ostrander recalled.

The couple have two children, Mrs. Norman MacDonald and Harold Ostrander. There are three grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The Mixing Bowl

By ANNE ALLAN
(Hydro Home Economist)

Food stored in the freezing locker gives one a great feeling of security. After this time of year you have probably used most of your frozen fruits and vegetables and occasionally find yourself paying for empty space. Since meat is a good buy at this season, it would be wise to buy a quarter of beef, a rack of lamb or a side of pork for your locker space. The meat should be cut by experienced meat cutters at the locker plant or the operator could direct you to one. Renting meat lockers is popular during the last few years because less storage space is required and no danger of bones puncturing the wrapping is eliminated.

The quality of frozen meat is determined by the selection of wrapping for meat and the method of wrapping. It is not wise in attempt to economize on wrapping paper. Regular butcher paper, ordinary waxed paper or grocery store type paper bags will not do a satisfactory job as meat will dry out and "freezer-burn" results. We suggest that you wrap meat in heavy cellophane seal 8; then wrap with aluminum foil or heavy oil butcher paper and seal it with strong sized tape. Tape should be strong to resist handling and moisture, also capable of receiving china pencil marks for labeling—and inexpensive. Acetate locker tape is the best, if available.

One piece of laminated paper or a piece of aluminum foil placed between chops, steaks or patties to be wrapped together, will permit separation when ready to use without thawing the entire package.

In general, each bundle should contain only enough for one meal, but if the portions are separated as described, one or more chops can be removed and the package resealed and placed back in the freezer.

Ground meat must be cooked immediately after thawing. Thawed meat should never be refrozen, therefore ground meat for meat loaf should be packaged in the right amount needed for the recipe if waste is to be avoided. Be sure to label the package according to the recipe for which meat was prepared for example: Favorite stew, Mary's meat loaf, Joe's hamburger, &c.

TAKE A TIP

1. The paper must be pulled tightly around the meat and smoothed to drive out all possible air and eliminate air pockets. The package should be smooth and firmly packed to conserve storage space.

2. Do not twist or fold ends of tape. String is not adequate for packaging unless waxed.

3. Place the meat in a large basket and store in a cool place until it is transported to locker plant. Be sure packages are taken to locker within 24 hours.

4. Poultry is one of the best frozen foods if it is prepared ready for the roast pan—with or without dressing. If they are stuffed, the dressing should be lightly seasoned with salt. Freezing seems to create a stronger flavor of the herbs.

5. Fish which has been cleaned and washed in salty water may be left whole or in fillets. Thawed too, must be wrapped securely.

6. Eggs, especially fresh ones, are convenient to store if broken into small glass jars, sealed and frozen. In fact we have quite a number of cracked ones from the farm and find it useful to store a small jar of ten egg whites in one container—the yolks in another. These are then taken out for custards or an angel cake.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. B. T. asks:

If we buy a half or a side of pig, how much would we get and what pieces could be put in the freezer?

Answer:

An average side of hog will weigh 70 lbs. dressed. If you take it to a locker plant where there is a butcher, the following may be obtained:

From the head (6 lbs.) you can make 3 or 5 lbs. headcheese, From shoulder (17 lbs.) you may ask for two (5 lb. roasts) and 8 or 10 chops. From loin (15 lbs.) two (5 lb. end roasts) and 20 to 25 loin chops. From the side (13 lbs.) you will have 3 strips of spare ribs and 10 lbs of bacon which cut about 20 slices per lb. on machine. From the ham (15 lbs.) you may request 2 roasts, fresh, cured or smoke-cured. From the hock and tail you will have servings for four. From the trimmings (12 to 14 lbs.) you may render out 7 or 8 lbs. lard. Pieces from shoulder, loin, side and hams could be put into locker, also prepared headcheese and parboiled hocks.

GOOD MANNERS

With Different Religions a Happy Marriage Depends on Tolerance
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For special reasons I am deeply interested and concerned about the following problem, and would so much appreciate your point of view. The young lady is in her middle twenties, and the man is in his early thirties. They both have exceptional educational backgrounds, both have excellent positions, they have much the same interests, and enjoy the same things. They want to marry. But the problem is that he is a Catholic and she is a Protestant. What do you think are the chances of happiness in a marriage when the two people are of different religions? Could the marriage be a success if she kept her present faith? Wouldn't it be a drastic change for her to change to his religion? Should she be influenced by what her friends might think if she changed her faith to his? Would she be foolish to give up this chance for happiness?

A. C. T.

Whatever your relationship to this couple is, you must realize that what they must realize: that if they themselves who must, in the final analysis, make this momentous decision. Most of us know "mixed marriages" which are extremely happy marriages . . . made so because in each case the husband and wife have the wisdom to be tolerant and the grace to be understanding. For the happiness and success of the marriage of two people of different religions, there must be a deep and abiding faith in their love and a tender, continuously tender, care that no matter what there be allowed to come no shadow of intolerance, by word or deed, of the faith of the other.

Bride's Mother Need Not Wear Corsage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it absolutely necessary for me, the bride's mother, to wear a corsage? I have never been to a wedding where the bride's mother did not wear a corsage, but I have never liked to wear a corsage on any occasion. And, as a matter of fact, I think that most women in their forties look "sick" wearing corsages. My daughter, the bride, knows how I feel and she says she doesn't mind if I don't wear a corsage. What do you advise? Don't you agree with me?

W. H.

Since you don't want to wear a corsage, and feel this strongly about it, and since the bride isn't urging you to wear one, I advise you not to wear one. A corsage is not at all a "must" for the bride's mother; I agree with you that too often the wedding corsage that a mother is to wear is chosen with not the most artistic and discreet taste, with not enough thought as to whether the flowers or the color and the design are appropriate for, and becoming to, the woman who is to wear the flowers. Often the corsage is too large, even flamboyant, and is "all dressed up" with leaves or ferns or ribbons that should have been omitted.

Something for you to consider: If your daughter's husband might be disappointed if you don't give him the pleasure of seeing you a corsage, as he is sending his mother one, it would be gently considerate of you not to mention your anti-corsage feelings, and wear the corsage he sends you, on your puse, or perhaps carry it. Or (I've seen this done by the bride's mother at four or three weddings in the past year) you might carry a prayer book with one or two flowers on it.

Neat Look Important in Hairdo

Typical of the neat, close-to-the-head hairdo, is this trim coiffure. Designed by a New York hairdresser, it is charming with small hats.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Out of date and on the fashion shelf is the hairdo that is bushy. Be it high, low or betwixt-and-between, it must be so cut and arranged that the head is shapely. The flat top continues when locks are shorn, and even the uppity effect is finding itself degraded as it was.

Ringlets and rolls are for the forehead rather than on the crown. One reason: the high-built arrangement meant a long hunt for hats that would conform. Too much bother. With a cap like coiffure almost any hat that you fancy will qualify.

There must be a neat, smooth outline. Stylists are finding different ways of disposing of rear locks, some being fluted upward in tapered wave lines, some with ends turned under at the back and sides as well. Bangs lend themselves to many designs. Wave lines must be well-held fluid. The natural look is paramount.

Coil The Ends

If you can't make up your mind to have your pigtail material snipped away, then coil the ends closely together in the shape that is or arrange a soft chignon. If you think that you must stick to the upsweep, because it is especially becoming, do take care of the rear portion. One single wisp hanging down at the back puts a woman out of the picture. Stray locks can be controlled by the application of lacquer or light liquid dressings.

Women who are afflicted with hair that is dry and crisp should coddle their thatches with special oils, or cream shampoos compounded for the purpose. They will not weaken the finger wave, but will make the hair shafts softer, more pliant, more agreeable to whatever arrangement that is preferred.

Corrective ointments can be used on the scalp when the sebaceous glands are not functioning normally. The beneficial effects of brushing should not be overlooked.

With coiffures inclined to be plain, it is important that the tresses should be so clean that they shine. Hence the need of the weekly shampoo.

BEAUTY

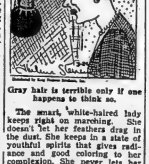
Make Grey Hair an Asset



Specialists who devote their time to cultivating and styling feminine tresses report that, each year, there are more and more cases of prematurely grey hair. They observed it during the war, considered it was due to anxiety and worry. Now they say that women are too busy to be hurried, have practically no leisure, and few of them get sufficient exercise to keep in normal health and high spirits. The hair often reflects the general state of the health, especially the nervous system. They urge their patients to look after the diet, get plenty of sleep and manage to get out of doors for a brisk walk each day.

Grey hair is terrible only if one happens to think so. If the complexion has stayed fresh and blooming, smooth and fine, the silver halo forms a lovely and becoming frame. It is a liability only when it is neglected, is not kept silvery white, or when the coiffure is carelessly arranged in a style that is neither becoming nor of the mode. A few stray whisps promote a blowzy look.

It sometimes happens that when frost has touched the growth a woman feels older, even if she doesn't look it. She slows up on her good-looks tasks. All wrong. More than ever she needs to go on with rejuvenating projects of one kind or another.

When a middle-aged woman loses the pristine coloring of her hair, when changes come to the complexion and the figure, her ideas of dress and the use of color may have to be turn about. She must keep in mind one thought: to make an effort to look too young is to make oneself look even older. It is necessary to be one's age, in conduct and appearance.

It is silly to believe that, in the autumn of life, one will have to sit on the side lines. It is as if one were saying, "I am getting old. Nothing matters much. There's nothing I can do to make myself attractive any more." It is the attitude of the defeatist. One should pause and think of the thousands of middle-aged, grey-haired women who are making good in the arts and industries. Many women executives who have attained prominence in business are well along in the fifties.

Grey hair is terrible only if one happens to think so.

The smart, white-haired lady keeps right on marching. She doesn't let her feathers drag in the dust. She keeps in a state of youthful spirits that gives radiance and good coloring to her complexion. She never lets her figure go to seed. She has a keen interest in what is going on.

She keeps her hair in apple pie order, her eyebrows trim and neat. She uses cosmetics wisely and to advantage, realizing that if she doesn't put on the high lights she will be dated.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS AND ANSWERS
She Chased a Boy—Now She's Sorry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For years I openly chased a certain fellow without shame. He knows I liked him, and he did everything to be mean to me in the presence of his and my friends. He took every opportunity to show everyone that I liked him but he didn't like me. He has never said anything to question my reputation, as I have given no cause for that.

This infatuation of mine started before I knew what was the right and the wrong way to act. Now I have lost all feeling for him, and wish to show him there is no need for him to act the way he does. I have tried snubbing him, but he thinks it's only an act to get him interested. That being the last thing I want, I wish you would kindly give me a few points on how I can put him in his place.

"Uninterested"

Dear "Uninterested":

You would make a great mistake if you tried to do anything about this matter other than to ignore this chap completely. If you let him think that what he says or does matters enough to you to make you annoyed, he is going to keep right doing it to get a rise out of you. Outsmart him by paying no attention. If you simply act as though he didn't exist, he will soon stop getting any fun out of what he's doing.

Wanted—More Fun in Life

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been very lonesome for quite a while because, while I have quite a few good friends, they are nearly all married or have boy friends.

How can I meet some men of my own age, which is 40?

"Millie"

Dear "Millie":

You have asked the $64 question: the one to which thousands of other women of your age are trying to find an answer. I do not have the answer.

My belief is, that the best thing for anyone in the 40's to do to find men friends is to stop making it the primary object of their lives. Instead, they should develop all the interests they possibly can, join a hobby group or two, take part in community activities, and never overlook an opportunity to widen their circle of friends.

If you have a lot of interests, you are bound to become an interesting person, and while that will not necessarily guarantee you a devoted male companion, it will certainly increase your chances of acquiring one. And such a person pays off anyhow, because even if no "steady" turns up, you'll so fill your life with absorbing activities that you'll have a lot of fun with all your other friends. That's a whole lot better than sitting home bemoaning the lack of men in your life, isn't it?

Beautiful Basic Suit

Black gabardine town outfit

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Black gabardine is used for a suit that lends itself to a quick transformation through the medium of accessories. It is snugly buttoned at the waist with three buttons. A parade of buttons accentuates the hipline and there are hip pockets. The skirt takes the straight and narrow path. A navy and white foulard scarf fills in the plunging neckline. The scarf is matched by gloves and hat. A low necked black blouse and some jewelry offers a nice alternative.

Middle-Agers Steal Fashion Spotlight

London, (CP)—The neglected Cinderella of the fashion parades —the middle-aged housewife— was the centre of interest at a fashion show held here recently.

It proved that however matronly she may be, the 35-year-old woman can look as smart and well-dressed as her 18 and 25-year-old daughters.

Clothes for these ages were the only ones modelled in the show at the International Wool Secretariat. From a point of elegance, the three types were much the same, but in self-possession, the younger ones lagged far behind.

Wool fabrics, say designers whose clothes were shown are ideal for outside and, older women. Careful tailoring of modern wool fabrics and colors with present-day figure trends turned the trick.

Wool has draping qualities which soften harsh lines and blot out "unwanted curves", designers maintain. Discreet use of vertical rather than horizontal lines both in cut and design disguised the less lovely lines of the heavier figure.

In consequence designers felt free to use pastel shades, waistcoat styles, dolman sleeves and full skirts in five out of ten dresses.

Dumart Scores Winning Goal In Overtime to Defeat Leafs; Canadiens Beat Red Wings

By WILLIAM H. DUNSDAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — Just when some of the experts figured that Woody Dumart might be the second link of the once famous Kitchener line to come to the end of the road in big-time hockey, the Kitchener butcher boy has become Boston's man-of-the-hour.

Woody scored only 11 goals during the scheduled National League season but he has fired three in the first three playoff games to keep the Bruins in the hunt for the Stanley Cup. His goal after more than 16 minutes overtime Saturday night gave the Bruins's 5-4 win over Toronto Maple Leafs, after Bruins lost the first two contests of the best-of-seven semi-final series in Boston.

Milt Schmidt, centre of the once-great Kitchener line, figured on one of Boston's counters, but the right-winger of the trio—little Bobby Bauer — has returned to amateur ranks. Schmidt, who made the play for Johnny Pierson's goal, suffered a bruised left shoulder.

A blurry gang in their dressing room, the Bruins deserved their victory as they held an edge in play most of the way and outshot the Leafs 35-25. Only the brilliant net-minding of Turk Broda kept the Leafs in the contest.

The Turk had no chance on Dumart's shot which broke up the game after more than 16 minutes of extra play. The left winger took a pass back from centre Ed Sandford and his shot deflected off the hip of Toronto's Bill Barilko.

Taken to Hospital

Chief worry in the camp of the elated Bruins was the condition of Johnny Crawford, their veteran defenceman. Johnny collided with Bill Ezinicki in the first period and was taken to hospital. X-rays revealed he suffered only a severely bruised chest but he will likely miss the Bruins' game here Tuesday night.

Dumart's goal was his second of the night and the others went to Grant Warwick, Pierson and Sandford. The scoring punch for Conn Smythe's crew was provided by Captain Ted Kennedy, Gus Mortson, Joe Klukay and Fleming Mackell scoring in order.

Although the Leafs opened the scoring, they trailed by two goals at one stage of the second period. They were also a goal in arrears when Mackell almost knocked the puck from goalie Frank Brimsek's hand to force overtime at 11:46 of the third period.

The Bruins remained in Toronto over the weekend while the Leafs headed for their rest camp at St. Catharines.

At Toronto Conn Smythe said Sunday night that he plans two changes in the Leafs' lineup for the fourth game. But the Leafs' manager said he was not ready to announce how he would strengthen the Leafs.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, March 28 — (CP) — It's hard to fathom, but somehow Montreal Canadiens appear to hold the Indian trick over Detroit Red Wings.

The Wings, who cake-walked to the National Hockey League pennant, dropped their second game of the best-of-seven playoff series to the Habitants, 3-2, here Saturday night. Detroit had won the opener of the Stanley Cup semi-final 3-1, and Canadiens came back to take the second 4-3.

Each of the first two games went into overtime, and for a while Saturday it looked as if a furious third-period onslaught by Detroit would send that contest into extra time. But a guy named Bill Durnan had different ideas and his sensational puck-stopping in the Montreal cage broke the back of the Red Wing offensive in the final minutes of the hectic fray.

No. 2 hero for Dick Irvin's scrappy gang was Maurice Mosdell, whose first goal in the N. H. L. proved to be the winning counter. The Fort William pivotman who won All-star rating while performing with Buffalo in the American League this season, outraced Leo Gravelle for a loose puck and whipped an angle - drive into the far corner before goalie Harry Lumley could move to keep the Habs ahead 3-1.

Lach Out for Series

Before that, Kenny Mosdell and Leo Gravelle had given Montreal a lead with a pair of first-period markers, and Gordie Howe's first of two counters cut the margin near the midway mark of the 3rd session.

Just three minutes after Mo-Kay's goal, Howe let go a drive from the Montreal blue line and it struck defenceman Doug Harvey's skate, deflecting into the net past the surprised Durnan who didn't have a chance and the Wings trailed 3-2.

This goal inspired the Wings to an all-out offensive that had the Habs on the ropes in the last five minutes, especially when Harvey was banished for interference at the 17-minute mark.

Durnan rose to great heights, with his miraculous saves, after playing a great game in front of him.

After the game Canadiens learned that centre Elmer Lach, out since the series opener when he injured his tender jaw, will miss Tuesday's fourth game, and probably will be sidelined for the remainder of the season. Murph Chamberlain, who sat out the Saturday tussle with a badly bruised hand, may be able to dress tomorrow night.

Barrie Flyers Beat Porcupine Combines by 4-0

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — The hopes of the north tonight ride on 17-year-old netminder Lorne Howes in the second game of the best-of-seven series for the All-Ontario junior hockey title when Barrie Flyers and Porcupine Combines. Barrie won the first game 4-0 Saturday.

Howes, on the amateur list of Boston Bruins, was the bulwark of the Combines' defence when he performed in sensational fashion. He limited the Flyers to a 1-0 edge for nearly 50 minutes of hockey before the snipers caught up with him.

For the Flyers it was a surprise. They didn't expect much from the northerners, who have been given virtually no chance in the series and, when all the chips were down, they did not count on such a smooth display of netminding.

The Flyers outshot the Combines 56-26 and only in the latter minutes of the third period did they clinch the game with three quick goals.

Barrie went into the lead late in the first period when Sid McNabney scored on a goal-mouth scramble. Howes had kicked out three drives in succession and failed to see McNabney flip the puck through a maze of players' legs.

After brilliantly holding the fort for the second period, Howes was beaten when McNabney got his second goal midway through the third session. Just 24 seconds later Stan Long made it 3-0. Bob Burcham finished off the scoring at the 15-minute mark.

The Combines gave Barrie netminder Gil Mayer some busy moments and only his usual fine work kept them off the scoresheet.

The Porkies' best attackers were Doug Adams, who picked up 74 points in 24 games this season, defenceman Ab Plouffe and big defenceman Steve Brklacich.

However, the Flyers aren't overconfident.

"They gave us a rough time," Barrie coach Hap Emms said. "They wouldn't let us get untracked, and the more we tried the more trouble we had."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

With warm zephyrs; redbreasted robins cavorting over sweet grassless lawns and gardens; with the boys looking longingly at fishing tackle, green-scum pools where soon is hockey in the district, I'm reported that Kingston and Oshawa rinks are closing this week—and it is altogether likely that Memorial Arena will remain the ice—unless the Gananoque team decides to use it for a home game.

• • •

And so passes another hockey season for Belleville—one that was successful from nearly all points of view with the exception of championships. All Belleville rinks were either busy or unsuccessful schedule. Both the Senior Diesels and the Junior Rockets raced through their respective schedules with no scars or defeat blemishing their scutcheons, while the Midget Gunners striking sudden misfortune when they were eliminated after pulling up a gallant battle in the "A" group playoffs by Midlands after being forced to play in Peterborough the night before the long trek to Midland.

• • •

The red-and-blue garbed Gunners were definitely championship material and it was unfortunate that an unlooked-for incident prevented them from going through to the finish. They were well-coached by Cy Barriare, while Bobby Strachan looked after the managerial duties assisted by members of the sponsoring Rii Anli Tank Regiment.

• • •

Diesels, proudly riding on a crest of schedule victories failed to maintain the consistent form that gave them ten wins in a row and lost the group playoffs to the Kingston Nynas three games to one. Nylons, in turn, went down before the flaming attacks and heavy defensive battles of the Peterborough Legion team, champions of their own group, in three straight games. The Legionnaires are now the provincial title series awaiting a winner of Western Ontario groups.

• • •

Bellerville Rockets gave a creditable performance up to the time of their meeting with Gananoque Upper Canada College team. The Rocks swept through fourteen games without a defeat. They dropped the first game of their playdown series to Upper Canada 5-2 here and were extensive 9-1 in the second till in Maple Leaf Gardens.

• • •

Rockets developed some fine players among them being Tommy Schrieder, Johnny Green, Peter Jones, Bill MacKay and Kenny Hutchinson. Jack Green, in particular will try out with the farm team of the Chicago Black Hawks next season. Jones was one of the headiest players of the team besides being a smart bantam-weight a wicked shot. He should go well in the upper brackets.

• • •

Marmora Millionaires passed out of the Intermediate "B" picture Saturday night, unless other playdown arrangements have been made, losing to Bucko MacDonald Sandridge team in their second game-to-count although they won their game here. "Bucko" former National Hockey League player has had some of his high-flying stars with him as coach of more than passing ability. He did not skate himself into the ice Saturday, but the old headwork was always in evidence

• • •

Gananoque's fast team under the leadership of Bill Hastie should romp through to the Intermediate "A" finals. If their performances here Friday night against Napanee is any criterion. The youthful squad from Hospeler put up a gallant bid for victory but they were no match for the speed and fast lines from the Gateway to the Thousand Islands. The Gans should lock this playdown series away with little effort.

• • •

With the ice due to leave Memorial Arena in the immediate future, sports fandom will turn to thoughts of baseball, softball and other outdoor games. The Commercial Softball League promises to have another highly successful season with a dozen teams wanting to enter, while it is mooted the CNR Recreation Activities Flyers and Post Office will be affiliating with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association in the intermediate groupings. A league to accommodate the diamond Diesels are to enter OASA lists as a 1949 edict of that association prohibits affiliation of individual teams. They must be associated with a league or association.

• • •

Always a hard-hitting handed of wrestling fandom, this city will likely welcome back the big boys in the near future. All the old favorites of the Belleville faithful have seen action in Toronto and other centres in the winter and it is likely such popular boys as the Sharpe brothers, Whipper Whalsen, Fred Atkins, Farmer Burns and Ripper Collins who tore the bauble from the neat locks of Wasan, Earl McCready, John Katan and others will see action again in a Belleville Arena.

• • •

All squads of the Service Darts League swing into action tonight on various fronts as they near the finals of the second half of the winter schedule. Three more sets of matches remain to be played after tonight's tilt. ANAF Veterans won the first half of the schedule, and naturally if the Vets cop the second battle playoffs will be necessary. The boys, incidentally were hosts to over 200 wives, sweethearts and friends at their annual banquet at dinner in the Bridge Street Armouries Sergeants' Mess on Friday. The party was a highly enjoyable affair and was considered an outstanding success. Refreshments were by the ANAF Ladies Auxiliary from the balcony. There was music, mirth, dancing and entertainment. It was one of the best social functions sponsored thus far by this popular sports organization.

Rochon, Buser Ranked First In Lawn Tennis

(By The Canadian Press)

Henri Rochon, the Montreal sharp-shot artist, was ranked No. 1 by the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association for the second straight year Saturday, but Ottawa French-Canadian had to share top rating with the dominant best player with Rene Buser, a smooth-striking Swiss who now plays out of Montreal.

Selection of Rochon came as no surprise, but Buser's ranking was unexpected. The former Swiss Davis Cup players only inspected victory was in the Montreal cup tournament last summer, but he went to the quarter-finals in the Canadian championships and the semi-finals in the Quebec provincial title matches. The announcement of the rankings came from Montreal.

Midland Huskies eliminated Lindsay Mustangs from further O.H.A. Junior C competition by scoring a 5-4 victory before some 1,200 fans at Midland Saturday. A large delegation from Lindsay saw their favorites drop the deciding match of the three-game series.

At Barrie, W. D. Lowe Vocational of Windsor defeated Runnymede Collegiate of Toronto 7-4 Saturday to win the Eaton trophy for Ontario Interscholastic hockey. This is the first year the trophy has been up for competition.

At Sydney, N.S., Hugh MacNeil, former coach of North Sydney Victories hockey club, said here Saturday he would appeal a decision of the full bench of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, dismissing his claim for damages against the Cape Breton senior hockey club, to the Supreme Court of Canada. MacNeil claimed $5,700 for damages and wrongful dismissal after he was ousted as coach of the North Sydney club last year.

Brooklyn Dodgers Saturday sold pitcher Curt Behrman to the New York Giants for a sum estimated at $40,000, it was announced at Vero Beach, Fla. Behrman, powerful right-handed thrower, has been in the Brooklyn baseball chain for training while time since his arrival in the big league in 1946. He was sold to Pittsburgh in 1947 and then returned to the Dodgers.

At Chicago, promoter Joe Louis, with a five sentimental touch, Saturday announced the bout for his vacated world heavyweight boxing crown will be fought June 22 at Chicago's Comiskey Park. Ezzard Charles and Joe Walcott are the contenders. Louis, director of the International Boxing Club, 13 years ago at the same place and on the same date, flattened Jim Braddock for the championship.

McCarthy High On Chances of Boston Red Sox

Sarasota, Fla., March 23 (AP)—Joe McCarthy, a man who can win or lose pennants without hysteria, figures his Boston Red Sox are as good as any club in the American League.

Most of the experts in the citrus belt are going March Joe one better. A majority pick the Red Sox to win mainly on the home-run power in the bats of Ted Williams, Vern Stephens and Bobby Doerr.

"We figure to be better," said McCarthy.

"Our pitching should be improved if Mickey Harris and Tex Hughson can come back. Mickey is a lot lighter than he was last year and Tex is throwing hard.

"Now Johnny Pesky is set at third. Last year he was an experiment. It took Pesky almost until mid-season to find himself."

"The rest of the club is pretty much the same except first base. I'm giving Walt Dropo, a big husky fellow, a good chance."

The Sox spurted down the stretch last season with an amazing burst of power to finish in a first-place tie with Cleveland, the first time it ever happened in the American League. Cleveland won the playoff and went on to take the world series.

Pitching Was Weak

Pitching was Boston's glaring weakness last year. The Sox have some new faces in camp but the chief hope for improvement comes from veterans like Harris and Hughson. Dave (Boo) Ferriss, who won only seven games last year, also has impressed. If one of the three can fit into a regular turn as a winning pitcher, the Sox will be tough to beat.

McCarthy has Joe Dobson (18-10), Jack Kramer (12-5) and Mel Parnell (15-8) set as starters. Ellis Kinder (10-7) is a good bet to be the fourth.

With Dropo or Billy Goodman at first, the infield is set with Doerr at second, Stephens at short and Pesky at third. Merrill Combs, Billy Hitchcock and Lou Stringer are battling for extra jobs.

Williams, the club's big man with a .369 average, will be in left field, Dom DiMaggio at centre and Goodman or Sam Mele in right, depending on the first base situation. Stan Spence will be kept.

Birdie Tebbetts, who hit .280 in 128 games for his best season since the w... is No. 1 catcher.

30 Had Tickets On Russian Hero, Chase Winner

Aintree, England, March 22 — (AP) — Who wins on those fabulous odds in the Grand National Steeplechase?

Russia Hero paid 20/1 to 1 on Totalisator for his runaway triumph in the National Saturday, over Aintree's 30 breath - taking jumps.

His starting price with bookies was 66 to 1.

Choice multiplying factors they were — If you had a few shillings on them. But who knew about this unsung underdog who shocked 300,000 spectators.

We found one woman with a win-and-place ticket to cash at tote. It would earn her £125 — ($500) for a total risk of £1 ($4).

She was Mrs. Bill Williamson, wife of the owner of Russian Hero.

Owner Bill wagered £10 several months ago at 300 to 1.

Were there no winners beside Williamson. From a small bar came sounds of revelry. We peeked in and found Russian Hero fans singing the Volga Boatman.

A man in a ladies' hat, his lips kissed crimson, handed us a high ball.

"I won £3,000," he said. "Have a drink."

He was George Leech, a farmer neighbor of Williamson and he had backed Russian Hero and Fair Judgment, winner of the Lincolnshire Handicap, on a "spring double."

We produced a pal, who had won the same sum. That made four winners.

Stewart Granger, British film star playing a Russian Hero in a Tolstoy play at Liverpool, was on the winner' So were some of the "playing" cast.

In the totalisator "spring double" there were 30 winning tickets. The payoff on each is £968 ($3,980). Tickets cost five shillings if bought before March 8 and 10 shillings if bought from then until March 17.

Allan Cup Survivors

(By The Canadian Press)

Eleven teams survive in the hunt for the Allan Cup and the Canadian Senior amateur hockey championship — six in the east and five in the west.

The survivors:

East — Sydney Millionaires, Pembroke Lumber Kings, Montreal Royals, Shawinigan Falls, Ottawa Senators, Toronto Marlboros.

West — Winnipeg Nationals, Regina Capitals, Fort Frances Canadians, Port Arthur Bearcats, Trail Smoke Eaters.

Marmora Wins Game But Loses On Round

Marmora Millionaires fought gallantly against the Bancroft-MacDonald-Ied Sundridge Beavers in Memorial Arena here Saturday night but although they emerged with a victory, the effort was not quite good enough to win the goals-to-count round. The Beavers by virtue of their 11-6 win on Friday night in Bracebridge won the round 12-12.

Sundridge showed the effects of the long trip by their ex-National Hockey League mentor MacDonald who played practically the entire game on the Beaver defence. While the well-known defenceman who was at one time the terror of opposing forwards in the NHL with his heavy checking did not skate himself into the ice, his body contact and smart playmaking from his blueline position was one of the features of the game.

Marmora, however fought to the last ditch in an effort to pull the game out of the fire and their front line showed no fear of the vaunted Beaver defence. They scored the first brace of goals and were never headed but they were hot quite good enough to pull victory out of the goals-to-count fire.

The Millionaires thus close a highly successful hockey season. They were the pick of the Trent Valley League and went on to defeat a picked team from Campbellford in the early rounds of the Intermediate "B" playdowns. They played consistently good hockey all winter and proved a distinct credit to their home village and Hastings County. Both the Millionaires and the midget team carried high the hockey banner of the mid-Hastings village a long way down the tough trail to the title and the fact that they were eliminated is by no means a disgrace.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, March 23 (AP) — Word from the baseball spring training reaches the point where you can tell something about the clubs is "don't be too optimistic about the Cardinals. Except for Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter and Harry Brecheen, they're second division stuff."... The point seems to be that they have no reliable catcher, first baseman and centre fielder, and there's a nifty infield, depending on the health of Marion, Schoendienst and Kurowski... The same observers aren't too high on the Braves, who haven't changed much since last year, and figure the youthful, hustling Dodgers are the team to watch. At least Branch Rickey has plenty of material at Vero Beach.

He Oughta Be Canned—

The day before the Philadelphia Warriors' first playoff game, Joe Fulks went out, like any good boxer hand, to empty a pail of garbage. But Joe slipped and fell down a flight of stairs... It wasn't until four o'clock the next afternoon he decided he had been hurt and called boss Eddie Gottlieb to say he wouldn't play. Eddie summoned a doctor who took three stitches in a cut on Joe's hip and did what he could about a large bruise... That night Fulks played only a minute and a half against Washington and, for the first time in his pro basketball career, failed to take a shot... Moral is that an accident with a garbage can can make a lot of fans turn pail.

Broadview YMCA Defeats Pappas Billiards 46-33

The old jinx that Belleville basketball teams can't manage to win in Toronto still holds good apparently.

On Saturday night the Belleville Pappas Billiards hoopsters after leading Broadview YMCA on the latter's court in Toronto 16-14 at the end of the first half, failed to maintain their shooting eyes and went down to defeat by a 46-33 score.

The second game will be played in the YMCA here next Saturday night starting at 8.30. Although thirteen points down on the round which is the third the Billiards have played and is the semi-final series in the Intermediate "B" group, Austin Watkins quintet are confident that they can pull victory out of the fire on the round.

It was fine basketball during the first half with the Belleville team definitely the aggressors. Their passing was good and their shots hitting the twines.

But in the second, as an official said, "the roof fell in." The Belleville shots were hitting the rim consistently and doing everything but dropping in the net. Broadview took advantage of the shooting lapse on the part of the visitors and went on to score 32 points while the best Pappas could do was 18.

Dave Lockyer garnered the most points for the losers with 8. Gord Watkin helped himself to seven while Bill Spafford got six.

The local squad will be definitely on the spot next Saturday but they are confident they are as good if not better than the YMCA crew and can not only overcome the deficit but also win the round.

St. Louis Flyers Celebrate After Playoff Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Louis Flyers today celebrated their first American Hockey League playoff victory since they entered the circuit in 1944.

The triumph Sunday night over Providence Reds—a 3-1 double overtime verdict—by no means clinches the semi-final rounds series for the Flyers, but it certainly bolstered their chances considerably.

Lloyd Doran scored at 8.54 of the second overtime session to give St. Louis its first triumph in three starts in the best-of-seven series. The Flyers, tall-end-ers in thefir first four seasons in the league, won the western division pennant this year by a single point.

Paul Cladu, the Flyers' goal-getter during the regular season with 51, started the scoring in opening period.

The Reds, eastern division winners, tied the score midway in the second period when Roger Bedard slammed home passes from Johnny Chad and Jackie Hamilton.

Following Bedard's equalizer, both teams played defensive hockey, waiting for a break. Doran finally got through in the "sudden death" overtime.

The fourth game of the series will be played in St. Louis Tuesday night. The same night Hershey Bears and Cleveland Barons open their best-of-three semi-final series in Cleveland. The second game will be at Hershey Thursday night and the third, if necessary, at Hershey Saturday.

Player Strike Nearly Cancelled Hockey Fixture

Shawinigan Falls, Que., March 23 — (CP) — A player strike almost called off the scheduled Montreal Royals — Shawinigan Cataracts Quebec Senior Hockey League playoff game here Saturday night.

Shawinigan players served club officials with an ultimatum that they would not go through with the game unless their salary demands for an extra week's pay were met.

Paid on a weekly basis, the team asked for an extra week's pay because their last week's cheques were being held until the conclusion of Saturday's game which the Cats won 3-2.

The team officials reached an agreement after they promised the players to meet their demands only if the players defeated the Royals in Saturday's game.

The players usually collect their pay Friday, but the team withheld the cheques, awaiting outcome of the Saturday game. A defeat would have eliminated Shawinigan.

Although the Q. S. H. L. is an affiliate of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, payment of players has been the standard practice for many years.

The C. A. H. A. governing body of all senior and junior hockey in the Dominion, introduced a contract form for players two years ago, and most senior and junior players now are regarded as full-time employees and must file income tax returns on their earnings.

PICTON

Lighthouses Will Be Operating By Tuesday Night

Picton — Lighthouses along Prince Edward County shores will begin to send out their warning rays for another season this week. The keepers have received instructions to have the lights in operation tomorrow night, Wesley Thomas and helpers left for the Main Ducks late last week. A radio beacon is also operated there. Kenneth McConnell left Monday for his post at False Duck Island, while keeper Charles Newman who spent the winter at Cherry Valley, is at Point Petre.

Teachers of Picton Collegiate delighted a large audience with the presentation of the drama "Suspense" in the Collegiate hall Friday night. This had been given at the Trenyson Club and was so much enjoyed by members that the cast was prevailed upon to present it for the public.

The weekly card party and dance at Athol Community Hall drew a capacity crowd Friday night. The proceeds of $102 were given to East Lake ladies for work in that community.

Pike Running

Pike are running in the creeks and providing sport for boys with nets. Suckers have not yet put in an appearance. Another sign of spring is the passing of large flocks of wild geese and the appearance of many varieties of birds. Those who are tapping maple sugar bushes report a light yield to date.

A special meeting of the town council is being held Tuesday night to discuss roads and streets. The town is seeking assistance from the Ontario Department of Highways in the repaving of that section of road through the town which was torn up for installation of sewerage.

Bloomfield Baseball Club sponsored a successful dance in Bloomfield hall Friday night. The club is planning another interesting season.

Meeting here last week they advanced to the Ontario semi-finals last year.

At a meeting of Picton Fair Board held on Saturday, William E. Dunning was chosen as secretary-treasurer. Reports of the Ontario Provincial Agricultural Societies was given by Mrs. B. H. Baxter, Ernest Henderson and Phil Dodds. The society decided to continue with its growing competition, and authorized the entertainment committee to secure attractions for the fair which will be held September 26, 27 and 28. President D. O. Reynolds was in the chair.

Cartoonist Tries Hand at Designing Children's Books

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — The Winnipeg-born creator of Bugs Bunny has given up comic cartooning to try his hand at turning out children's books.

Charles Thorsen already has had one book published and is working on others. He went here from Winnipeg about a month ago to work for an advertising design firm.

During his Hollywood stint, Thorsen became known for his ability to create characters like the aggrieved Bugs and bashful Elmer Fudd. He got his start with Disney after working as a political cartoonist in Winnipeg.

West Labor Chiefs Claim W.F.T.U. Led by Kremlin

London, March 28 — (AP) — Four western leaders today charged Sunday that the World Federation of Trade Unions is the final analysis, controlled by the Kremlin.

They were James Carey, secretary-treasurer of the C.I.O.; Vincent Tewson, general secretary of the British Trades Union Congress; Arthur Deakin of the T.U.C. and former president of the W.F.T.U. and Evert Kupers of the Dutch Trade Union Congress.

They made the accusation in a 7,000-word report issued by the T.U.C. to explain why Carey, Deakin and Kupers walked out of the meeting of the W.F.T.U. executive board in Paris last Jan. 19.

The labor movements of Australia and Latin America stayed in the W.F.T.U. along with Communist-led union groups in France, Italy and those of Eastern Europe.

The four men said in the report the W.F.T.U. "is now completely dominated by Communist organizations which are themselves controlled by the Kremlin and the Communist Party."

They urged "free trade union centres" in the light of this charge, to reconsider further affiliation with W.F.T.U.

The four, leaders in the formation of the W.F.T.U. in 1945, said that from the outset the Soviet unions were not so much concerned with the trade union international as they were with its political potentialities."

They said the Communist-dominated trade unions sought to make the W.F.T.U. a propaganda instrument.

NAVIGATION OPENED

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 28 — (CP) — Eight icebound freighters passed through the locks here today and headed into Lake Superior. Coast guard cutters reported little ice at the lake's eastern entrance. Thirteen freighters went through the locks Saturday to open navigation for the 1949 season.

Fights Cause Police Busy Time Saturday Night

Fights resulting in speedy arrests as well as bloody noses; small boys creating disturbances, and a larger than usual number of the gentry who looked on the wine when it was of scarlet hue, kept the police department exceptionally busy on Saturday night.

Three men became involved in fisticuffs outside the Esquire Grill late in the evening and in the resulting scuffle, one was thrown against the plate glass window of the store formerly occupied by Cody's grocery, shattering it. All three were hauled to the police station.

A couple of hours later two other gentlemen of pugilistic tendencies started to throw punches in and about the Barbecue Restaurant, Bridge Street and a small window was smashed in the fracas. They, too, were invited to spend the evening in the Boneyard.

A man and his wife became embroiled in an argument with the result that the man started to throw punches at his spouse, who immediately notified the police.

Small boys were on the prowl over the week-end with reports of gangs hurling stones at houses, playing baseball on a church property, heaving firecrackers willy-nilly and other misdemeanors.

The cells at the police station were filled to near capacity at one time.

ACCUSED OF CAUSING UNNECESSARY SUFFERING

Brantford, March 28 — (CP)—A charge of causing unnecessary suffering to a horse through failure to provide proper care was laid today against Elmer Hager, a farmer at Middleport, this morning. The charge was laid by C. W. Morris of Hamilton, chief inspector of the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Police said they found a large festering wound on the horse's rear flank and two other parts of its body were burn marks.

Training Camp Notes

(By The Associated Press)

St. Louis Cardinals may never miss Muddy Dickson if they continue to get the brilliant pitching that has enabled them to compile an exhibition record of 10 victories and five losses. St. Louis pitchers scored another shutout Sunday, blanking New York Yankees, 1-0. Kurt Kreiger, southpaw up from Columbus, All Brazis and Ted Wilks did the Card hurling.

Ewell Blackwell took the wraps off his pitching arm Sunday for the first time in Cincinnati Reds' spring training. And he reported the result was encouraging.

Blackwell, still many pounds underweight as the result of a kidney operation several weeks ago, had not done any throwing until Sunday but he served them up for about five minutes in batting practice.

Philadelphia Athletics picked up a couple of ball players on their Cuban excursion.

The A's new players are Luis Garcia, 19-year-old centre fielder who will be sent to the A's farm club at Savannah, Ga., and Gilberto Torres, infielder formerly with Washington Senators.

Torres will be used as a utility man with the parent club.

Hugh Casey, the old fireman from Brooklyn, should be a big help to Pittsburgh Pirates pitching staff, says manager Billy Meyer.

Although disappointed in the 7-7, 12-inning tie with St. Louis Browns Sunday Meyer was more than pleased with the way Casey held the American Leaguers scoreless. He gave up only two hits, both singles, in working the last four innings.

The home-run conscious New York Giants today were slightly behind their homey pace of last spring. At this time a year ago the Giants had slugged 16 homers. So far they have hit 12 including Sunday's trio in their 8-6 victory over Havana Cuba. Sid Gordon accounted for two and Johnny Mize the other.

Brighteners

New York — (AP) — Baby carriage banking is the latest wrinkle in financial circles here.

The Bayside National Bank in Queens hit on the idea. It said Sunday it will have a baby carriage window operating by April 4.

Mothers then can wheel their infants right up to window outside the bank instead of leaving them unattended in their carriages. The special window is reached by a pedestrian walk protected from other traffic.

Detroit — (AP) — The elevator operator at police headquarters recognized the prisoner he was taking down from the ninth floor Sunday night. He asked the man where he was going.

"I'm going out for a drink, but don't tell anybody about it," answered George J. George, 34-year-old ex-convict being held as a police witness in connection with a hotel holdup.

The operator didn't tell anyone, thinking George must have been released. The prisoner strolled through headquarters lobby and out the main door to freedom.

Red-faced police who began a search for George puzzled as to how he managed to unlock two doors — one leading from his ninth-floor cell block to the visitors' room and the other into the building corridor.

They theorized he must have picked up a master key during the confusion of Sunday visitors' hours.

Los Angeles — (AP)—Willard Dare, a barber, got excited when informed over the phone that he had just become the father of a baby girl. He had reason to be.

He said he shoved a dollar bill into the hands of a lathered customer he was shaving and told him to get the job finished down the street.

He rushed to the hospital to learn his wife and the six-pound four-ounce infant were doing nicely. He was much relieved. His wife, Virginia, 28, is a polio victim and has been in an iron lung since last Nov. 15.

TWO ARRESTED FOR RAPE

Port Colborne, March 28—(CP) — Police investigating an early morning fight in a local restaurant Saturday arrested Frank Benzo, 19, and Peter Thompson, 19, on charges of rape. Police said the two entered the restaurant, locked the door and assaulted a young married woman who was on duty alone after threatening her with a knife. Police said the two then got into a fight between themselves.

Know the right instead of the wrong of it. Partner does not ask you for a choice when he bids two suits. He asks only if you have the adequate support for either. If he demands a choice he will rebid one of the two suits he has bid.

Preference showing in bridge is reduced to this rule: When you bid two suits and then rebid one of them, partner should select the one in which your pair holds the most cards; or the first named if same number in each.

When partner opens with a spade, say you have this hand:

♠4 2
♥10 3
♦K 10 8 5
♣K Q 9 6 2

Your first response is two clubs, a takeout to your biddable suit. Suppose partner then bids three hearts.

No jump has been made. Your no-trump is the chain of new suit takeouts. So did partner's rebid in hearts. So, you are not forced to bid again. If satisfied with hearts you could pass.

Bid a rebid of one of two suits bid by partner forces you to make a choice. It does not force you to bid, you understand. All it does is compel you to make a choice.

If your pair has more hearts than spades, you could pass three hearts. It would show your preference. With the same number in each, take him to three spades: It shows your choice of the first named.

How do you know the number of cards in each suit? Having rebid hearts, he has five. Having bid spades first; his hearts are not longer. You must believe from this that he has five of each.

You have two of each. You see seven hearts and at least seven spades. With the same number in each, rule says to show preference for the first named. Partner does not assume you have support. He can take it and leave it.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Pude Simkins went to the Saturday morning All Komedy show at the Little Grand, everything swell especially The Bekers Picknick with Slim Snodgrass and Puffy Parker, and after the show Mary Watkins was skating in frunt of her house and me and Pude started to brag about how hard we had been laffing, Pude saying, Oh boy, when Slim Snodgrass pored the glue in Puffy Parker's coat sleeves, was that something!

I'll say it was, I said. And then when he smeared the whole bucket of dough all over Puffy's face while his arms were stuck, that was something even better, I said.

Making us both laff to even think of it, and Mary Watkins said, Goodness, I wouldn't even dreem of laffing at such meen tricks.

Well good night that's the only reason they do them, to make you laff, I said, and Pude said, Sure, if everybody felt sorry for Puffy Parker instead of laffing at him, he'd probably lose his job, Jim-mines, actualy it was your idea fr having fun at a movie instead of sitting and crying! he said.

Well, I said, if it's in a good cause, Mary Watkins said, I cried and cried at Susan Lane's Secret when Susan Lane's little dawter got stck from broken hart and everybody thawt she was going to die till the last minute she said, do you call that funny?

I never said it was funny, Mary said, and Pude said, Sure you did, you said it was your idea of having fun at a movie.

And we both pretended to be crying and laffing at the same time to prove how dumb it was, and Mary Watkins looked hawty and started to go in the house, saying, Oh, why dont ... you go somewhere and smear dough on each other?

Sounding like a swell idea if we had the dough, and proving there's more than one way injoying life.

Visited U.S. To Hear Husband Speak in Series

Toronto, March 28 — (CP) — Mrs. Barker Fairley, 63, of Toronto, one of two persons requested to leave the United States by immigration authorities Saturday night, said here Sunday that she visited the U. S. primarily to hear her husband speak in his special lecture series.

She denied making the trip to attend the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace at New York. The conference has been described as a sounding board for communist propaganda.

She was arrested along with her husband, Prof. Barker Fairley, 61, and John Goss of Vancouver at the conference by eight immigration agents on orders of the justice department. The professor was released and allowed to stay in the U. S.

"Prof. Fairley has been guest professor at Columbia since Feb. 1," Mrs. Fairley said, "and is giving special lectures on Goethe at Yale, Princeton, Vassar and Bryn Mawr."

Mrs. Fairley is a member of the cultural committee of the Labor - Progressive party, formerly the communist party of Canada. Goss is a theatrical producer.

On his arrival in Vancouver Sunday night Mr. Goss said in an interview that he was detained by investigating United States immigration authorities was "similar to that used by the Nazis in 1933."

He said he was invited to the conference by Harvard University astronomer Dr. Harlow Shapley to speak on "war psychosis and its effect on the work of artists."

Basis of the action by the U.S. immigration department, he said, was his connection with Canada's Labor-Progressive party.

"I told them I am not a member of the L. P. P. but am sympathetic to its aims," Goss said.

In the provincial elections four years ago, Goss ran as a Labor-Progressive party candidate for Vancouver-Point Grey. He was defeated.

Murder, Suicide Police Verdict

New York, March 28 (AP)—A sequence of scorned love, murder and suicide, was described by police today after a society matron was found strangled in her luxurious Park Avenue apartment.

Police said wealthy Mrs. Helen Reinberg, 51, was slain by her love-smitten — but spurned—language tutor, who then flung himself beneath the wheels of a subway train two hours later.

A note left by the latter, Jose Del Pino, 57, a small, dark, former university Spanish teacher, said Mrs. Reinberg "broke my heart" by rebuffing his love.

Mrs. Reinberg's near-nude body was found in her fashionable seven-room apartment Friday. A man's black necktie was knotted about her throat. Police said she had been dead about 24 hours.

Mrs. Reinberg was the wife of wealthy Gustave Reinberg, vice-president of one of the world's largest copper-mining firms, the Cerro De Pasco Copper Corporation. Police said he is in Lima, Peru, on business.

Del Pino formerly taught Spanish at Brown University and at Columbia University here. Police said he had given language lessons to Mrs. Reinberg for the last three years.

Czechoslovakia Makes Charges Against Wildash

Prague, March 28 (Reuters) — Czechoslovakia today accused Capt. Philip Wildash, permit officer on the British consular staff here—expelled from the country March 25—of having plotted to create an anti-state underground movement in Czechoslovakia.

The captain was also accused of taking part in preparations for the escape of Czechs to Britain with the use of stolen aircraft.

The official statement said: "Captain Wildash misused the privileges given him by the Czechoslovak republic by calling upon a Czechoslovak subject who had approached him with a request for a visa not to leave Czechoslovakia and to devote himself to anti-state activity.

"Because Captain Wildash misused his function he was on March expelled from the country."

Wildash, who was given 24 hours to leave Czechoslovakia, said in Frankfurt Thursday that he had no idea why he was arrested and ordered to leave.

He said he was questioned for seven hours by the secret police, but that they refused to specify the charges against him.

India Believed To Hold Secret Of Next Meeting

London, March 28 — (Reuters) — India alone is believed to hold the main secret of next month's conference of Dominion prime minister — the formula which may enable her as a republic to maintain Commonwealth co-operation.

Commonwealth countries have indicated their desire that India continue this co-operation after she becomes a republic in August. India herself is expected to suggest how she thinks this can be done.

The whole future concept of the Commonwealth is likely to hinge upon India's action.

Speculation upon the sort of formula likely to prove acceptable both to India and the Dominions is considered pointless meantime, since the initiative lies with India and not with the other Commonwealth members.

Suggestions have been received of a graduation of Commonwealth membership that would reconcile the national aspirations of various Dominions. But political quarters say the new India probably would not welcome any association which depended on a self-declaration of status.

On the other hand, several of the Dominions consider the crown to be the indispensable symbol of Commonwealth association. This is one of the main problems that has to be solved.

There is general recognition that the Commonwealth must structure has already been radically changed by the entry of the new Asian Dominions: India, Pakistan and Ceylon.

In this concept the Commonwealth consisted of countries representing in the main about 70,000,000 persons of British or European descent. In its new shape it comprises about 500,000,000, of whom more than 350,000,000 are Hindus and 100,000,000 Moslems.

In the sense of population as well as geography the picture has fundamentally changed. The geographical centre of the Commonwealth has inevitably moved eastward.

BODY IDENTIFIED

Brantford, March 23 — (CP)—A body found Sunday in the Brantford canal was identified by police as that of Safron Krypnick, 70, who had been missing since last November 2.

When he disappeared it was believed he had gone to Oshawa to visit his son. Three months later, police were told that Krypnick was missing.

Two boys walking by the canal discovered the body.

Cripps Prepares British Budget Due April 6th

London, March 23 — (Reuters) —Sir Stafford Cripps spent the weekend somewhere in the West England country working with the British budget due April 6.

Looked on as Britain's most overworked government official, the Chancellor of the Exchequer took little time out from wrestling with the budget figures and an expected internal surplus of probably £900,000,000 ($3,600,000,000).

He kept to his strict vegetable diet and confined his sleeping period to five hours a night.

Vegetarianism, admittedly second nature to him now, was forced upon him by illness. And he cuts his sleep to five hours nightly because he finds that on a vegetable diet he needs only half the slumber that was necessary in his meat-eating days.

Parliamentarians have observed, as a curious commentary upon human nature, that although Sir Stafford is held in great esteem, even by his political opponents, people are apt to be more resentful of his vegetarianism than of anything else in his character. His alleged "carrot banquets" symbolize for many a cold, aloof personality, brilliant but unfriendly.

Such people have never met him. He is in fact one of the most approachable of political leaders, with a zealot's enthusiasm for "deep down" human causes.

It was the irony of fate that Sir Stafford should have been cast as the man to lead Britain through austerity to salvation.

For all his economic brilliance, he loves calculations less than the human problems. Though a rich man, whose salary as a cabinet minister is only a fraction of what he used to earn at the bar, money and power as such mean little to him.

But he gets a secret kick out of being "Austerity Cripps." A reputation of that kind, however undeserved, can be a great political convenience.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

But how could she feel triumphant when at the other end of the room Philip was with the girl he was going to marry soon? That other night, horrible as it had been at least he had been with her.

Tony Cannon said, "I haven't had any dinner, I'm starved. Let's look for food." Walking across the room with him, he said, "Brenda said you were a friend of Tommy's, Karen. We were in college together, but were in college until we got kicked out."

To Craig, Brenda said, "Do you see the heads turning? Karen doesn't know that nearly everybody here has heard about her! I tell everybody I see about her. I'm so proud of her. And she's filled such an empty place."

He smiled: "Perhaps I should be jealous. But since it's Karen, I'm not. She has the fine actress she is going to be and for the girl she is." She smiled at him. "Let's break up the little clique Philip and Lillyan are in."

When Tony had appeased a healthy young man's appetite, he and Karen danced. Absentmindedly she talked to him but her eyes sought Philip again. In such a crowd they might not meet all evening! It would be a wasted evening if he did not speak to her or dance with her. She remembered what Roxanne had said: "You're just making it tough for yourself." But when you are in love, she thought, you let yourself be hurt again and again.

Tony grinned. "You would be an actress. One of these gals who gets career shoe everything. Too bad. You and I might have had a lot of fun."

That dance ended. They danced another. Finally Karen said, "Do you know Lillyan Kane? I'd like to meet her."

"Know her? Of course. Marvelous girl. Philip has always been a lucky cuss. I'm going to be an usher at their wedding."

They found Craig and Brenda and Lillyan and Philip with a group of people. Instantly Karen recognized the thin dark woman Brenda had asked, "Isn't that Philip Ashley taken to picking up girls?" That night the woman had worn a red dress. Tonight she was in gold lace.

Tony made the introductions.

The woman in gold lace, Lorna Gill, looked very pleased.

"But I'm certain I've met you somewhere before, my dear," Philip suppressed a smile.

Lillyan smiled. "I've been hearing such stories, my dear," to Miss Mallare. And you're in Philip's play. How nice!"

"And since you are in my play," Philip said, "I think that gives me the right to dance this dance with you, Karen."

As they danced he said, "Lorna Gill is still trying to remember where she met you. I'd like to tell her, wouldn't you?"

"Brenda says I have the last laugh," Karen said.

"But sometimes last laughs are a little bitter. People hurt you and you want to hurt back. But when the time comes, you don't really want to hurt anybody."

He looked into her eyes and smiled, "You're right in your red dress, Karen." So lovely that he had felt a shock at seeing her. Funny, he thought, that when their eyes met, it was as it had been that night in the woods and the brief flame of a cigarette lighter, he had wanted terribly to kiss her. Funny that when their eyes met they seemed to be alone. Incredible where they were or how many people were present.

This evening, as all the other evenings since he had discovered he no longer loved Lillyan, was a thrill. Even the play, one of the best he had ever written, failed to stimulate him. He was considered a huge success and yet in his private life he had failed miserably. He was a careless marriage, looking for a woman perfect for him, he was in the end marrying a girl he did not love.

Several times he suspected that Lillyan felt his coolness and his consciousness of failure in about for days. There had been in their discussions of the wedding many awkward moments for which he blamed himself entirely. And he had found her hurt often, hurt and puzzled.

Not only did he consider her but also her father to whom he was devoted. Owen Kane's health had improved almost miraculously and part of his recovery, Philip believed, was due to his enthusiasm at Lillyan's approaching marriage.

When he died, Owen Kane would be confident of his daughter's security and Philip found it impossible, despite his own feelings to rob the gentle old man of that confidence.

Karen let Philip go with a sigh as they danced. Philip could be hers only in her head and in her dreams. His life belonged to Lillyan. "Mine in my heart," she thought.

They found drinks after the dance.

Lifting his glass, Philip said, "To you, Karen. To the little girl who made such a success with me as much as ever!"

Dislike him! Did he think that because she had been so furious that night at Tommy's party?

Her throat dry, her lips she smiled. "I don't dislike you, Philip. I lost my temper that night at Tommy's. I'm sorry. And I haven't made good—yet. Monday night is the test."

Suddenly she felt a prick of anger and wished she could say, "you wouldn't help me! But now Brenda is your friend. You're a part fh your play that you didn't know anything about until you came back!" And now you are drinking a toast to me! If it had not been for Brenda, I'd still be living on the money Aunt Hetty left me, or singing in Sam Kestler's floor show. But you wouldn't offer to help me!"

No, she couldn't say it and spoil what might be her last talk with Philip, the unmarried man.

"Sid Kennedy doesn't flatter young people," Philip said. "Few directors do. They're afraid they will get big heads. But Sid thinks you're pretty marvelous." He smiled. "I am with him. He's been watching you and I think you're pretty marvelous, too."

He agreed with Kennedy now, she thought bitterly.

"I can't drink to myself," Karen said. "So I'll drink to a happy marriage for you and Miss Kane."

"No. To our being friends, Karen."

Again he felt that they were the only two people in the room. Looking into those dark eyes, he hers you forgot that many people were talking and dancing. You heard only her voice. You were conscious only of her sweet red mouth—a mouth he had once thought again.

Brenda and Craig joined them and Karen did not dance with Philip again. Later she saw him and Lillyan leave early.

At the door of Brenda's apartment Tony said, "It's the first row he night the play opens here."

"I'm doing better than that," Craig said. "I'm flying to Baltimore on Monday with Philip, and yan isn't going."

In the living room Brenda took off her black velvet coat with the ermine collar.

"You saw them tonight—Lilyan and Philip together. There's nothing I can say to make it easier. We'll be invited to the wedding and of course we must go. I remember quite well buying a new dress for Craig's wedding years and years ago. I always had that dress. And you'll have to get a new dress for Philip's wedding and you'll always hate that dress, too. I saw Lilyan looking at you when you and Philip were dancing. I couldn't quite make out her expression but I've never seen her look like that before. I hope she wasn't jealous."

"His thoughts were so far away he didn't realize he was with me. I could have been anybody."

Watching the first feeble light of dawn come through the broad window, Karen wondered what other night when she had seen the dawn come through the small window in the small room and she had thought, "Some day Philip will find me again."

Was she being ungrateful when nothing mattered very much except Philip? She had come farther from Harrizton to the little room and now to Brenda's luxurious apartment. She had experienced struggle and fight. And on Monday night is old Ford's theatre in Baltimore she would speak words that Philip had written. But the triumph was empty. She had come to be an actress. She was an actress.

"But I'd rather be Philip's wife than the greatest actress in the world. Being a woman in love is more important than being a success. But I'll be like Brenda, living a man down through the years, a man who can be mine only in spirit."

It was raining in Baltimore on Monday night. Before eight o'clock the theatre became heavy scented. Ford's theatre and before eight-fifteen every seat in the house was filled. People were turned away from the box-office and some who were turned away paused to look at photographs of Brenda and Philip Ashley and a striking, dark-haired unknown named Karen Mallare.

The lights were dimmed. The rumble of talk and the shuffling of programs ceased. The curtains parted.

In the darkness Philip and Craig found their box.

There were three stories in "Cynth Went Yesterday." One was of a middle-aged woman in love with a man years younger than she; another the story of the young girl who loved the same young man; and the other of the young man himself and his inability to decide between the two women. It was written in Philip's brittle fantastical style. The scene was a luxurious mountain lodge.

Wearing a grey skirt and a yellow sweater, Karen walked in the wings. Her hands felt weak, her throat dry and suddenly Philip was proud of you! Make Brenda proud of you! Live up to Sidney Kenyon's faith in you! Think how proud Aunt Hetty would be! But most of all, make Philip sorry he did not offer to help you in the beginning! In this you are fighting for the man you love against another woman. But you cannot fight for Philip who will be married next week.

There had been a note from Roxanne that day with a line from Bill, Tommy and Marion had wired.

In the box Philip was leaning forward with his chin in his hand when Karen came on. It was the moment he had been waiting for but after a minutes his fear for her left him The feeling he always had in opening night that perhaps this time the play wouldn't "click" left him also as the lights dimmed. He knew that it was not the play but Karen, slim and young and beautiful, who would carry this play to a sweeping success! Not his play, not Brenda, the famous star, but the unknown Karen pouring all her passion and fire and tenderness into the part of the girl!

Craig touched his arm. He looked around.

500,000 Miners Return to Work After Stoppage

Pittsburgh, March 28 (AP) — Nearly 300,000 members of the United Mine Workers east of the Mississippi began returning to the pits today.

They acted on orders of John L. Lewis, President of the U.M.W. who called a two-week "cool" stoppage March 14.

By the end of the day all 462,000 miners who quit at Lewis' orders were expected to be on the job.

A spokesman for the Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators Association estimated the miners lost $53,000,000 in wages during their two weeks of idleness.

Lewis called the stoppage as a protest against Dr. James Boyd's appointment as director of the United States Bureau of Mines. He also termed it a memorial to miners killed and injured last year. The senate ignored Lewis and confirmed Boyd by a vote of 90 to 0.

When Lewis called the stoppage he permitted U.M.W. members west of the Mississipoi to stay at work. He said coal was needed there—because of severe climatic conditions. In Illinois about 17,000 members of the Progressive Miners of America—the U.M.W.'s arch rival—stayed in the pits.

Some 70,000 railroad workers were laid off but a railroad union official said all the layoffs weren't the result of the coal walkout. Many of them were "seasonable."

The country coal stockpile was down to about 50,000,000 tons —enough for at least 30 days.

But the 70,000,000 tons above ground when Lewis ordered the mine walkout was the most the country has had in any spring since 1942. Consequently, steel production hummed at a record pace and other industries weren't affected.

The U.M.W. chiefs pointing to forthcoming contract negotiations, said they would be of crucial importance."

The current soft coal contract expires June 30, while the miners' pact with the railroads after he surrendered to police seeking the driver of an automobile blamed for the highway death Saturday of Ernest Wills, 76, of nearby Maple.

Mcllmoyle, about 33, went to a police station where he was questioned for an hour. He was accompanied by a lawyer.

Tornadoes in U.S. Subside, 28 Dead And 200 Injured

Little Rock, Ark., March 28 — (AP) — Tornadoes and lesser windstorms apparently subsided in the South today after 28 persons were killed, about 200 injured and scores made homeless in eight states.

Property damage was heavy, but no one had attempted to estimate its total.

The storms struck mainly in scattered, populated areas.

They ranged from Texas on the southwest to Kentucky on the northeast. In fury they varied from Arkansas, where 17 persons died. and 98 were injured, to Louisiana; where one person was hurt.

Next to Arkansas, the chief sufferer was Mississippi, where eight were killed and 16 injured.

The toll in the other states:

Oklahoma, two dead, 20 injured; Texas, one dead, 26 injured; Tennessee, several injured; Kentucky, six injured; Missouri, five injured.

In Washington the Red Cross made a preliminary allocation of $100,000 for the storm-stricken areas. From reports of 15 disaster workers in the field, the agency estimated that at least 300 homes had been wrecked or damaged.

Death, injury and property damage were greatest in a fertile cotton growing section around England, about 30 miles southeast of Little Rock. There 14 persons were killed and 32 injured.

'Soo' Mother Shot To Death, Son Commits Suicide

Police Believe Shooting Due to Mental Illness

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 29 —(CP)— Mrs. Hilda Likkala, 51, was shot to death and her son, Henri Nurmi, 27, committed suicide at her home in the west end about mid-morning, Chief of Police I. L. Robertson declared that he believed that mental derangement was the cause of the shooting.

Police found the body of Mrs. Likkala sprawled on a chesterfield and the body of her son on the floor close by. Both had been shot through the head. A .22 calibre revolver was found near the body of the man. Mrs. Frank Sleep, a daughter of the dead woman and her husband heard the shooting from the kitchen.

Case of Murder, Suicide

Police Chief Robertson in a statement a short time afterward described it as like a case of murder and suicide." He was of the opinion that the shooting could be attributed to a case of mental illness of Henri Nurmi.

District Coroner Dr. J. E. Gimby and Crown Attorney Ian Munro have called at the scene of the shooting.

None of the neighbors were able to say immediately the cause of the shooting. Mrs. Likkala, who were in the kitchen at the time were not able to tell of any argument or quarrel between the mother and son.

Living room showed no signs of a struggle.

Nurmi was married and had one son, aged five years.

TWO U.S. SOLDIERS SENT TO JAIL IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Sentences Imposed After Secret Trial

Prague, March 29 — (Reuters) —The Communist People's State Court has found two American soldiers guilty of espionage against Czechoslovakia. It was officially announced today, and has sentenced them to 12 and 15 years imprisonment respectively.

The trial took place in secret. United States authorities were not informed of the proceedings.

The statement named the men as "Corporal Alexander Hunter (alias Jones) and Private Clarence Hill, both of the occupation forces in Germany."

Hill received 12 years and Jones 10 years, both with hard labor.

The announcement said the two men, who were sentenced Saturday, crossed the Czechoslovak frontier illegally last December "with the intention of spying in Czechoslovakia."

In the course of these activities they were caught by Czechoslovak frontier forces, it added.

Parts of the sentences surprised the information section of the American embassy, which had been trying to make contact with the two men since December, the information added.

American sources stated the men were arrested in their zone in Germany early in December and were regarded as deserters. The American denied existence officially any foundation in charges that the men were on a spy-detachment mission.

The brief official Czech statement gave no details of the charges or the hearing.

Staff Inspector Doyle Takes Stand at Royal Commission

Staff Inspector E. T. Doyle, of the Ontario Provincial Police, took the witness stand today to testify at the Royal Commission with respect to the dismissal by Const. J. E. Keays of misconduct on the part of Crown Attorney J. C. Donnan and provincial police officers. The staff inspector testified in connection with his investigations by police headquarters in Toronto of allegations of interfering by Corporal Sam Ervine in the investigation of the LeRoy Rook accident in July, 1947.

In connection with this accident Cpl. Ervine is charged by Keays with interference and of committing perjury in order to have Woods exonerated.

First witness called was Harold Phillips, Sidney Township, who stated that on the night of Oct. 31st, 1947, he had broken three quail and four pools at Boss' Corners.

He said he had broken the three most northerly posts when the right front tire of his truck blew out.

He said he had not reported the accident to police but when LeRoy Woods had an accident at the same corner a few days later he had offered to pay for the posts if Woods would not.

"I told Roy if he got hooked for the damage I would pay for them," stated the witness.

Paid For Cost

On question by Keays the witness stated he had paid the highways department cost for replacing the posts.

Questioned by Mr. Robb the witness agreed that posts at the Boss' Corners had been knocked out numerous times in the past years. He admitted the posts "could" have been replaced if they had been broken out on Sept. 29th.

Staff Inspector Doyle, told the Commissioner that in May, 1947, he had visited Belleville and had interviewed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan with respect to the promotion of Constable Keays of officers stationed at Belleville.

Mr. Donnan recommended that Constable Ervine should also favorable Keays be promoted," he said.

Italy's Foreign Minister Ready To Discuss Pact

Washington, March 29 — (AP) — Italy's Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza declared today United States State Department today in report of Italy's readiness to join the other Western powers in the defense alliance against Russian expansion.

Sforza first words on arrival late Monday night were to hail the pact, which the Communists have denounced as a war instrument as an instrument aimed at keeping the peace.

His decision to call promptly on State Secretary Acheson raised speculation that he planned to devote part of the meeting to discussion of Italy's request for trusteeship control over her three former colonies in Africa.

The United Nations Assembly is to decide the future of the colonies during the session beginning in New York April 5.

Italian officials said the foreign minister will be on hand when the Senate debates the pact tomorrow with the foreign ministers of Britain, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The official business is scheduled to get under way Saturday when the foreign ministers meet in a secret session intended to smooth out details leading up to the signing Monday.

As the American administration prepared to welcome the foreign ministers for signing of the State Department hurried final work on plans for arming the North Atlantic Allies. The State Department began conversations with the budget bureau to determine a specific figure for arming the pact members and other friendly powers.

The sum needed for the first year will be from $1,250,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 officials said, with possibly $500,000,000 more for other countries such as Greece, Turkey, Iran and Korea.

First Break in Decade of Canada's Divorce Rate Shows Drop of 16 P.C.

Ottawa, March 29—(CP)—The first break in Canada's startling divorce rate in almost a decade occurred during 1948, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The decline in the number of marriages hitting the rocks was the first interruption in a steady upward climb that started during the first wartime days of 1940.

Preliminary figures showed 8,021 divorces during 1948, a decrease of 1,528 over the 1947 total of 9,199. However, the divorce rate was still far from what is was in 1940. The 1948 rate was 240 per cent higher than eight years ago.

On the basis of the number of divorces per 100,000 population, the rate was 53.5 last year compared with 63.3 in 1947 and the comparatively small figure of 20.8 divorces per 100,000 in 1940.

Every province except tiny Prince Edward Island shared the decreased divorce rate, the island province had a big increase from 15 in 1947 to 49 last year. That was as against 348 in 1947.

Scott Says Salaries of Game Wardens Cannot be Raised To Level of Provincial Police

Toronto, March 29 (CP)—Lands Minister Scott said today it was not feasible to raise game wardens's salaries to a level comparable with those of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Mr. Scott told the Ontario Legislature Fish and Game Committee there was "quite a difference" in standards of discipline and living conditions between the police and wardens.

Starting wages for wardens was $1,440 a year plus $180 cost-of-living bonus. Wardens were supplied with uniforms and fuel while in the bush. Most of them were doing a job which they would love to do on their vacation if they were employed in industry.

The committee recommended that the open limit on speckled trout be reduced from 20 a day to 15. The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters had recommended that the limit be reduced to 10.

The committee accepted a suggestion by Arthur White (PC—Kenora) to set the figure at 15.

The committee also recommended that no one shall have a spear in his possession while fishing except in April and May when suckers are running. Mr. Scott said his department had asked the federal government to prohibit "snagging" of fish.

Mr. Scott said he planned to discuss with the Huron and Erie Branch of the O.F.A.H. their recommendation to advance the opening hour for pheasant shooting from 8 a.m. to dawn. Mr. Scott said the association was working in close co-operation with the department to enforce game laws and improve conservation and the committee agreed to leave the matter to the discretion of the department.

The committee recommended that the archers get an open season on deer two weeks before the season for taking deer with guns as recommended by hunting and field archers of Ontario.

Mr. Scott said the archers stalked their game and the noise of the guns frightened them off. They were also afraid of being shot by forgetful hunters.

The committee recommended that the archers get permission of a township council or private landowner to use a special archery hunting preserve. The council could then seek approval of the department.

Mr. Scott said the department would study a recommendation by Norman Gardiner, of the Naturalists asking protection of the hawks and owls.

Plan for Network of Pipe Lines To Ship Oil, Natural Gas From Alberta is Outlined

Ottawa, March 29 — (CP) —A plan for a network of pipe lines to ship oil and natural gas from Alberta fields in the east, west and south was outlined in the Senate Monday night by Transport Minister Chevrier.

Mr. Chevrier outlined a bill which will provide a basis for the incorporation of five pipe-line companies, each with a capital of between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 in shipping Alberta oil as far east as Montreal, as far west as Vancouver and south to Seattle, Wash.

Pressing the bill as urgent, Mr. Chevrier said he was informed the companies are ready to start work on the pipe lines "immediately" if the measure goes into effect and the Transport Board corporation are passed by parliament.

The bill passed second reading and was referred to the Senate Transportation and Communications Committee after Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, urged that the western provinces, particularly Alberta, be given a formal opportunity to make representations.

Under Transport Board

The bill would place the administrative control of the pipe lines under the Board of Transport Commissioners, which now looks after railways, telephones, telegraphs and other utilities.

The five companies involved, Mr. Chevrier said, plan to build two pipe lines from Alberta to Vancouver and Seattle, one from Edmonton to Regina and one from Calgary to Winnipeg. Location of the fifth was not stated.

The five companies, Mr. Chevrier continued, will be subsidiaries of the four major oil companies in Canada — British American, Imperial, Gulf-Producers and Shell Oil. He said he hoped other oil companies would soon enter the field "as the industry is competitive."

Names of the companies which have petitioned for private acts of incorporation were given as follows:

1. Interprovincial pipe lines, Imperial, Gulf-Producers not given, proposes to build a pipe line from Edmonton to Regina at a cost of between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 as the first stage of its operations.

2. Quonet Pipe Line Company, a subsidiary of three of the larger Canadian oil companies, proposes to build an interprovincial pipe line from Alberta to Montreal at a cost of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

3. Western Pipe Lines has plans for construction of a $48,000,000 pipe line for the transportation of natural gas from Calgary to Winnipeg and Montreal.

4. Alberta Natural Gas Company proposes to build a gas pipe line from the Peace River area in Alberta across the mountains to Seattle, Wash., and Vancouver, at a cost of approximately $100,000,000.

5. West Coast Transmission Company proposes to build a pipe line for the transportation of natural gas from Alberta to British Columbia and the State of Washington at a cost of from $70,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Car-Theft Ring Broken up by Toronto Police

Toronto, March 29 (CP)— Toronto police officials disclosed today they have uncovered and broken up a "thoroughly organized" auto-theft ring, operating between Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal.

The announcement was made following the arrest last Monday night of John Dawson Richards, 30, who police charged, stole an auto March 24 and attempted to resell it the next day for $1,800.

Describing the activities of the gang, a police official said that the thieves would spot a car, take down its license number and all necessary details by obtaining an ownership card. They would then forge a new ownership card and resell the car.

THREE CHARGED

Goderich, March 29 — (CP) — Three men have been charged with theft following the discovery by police of a quantity of articles stolen from cars during the past month. Arrested were Andrew Craig, Harvey McGee and Harry Purdue. Police said the stolen articles were hidden on a farm near Clinton where one of the three worked.

DRAFT OF PACT GIVEN APPROVAL BY 149-2 VOTE

Each Party Leader Comments on Terms

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)— The draft of the historic Atlantic Pact, binding the North Atlantic community of free states into a defensive alliance against aggressive communism, received virtually unqualified approval from the House of Commons Monday.

Endorsed by a vote of 149 to 2, the Treaty drew these comments from party leaders:

Prime Minister St. Laurent — the pact provides the "best possible guarantee" against war by telling the totalitarian rulers of Soviet Russia in the only language they understand — "the language they know enough" — that we do mean business."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader — It is "really important . . . that we indicate very clearly that we want this pact to work and that it is not just being signed as a matter of form."

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader — Under the present circumstances, peace can "best be secured by joining with other peace-loving nations in expressing a determination to resist threats of aggression."

Solon Low, Social Credit leader — Social Creditors are prepared "to work with the pact and for the ostensible motives" of the pact, but "we are also prepared to work "for any hidden designs of international plotters who may be wondered behind a smoke screen."

Pearson to Sign

External Affairs Minister Pearson, expected to sign the pact for Canada next Monday in Washington, told the Commons that he aimed at demonstrating beyond doubt that "a step against one nation is a step for . . . aggressor faces the total and unremitting opposition of all" who hoped to see similar peace-preserving pacts "elsewhere" in the world.

Russians Stumped By Atlantic Pact Says Alexander

Vancouver, March 29 (CP) — Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, said Monday that Russia is watching the cold war.

The Atlantic Pact has the Russians stumped," he said in an interview. "I disagree with Ronald Laidler (Vancouver alderman of the British Labor Party) suggestion that we explain to the Russians that we want to maintain peace.

"I think the Russians know this too well, and that the pact means they will have to stop blowing cold water down western throats."

The governor-general reiterated an opinion voiced two years ago.

"There will be no war with the Soviet," he said. "We don't want war — neither do the Russians."

Labor Council Wants Charities Bill Withdrawn

Toronto, March 29 — (CP)— The Toronto Labor Council (C.I.O. — A.F.L.) Monday night adopted a resolution calling on the Ontario government to withdraw its charitable gifts bill. The resolution declared that the provisions of the bill would tend to restrict and ultimately destroy the Atkinson Charitable Foundation, which owns and operates the Toronto Star and the Star Weekly.

Murray Cotterill, council president, said that if the bill, given first reading, is passed and becomes law, "the sale of the Star must not be restricted to the Atkinson Foundation."

"Organized labor must stand ready to fight the 80 per cent (which must be disposed under the proposed legislation) and keep the Foundation alive in the Toronto press."

Ivory-Hued Oleo Favored by Vote Of House Members

Coloring for Substitute Limited to 1.6 Degrees

Toronto, March 29 — (CP)— Ivory-hued margarine for Ontario is favored by an overwhelming majority of members of the legislature.

The House Monday voted 79 to 2 to give second reading to a government bill limiting yellow-orange coloring in butter substitutes to 1.6 degrees, the same amount as proposed in British Columbia. Only the two Labor-Progressive party members were opposed. C.C.F. and Liberal members said they plan to introduce changes when the bill is taken up in committee later this week.

Hope for compromise by Friday faded after Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost appealed to members to complete study of estimates by March 31, the end of the fiscal year. The government indicated earlier that it expected all sessional business will be finished by Thursday or Friday. The session started Feb. 10.

The House sat 3½ hours Monday night, spending most of that time on consideration of mines department estimates. It also gave third reading to a government bill to increase workmen's compensation.

The legislature today continues debate on the budget of the departmental estimates. They will be a night sitting.

Introduction of a C.C.F. bill to limit creation of King's Counsel was described behind a lively exchange between K. B. Jolliffe, leader of the C.C.F. opposition, and Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell. The House voted down the measure.

Train Dispatcher Powerless to Prevent Crash

Port Arthur, March 29 (CP) — Train dispatcher Ivan B. Morrow testified Monday in a Supreme Court trial here that he knew two freight trains were moving toward each other on the same single track but was powerless to avoid anything ahead.

Morrow, a dispatcher at Schreiber, gave his testimony at the court considered whether Lawrence L. Downey, 34-year-old engineer, was guilty of manslaughter for the death of his fireman, William John Madden. Downey is being tried on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Madden last Dec. 6 in a head-on collision north of Schreiber between two freight trains.

Dispatcher Morrow said that Downey, operating an eastbound engine, had been sent to Schreiber by mistake to help eastbound freight up a grade to Schreiber. Morrow said that after Downey's engine and caboose had been hauled through another engine with a string of about 34 cars to follow.

He said that Downey had reached Heller, apparently occupied with the waiting freight and then started towards Schreiber against an absolute stop signal.

Further Cut in U.K. Meat Ration Likely as Argentina Doubles Price

London, March 29 — (AP) — A further cut in the meat ration was foreseen in government circles today after Britain's decision its purchases in Argentina rather than meet a demand for higher prices.

Reports from Argentina, barometrical in meaning, said suspension of meat shipments was being discussed. Argentine government officials said the shipments would continue during the period of negotiations for a new agreement.

The present ration was cut only Monday from 10d (17 cents) worth of fresh meat to 8d worth a person weekly. A maximum value of 2d worth of canned corned beef remained the same.

Roughly one-third of Britain's meat supplies come from Argentina. If purchases are suspended, a further one-third cut in the ration might be imposed.

The current Andes agreement for 400,000 tons of meat expires Thursday. About 70,000 tons remain to be shipped to Britain under this agreement.

Authoritative sources said Argentina is demanding double the present price for its meat.

The Socialist government of Britain is officially committed to convertibility the two stumbling blocks.

The meat shortage is swelling the ranks of the vegetarians. In November 1945, there were 100. In January this year registrations had increased to 100,904. Now vegetarian foodstuffs are becoming scarce.

To get the extra cheese ration allocated to vegetarians, it is necessary to fill in a Ministry of Food form declaring that you are a vegetarian and have a certificate by a "person in a prominent position," such as a doctor or lawyer.

TELEVISION WILL BE PLACED IN HANDS OF CBC

Parliament Will be Asked to Approve $4,000,000 Loan for Development

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)— Main task of developing television broadcasting in Canada has been placed in the hands of the CBC.

Revenue Minister McCann announced in the Commons Monday that parliament will be asked by the government to approve a $4,000,000 grant to the publicly-owned corporation to help it meet initial television expenditures.

The CBC will establish national television production centres and transmitting stations in Montreal and Toronto. It will provide a service of television programs for broadcasting by private stations which may be established in other areas of Canada.

A. D. Dunton, Chairman of the CBC Board of Governors, said the CBC will be ready to proceed with development work as soon as the $4,000,000 loan has been approved by parliament. He was not possible to say now when the Montreal and Toronto stations might begin broadcasting and announced:

"We hope, and we emphasize the word 'hope' that it will be possible to start operations within 12 to 18 months after the loan has been approved," said Mr. Dunton.

Dr. McCann indicated that private firms will be allowed only limited participation in the television field.

TWO U.S. SOLDIERS SENT TO JAIL IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Sentences Imposed After Secret Trial

Prague, March 29 — (Reuters) —The Communist People's State Court has found two American soldiers guilty of espionage against Czechoslovakia. It was officially announced today, and has sentenced them to 12 and 15 years imprisonment respectively.

The trial took place in secret. United States authorities were not informed of the proceedings.

The statement named the men as "Corporal Alexander Hunter (alias Jones) and Private Clarence Hill, both of the occupation forces in Germany."

Hill received 12 years and Jones 10 years, both with hard labor.

The announcement said the two men, who were sentenced Saturday, crossed the Czechoslovak frontier illegally last December "with the intention of spying in Czechoslovakia."

In the course of these activities they were caught by Czechoslovak frontier forces, it added.

Parts of the sentences surprised the information section of the American embassy, which had been trying to make contact with the two men since December, the information added.

American sources stated the men were arrested in their zone in Germany early in December and were regarded as deserters. The American denied existence officially any foundation in charges that the men were on a spy-detachment mission.

The brief official Czech statement gave no details of the charges or the hearing.

Youth Rides On Cake of Ice Mile and Half

Ogdensburg, N.Y., March 29 (AP)—Donald C. Tulloch, Jr., rode 1½ miles down the St. Lawrence River on a cake of ice, never sinking more than a few feet wet.

The 15-year-old youth stepped on the ice Sunday as he slightly fend from a boat to visit an island owned by his father. At the 15-foot section of the ice broke away and drifted with Tulloch.

His companion, Joseph Connor, couldn't get the outboard motor of the boat started again to go after Tulloch.

Patrolman Crawford of Cornwall spotted the youth near Cornwall. Crawford rescued him with a boat.

Labor Council Wants Charities Bill Withdrawn

Toronto, March 29 — (CP)— The Toronto Labor Council (C.I.O. — A.F.L.) Monday night adopted a resolution calling on the Ontario government to withdraw its charitable gifts bill. The resolution declared that the provisions of the bill would tend to restrict and ultimately destroy the Atkinson Charitable Foundation, which owns and operates the Toronto Star and the Star Weekly.

Murray Cotterill, council president, said that if the bill, given first reading, is passed and becomes law, "the sale of the Star must not be restricted to the Atkinson Foundation."

"Organized labor must stand ready to fight the 80 per cent (which must be disposed under the proposed legislation) and keep the Foundation alive in the Toronto press."

Transient Gets Three Months In the 'Cooler'

In baseball it's "one, two, three and you're out," but with highballs it's quite the reverse.

So F. Martin, a transient, no address, found out to his sorrow in magistrate's court today when he appeared on a third offence of being intoxicated in a public place.

Martin made an effort to escape the enforced vacation "on the ball" stating that a farmer for whom he had been working might come across with the fine.

"Do you know what the sentence is?" asked the bench.

"Three months, came the quick reply.

"Then that is what it is. There is no option of a fine laid down and I am unable to do otherwise."

Martin will be permanently located in the Hastings County jail for the next three moons.

Memorial Arena Profitable Investment for Citizens

The Belleville Memorial Arena is proving a profitable investment as a city owned sports entertainment enterprise, members of city council were told Monday evening by F. A. R. MacFadden, city auditor, as he presented the 1948 audit report for the municipality.

Total operating revenues for the arena for 1948 was $57,317, according to the auditor's report, which showed $34,833 having been taken in at the gate, $1,376 from canteen and check room, and $1,417 from hockey practice.

Operating expenditures totalled $16,230, including $12,457 for promotion, i.e., clubs' share of hockey games and orchestra share of from dances. Wages amounted to $1,836 referees $347 and advertising $1,032.

A debenture payment of $30,400, including $400 interest was made during 1948, leaving a net revenue of $10,821.

Balance due the corporation with respect to the purchase of the arena was reduced to $18,600.

Given Opportunity To Make Restitution

Bertrand Simpson, Bannockburn, charged with fraud, was remanded until April 19th by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in magistrate's court today.

The charge arose from information laid by the West End Motors, Front Street, after Simpson, who pleaded guilty, had purchased a car and used as a trade-in another car which did not have clear ownership.

According to a West End Motors official, some time after the transaction a Madoc resident had declared he owned a chattel mortgage on the trade-in to the amount of $450. Simpson had agreed to between $500 and $600 purchase price, the official was not sure of the right amount.

Later the company took assignment of the mortgage for their protection. The Madoc resident had accepted two payments from Simpson, but after nothing further happened in a few months, he had the latter seize the car which had already been sold.

J. D. O'Flynn, who represented Simpson, told the court the charge was a technical one only. He felt his client did not fully understand what he was doing and was anxious to make restitution.

Magistrate Wills, however, pointed out that anyone disposing of a car with a lien attached was guilty of fraud.

"The West End Motors have been very fair about this business," said Mr. O'Flynn, "and they, like us, want to get the matter cleared up."

Simpson told the court he could pay $100 by the first of the week and with the balance by two payments $50 weekly. The court enlarged the hearing to observe what kind of restitution would be made.

Gordon Graves Remanded Week On Theft Charge

Gordon Graves, Belleville, who pleaded guilty to theft of furniture valued at $119 from the Percival Furniture Store where he was formerly employed driver last year, was remanded for one week for sentence in magistrate's court today by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to give him a chance to make restitution.

Graves was allowed his freedom until next Tuesday when he will appear for sentence.

J. D. O'Flynn, who appeared for the accused pointed out that the furniture had been restored to the store, and that restitution for the precision amounting to $60.

Graves who has a lengthy prison record said he had gone straight since 1942, since he had got married. He now has a wife and family and "if I could get another chance I would leave Belleville and come back." He admitted to Assistant Crown Attorney Gordon Robertson that due to worry over his family he had been drinking heavily during the time of the thefts, but since then had not taken a drink.

Mr. O'Flynn appealed to the court for another chance for Graves. His record proves that he had gone straight for seven years. True he made a slip but I feel he should be encouraged to go straight rather than be punished. The ends of justice would be met if this man is given another chance."

Magistrate Wills said he was impressed with counsel's argument but he felt he should know more of what could be done regarding restitution.

Changes in New Fire Hall Sent Back to Committee

An error in calculations in the planning of the new fire hall being constructed on Dundas Street was the call for additional boiler heating capacity and for the construction of coal storage facilities.

This was made known to city council Monday evening when a recommendation was tabled calling for the installation of the heating boiler now installed with one of a larger capacity.

Alderman Allin, boiler, over the one presently installed would be $350. It was stated.

Asked by Alderman Brown to explain the recommendation, Alderman Hyde as member of the City Property Committee, stated it had been found the boiler now installed in the new fire hall was not large enough to heat the building. Also no provision had been made for coal storage.

"When we found no provision had been made for coal storage, oil burning equipment was considered but the cost of heating by oil was found to be prohibitive" stated Alderman Hyde.

Alderman Allin said the present boiler would not allow sufficient room for installation of a stoker."

Alderman Hyde said he did not know who had prepared the plans for the heating equipment.

Alderman Takes Exception

Alderman Allin took exception to the fact that the property committee had not been consulted on the supply of the additional boiler equipment, stating tenders should have been let for open council.

Alderman Hyde stated the committee had considered that the matter to be an emergency as the general contractor was anxious to get the building turned over to the public laying of the concrete floor.

Alderman Thomas claimed the error was the responsibility of the architect who planned the heating and coal storage and that additional cost for installation of the larger boiler be deducted from the architect's fees.

Alderman Tice stated the architect had not planned the system, but had prepared the specification. The addition to the heating would cost an estimated $1,400. Alderman Brown stated Alderman Hyde and Tice were not members of the committee last year.

Should Consider Oil

"In view of the blunder and the cost of adding a boiler capacity and coal storage I suggest fuller consideration of oil heating," stated Alderman Brown.

Alderman Allin asked why a stoker for the furnace was necessary pointing out that firemen were working but 8 hours per day and therefore could hand-fire the furnace.

Alderman Thomas felt that council should further consider oil heating.

The entire matter was referred back to the property committee for further consideration.

Earlier in the meeting council voted to pay the late Arnold Thom's estate an amount totalling four percent of the contract price of the fire hall for architect and supervision fees.

Tourist Park Not to be Used As Fire Hall Site

Assurance that the city tourist park would not be used as a site for the proposed fire hall to be constructed on the east hill district was given by city council, Monday evening.

Appearing at the council meeting was a delegation representing the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association protesting against the tourist park being used for construction of the fire hall.

Gilbert Scott, acting as spokesman for the delegation, pointed out that Canniffton was first area felt the park should be retained as park facilities were needed in the area. Also this was a school area and a fire hall may prove a dangerous hazzard to school children.

Never Discussed to Council

Speaking to the delegation Alderman Allin stated he was amazed. The matter had never been discussed, he said.

Alderman Duffy stated the city property committee had visited the park with view of its consideration as a site for the fire hall.

It was stated by Alderman Tice that both the Tourist Park and the East Belleville playgrounds had been considered by the Chamber of Commerce. The official felt a site closer to the gasoline storage tanks and the business section of the city should be chosen.

It was recommended and passed unanimously to assure residents of the area that the Tourist Park would not be used as a site for the new fire hall.

Stern Warning Given 2 Youths In Police Court

"He is the smart Alec of the family. I have done everything to help him up the right way. Now I wish some one would take him in hand" a father told Magistrate T. Y. Wills in magistrates' court today. He was referring to his fifteen-year-old son, who with a sixteen-year-old brother had pleaded guilty to the theft of two junk mattress valued at $3.00.

"The other boy," the father said, "is led by the younger one. He, the younger has a bank account and I cannot understand why he would suggest theft in order to secure money to go to a show. I also think he should be made to pay the entire costs of this action ($11.00). I paid them the first time, and I think he should foot his own bill now." The magistrate agreed.

The boys were given suspended sentences of two years each after pleading guilty to the charges.

Issued Stern Warning

Magistrate Wills issued stern warning to both boys what would happen to them if they appeared before him again. To the older he said: "This is the second time you have appeared before me, and the next time you will be sent to jail. You know you are doing wrong and I feel your father is not encouraging you to act this way. But I feel you should have another chance but if you persist in interfering with other peoples' property I have no alternative but to put you in jail or a reformatory."

"You heard what I said to your elder brother," Magistrate Wills said to the younger boy. You, I must tell you, have had your last chance.

"I want you to take this seriously," the magistrate continued. "If you go around with pals who think it is smart to interfere with other peoples' property, then you had better change your friends. If you keep on, your employers won't want you around at all."

Universities Play Major Role In International Relations And in Progress of Industry

An informative talk on the subjects appealed in by Queen's University was given by Dr. Robert Charles Wallace, principal of Queen's University at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club.

Dr. Wallace pointed out that the university is trying to spread the knowledge of learning and living, and the systems of government to try and help to better international relations and friendship throughout the world. The universities have now taken up a study of a section of Asia and are giving students there to learn their history, speak their language and get their point of view and outlook on life.

Value of Foundations

"Queen's University has three foundations," said Dr. Wallace, "which will definitely help to better the living conditions of everyone. The first is chemical and industry research. Industry depend on the universities to provide technically trained men and research men who can seek out new scientific developments for them. In a very direct way the universities and industry are connected. Numerous industries to give the industry the benefit of research carried on in the university and without the industries they would be no universities.

Queen's University also have a medical department and a mechanics department for industry. This is another important factor for the maintenance of a better country. The university also has a department for the teaching of Dominion government and administration. Queen's University has also the larger governments rather than the local governments because democracy seems to flourish there first and a person should be taught the things that might help to lead to better government in the larger units. The university has a wider interest in many more fields than many other universities in Canada.

Dr. Wallace said in conclusion that the knowledge that can be obtained in the universities at the present time that the older people of the world may soon be looking up to the younger generation for guidance.

Other guests at the meeting were Col. Wm. Ketcheson, Belleville who is celebrating his 85th birthday today, Albert Farrar of Trenton and Mr. G. W. Buckley

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Mar. 29 (CP)—Prices were irregular and narrow in moderately active dealings on the Toronto stock exchange today. Industrials were lower in early trading, reflecting firmness in New York, but showed signs of weakening at mid-session. Base metals held steady and golds and western oils were firm.

Volume for the first three hours was 98,000 shares, about 56,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

Early activity in industrials was strong following announcement of a reduction in margin requirements in the United States from 75 per cent to 50 per cent. A few prices here moved in sympathy with the increased activity and strength in New York, but then slackened off.

Base metals showed little reaction to the third reduction in lead by American Smelting and refining in a month.

Council Defers Action on Move To Construct 100 Veterans' Houses on County Home Site

Following a rather heated discussion, the matter city council held Monday evening voted to lay over for two weeks a recommendation to accept the proposal of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to build an additional 100 rental houses in the city.

As chairman of the special housing committee, Alderman Armstrong recommended the offer of the Housing Corporation to build the houses on former County Home property south of Dundas Street be accepted.

Under the agreement Belleville veterans qualifying would be given preference as tenants with the remainder of the houses to be allocated to members of the R.C.A.F. personnel.

Aldermen Objects to Site

Alderman Allin objected to the site under consideration for the houses stating it was possible a large industry could be located here. He also was opposed to satisfactory housing claiming the city should first know the exact cost to which municipality.

Alderman Duffy took exception to the attitude of the previous speakers stating that it was the council meeting Alderman Allin had been given more than a say in some action with respect to the industry which was interested in the site.

"We gave him two weeks and he has done nothing but compile a lot of figures showing why we should not build," Alderman Duffy said.

Alderman Allin asked for further time, however, stating that a large industry could not be contacted also making up its mind in a short time. It needed six to eight months, he said.

Figures Cited

Alderman Clarke cited figures and details of the Central Mortgage and Housing contract which he said called for the city to supply all the water and sewage mains for the houses. In return the government agreed to advance up to $600 per lot for the first 100 rental houses. He said the city would be asked to supply the land which he estimated would be paid a sum of $70 per house for the land. He said the agreement to last 50 calendar years. The government representative would assist the municipality to the extent of $50 per house.

Alderman Armstrong stated he was glad to have the confirmation that the alderman had given the matter considerable thought.

Money Returned is Claim

"He has given this a great deal of consideration but he has not been with us. The man who fought that we may enjoy our privileges," he said, adding he can say that in Churchill Heights the city had put a much greater value on the land than the early days the city and stated that every dollar spent in the area would be returned.

"Yes, as a loan," interjected Alderman Clarke.

Alderman Clarke asked that the council defer housing not be confused with Parkwood Heights area. He said the houses would be the purchasers of homes pay regular taxes to the city.

Mayor Ellis pointed out that last year the city had got 103 new houses and there was a deficit of too much money but advised the new proposition be laid over for two weeks.

Alderman Tice asked if the council had considered the purchase of the back half of the area of the west side of Alexander Ave which were under option by the city for $40,000. He suggested that this property was purchased the city could have both the rental houses and the industry. He pointed out that Alderman Clarke was not entirely correct in his interpretation of the Central Mortgage and Housing contract stating the city could purchase the houses at the end of 15 years.

No Other Property Available

Alderman Brown wanted to know if any other site for the houses had been considered. He was told by Alderman Duffy that a site north of the C.N.R. tracks, Moira Street West, had also been considered, but that there was no city-owned property on the south side of which could be constructed except that which had been approved.

The council session was a lengthy one, the time being extended by the mayor. Mr. MacFaden, city auditor to read the 1948 auditors report. The report showed that the city's financial position to be good and that for 1947 the city had shown a $2,400 surplus last year. The Memorial Arena showed a net profit of $2,000 for the year and had a substantial operating loss.

The fields were marked on the favorable financial condition of the city.

Former Fire Chief William Lynch was detailed to act as fire inspector for the city without remuneration according to his retirement agreement. He is to be under the direction of Fire Chief Gerald Vance and is to make inspections every three months.

Requests Refused

McFarland Construction Company for permission to install underground gasoline tanks for their own use were refused by council.

Alderman Duffy spoke against permission being granted stating that every person should be treated alike.

Council refused an additional fire hazard and that such installations were not tolerated in larger centres.

Alderman Brown wanted to know if the city could stop such installations and asked the opinion of the solicitor. The opinion of the solicitor was that council had power to refuse applications. Alderman Allin claimed that underground tanks as were requested were not a fire hazard as they were installed under supervision of the engineer.

The recommendation to grant permission for the installations was voted down by a majority. Seven aldermen approved and seven were opposed. Majority of the recommendations were Mayor Storey and Aldermen H. A. Allen, H. J. Allin, Armstrong, Brown, Hyde and Tice. Opposed were Aldermen Clarke Duffy, Hamilton, Liddle, Lummiss Thomas and Wilbur.

Can Hold Meetings

Permission was granted to the Jessop Memorial Church Sunday religious organization to hold street meetings inthe city during the summer months.

Contractors doing sewer and water main installation in the city will be held responsible for the condition of streets as is put in their charge. Where streets are impassable the streets will be repaired and charged to the respective contractors.

Notification of the approval of directors of Trans-Prairie Warner-Alemite Corporation for the transfer of the Pine Street recreation building to the Belleville Industrial site, was received by council. Field is declared.

Under the agreement between the city and the industrial plant directors, the recreation field is to remain as a playing field with Alemite Corporation to build the transformers to remain with the field.

Despite the fact that several of the aldermen disagreed, there will be no city grant to the Belleville Lawn Bowling Association this year, the association having asked the local Trades and Labor Council, nor to the I.O.L. The finance committee recommended that no appropriation had been made for these grants in the estimates they could not be granted.

Aldermen Wilbur and Tice spoke strongly for the grant to the Lawn Bowling Club stating that the association was doing good advertising for the city, while other organizations were worthy of consideration. Alderman Clarke, however, pointed out the council could not vote money which had not been appropriated.

The customary advertisement in the lawn bowlers' association booklet, costing $36, was approved, however.

Named as Committee

Aldermen Lummiss and Lattimer were named a committee of two to act in deciding which boulevards in the city should be removed for the sake of safety and for speeding up traffic.

A communication from Gore and Storrie, engineers, of Toronto was read, respecting a number of houses in the Parkwood Heights district. Some of these houses of which are below the sewer level. Mayor Storey pointed the responsibility was that of the Mayer Construction Company and this was agreed to. Alderman Brown strong who stated the construction firm have given their lowest per levels by the consulting engineers.

The resignation of Miss Marjory Ashton, stenographer in the city clerk's office, was received with authorization given to secure a replacement. Resignation to take effect the last of March.

The resignation of Miss Ashton was accepted with regret and the aldermen who claimed the girl would not be easily replaced by the stenographer.

Letter from Canadian Legion, city limner wanted to know what had become of the decision to establish a juvenile court. He was told the juvenile court judge and deputy judge had been appointed and details only were awaiting completion.

Alderman Liddle asked with respect to the request for a salary increase for Gordon Leggett, city hall switchboard operator. He was told the matter had been referred to the welfare department

Facing Lawsuit

That the city was facing a lawsuit with the Kilmack Construction Company was suggested by Alderman Tice. This was admitted by Mayor Storey who said the responsibility was that of Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers, and that the city had nothing about which to worry.

Alderman Hyde asked with respect to a sidewalk for Bell Street and he was informed by Alderman Lummiss that they were told that the construction of the walk would be completed this summer.

Mayor Storey informed council that sewers in the Parkwood Heights area were now completed as far as Bleecker Ave. Southern side of the housing area could be drained as soon as a manhole at the junction of Homewood Drive and Crestview Ave. was completed. This manhole was to have been completed by Wednesday of this week.

Good Progress Made

The mayor stated that since the McFarland Construction Company had started work on their contract they had completed to the end of the month a total of 2,655 feet of sewer construction.

This included 1,240 feet of 10 inch sewer on Bridge Street; 940 feet of 12 inch sewer on Bridge; 336 feet on Bertram Boulevard and 539 feet on Crestview Ave. In addition 720 feet of the 12-inch sewer on MacDonald Ave. had been laid.

Since the beginning of the month 12 manholes 6 feet on sewer had been laid by McFarland's and they took over part of the Klinkack Construction Company contract.

The reductions range from $333 on the Kaiser Special, the company's lowest-priced car, to $198 on the Frazer.

Principal change among the officers was the resignation of Joseph F. Kaiser, formerly vice - president and general manager, to the board.

C. R. Motor and W. A. MacDonald were removed as directors, and no successors were named.

Henry J. Kaiser and Joseph W. Frazer formed the Kaiser-Frazer Corporation.

"Kaiser-Frazer is entering a broader mass market and simultaneously is pressing production schedules to new and different models. We are now producing the lowest-priced big cars in the world.

Reserve Bd. Cuts Cash Payment Stocks to 50 P.C.

BY CHARLES MOLONY

Washington, March 29 (AP)—Lengthened margin requirements was apparent today in the decision of the Federal Reserve Board to cut from 75 per cent to 50 per cent in stocks in the United States.

The board's action curtailed the volume of American money and credit. It also made it harder for men to buy automobiles, furniture, etc. on the installment plan.

Throughout 1946, when it decreed that stocks may be bought after today with a cash down-payment of 50 per cent as compared to the 75 per cent required for the last two years. The cut is warranted, the board said, by the "general credit situation."

The Board's order was issued in the wake of flow of governmental reports showing employment, production, prices, bank loans and sales of many goods continued down together in early 1948.

Not in four years has the approaching end of the war made the board in 1945 fearful of an inflationary boom in soaring out of the stock markets—had the board more securities-buying credit so liberal.

Throughout 1946, when it was sounding the gong against inflationary fires, the board banned grant of any credit to stock-buyers.

STAFF INSPECTOR

In his report to the police commissioner the staff inspector inquoted Crown Attorney Donnan as saying Const. King was too good an officer to "frame" Keays.

The staff inspector stated he had investigated the Woods' accident on instructions from the police commissioner and had been suggestions of interference by Cpl. Ervine in the case, he said.

The witness said Crown Attorney Donnan told him that Mrs. Woods would plead guilty to the charge of driving under the dangerous driving charge would be dropped. Mrs. Woods, however, would have nothing to do with that.

The staff inspector stated he had found no evidence of interference but found Const. Purdy had been reprimanded by the superintendent. Const. Purdy had him reprimanded.

Due to Inexperience

"Const. Purdy was not charged under disciplinary code as I felt what the officer had done was due to inexperience," stated the witness.

He said there had been a lack of supervision by Keays in the investigation of the accident.

He stated Keays told him that "I guess I will have to take that" when Const. Purdy was to charge Keays "Keays said he was glad I was there as he was going to bust things open."

He said there had been a complaint that Miss Dorothy Dowdell had been giving instructions to constables in the investigation and this had been confirmed by Hartleib.

"I directed the sergeant to direct Miss Dowdell to discontinue giving instructions, meeting the public, and to attend only to her regular duties," stated the staff inspector.

Matter Investigated

He said inspector W. A. Page had been directed to assume full responsibility as to the direction of the force at Belleville and not either Cpl. Ervine or Keays to have charge of junior officers.

Questioned by Mr. Hope re a complaint that Cpl. Ervine had committed perjury at the Woods inquest, the witness stated he had advised Keays to see his district inspector.

The matter had subsequently been investigated by staff inspector Page, he also said.

Under cross - examination by Keays, the witness stated that lack of supervision by Keays in the investigation of the Woods accident had contributed to Purdy to become "bewildered."

The staff inspector had gone to his district inspector who had advised him to go to Const. Ervine for instructions.

Efficient Witness

The staff inspector presented his evidence in a quiet and efficient manner and was not able to loss for an answer to Keays' questioning.

"Did you make any investigation to find out if Cpl. Ervine had committed perjury?" asked Keays.

"I did not make any investigation to find out if Cpl. Ervine had committed perjury," he said, taken measurements on Nov. 18th, at the scene of the Woods' accident, Oct. 31st, 1947.

He said the posts had been broken by a truck driven by Harold Phillips, Sidney township.

He recalled the inquest into the LeRoy Woods accident, having investigated the scene of the accident. He described the damage to the Woods' car, stating the left front fender and bumper, left front fender and radiator grill had been dented.

Woods had been nervous and shaken following the accident and although there was a smell of liquor he had talked normally. He said Woods was his brother-in-law.

Const. Keays placed Woods under arrest for drunkenness under the Highway Act and took him to Belleville and the officer. Keays had been in civilian clothes and Woods had not questioned his authority.

Const. Keays asked the witness if he had come to Belleville on the following day.

"Yes", was the reply, "I came to arrange bail for Woods".

The witness stated there had been some conversation between Keays and the family regarding Crown Attorney Donnan and Const. Purdy.

"Yes, to try and see what we could do for him", was the reply.

He identified the strips of rubber produced by Keays as exhibits and stated they were from the trunk of the Woods' car.

Evidence was then heard.

Referring to the Woods' trial Keays asked if any officer had given evidence that the broken rail posts were broken on Sept. 1st.

"Yes, I believe it was Cpl. Ervine," said Sims.

"The witness said he had known at the time of the trial," said Keays, "that the posts were broken."

He said he had been some suggestion in the family whether there could be any use in Art Sine going to Cpl. Ervine.

He did not know, however, whether Cpl. Ervine had actually been approached.

Cross-examined by Malcolm Robb, the witness stated the day following the Woods' accident Keays and Woods had searched the scene of the accident but had not found the strips of rubber. Bits of metal, nor fountain pen produced by Keays were found.

Malcolm Elsie, Sidney township farmer-trucker, was next sworn and questioned by Commission Counsel Hope. He stated he had guard rail posts at Rose' Corners had been broken on the night of Oct. 31st, 1947.

He said the posts had been broken by a truck driven by Harold Phillips, Sidney township.

He recalled the inquest into the LeRoy Woods accident, having investigated the scene of the accident. He described the damage to the Woods' car, stating the left front fender and bumper, left front fender and radiator grill had been dented.

SYRUP SEASON

One of the expected results of the unusually mild winter season is seen as likely, a limited maple syrup season. That is the view held by a number of farmers of this section who should know.

Usually the sap-flowing season is a time of great expectations by city folk as well as by those who dwell in the countryside. So deeply have the products of the 'maple bush' permeated our customs that during the war no choicer gift from Canada could be sent the boys overseas than cakes of maple sugar and containers full of maple syrup. That same addiction to these choice products of the Ontario maple woods exists today and therefore it will be with a chorus of regret that it will be learned that the outlook does not appear too bright.

It is one of the drawbacks of such a winter as we have enjoyed.

That spring seems to have settled itself securely upon us is shown by the absence of snow. Everyone has recollections of other years with sailed banks of snow hiding in the shadows of the buildings until some time in April. But this year the snow is gone.

Up west Port Arthur way they have had a touch of winter in fairly good measure but the predictions were that the snow which fell a few days ago would soon be rolling down the streets in the form of torrents, streams and rivers. That snowfall was a welcome one to the farmland as it assured the filling up of the depressions with water which holds promise of enough for those days ahead when water may be scarce in some seasons. That snow served in another way, it has soaked into the ground, one of the true reasons for the service of sod.

Considerable rain has fallen recently hereabouts and helped to bring about the coming burgeoning of spring.

After last winter's easy-going visit snow would not be too welcome but it does serve nature's husbandmen, those custodians of the future in whose hands rests the gigantic task of feeding not only ourselves but others.

TWO VIEWS ON CANCER

The war between the two views of cancer, that it is caused by a virus and that it is due to the breakdown of cells by chemical action is on again. The virus origin of the dread disease is held by a number of British medical men. One of these, Dr. William Ewart Gye, professor of experimental pathology in the Royal Council of Surgeons of England has for years held this opinion. As a result of a recent experiment, he says "Experimental evidence points to the conclusion that cancer has a continuing cause and that this, in mammals as in birds, is a virus."

New York Times in reference to this question of the two views of the origin of cancer comments that the prevailing view is that while some cancers may be caused by a virus, there are also other causes that may bring it about. On the question of Dr. Gye's report the newspaper says "hence, while Dr. Gye's work provides additional indirect evidence that a virus or viruses may produce cancer, it by no means rules out the possibility of other causative factors. It is possible of course that chemical or physical agents may activate the virus causing cancer, but much more work will have to be done before such a theory can either be proved or disproved."

With this intense quest of the causes which lie behind this malady lies the hope of humanity that there may be found as likely there will be, new knowledge which will bring science closer and closer to the goal, the cause of cancer. With that second, scientists direct all their attention to the means of removing or destroying this pernicious growth which lays so heavy a hand upon the world.

CRIPPS ON MONARCHY

Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, replied to a heckler at Bristol who objected to the cost of maintaining the Royal Family, saying, "Our monarchy is probably the cheapest for the titular head of any government. If you have a president it is just as expensive, only in a different way, whether it is the head of state in the U.S.S.R. or anywhere else. Personally I prefer a constituted monarchy to a politically elected president."

On this the Victoria, B.C., Times notes that it means something that such a statement should be made by Sir Stafford. "For traditional and sentimental reasons it would be difficult to persuade a majority of citizens of the Commonwealth that the monarch is an unnecessary frill. When Cripps adds to that statement that it constitutes an economical means of maintaining the titular head of government, only arguments of prejudice can rise against it."

VANITY

Mr. Big Man, why the frown?
Does it make you more worth while?
Would it lessen your renown
If occasionly you'd smile?

Why the chest so far puffed out?
Why approach with such a stride?
Do you fear unless you shout
Some request may be denied?

Why not stop to say "hello!"
Why pretend to be a star?
Do you think they might not know
Who, and just how rich, you are?

Mr. Big Man, wealth's display
May seem necessary,
But
Great men humble always stay.
Only little people

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BEING CHALLENGED

It doesn't take a thoughtful person very many years to come to the conclusion that all life is a challenge. It is well that this knowledge should come early, for then it is time such a conception actually live — challenged to do so.

A challenge is what stirs the blood, creates imagination, and makes adventure. Without challenge and opposition, we would not know ourselves. We come to a realization of the hidden powers within us, awaiting only the touching off of a spark which creates the flame of achievement. The champion or inventor pays no attention to each one of his failures. They are the very challengers that keep opposing him, and make him more determined than ever to gain his goal. If a champion, in any event, is never challenged his championship dies of its own accord. Every morning that we awake is a challenge to us for useful action. If we accept it we end the day in better part than when we got it.

Our free ways of life, here on this Western continent, and our challenge!

democratic form of government, are being challenged as never before. We must meet that challenge openly and courageously, or perish. We have had it as we have in earlier times, even though the price paid for its preservation may be stupendous. No price is too great to pay for freedom. If that Prince Edward Island Henry, were alive today, he would address the Virginia House line which inspired freedom so long ago, "Give me Liberty, or give me death."

Every worker in an organization is being challenged by the one in a higher position. It is this challenge, that has caused many an office boy to the position of president of that organization. I but newsboys for that paper. great newspapers who were once called "You Can" — and I did!

To grow and become useful we must meet challenges at every life. It's the way we handle each one that gives the measure of our worth to the world. Never fear a challenge!

Senators Deal With Control Bill

Ottawa, March 29 — (CP) — Last of the wartime control measures which would be in force after March 31, if not renewed, received casual consideration from the Senate Monday night.

This was the Agricultural Products Act, which gives the government powers to negotiate bacon, cheese and egg contracts with Britain under the Meat Board, the Dairy Board and the Special Products Board, respectively. It was hailed on its way through second reading and was referred to committee. It is designed to corporate into the rural mail contract-ors Robertson, government leader, pointed out that it need not be passed before Wednesday or Thursday.

Following its introduction by Senator Robertson, Senator Horner (PC — Saskatchewan) spoke briefly. He objected to the amount of control it gave the Minister of Agriculture over internal marketing. He adjourned debate and said he would continue his remarks later.

Another bill the government is anxious to pass before March 31 receives onies paid them

By Mackenzie's Column:

United States Of Europe Hope Crystallizing

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Hopes of generations of gifted ideologists for creation of a United States of Europe are moving closer to fruition—closer to peace.

Delegates representative of 10 countries are meeting in London to complete details for the establishment of a Parliament of Europe. They are from Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Italy and Luxembourg. Eire. It is hoped to see this parliament in session by the conclusion of summer probably in Strasbourg, France.

When this congress opens it will represent a brave beginning of the United States of Europe for which famous statesmen have labored in one way or another.

There was a lot of talk about a United States of Europe in the days following the end of fostering peace. At that time the so-called "balance of power" was depended on to prevent conflict. The First World War demonstrated that the balance of power was out-moded and must be replaced. The result was the founding of Nations. However, it quickly became apparent that there was too great a divergence of race and customs among the world-wide membership for any one organization to function successfully.

Regional Groups

This weakness gave a fillip to the idea of a United States of Europe. Supporters of such United States of Europe pointed out that a closer union could be formed among the countries of Europe because of similarity in race and culture. This would not conflict with the United Nations idea could be made to fit into the League of Nations.

Well, the idea didn't fell quickly enough and another world war has rocked the entire continent. Now the project is being revived and apparently the anxiety to do all possible to prevent the development of a third global catastrophe. Hence, the new United States of Europe would fall into the framework of the United Nations.

As far as one can see this is likely to represent a step in the direction of the "one world," which will likely be achieved until human nature has undergone a mighty change. As a matter of fact, it's easy to believe that when future generations achieve "one world" it may be comprised of a large number of but such blocs as the projected "United States of Europe". That would seem logical in view of the diversity of special interests.

One Boat Caught In Ice Frees Self Before Aid Comes

Duluth, Minn., March 29 (AP) — A Great Lakes ore boat just caught in Lake Superior ice Sunday night freed itself before a Coast Guard cutter could come to its aid.

The boat, the George Stephenson, was among a group which passed through the Soo Locks. Its rivals today on their way to the Duluth-Superior harbor for the season's first cargoes.

The Stephenson reported it broke loose from the ice jam within 15 minutes while the cutter Mackinaw was proceeding toward it from Duluth.

The freighter John T. Hutchinson, flagship of the Buckeye Steamship Line, was the first to reach the Duluth harbor. It's arrival was only one day short of equalling the earliest opening record set on March 26, 1942.

The Hutchinson leaves today with more than 500,000 bushels of wheat.

250 Wild Ducks Killed at Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont., March 29 (CP)—A flock of 250 wild ducks was killed and 50 injured in the Niagara River Sunday night and conservation officer Roy Muma has opened an investigation. Nearly all the dead fowl were covered with oil and it is believed they struck a grease sludge in the Upper Niagara River making it impossible for them to take off. The birds will be shipped to the Department of Lands and Forests.

SIGNED BY GALT

Galt, March 29 — (CP)—Cornelius Creeden, six-foot, 200-lb. outfielder from New York City, has been signed by Galt Terriers of the Senior Intercollegiate Baseball League, it was announced.

Creeden played last season with St. Hyacinthe, Que., in the Provincial League and led in batting with a .450 average.

Officials said that first-baseman Jack Heeney of Toronto, another ex-professional has also been

18 Locomotives Turned Down By C.N. Railway

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)—Eighteen locomotives which would have completely "diesel-ized" the Prince Edward Island have turned down by the Canadian National Railways, R. C. Vaughan, CNR president, Monday told CBC Commons Railway Committee.

Mr. Vaughan said the company had given the engines practical trials, but they had proved unsatisfactory, and returned them to the Canadian Locomotive Co., at Kingston.

He described the locomotives as light engines, developed by the Kingston Company in cooperation with a United States firm. Despite several trials they were finally returned because they could not give the required performance.

He estimated the contract price at "between $1,250,000 and $1,500,000—a comparatively small order, from a company whose business is normally in the hundreds for us has been very satisfactory."

He intimated the diesels, sought by the island to save operating costs, including cost of transporting coal from the mainland would have to be purchased in the United States.

Airplanes Banned For Hunting in Bill Introduced

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — Hunting from airplanes is banned by the terms of a bill introduced Monday in the Ontario Legislature by Lands Minister Scott.

In future, planes may be used only to transport hunters to hunting sites. They may not be used for spotting deer and moose from the air, then landing to shoot them.

Another amendment permits hunting of rabbits without a special licence. The present limit is 10 rabbits per day when they feed the consequences of errors of hybridization. Fruit, Vegetables Crops' Higher Values in 1948

Toronto—Fruit crops in Ontario harvested in 1948 were in value over $1,085,800 in 1948 as compared with 1947 and vegetable crops an increase of $1,000,000, the Statistics Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture reports. The gross value of the province's fruit and vegetable crop last year was $54,445,300.

Acreage planted to tree fruits and small fruits was reported as 87,310 in 1948 as compared with 87,889 in 1947. Vegetable crops planted last year totalled 161,089 acres as against 151,232 in 1947.

Fruit crops showed considerable changes in volume of production in 1948 as compared with 1947. Apples were down 15 per cent; grapes and cherries dropped 10 per cent; peaches, plums, raspberries and strawberries showed increases.

Loss Spinach

The small-boys' pet aversion to spinach will cause youngsters to enjoy learning that production of one of only two vegetable crops to show a decrease. The other was mushrooms. Spinach decreased 26.3 per cent and mushrooms 12 per cent.

Prices obtained for crops of fruit in 1948 indicated an uneven trend as compared with 1947. Averages were 21 cents a quart for strawberries the same as in 1947 but raspberries declined from 29 to 27 cents per quart. Apples jumped from $3.37 per barrel to $4.83 and plums increased from $1.69 per bushel to $2.75. Sweet cherries moved from $6.92 per bushel to $8.75; peaches from $3.48 per bushel to $2.55 and pears from $1.23 to $1.80 per bushel. Sour cherries dropped from $7.27 a bushel to $6.78 and

NUTRITION AND FATIGUE

Contrary to a popular fallacy, which was a principle of medical practice fifty years ago, rest and relaxation is not always the ideal remedy for fatigue.

The man or woman who has done a stint of work, physical work, needs rest and relaxation afterward to recuperate. So does the athlete after a game or a period of practice. And so does the growing child after a day or hour or a day of play.

The man or woman who has done a day's "work" in office, store or shop may feel tired, weary but after an hour of rest or play, but that is not fatigue and rest and/or relaxation will hardly be less refreshment and relief than an hour or two of physical work, play or exercise, or even a two mile walk.

Business people, professional people, white collar workers, artists and students need to play the game themselves for real refreshment and recuperation. They do not get the kind of rest they need by sitting in grandstand, opera or auditorium while hired professionals play. All they get from such vicarious participation in sport is restlessness, "nervousness," insomnia, hysteria, peptic ulcers and high blood pressure.

Unfortunately most people who do not get the rest and relaxation they need or who can't afford to walk to and from their offices or business places are victims of simple—ignorant of elementary physiology and hygiene. They don't be huffy about remarks of that kind. Instead, show me, if you can, a common school, high school, public or private, anywhere in Canada, where instruction in physiology and hygiene is given as much importance as mathematics and geography. Of course you can't, because it just isn't done.

Being ignorant of the rules and laws of their bodies is shameful as we think twice. Indeed they do not think at all, about taking the spirits or a dose or two of a still more dangerous sense-deadening, pain-killing drug when they feel the consequences of errors of hygiene. Like children, they are easily persuaded to believe that the acetanilids (usually disguised under a proprietary name) which so quickly produces insensibility to headache, pain, fever, pain, distress, anxiety, weariness or wakefulness, will produce every all consequences of wrong living.

For "quick energy" there is nothing better than a mouthful or a teaspoonful or two of launder sugar, glucose, dextrose, dextrose, lactose, maltose, corn syrup, white flour, beet sugar, cane sugar, molasses, fruit sugar, candy, cake, ice cream or other refined carbohydrate. These energy immediately available from any one of these refined carbohydrate items is the same as from any other such item.

The phosphorous, remedied energy or "lift" one gets from sugar or starch is felt within a few minutes, but it is of brief duration. As soon as the sugar or starch is oxidized or burned up by muscular activity there follows a letdown which resembles, though not identical with that which follows indulgence in alcoholic beverage or liquor.

Drinkers and people who do real work know that sugars or starches or foods composed mainly of them may yield plenty of calories for a quick "lift" or a brief spurt but do not sustain the body or "stick to the ribs."

Refined sugars and starches are, chiefly, plentiful, suitable for prolonged preservation and storage, economical to transport anywhere and everywhere easy to eat or drink whether one be hungry or not and high in caloric value. Yet the more of these cheat foods in the diet the more likely is the individual to suffer from nutritional deficiency disease or functional weaknesses which we call malnutrition.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Teetotaler

My son, aged 33, is a teetotaler because I have always been not to drink, as your mother did you. He had a good time in college, but now he has a wife and a fine son. Oste doesn't have to drink to have a good time. (Mrs. C. A. J.)

Answer—Has any one ever had a good time drinking? Your son is lucky. I'm afraid most people have been ashamed to own to asking their children to take a drink with them, and one of the best things my mother did for her children.

Physical Education

Is it necessary for girls to go through the same course in school puts them through? Should a mother allow her daughter to do what she is not allowed to do at home? (Mrs. A. W.)

Answer—Yes. Girls generally get too little a physical education in school. I have not heard of a school that gives them too much for their good.

Glad Hives

Son has giant hives almost any time anything rubs over his skin. He is fifteen and has had them for three years. (B. F. R. B. L.)

Answer—It has been thoroughly established that anyone may use up to 9 grains of saccharin a day with impunity.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Beaverstone Mike was a Fresh pies, stale pies. Dried Ukrainian who brought with him to this country a good deal of the old-world peasant culture that had characterized the village from which he came as a boy. Like most of his countrymen, he did odd jobs daily in mills and towns, but headed straight for the frontiers of this country to help open up the vast variety of its beautiful fringe.

Beaverstone Mike worked as cook's helper in the lumber camps, and as a trapper's partner, he chose to be left behind as watchman or caretaker of the camp, all alone, to feed the unemployed horses, raise a few pigs and chop wood. Then the sagas and yarns about Beaverstone Mike began to be bulked him up into a character fit to join Paul Bunyan.

The ranger arrived at Mike's camp one day and was staggered to find the cook house and the lonely tables stacked with pies. Mike.

"I know," agreed Beaverstone Mike, "but I'm going to teach me how to make twenty pies. I gotta make twenty pride. Look!"

"Each time?" enquired the ranger, weakly.

"Sure," reasoned Beaverstone Mike, "each time I bake twenty pies. I gotta make twenty pride. Look! Pies all over the place. Pies holy smoke," cried the ranger, "why so many pies? Look! Pies all over the place."

SCIENCE AND RELIGION

Why is religion having such a hard time today? There are many reasons, one of which is that we have become comfortable here in America that we do not feel that science could give us much more than we already have. This world and its life is so pleasant that many are not particularly interested in religious truth, which appears to have become more an interest in the next world.

Probably the stiffest body blow religion has received in the last thousand years is the rise of scientific knowledge. There is no conflict between science and religion, for science deals with matter and religion deals with the spirit. But the scientific method of taking everything apart, challenging old concepts, and believing in a formula or seen in a test tube, has resulted in making people doubtful about religion, which cannot be so examined.

A barren, scientific intellectualism is not the highest religious faith of thousands, filling them with intellectual pride, ridiculing the things of faith. Religious truth must be apprehended by the heart. Scientific methods of objective research have no place in the examination of religious truth.

DRAFT OF PACT

Other speakers included Joseph Bradette (L—Cochrane), Frederic Dorion (Ind—Charlevoix-Saguenay), George Heon (PC— Argenteuil) and Jean Francois Pouliot (Ind L—Temiscouata).

The recorded division was called by both Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Drew as the 9¼-hour debate closed. The two dissenting votes were cast by Maxime Raymond of Beauharnois-Laprairie and J. I. Hamel of St. Maurice-Lafleche, members of the two-man Nationalistic Bloc Populaire party from Quebec.

In the early stages, Mr. St. Laurent announced that a Newfoundland representative will be sworn into the federal cabinet April 1 and outlined plans for ceremonies that day to mark Newfoundland's entry into Confederation.

Revenue Minister McCann announced the government plans to loan $4,000,000 to the CBC to help it develop television stations in Canada, beginning with Montreal and Toronto.

The Senate gave second reading to an oil and pipe line construction program involving expenditure of as much as $250,000,000 and opened study of two government control bills—dealing with rural mail carriers and the export of warm products—which must be adopted before March 31.

Pleased Treaty

Mr. St. Laurent piloted the treaty draft through the Commons and said it will "bring together in alliance against war the free nations of the North Atlantic community which share a common heritage, a common civilization, a common belief in the purposes and principles of the charter of the United Nations, a common desire to live in peace with all peoples and all governments."

He added:

"This is to be far more than an old-fashioned military alliance.

"It is based upon our common determination to strengthen our free institutions and to promote conditions of stability and well-being.

Speaking in French, he said Canada undertook through the pact to regard as an attack on her an attack against any other signatory nation, but reserved the right "to decide ourselves, in this Canadian parliament, to what extent we will participate in the hostilities and at what moment we will participate."

Fact of Mutual Security

It was a pact of "mutual" security.

Through it Canadians would obtain security for themselves, for their families and for their families' families.

Mr. Drew said words alone were not enough. The pact's effectiveness would depend on whether "the intent, the spirit and the practical operation are given living reality or the member nations forget all the tragic lessons of the last half-century and once again treat the declaration as nothing but a pious expression of good intentions."

He said the world was faced "by the organized forces of the anti-Christ who directs the aggressive plans of the Soviet Empire from the Kremlin."

Failure to make the pact a working reality "will mean war," said Mr. Drew, meaning that the Soviet armies already were only a short march from the English Channel and the Atlantic seaboard.

Mr. Coldwell, supporting the pact fully, said:

Necessary Defence

"We must insist that universal peace and security will depend in the final analysis on the extent to which poverty, misery and want are banished from the world."

The C.C.F. supported the treaty as a necessary "defensive instrument," but felt this pass for military aid and security were a little value "unless based upon a determination to build any mutual agreement the positive social and economic conditions of peace which involve wide measures of international planning for the common good."

The treaty was not designed by the United States as a means of bringing the western European States into an alliance to menace Russia, but rather came from the efforts of those countries to enlist U.S. support in their efforts to fend off Communism.

Mr. Low said the Social Credit Party was prepared to support the pact, provided it was not an alliance for "economic or military aggression." The party was prepared to "vote for the woodpile, but not for the slugger who might be hidden under it."

The group, which in the past has opposed the Bretton Woods and other international agreements originating in the U.S., stated that Canada's delegates at the treaty-signing ceremony make sure there were "no dirty fingers in the pot" and that Canada would not be committed to the Bretton Woods financial proposals.

In Full Agreement

The Social Credit Party was in full agreement with effective cooperation with other nations as a means of preserving the peace. The pact's success would depend on how each of the member countries curbed instincts towards aggression.

Mr. Pearson said the treaty would be effective because the countries involved had "faith and confidence" in each other. It would promote progress as well as peace and should lead to the growth of freedom and order everywhere in the world.

Many economic and social benefits would grow out of it, to the advantage of the member states.

But the treaty did not mean there was a change in the Canadian attitude towards the United Nations. The government still hoped the problems of division in that assembly would be solved and that the U.N. itself would help in their solution. Canada was ready to support every effort to solve the east-west problems which had divided it.

Should Invite Spain

Mr. Heon said there was no one in Quebec Province, whether French or English speaking, who was not willing to surrender that portion of national sovereignty which was necessary to the preservation of international peace. Canada had been guilty of a threat which could not go "unchallenged."

Mr. Dorion said Spain, one of the "real" ranparts against Communism, should have been invited to join the pact and asked assurance that the government would not carry its order-in-council authority to the point of declaring war without consulting parliament.

Mr. Bradette, terming the treaty a "great" step towards peace, said none of the Atlantic States wanted war, but they all had learned that war came through division and uncertainty among those who loved peace.

Mr. Pouliot wondered who was to determine manpower matters under the pact and said he hoped it would not be the "brats baby" who had made those decisions during the recent war.

IVORY-HUED

Some Deserve Appointment

In the last five years, 443 Ontario lawyers were appointed K.C.S.

Mr. Jolliffe said some deserved the appointment, others didn't. But there was always "a great deal of pressure for their appointment." Mr. Blackwell said the lawyers appointed were chosen "by rough and ready rules" based mainly on their experience and ability. Most had at least 15 years' experience.

Opposition members withdrew three bills proposing amendments to the election act after Mr. Blackwell gave assurance that a standing committee on the election act will be appointed.

Second reading was given to two bills aimed at stamping out questionable practices in the tourist business and at giving the travel department increased control over places catering to tourists.

One proposes that only places authorized by the minister will be able to display "tourist information sign." Each tourist establishment also will be compelled to put out a sign saying whether it is closed, open, has vacancies or no vacancies. The other gives the department authority to license and inspect every type of establishment offering accommodation to the travelling public, setting "fair and reasonable" rules applied only to tourist camps.

A bill introduced by Lands Minister Scott bans hunting from airplanes. In future, planes may be used only to take hunters to their camp sites and not for spotting game from the air.

Could be Reversed

During the debate on the margarine bill Mr. Blackwell and Mr. Jolliffe, both lawyers, agreed that the Supreme Court ruling that the Dominion Government has no authority to ban sale and manufacture of margarine "might well be reversed."

Mr. Jolliffe said the court's decision was "all mixed up."

Welfare Minister Goodfellow, who sponsored the bill in the absence of Premier Kennedy who is ill, said a campaign had been conducted in the last few days "to lead the public to believe the bill would ban coloring of margarine."

Mr. Jolliffe said his party's policy on margarine had been that if sale and manufacture of margarine were permitted it should be done by a Crown company. The conversion had foreseen what eventually happened—that margarine had gone on sale at "whatever the traffic would bear" without relation to production costs.

Margarine cost about 20 cents a pound to produce, he said. It is sold in Toronto at between 40 and 43 cents a pound.

The C.C.F. approved the principle that regulations should be made "either by the federal or provincial governments, or both, to provide the sale and distribution of this important commodity."

Know What They Are Buying

The act provides that licences will be issued to manufacturers or wholesalers prescribing standards of quality of the butter substitute.

Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver said that regulations were necessary so that margarine purchasers will know what they are buying.

C. A. MacLeod (Lab-Prog-Toronto Bellwoods) described the yellow coloring provisions as "discriminatory." It would establish two classes of citizens—"butter citizens and margarine citizens."

If the government wanted to protect consumers from "unscrupulous butter-legging barons," it should introduce a subsidy for butter producers to make butter available at a reasonable price.

In answer to a question by W. E. Roucle (Lib-Niagara Falls), Mr. Goodfellow said he thought it would be better if housewives bought margarine at the drug store rather than have manufacturers and grocers supply the coloring with each pound of margarine as is done in the United States.

Other C.C.F. and Liberal members indicated they would oppose at the committee stage sections of the bill providing that restaurants must display signs saying they are serving margarine, that contents must be listed on the package and that it must be described on the package as a "butter substitute."

TYPICAL SMALL FISHING VILLAGE IN NEWFOUNDLAND TODAY

Once the fishing season opens in May the fishermen will be on the water from dawn at 3 a.m. until late at night. For the first few or six weeks they fish with trap nets set up along the shoreline. When the cod fish leave the coast and go out to sea the fishermen turn to trawling and "jigging." Fast as they fill their boat they bring the fish to harbor, clean them and salt them away in their fish-houses, then they return to their nets again. Often the sea is rough—but fill for a dog," they say—but they cannot afford to stay on shore.—Central Press Canadian.

Hydro services are available in some fishing outposts although many families cannot afford electricity. Lighting a coal oil lamp is Mrs. Charlie Morgan of Port-de-Grave, 60 miles from St. John's.—Central Press Canadian.

Newfoundland fishermen are reputed to be the best small boat men in the world and rough seas do not dismay them. Here Gordon Bishop and Walt Porter put to sea to hunt seals.—Central Press Canadian.

Newfoundland Fishermen, Despite Rough Sea And Rugged Coastline, Are World's Best

Newfoundland, which joins the rest of Canada this week as a 10th province, has perhaps the lowest standard of living of any English-speaking country in the world. Their routine diet results chiefly from the high cost of food as compared to their low income. Them, too, they lack the facilities to keep fresh food. High cost of living is due in part to heavy transportation charges in bringing in goods from Canada and the U.S. and shipping them to the outposts. Newfoundland produces little of its own needs.—Central Press Canadian.

Fresh fruit is a rare treat in a Newfoundland fishing outpost. Children, such as Myrtle Morgan, usually only get oranges at Christmas. Fishermen, whose incomes average $400 to $600 a year, cannot afford to pay 60 cents a dozen for oranges and that is what the cheapest oranges cost there. Staple diet consists of salt pork, carrots, potatoes and cabbage.—Central Press Canadian.

This picture shows how Ethel Porter wheeled to referendum polling booth to vote for confederation.—Central Press Canadian.

TELEVISION

One Private Station

He said:

"In any city or area in Canada including Montreal and Toronto, a licence to establish one private station will be granted to a private organization giving adequate assurances of financial means and of service.

Six applications for television licences are due to be reconsidered by the CBC board at its meeting here April 7-8, inclusive. Four of the applications are from existing stations—CKAC and CFCF in Montreal, and CFRB and CKEY in Toronto.

Applications from places other than Toronto and Montreal will not be considered at this meeting.

Criticizing Dr. McCann's policy T. Jim Allard, general manager of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, said the private broadcasters had not been consulted.

"This is all the more surprising because the independent stations have already offered television without taxation," he said.

"The Canadian Association of Broadcasters regrets that hasty government statement adopts a system which will require many millions of tax dollars..."

The policy of government loans by the CBC is not new. The CBC received a $3,000,000 loan in 1947 for acquisition purposes and repayments are due to start in 1950. Two pre-war loans, obtained to finance capital expenditures, were repaid during the war.

WEDDINGS

VELLIEUX—PIESIK

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a quiet, but pretty wedding at 10 o'clock, on Monday morning, March 28, when Gertrude Piesik, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. V. Piesik, of Poland, became the bride of Joseph Charles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vellieux, of Waterville, Maine. The ceremony was conducted by the St. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, before an altar decked with daffodils.

The wedding music was played by Sister Mary of Sibiana and during the signing of the register, Miss Helena Malinowski sang.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. G. W. Jackson, was lovely in a gown of white satin, with full length panel of lace, and lace yoke, long, tight-fitting sleeves coming to points over the wrists, tight-fitting waistline and long train. Her full-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of white roses, and she carried an arm bouquet of red American Beauty roses.

Miss Helena Malinkewich, of Corbyville, was bridesmaid in rose crepe, blue accessories and bouquet of pink American Beauty roses.

Mr. W. Laporte, of Corbyville, was groomsman.

After the reception which was held at the Golden Acres Inn, the happy couple left for Toronto, the bride wearing a two-piece frock of rose pink, with topcoat of Sahara shade, and brown accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Waterville, Maine.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a white-gold wrist watch, and to the groomsman, cigars. The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a three-strand of pink pearls.

ALGONQUIN WORD

The word Eskimo is not found in the Eskimo language, but is an Algonquin Indian word meaning "eaters of raw flesh."

Plan Gardens To Suit House

Fashions in gardening change to keep pace with changing architecture and habits of living. When sidewalks were shovelled by hand, snow could be pushed onto the road or thrown over the hedge. Today with mechanical snow removal, a hedge planted less than eight feet from the sidewalk suffers a ragged base and a hedge eight feet back on the lot simply cuts it in half. Hedges are used less today than formerly.

The so-called "Functional" architecture of modern homes calls for different lines in drives and paths, different foundation planting and different arrangement of floral decoration. Efficiency and set form is required rather than the sweeping grace and softening effects of earlier decades. Yet, through this is a time of change, natural laws are constant. They cannot be disregarded or changed, but intelligent plant forms can be chosen to create the new effect. It simply means that people have to change their point of view about favorite plants for certain situations, says R. W. Oliver, Division of Horticulture, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Modern Trends

The trend is toward the simplistic line of straight approach rather than the sweeping curve; of set form, rather than ornate and graceful detail. Foundation plantings, instead of aiming at softening effects, strive to emphasize horizontal lines and doorways, and the form of trimly clipped hedges or flowers planted to create set masses of color. So the old flowering shrubs with rounded arching branches are suppressed by horizontal and low rounded forms that stand clipping well and have attractive foliage. Such plants as Japanese yew, privet colonesster and Korean box or dwarf barberry are taking the place of old favorites. If economy is a strong consideration the native cedar can be clipped to almost any desired form provided that a start is made with young plants.

Most people want more relaxation from their gardens, with less work and less variety in horticultural specimens. Perennial and annual flowers fit into the scheme best if they are used in larger groups of the same variety to create bold low levels of color against the background of uniform texture provided by a clipped hedge.

The need is still to create a suitable setting for the house, but it is a different house with a new look. There is also the desire for a suitable setting for an outdoor fireplace, patio and drive with just enough ornamental material to provide privacy, create color, and tie the whole lot into a picture that seems in keeping.

CAMPAIGN FOR JOBS

Amherst, N.S. — (CP) In order to find work for unemployed a "Job Week" was opened here recently by the national employment service. Citizens were asked to co-operate by providing odd jobs which need to be done in the spring or permanent work if possible.

Woman Conducts Unique Business

Vancouver, (CP)—Any assignment from trying to patch up a broken marriage to finding a silver for a lonely dog is undertaken by Mrs. Natalie Bartlett, who operates a business here called Universal Personal Services.

She will help her clients to furnish and decorate a house, buy a trousseau, patent an invention or learn to play chess.

Her services have included being a fourth at bridge, delivering letters in the middle of the night and escorting children on long trips from Montreal to Mexico.

Twice widowed, she found three years ago that she would have to become a breadwinner for her three children.

"I like to help people, so I decided to make it pay," the energetic daughter of a Russian Czarist official said.

No request is too strange to be taken on by Mrs. Bartlett and her staff.

When a young wife wanted a dog-sitter for her lonely pup, Mrs. Bartlett promptly found one. One girl wanted to learn the rhumba for a big party and Mrs. Bartlett taught her.

Business has expanded so rapidly that she took on a partner —Miss Elizabeth Jermain, capable North Vancouver girl.

Another Daughter For Charlie Chaplin

Santa Monica, Calif., March 29 (AP)—Charlie Chaplin's young wife, Oona, presented him with another daughter yesterday. The Chaplins have a daughter, four, and a son, three.

For Chaplin, who will be 60 next month, the child is his seventh. His first, born by the late Mildred Harris, died in infancy. Two sons, Charles, now 23, and Sydney, 22, were born of his second marriage to Lita Gray. After a bitter suit, he was adjudged father of a baby born in 1943 to his former dramatic protege, Joan Barry. Only his six-year marriage to actress Paulette Goddard was childless.

His wife, 23, is the daughter of playwright Eugene O'Neill.

Club Activities

SCOUTS' LADIES AUXILIARY

The monthly meeting of the 5th Belleville Scouts' Ladies Auxiliary was held Monday evening, at the home of Mrs. Enright, 50 Catherine Street, with eighteen members present.

Mrs. F. Cooke, president, opened the meeting with the "Mothers' Promise". The new members were welcomed. It was decided to send Mrs. F. Cooke to the convention in Toronto on April 26, also to hold a home-cooking sale at the masters place.

After the business period, the Scout Master, Douglas Burns, with four Scouts, James Ross Millan, Billy Post and Jack Kane, gave a fine demonstration of semaphone and First Aid work.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Enright.

Spring Suit Of Sharkskin

By ALICE ALDEN

THE SUITS THAT bloom in the Spring have a lot to do with the case of being well-dressed. Especially is this so when designers vie in turning out suits that are rich with individual detail, yet never perfect. Therefore the present season is a good one in which to choose an investment suit that will keep good dividends. Such a choice might be this Hattie Carnegie design in gray sharkskin which has the new "cluster skirt". The jacket, softly moulding the shoulders, is shall-yoked below the double collar.

SAYS MAN BEAT HER

Toronto, March 29 (CP)— Her face badly cut and bruised, a 30-year old Toronto girl told authorities West police today she was attacked and beaten by a 35-year-old man.

The girl and her alleged assailant were picked up by police in a car with a Quebec licence and the pair were taken to police headquarters. At they entered the station, the man escaped down a dark side street.

The girl, trusted in hospital for her injuries, said she knew the man and went out with him. He attacked and beat her, she charged.

PROTEST TO RUSSIAN AUTHORITIES

Vienna, March 29 (Reuters) — Maj.-Gen. T. J. W. Winterton, British Deputy High Commissioner in Austria, has officially protested to Russian authorities over an incident Sunday when two British army corporals were assaulted by Russian sentries. The men, who were not badly injured, "unwittingly" stepped past a sentry's barrier, a British statement said.

Women's Institute

PHILLIPSTON-ZION INST.

Special features of the work accomplished by the Phillipston-Zion Institute recently, included a quilting at the home of Mrs. Arthur Sine, and a sewing bee at the home of Mrs. Leo Simmons. The quilts and a generous donation of vegetables and canned goods were donated to the D.P. families who are making their homes in the district. The layettes were forwarded to Toronto to be shipped to Europe.

Progressive euchre parties have been held at the home of Mrs. Earle Bay, Mrs. Roscoe Robson; Mrs. Arthur Bay; Mrs. W. B. Fisher; Mrs. A. Clifford, Mrs. Roy Sills, and Mrs. R. Simmons.

Deseronto Given

Ten dollars is given donated to Zion school pupils to assist them in buying their radio. Five dollars was sent to the scholarship fund, and from the cookbooks compiled by the members, the Institute has realized a satisfactory profit. The cost of printing was $233 and the books have sold readily at 50c per copy. The printing cost was largely covered by advertisements, and the thanks of the committee is due to all those who so kindly advertised.

The glove making course will be held in Bethel community hall on April 12-13-14, and the following supplies are necessary for anyone who might wish to take the course: one 6 inch ruler, scissors, brown paper, thimble, rantable, cardboard and 3 pins. The material for gloves will be brought by the instructor.

Two life members have been held at the homes of Mrs. Carl Cassidy, Mrs. Simon Sills. Letters of thanks were also received from the little children who had received gifts from this branch at Christmas. Special comment is made on the quality and sincerity and neatness of these letters.

Mr. Harry Harrison addressing the Institute spoke on Health units and urged the members to make further study of the situation in Hastings county. Mrs. Harold Beatty very capably discussed the subject "The City of Happiness is in the Mind".

Mrs. Roscoe Robson gave a report of the Federation of Agriculture when it convened in Toronto.

Foxboro Folk School

A special highlight of the work was the report of the Folk School held in Foxboro, Ont., by Mrs. and Mrs. Maurice Sine. With their report, the members of the Institute feel that real talent has been discovered in the community, and congratulations are due Mr. and Mrs. Sine, who have been chosen to represent this district in Toronto.

They exhibited work in weaving, and electricity on the farm, representing courses which they had taken at the school.

Folk schools were originated in Denmark, and the theme of the class in Foxboro was "Culture of the small Community". The object of the drive is to create more activity in the rural districts, and to train leaders for the work.

Mrs. and Mrs. Sine kindly offered to arrange social evenings at any time in the community, and the Institute feels well recompensed for their effort in sending this young couple to the Folk school. A thought worthy of mention was brought back by them was "If you do not know a person you cannot like them."

The April meeting will be held in the evening at the home of Mrs. Harold Sills, when the girls taking the course under the leadership of Mrs. Clifford Ray and Mrs. Percy Ray will contribute toward the entertainment.

The President, Mrs. Dalbert Howe, asked for the roll call which showed that the enrolment has reached an all time high of 44 members.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding attendants not necessarily chosen as godparents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to have a baby in June, my first baby. Is it absolutely necessary for us to ask the couple who were our maid of honor and best man to be the baby's godmother and godfather? For very special and personal reasons we would rather have another couple.

S. M.

There is no etiquette rule or even suggestion that the chief attendants at the wedding, the maid of honor and the best man, be invited to be the godparents of the first baby (or a succeeding baby). For the baby's godparents you should invite those whom you and your husband consider best suited for this important honor and spiritual responsibility.

Dress for double wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I are to have a double wedding, each one to have a maid of honor and two bridesmaids. Is it necessary that we be dressed alike (we are of different types)? And must our attendants be dressed alike?

Sisters

You and your sister should wear the same type of costume, but the designs may differ to suit the types. The attendants in each group should be dressed alike, and there should be great care that the clothes of the attendants of the two groups should harmonize. And this makes that the over-all color scheme should be most thoughtfully considered and carried out, in the dresses, headdresses and flowers.

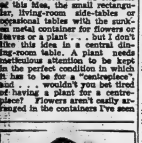
Table with centre for plant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Are you enthusiastic about the modern type of table that has a sunken centre for a plant? (The sunken centre is lined with metal tin I think.) My husband and I are just beginning to furnish our new house, we are both fond of modern furniture, particularly modern dining-room furniture and we are considering buying this one. But alternately we like it, and alternately we say we may get tired of the "trick" centre.

Anna K.

I very much like the originals of this idea, the small rectangular, living-room side-tables or occasional tables with the sunken metal container for flowers or leaves or a plant . . . but I don't like this idea in a central dining-room table. A plant needs meticulous attention be kept in the perfect condition in which it has to be for a "centrepiece" and . . . I wouldn't you bet tired of having a plant for a centrepiece? Flowers aren't easily arranged in the containers I've seen in these tables. And this centre feature would certainly be a nuisance if you wanted to use a cloth on your table, or any decorative centrepiece.



Oyster fork or teaspoon?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a food cocktail . . . for example, a seafood cocktail or pieces of avocado alone or in combination. . . is served with a special dressing in a short or stemmed glass, should an oyster fork or a teaspoon be placed with it?

S. L.

Usually an oyster fork is provided with this type of cocktail, particularly when, as is often the case, the glass is lined with lettuce. However, if there is no lettuce to be struggled with, it's entirely proper to provide a teaspoon, to be used when the pieces are fairly small and when the sauce is too delicious to be left in the bottom of the glass. With a fruit cocktail, a teaspoon is the best. . . convenient for the pieces of fruits and for the juice.

Flame Taffeta Coat

BY FRUNELLA WOOD

EVEN THE most extravagantly priced and beautifully manufactured fashions err on the practical side, it seems to this department, who often would team extravagance of imagination with a breath-taking price tag, if she could.

To tell the truth, for instance, we'd rather buy an evening model of handsome manufactured lace than lie counterpart in real lace for ten times the price. We'd rather buy this flame red taffeta coat for daytime resort wear over any print dress than choose the same model in black or brown, say, and have it hang on forever, practical but boring.

The silhouette follows our current favorite dresses, is nipped in at the waistline, wide and easy as to shoulders and short, cuffed sleeves. It's a dashing model, an eye catcher, a wardrobe extravagance which will pay off the properly imaginative owner. The price tag isn't too brash, as the model is manufactured for all le custom-made look, and the high fashion fact that Marusia designed it.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Good-Looks Aids for College Girls

As far as clothes and coiffures are concerned, co-eds are cut pretty much after the same pattern. But you can divide them into two classes — those who are perfectly groomed, giving attention to every detail of get up; and those who are much too casual about their appearance, if not downright sloppy. The end thing about the latter type is that they will probably go right on being sloppy dressers all their lives. Good grooming habits learned in childhood will continue through the years.

Let us hope she has outgrown the sloppy shoe period.

Exquisite cleanliness is the first law of beauty. If a girl isn't dainty, hair shining-clean, complexion fresh, the boy friends will decide right away that she does not qualify for the big date. The fellows don't want to escort girls of which their boy pals will not approve. Young people are terribly afraid of criticism. Everything must be according to custom.

Flowing locks pick up dust in no time. Hence the need of the weekly shampoo. The medium used must be the kind that rinses away quickly and easily, as young ladies of college age simply have no time to waste. The business of living and learning calls for long hours, especially if there are numerous social affairs on the calendar.

Well-groomed nails are important. All too many nails get little attention other than the application of crimson polish that may cover a multitude of beauty lapses. Cuticle cream should be applied faithfully, the flesh lifted with the orangewood stick so hangnails will not appear. The nail-white pencil should be close at hand to remind a girl to use it when she washes her pretty nails the first thing in the morning. Passed under the eaves while the fingers are under water, it will remove soil in a hurry. Much better than fussing with nail-white and the stick.

She will err if she uses a heavy perfume. The members of the male contingent are dead against it. After the bath she can use a light toilet water or a refreshing eau de cologne, spraying it on chest and arms with an atomizer. A sweet, woodsy scent makes a better impression than a more sophisticated blend that, somehow, doesn't seem to belong to the loveliness and freshness of youth.

Let us hope that she has outgrown the sloppy shoe period, that she is encasing her feet in sensible shoes that are smart and decorative. Shoes that fail to give support to the feet will increase measurements, raise all sorts of troubles in the way of callouses and other pedal ills.

Fine Details

Soft gray suit

By VERA WINSTON

A FINELY DETAILED gabardine suit is a good investment that pays in long wear. This one is in soft gray and uses shaped darts that are released on the bodice coming from the set-in waistband. The hip pockets are neatly worked into the seaming. Smoky pearl buttons fasten the longish jacket. The skirt is fashionably slim.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Should This Wife Leave Her Husband

If people could only have the will power to avoid taking the first step in the wrong direction, most of the problems which come to my desk would never arise. The trouble is, that young people, and older ones, too, never think when they take that first step where it may lead them, and before they know it, they find themselves in a position from which it seems almost impossible to extricate themselves.

I have visited a young woman of 27 who writes me that she was married at 17 because she had to give the baby she was expecting a name.

"Don't get me wrong, please," she says. "You see my mother and father constantly quarreled, and home was a living hell. I met a fellow and made an unfortunate mistake for which I have paid in ten years of bewildered living. I can't say I love him. I don't believe I ever really did."

Now the mother of four children, she has met another man "with whom," she says, "I am so deeply in love it frightens me. Never have I felt toward anyone as I do towards this man. He is 40 years old, thirteen years my senior, but as God is my judge, I love him and he loves me." .

Because he drives the school bus which her children use every day, she sees this man constantly. "The children are very fond of him," she says, "and he reciprocates.

"I can't, or haven't the heart to tell my husband how I feel about this man," she confesses. "You see, my girl would give her eye teeth to have a husband like mine. He is a good provider and a loving father. But I am living a terrible life, loving one man so desperately and living with another, —the father of my children—but not loving him. The way I feel now, I could do away with myself and never let my husband know the reason why."

This "desperate girl," as she signs herself, admits that what she is doing is not fair to her children. She says that if she left home to go with this man, her husband would never let her have her children.

"But I can't go on this way, and I couldn't ever tell him about the man go," she declares. "I love him and am only happy in his arms. What should I do?"

I am not so hard-hearted as to fail to have sympathetic with this girl in the dreadfully unhappy situation in which she finds herself. To love one man while being married to another, is indeed a desperate and bitter predicament, and I can fully understand how futile life looks right now to this young wife and mother if she must give up the man who seems to represent all the happiness and love she has always longed for but never had.

At the same time, I think she will be able to see her problem more clearly if she tries to answer honestly the following question: Whose future happiness is most important to her—her own or her children's? Can she honestly believe that she would find real happiness with this or any other man if it meant giving up her children? Could she face what her children would inevitably think of her if, when they grew older, they learned that she had deserted them?

If she has the courage to give up this man for good and will, of course, go through a period of very intense suffering. But, in time, that suffering will ease, and she will find herself stronger and happier in the knowledge that she did not fail the children who love and trust her. Moreover, since she admits her husband has many admirable qualities, it is not at all impossible that she has more affection for him than she now realizes and that, as time goes on, she will be glad and thankful that she did not make the mistake of leaving him.

On the other hand, if she does what she is so eager to do at this moment, and puts her own desires ahead of everything else, I feel sure the time will come when she will bitterly regret it.

VETERAN SOLDIER DEMOBBED AT 79

Aldershot, England (CP)— On his 70th birthday Sgt. William West became a civilian again . . . against his wish. One of the British Army's oldest soldiers, he joined up in 1893 as bandboy at sixpence (10 cents) a day.

He was demobilized once before, in 1919, but kept in touch with the army by working as a civilian storeman in ordnance depots.

In 1939 while fitting reservists with battledress, he drew one for himself and joined, up again at 69 as a storeman.

POPULAR AS PET

The gecko, a four-inch lizard, is a popular pet in tropical countries; because it is harmless and useful in destroying insects.

"It's all right to carry kids in your shopping bag, but I wouldn't bother with change."

. . . take a tip from us — now is the time to plan the remodelling of your home. Prices probably won't be any lower for many years and why put off the pleasure of living in a modern home when you will derive just as much satisfaction from making a new home out of the old one?

Chuck Anderson Had Bad Knee Before Big Game

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Chuck Anderson, big Negro Calgary Stampeder lineman, was the most prominent — and best — footballer on the field last November when the Stamps trained for their Dominion final game against Ottawa Rough Riders at Oakville, about 20 miles west of Toronto. Chuck was just a lazy-bones.

When a scrimmage was called, the likeable cigar-smoking Anderson usually was somewhere else. When Coach Les Lear had the team out for pre-workout calisthenics, Chuck just lay down and made the motions. When 100-yard dashes or trots around the field were called for, he was a poor last — and in most cases he didn't even finish.

What's Cookin'

"What's the matter with Anderson?" newspaper men asked the Stamp players and officials. The usual reply was:

"Aw, the guy never practises. But watch him go in the game — he's terrific. You won't know him."

Well, when Calgary knocked over the highly-favored Riders 12-7 at Toronto's Varsity Stadium a few days later, Chuck was slightly better than terrific.

In the Calgary dressing-room after the game and on the bus to the Stamps' hotel, the players praised Chuck for his great playing. He just puffed and grinned.

Playing Possum?

And it's a safe bet his grin was not any wider than that of Billie Hughes, Winnipeg's 60-year-old trainer who did a mending job on the Anderson knee when the Stamps hit Winnipeg en route to Toronto.

The story was told in Winnipeg by Hughes in an interview with Graham Trotter, Canadian Press staff writer. Anderson walked with the aid of two canes when the Calgary club arrived at Winnipeg and Hughes went to work on the limb. Somewhere between Winnipeg and Toronto Chuck discarded the canes.

In the Swim

To continue the out-of-season sports mill, Canadian National Exhibition entry forms for the world championship long distance swimming races — the women's five — mile event Aug. 31 and the men's 15-mile affair Sept. 3 — are off the presses. Entries close Aug. 24.

The women's first prize is $1,800 and the men's $5,500.

June in January

The word from "down under" is that New Zealand hopes to stage skiing meets with Canada and other British skiing countries competing. Skiers would leave Canada sometime in the heat — wave June to July months to hit N. Z.'s skiing season — something akin to our British Empire games swimmers and runners starting their trip to Auckland amid December's icy blasts.

Lineup Changes Will be in Order In Tonight's Game

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — The question of whether Toronto Maple Leafs, defending National Hockey League champs, have lost their playoff touch will be partially answered tonight.

The Leafs, 10-0 winners over Boston Bruins in the fourth game of their best-of-seven semi-final series for the coveted Stanley Cup and the Bruins, still happy about their 5-4 overtime victory Saturday night in Toronto, will be striving to even the count.

Toronto goes into the game with a 2-1 edge in the series, and a victory would give the Leafs comfortable position for the fifth game in Boston tomorrow night.

There will be lineup changes for both teams.

Boston's ace defencemen, Johnny Crawford, who suffered a bruised chest Saturday will be replaced by Ed Kryzanowski, former University of Toronto senior star. Captain Milt Schmidt is taking back treatments for a stiff neck and a sore shoulder but will be playing tonight.

The Leafs, without serious injuries, will have two new forwards from the reserve of six players brought from Toronto's farm club, Pittsburgh Hornets. Manager Conn Smythe said the announcement of the change would be made today.

Ted Kennedy, Toronto's hard-working captain, thinks his team will take Boston on one condition — "We gotta outscore 'em," he says.

Indicating that playoff fever hasn't cooled among Leaf fans, a line-up for tickets started at 3 p.m. Monday — 19 hours before the ticket windows opened this morning. And first in line, as she was for the overnight ticket lineup last Friday, was Toronto housewife Mrs. Elsie Mansfield.

Billie Hughes, Formerly of City, Still Training

By GRAHAM TROTTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, March 29 (CP) — Billie Hughes, whose widespread reputation as a magic healer of ailing athletes means that he gets little respite from his training duties, would like to load up his boxes of liniment and bandages and travel into exhibit.

"But," says the 60-year-old Winnipeg trainer, "my boys keep calling for me and I can't let them down."

Billie tried to retire once before—from boxing. He hung up his gloves six times before he made his retirement stick. That was back in 1923, after he had become the only boxer ever to hold three Canadian titles at one time.

Hughes received a familiar call this month from "one of my boys." Art Somers, coach of Regina Capitals who had come under Billie's healing hand in his Chicago Black Hawks playing days, had four injured stars on the eve of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League finals.

Hopped a Plane

Billie hopped a plane and got into Regina only a few hours before the series opener with Edmonton Flyers. That was time enough for him to patch up the four and they helped Capa win that one 6-3. They did the whole series, which Capa won without a defeat.

An outstanding example of Hughes' skill was his work on Clark Anderson, big Negro lineman of Calgary's football Stampeders. Anderson had a knee hurt and walked with the aid of two canes when he passed through Winnipeg en route to the Grey Cup final last fall.

Billie started to work on that knee. Result: Anderson was acclaimed by sports scribes as a dominating figure in Stamps' victory over Ottawa Roughriders.

The little fellow held the Canadian bantam, featherweight and lightweight titles simultaneously from 1913 to 1920. He's been trainer for six Dominion football championship squads, twice with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, once with Stampeders and three times with Queen's University, in 1922-23-24.

Value Underestimated

A list of Billie's "boys" reads like a "who's who" of sport. One was the late Charlie Gardiner, great Chicago Black Hawk netminder, who picked up a quart of Hughes' home-made liniment each year before leaving Winnipeg for the Windy City.

"The value of a trainer is grossly under-estimated," says Billie. "I'm filling my 60th year and each in the world but his players are no good to him on the bench with injuries. Ninety per cent of a team's effectiveness is condition time. "We gotta outscore 'em," he says.

Athletes of today can't hold a candle to the old-timers, he says. "Why, when a fighter gets cut up in the ring these days they stop the fight. I can remember taking 28 stitches in my face in one bout."

Billie once won a 10-round decision after his jaw was broken by his opponent's first punch. Another time he was blinded for a year by a boxer who socked him unmercifully with gloves soaked with silver nitrate. Those mitts burned almost beyond recognition by the chemical—are one of his most prized souvenirs.

The native of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is kept busy here teaching neighborhood kids the art of boxing and fixing their charley-horses and sprained ankles. He hopes to put his young son through as a doctor, the dream that Billie himself gave up for a sports career.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Much has been written, and much has been said of the feud between manager Conn Smythe and Montreal in hockey during the 1943-45 season. All over the country the typewriter millwrights' association officials, referees etc., have more or less deplored the sudden, shall we say, yen on the part of players to take opponents apart piece by piece to see what makes 'em tick, without interfering in the symmetrical arrangement of muscles, tibulas, deltoids, bicepsis and molars, the occasional optic, not to mention sundry arms and legs.

It was a rough-playing season all round with only those with skilful manipulation of the NHL elbow keeps the only guys to benefit financially, 'twas tough on the crankums, and the shine and polish department gave the boys down by the Gardens, Arenas and whatnot all over the hockey earth.

But 'twas mere child's play when compared to boxing in Siam. We called through the scrap-book and uncovered a piece written some time ago by a world traveller, and the pictucuffing Siamese are in no wise to be placed in the same category as the rough puckchasers of the North American continent with parts of fingers snatched in.

The home of Siamese boxing in Bangkok is the scene on Sundays of the nearest approach to murder extant. To one accustomed to the American boxing style the "Siamese idea is shocking in its brutality."

A bar-room brawl of the roaring nineties; a pool-room melee of later eras when freery balls bounced off inflied negrino and side-burned jaws, was a childrens' picnic compared to the Sunday set-ins of the slantyred Joe Louis's of the land of Siam.

If you aspire to the heavyweight title of the land of dancing beauties and Lax, you must be ready to part with any part of the anatomy not to mention a quart or two of blood, because you don't leave the ring, unless you're the victor until you're ready for immediate hospitalization, including surgery.

The main idea is to stay on your feet. When you go down, it is the custom of the pugilistic gladiators of the day to use their flats, fists, elbows, knees and heels. Another favorite punch is to extend an elbow and then spinning. When one of these funny-bones connect, it's generally curtains for the recipient.

But the smart Siamese boxer can give a kangaroo ace and spades when it comes to mayhemic footwork. They can leap high in the air and deliver a lightning kick with either stinging blows to mouth, chin and back of the neck. Some of the fighters go at it barefooted but the more serious ones wear shoes over feet that are tapped as tightly and so much that they resemble blocks of concrete. And when the opposition gets entangled in his kick. Exceptional Thai Siamese he ceases to worry what the King of Siam or Anna said.

And it, all done to music. A band making wry faces over reed instruments produces, weird, eerie sound effects that would drive the head of the Mellon band, Dr. Frankenstein and whatsit, he'll get tired of watching the opposition do his stuff, and stride across the ring and show his appreciation by smashing him in the face with a concrete-clad hoof.

Unlike his American or Canadian counterpart, the Siamese referee has a comparatively easy time. His first duty is to search the fighters for competitors in the crime—cut saws, jack knives, pistols and can-openers, and after that, he can almost call it a day. If he happens to feel sorry for a gore-smeared loser lying still on the mat, he can help him to his feet, or lose his snoot in disgust and lie himself to the nearest saloon for a beaker of Siamese beer.

The Canadian National Railways Recreation Association will sponsor an intermediate "A" softball squad, so we were informed yesterday. A special meeting is being held in the Board Room at the station on Wednesday night and all players interested in this type of muskball are requested to attend. It is understood that the club will be inaugurated a league of its own in order to affiliate with the OASA. Meeting gets under way at 8 o'clock.

Speaking of softball the Commercial League is holding forth on Thursday night at the Y.M.C.A. rooms of officers, a number of important wrinkles have to be ironed out and all team representatives should be on hand.

The National Hockey League semi-finals in the Stanley Cup series resumes warfare on two fronts tonight with the Detroit Red Wings clashing with Canadiens in Montreal and the Maple Leafs playing hosts to Boston in their Gardens. The Maplers have lost a close verdict in Boston Saturday night while the slith-flying Canucks have taken the last two games from Detroit and lead the series 2-1. Toronto holds a 2-1 edge on the Bruins and tonight's clashes in both cases are rated as all-important ones.

Terry Sawchuk, youthful goaltender of the Indianapolis Capitals, has the unparalleled distinction of being voted the outstanding first year player in consecutive years in two different professional hockey leagues. Sawchuk was selected as the best rookie in the American Hockey League this season, by a committee of sportswriters and radio broadcasters in the 11 league cities, and duplicated his feat of last season when he was chosen as the best of the newcomers in the United States League. His stellar play in the Indianapolis cage this season, has brought him the Dudley "Red" Garrett Memorial Award, plus a League bonus of $300.00.

Manager Won't Be Surprised If Jones Clicks

Clearwater, Fla., March 29 — (AP) — If Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones makes the grade at third base for Philadelphia Phillies, manager Eddie Sawyer won't be a bit surprised.

Both manager and player held forth last year in Toronto's Maple Leaf Stadium and the Phillies' farm club, Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League. Both moved up during last season to the parent club.

Sawyer said the 23-year-old Jones was the only Phil sure of a job when the team headed south this spring. He hasn't changed his mind since.

Before coming to the Phils in September last year, Jones hit .275 for Toronto, in the tag end of the season in the National League he hit .333 in 17 games and played a fine third base.

Now he really looks like a major-leaguer.

Johnny Greco Given Decision Over Beau Jack

(By The Canadian Press)

Jollin' Johnny Greco, Canadian welterweight champion, Monday night at Montreal pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision over Beau Jack, former world lightweight king from Augusta, Ga. Greco scaled 147, Jack 138.

A crowd of 10,296 Forum fans contributed to a gross gate of $38,428 to watch the Montreal battler earn his first victory over the Georgia Negro in four meetings. In previous clashes, Beau Jack took the decision and Greco gained a draw in the other bout.

Irvine (Ace) Bailey, 47, one-time hockey great of the National Hockey League, is giving up his job as coach of the University of Toronto senior hockey team. He will move to Welland to take over his own business.

He joined the university staff in 1936 and led the team to three Intercollegiate titles in 1940, 1947 and 1948.

No replacement has been named yet.

At Kirkcaldy, Scotland, Fife Flyers Monday night defeated Sudbury Wolves, Canada's touring hockey team, 5-2 in the Canadians final game of their Scottish series. Canadian-born players scored all the goals. Jim and Tom Russell tallied for the Wolves while Bud Scruton and Chick Mann each scored twice for the Flyers with Bob Joy notching the other marker.

At West Palm Beach, Fla., Philadelphia Athletics closed out their spring training at this base Monday with a 5-3 defeat by Toronto Maple Leafs of the International league. The minor leaguers broke through Charley Harris' pitching for single tallies in the eighth and ninth innings to gain their winning margins. The other three came at the expense of Phil Marchildon, native of Penetanguishene, Ont., in the second.

At Cincinnati, the major leagues Monday night revised their much-discussed bonus rule to permit the so-called bonus players to be sent to the minors for one year after they are signed by the major league club. Heretofore the majors couldn't option a bonus player—one signed for more than $6,000—to the minors without asking waivers on him. The rule provides the bonus player must be optioned out the first year after he has signed.

Gordon Delast, 30-year-old Holland born golf star, has been appointed as professional at the Weston Golf and Country Club. It was announced Monday at Toronto. He succeeds Elmore Blower who died recently.

65-Pound Chinooks Year's Top Salmon

ANGLING CHAMPION—John A. Carmichael of the British Columbia Utilities Commission, Victoria, poses beside the 65-pound Chinook salmon which won him Field and Stream magazine's international Chinook class for 1948. The big one was caught at Campbell River, Vancouver Island, August 21. (CP Photo)

New York, March 29 (CP) — John A. Carmichael of Victoria caught a 65-pound Chinook salmon in the Campbell River on Vancouver Island last Aug. 21. Today he was named as first-prize winner in Field and Stream magazine's 1948 fishing contest.

Carmichael was the only Canadian among the 18 winners of top awards announced in the magazine's April issue, and the 14 announced in March.

Five other Canadians won lesser awards—a second, a fifth, a seventh, a 13th and a 16th—and two got honorable mention.

Five of the 10 prize-winning Chinook salmon came from Campbell River. The Grand Cascapedia River in Quebec and the Margaree River in Nova Scotia shared main honors as Atlantic salmon streams.

Waters around Wedgeport, N.S., provided eight of the 10 prize-winning bluefin tunas, though not the largest, and Americans got all the prizes.

The year's record catches in the contest, and all Canadian prize-winners:

Chinook salmon—Carmichael's 65-pounder, caught on a Mrs. J. C. Smith Ghandi. J. W. Jacques, Vancouver, was fifth with a salmon weighing 60 lb. 8 oz., also from Campbell River. Mrs. Catherine Imrig of Hamilton, Ont., and T. W. Bourns of Vancouver won honorable mention.

From Quebec River

Atlantic salmon—39 lb. 8 oz., caught June 10 by Dr. Armand Albert, Van Buren, Me., in Grand Cascapedia River, on a Black Dose fly. Second-prize winner was Harry R. Worth of Halifax, 31 lb. 2 oz., Margaree River.

Rainbow trout (fly-casting)—20 lb. 14 oz., Clive N. Stevenson, Roseburg, Ore., Coquille River, Oregon. Ninth: John J. West, Vancouver, 12 lb. 8 oz., from Thompson River, B.C.

Barrie Flyers Beat Porcupine Combines by 11-2

Barrie, March 29. (CP)—The powerful Barrie Flyers, undefeated in 10 playoff games this season, today were only two victories away from their second straight all-Ontario Junior Hockey Championship.

Barrie, Memorial Cup finalists last year, went on a scoring spree Monday night to swamp Porcupine Combines 11-2 in the second game of their best-of-seven Provincial final. The Flyers won the first game Saturday 4-0.

The next two tilts will be played in Schumacher Thursday and Saturday.

For the sell-out crowd of some 1,500 fans, the Flyers were in excellent form as they outshot the Combines 35-15. They drove into a 2-1 lead in the first period, breezed through the four in the second and then outscored the Combines 5-1 in the final period.

Only for a few minutes in the opening period did the Combines look dangerous. A gagging attack led by big defenceman Steve Brklacich gave them a 1-0 lead when the period was only 43 seconds old.

Doug Warner tallied the Combines other marker. Real Chevrefils and Sid McNamara each scored twice for the Flyers with single goals notched by Paul Meger, Gary Gordon, Don Ashbee, Gord Pennell, Bob Bingley, Rick Hoggs and Harold Hopper.

Flyrs Remarkable Game

Slim Lorne Howes played a remarkable game in the Porcupine nets despite the 11 goals that denied the rigging behind him. He served at least a dozen goal-labelled shots.

The Flyers gave Howes little chance on their goals. They excel on close-in plays and had the 17-year-old netminder at their mercy time and again.

Gordon put the Flyers on the scoresheet mid-way through the first period and Ashbee put them ahead minutes later.

In the second session, the Flyers ran roughshod over their less experienced opponents, with McNabney, Bingley, Pennell and Meger lengthening the margin.

Cheerfully aiding two quick goals in the final period before Warner got the Combines second counter but the Flyers then broke out with three goals.

Before the third period started it was announced that Barrie Gil Mayer had been awarded the Red Tilson Memorial trophy as leading netminder in the O.H.A. Junior circuit.

Historically Famous HURONIA

Three hundred years ago, an important outpost of Christian culture in the new world was wiped out when the savage Iroquois massacred the French Missionaries of Fort St. Marie. Today Huronia, as this part of Ontario is called, is visited by more people every year, both for its historic interest and because the 30,000 Islands on the east shore of Georgian Bay are so lovely a summer playground as any in the world. Whatever you look for in a vacation you will find there, with historical sites and interest thrown in. The famous 30,000 Islands cruise by lake steamer is a pleasant and relaxing way of seeing them. In Midland, whose Chamber of Commerce can give you fine full information, are whole areas. You can drive to Midland in a day from Windsor or the Quebec border (Highways 2, 11 and 12), and in correspondingly less time from other points. There is good rail service from Toronto.

It's PROVED through and through! When you sit behind the wheel of a 1949 Monarch, you'll thrill with that proud feeling of owning a really fine car—just as thousands of other Monarch owners do. Hollywood, March 29 (AP) — When in doubt, make a western. This old movie maxim, based on the sure-fire box-office of horse operas, is being heeded by Robert Taylor and James Stewart. Taylor's next film after "Battleground" is slated to be "Devil's Doorway," which is one of M.G.M.'s first westerns since the actor's "Billy the Kid."

Stewart tells me he is thinking about getting back in the saddle again in "Blood Brother" at Warners. His last trip out west was "Destry Rides Again."

Stewart just finished "Operation Malaya" at M.G.M. The picture has the amazing record of being finished in 56 days on a 60-day schedule. The pace had everyone dazed. "I hope we don't find out that we left out the middle of — something," says Jimmy.

Musical Notes

Bing Crosby can't seem to escape horses. He's acting with 'em in "Riding High." That should be the signal for Bob Hope to get out his "Crosby's horses" gag file.

Stan Kenton, now on a six-month test tour of South America is said by friends to be planning a change of professions at 38. After being run ragged in the band business, he wants to turn to psychiatry. Some might consider the two fields closely allied. Other notes

A sequel is already planned for "My Friend Irma" even though the first film isn't finished yet. Suggestions for a title are "My Friend Irma out West with the Hardys" and "Irma Meets Boston Blackie."

Tom Drake cuts loose from M.G.M. in a couple of weeks, says he'll free-lance.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Another bridge book for expert players is on its way to better players. The author is Terence Reese of England. It is evident that he is unusually adept in the play of the cards.

The book does not monkey with any bidding system. Nor does it pretend to cater to beginners. It is addressed to players who have already reached the top spot in card reading and manoeuvres.

Some of the interesting deals therein is shown here:

NORTH
	♠K 8 3
	♥A 8 6 2.
	♦K 8
	♣8 7 6 3

WEST	EAST
♠Q 9 4	♠10 7
♥Q 10 3	♥J 7 5 4
♦A 10	♦8 4 2
♣K Q J 9 2	♣A 10 4

SOUTH
♠A J 6 5 2
♥K 9
♦Q J 9 7 3
♣5

South is declarer at four spades. The lead was by West, South ruffs and declares. Now he leads a small club king. It wins the first trick and is followed by another club lead that south ruffs.

The first inclination is to take a trump trick with dummy king and return a trump from there. The idea would be to take a finesse with the jack of spades held by south.

When this loses, another club is led by west. South ruffs again and is left with only one trump in his hand. A diamond trick is soon taken by the ace and another club from there is ruffed by south.

This leaves south without a trump and west gets another trump trick to defeat the contract. Lay off the trump finesse, strikes the author. Run the ace and king of trumps straight up.

By refusing to take the trump finesse, a trick is set up for west. So what? It is no more than the trick he had when the finesse was taken. But now declarer has not lost control of trumps.

While still in good shape a diamond is led to force out the west ace. This sets up the long diamond suit for tricks before the south hand is made futile by trumps.

West may pull a trump round. But south still has a trump left for ruffing the next club. Diamond and heart tops are then enough for what is needed. Watch that reserve.

Britain's Education Program Into Billion-Dollar Class

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 29 — (CP) — Britain's education program, designed to give every schoolchild an unlimited opportunity, has moved into the billion-dollar class.

Ministry of Education estimates for 1948-49 total £373,000,000 ($1,102,000,000), which is £28-000,000 more than last year and almost three times what was spent before the war.

Expenditures would be higher if more steel and timber were available for building new schools badly needed to relieve congestion caused by extension of the school-leaving age from 14 to 15, and an increased enrolment in the junior grades due to a high wartime birthrate.

About 60 per cent of the cost is borne by government grants. The balance is provided by local authorities out of municipal taxation.

Behind the program, which has the support of all parties and stems from legislation introduced in 1944 by the wartime coalition government, is the theory the ghost of little red-headed Ellen Wilkinson, who died two years ago while Minister of Education.

"Because of the financial arrangements now made, no child need be denied by reason of its parents' means any type of school best suited to its ability," she wrote just before her death.

"Red Ellen" now is not still quoted at the Ministry of Education, where officials are aware of the following signs of progress since the war:

1. School-leaving age raised from 14 to 15 years.

2. Twenty thousand new teachers given "compressed" courses to take care of the increased school population. The 50,000 compared with less than 5,000,000 pre-war) and the more numerous, smaller classes.

3. Sixty-one new schools have been built and 265 are building, often with unusual substitute materials to overcome supply shortages.

4. State scholarships now are available to any student needing a university education.

5. "Modern schools" with a bias toward technical education have freed the burden on grammar schools which now may revert to their original role of providing an academic education for the professional classes.

6. Hot mid-day meals at cost (about 10 cents a meal) for 2,750,000 children. Free milk for all.

7. Co-operation with local industry to ensure that school courses provide a proper flow of manpower.

British Workmen Still Not Free To Change Jobs Without Order

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 29 (CP)— The changes are that it will be at least 18 months before the British workman will be able to change jobs when he feels like it.

The control of engagement order, which enables the Labor Ministry to direct manpower to essential industries, does not expire until next Jan. 1. Labor minister George Isaacs has refused suggestions to lift it sooner.

"We shall take this away as soon as we feel it can be safely done," he told the House of Commons recently.

Isaacs did not say so but the government's reason for maintaining the order seems to be in the hope it will guarantee stability in industrial manpower rather than increase the payrolls of some industries which are still underemployed.

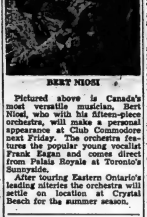
Few Directed Workers

That order, imposed in October 1947, would have expired last January but was extended one year. It provides that with certain exceptions all men and women must obtain their job hunting through the labor ministry. If they do not accept the offered job in essential industry, they are liable to prosecution.

Last year 376,000 persons were placed in this manner. Only 300 had to be "directed" to positions by the Labor Ministry.

Its estimated total working population by the end of 1949 will be 22,200,000 which provides for a year's increase of only 15,000. Some industries, praticularly textiles, are still shorthanded.

Deserted wyed



A debate on manpower, Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, Conservative member for West Derby, said the economic survey indicated there was no further need for the control of engagement order. He suggested men would be more eager to volunteer for essential industries, if it were not for the "ringed fence" still around them.

Isaacs said he would be the happiest man in this House" when the order could be abandoned. He had helped the government raise the manpower of priority industries by nearly six per cent compared with an increase of two per cent in all other manufacturing industries.

He echoed the theme of Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, that Britain's industrial salvation lies in increased output without adding to payrolls.

CRITICIZES LACK OF ACTION

Toronto, March 29 (CP)—Lack of government action in dealing with Canadian merchant seamen on the same basis as other veterans of the Second World War was criticized Monday night by A. J. Heide, National Secretary of the Canadian Merchant Navy Veterans' Association. He said that hundreds of seamen veterans were being refused vocational training because they had served on other than Canadian vessels during the war.

"Crime Comics" Criticized by Manitoba House

(By The Canadian Press)

Members of the Manitoba legislature Monday condemned critical comic books, particularly "crime comics." Crime comics takes in both the doings of the gangster characters and of other law-enforcement types as the hard-hitting Dick Tracey.

It all started when Berry Richards, C.C.F. member for The Pas, suggested to the government that it was time importation of the comic books was stopped. Other members supported his suggestion.

Attorney-General J. O. McLenaghen said their control was a matter for federal authorities and he added:

"No representations have been made to me about such periodicals. But if they are of the type of which Mr. Richards friend speaks, then it would be in order for a representation of the government to make representations to Ottawa."

Provincial Treasurer J. C. Dryden of Manitoba said in his Manitoba budget address that he expected a surplus of $50,832 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1950. He budgeted for ordinary expenditures of $36,465,273 and ordinary revenues of $35,514,105, with no tax changes.

Israel to Transfer Five Ministries

New York, March 29 (CP)—The New York Times says today in a dispatch from Tel Aviv that the Israel government has decided to transfer five of its ministries to Jerusalem.

The Times says the Israeli move serves notice on all concerned "that the Israeli-controlled area of Jerusalem was considered part of the new state."

The ministries slated to move to Jerusalem, the Times says, are: Religious affairs, social welfare and war victims. Sections of other ministries also will be transferred.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

I saw pop getting off the bus and started to walk home with him, saying, O, pop, here comes Admiral Tricker.

Yes pop said, he's got that pucky smart aleck neffew of his with him, pop said. Oh well, maybe this is my lucky day, maybe they wont stop, he said.

Which they did, Admiral Tricker saying, I think you've met my neffew Remington, Mr. Potts.

Oh yes, I've had the plezzure, pop said, and Admiral Tricker said, Remington's college class just took an intelligents tests, and Remington came out on top with flying colors.

I got an I.Q. of 140, Remington said, and Admiral Tricker said, That's what you call a smart lad.

Congradulations, Remington, pop said. How many lumps of sugar do you put in your coffee? he said, and Remington said, Oh, 2, or maybe 3. Why? he said.

Because I see you're inclined to take on weight, and nothing has more calories than sugar, so you must know with that I.Q. of yours, pop said, 2 or 3 lumps, well well. You smoke cigarettes, I supposet he said, and Remington said, Well, yes.

Do you remember the last one you smoked? pop said, and Remington said, Why, I cant say I do.

If you had injoyed it you'd remember it, pop said. Cigarettes shorten ther breth and dull the eyes and sharpen the nerves, so at least they should provide a little injoyment in return. I cant imagine anybody with your I.Q. smoking cigarettes without injoying them. Well, glad to of seen you again, Remington. Good by, Admiral, he said.

And we quick kept on going. pop saying, Maybe the Admiral actually will keep on going the next time he sees me, but I doubt it.

Toronto, March 29 (CP) — It is just possible your summer certain hockey games are, excuse the expression, "fixed."

Such thoughts crop up each year near the end of the hockey schedule when a lot of fans suspect that some of the fix in addition which might help them in a pennant struggle or playoffs.

Sports columnist, Ralph (Toronto Telegram) Allen, doesn't think any games are fixed.

Neither do I. I've been locked away in a home for the incurably credulous-minded, I would still have to say that, although I have been watching hockey games for more than 20 years and have been on speaking terms with many of the participants and coaches, I still do not think I have ever seen a fixed game," writes Ralph.

There always will be some games, he says, in which a team that might be good enough to win will decide almost unconsciously that it is to the best interests to take an easy loss instead of risking injury or exhaustion for a victory that might come in the first place.

"But I am convinced that games like these constitute an almost invisible minority among the vast majority of games in hockey or in any other team sport.

"In any case, they scarcely qualify for the adjective 'fixed.'

"He Scores"

Saturday night is "hockey night in Canada." And the thousands of listeners in Canada and the United States who draw closer to their radios are accustomed to hearing a familiar voice, the announcer, "He shoots, he scores!"

Foster Hewitt," says Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman, "has been broadcasting hockey of a trim little man named Foster Hewitt, who is unique in the broadcasting world. He has more Canadian listeners than Jack Benny or Fred Allen.

Coleman says that in 26 years of broadcasting hockey, Hewitt never has missed a scheduled broadcast and despite his long experience still feels shaky during the last few hours before the game.

"He stoutly denies any personal bias in his description of games. He points out that he paces himself according to the roars of the crowd and, quite naturally, his voice reaches a crescendo when the home team scores.

"A cold analysis of the fact reveals that Hewitt is professional like these constitute an almost in-

Kiner had hit a home run for Pittsburgh Pirates earlier in the game against Chicago White Sox. Then he was hit on the head by a line drive. However, he responded quickly and said he will be able to get back to work Wednesday.

Commission Boss Suspends Two Boxing Judges

New York March 29 (AP)— Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission said today that fight judge Harold Barnes and referee Harry Ebbetts would not be assigned to future bouts "for an indefinite period."

Eagan made the announcement after a closed meeting of the commission during which Friday night's Jake LaMotta-Robert Villemain fight was reviewed.

La Motta was voted the winner in the 12-round bout last week by Barnes and Ebbetts. Ebbetts voted for La Motta, six rounds to four with two even. Barnes also voted for the New York boxer, 6-5-1. Charles Shortell, the other judge, voted for the Frenchman, 7-4-1.

Eagan said the unprecedented action was taken because of the international aspects of the bout.

Eagan Friday night agreed with Shortell and a majority of the fans that Villemain was the easy winner.

MARMORA

Stresses Importance Of Religious Training

Marmora—Rev. J. S. Weimore, field secretary of the C.S.S.&A. was the special preacher at St. Paul's on Sunday morning. The fact that it was "Mothering Sunday" prompted him to speak to the little folks present, on the great influence uniting with the great work of the Sunday School, for the advancement of religious education, in the lives of growing boys and girls.

He stressed the fact that the economics idea still persists because so many, that the summit of religious education is reached at the age of confirmation — then — as though confirmation will were a kind of graduation. The scholar in worldly professions does not graduate that early in life; and to be informed fully, and correctly about God, the most important of all learning, means a continual study with the constant use of prayer. Hence should be more after the pattern that the son of God chose to grow up in, and the religious education of children is a responsibility of the greatest importance, with those, who are adults, as His disciples, or learners, must ever be alive.

Federal Aid Asked For Park, Recreation Work

Ottawa, March 29 — (CP) — Government assistance for park and recreational work across the Dominion was asked yesterday in a brief presented to Health Minister Martin by executives of the Parks and Recreation Association of Canada which wound up a two-day meeting here.

Request for aid was backed up by reports of more than $10,000,000 being spent annually by municipalities, provinces and corporations of facilities.

It was pointed out that facilities of parks, playgrounds and community centres in Canada were worth more than $200,000,000 and that during the next 20 years at least that amount would be spent to expand these facilities.

The brief noted that other national organizations received federal assistance and suggested an annual grant be provided to enable the association to establish a national office.

The association announced that Parks and Recreation Week in Canada will be held May 21-28 this year and in future would be an international effort in co-operation with the United States. Among those attending the meeting were Miss Allen, parliamentary secretary to the minister, and Fred Peterson, superintendent of Parks in Galt.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"Low, Craig said, "She's marvelous. And Brenda is giving her every break."

"Yes, she is marvelous." Philip said in a voice not quite so steady or so suave as usual.

The curtains met on the first act. They went down into the lobby to smoke.

As Philip held a lighter to Craig's cigarette, Craig said, "Steady there," and smiled at him.

Philip smiled. "Jitters. Always have them." Next to him a portly downger remarked, "Let me find her name! Isn't she too marvelous!"

In an undertone Craig said, "She's gone but Brenda is letting her steal it. It's good work, Philip. You have a hit."

"You mean that a new star was born tonight in that first act."

A new star, he thought, when he was in the box again and the curtains parted for the second act. He felt queer and shaken. What was the matter with him? His forehead was warm and moist. The stage was slightly blurred. He had ceased to listen. He thought of leaving and going out into the air but he knew he could not leave until he saw Karen again . . .

They had met, he and Karen, in a theatre where he was not needed diversion. For him, though he had meant to be kind, it had been an exercise in relieve and patience and boredom. The lovely girl in the cheap suit who had nearly lost all her money and who had been standing in the teeming rain on Broadway had amused him!

Amused him! But he was amused no longer! Seeing her now in a red skiing outfit, hearing the rich tones of her voice, Philip knew he loved her, knew that every day since that night in the June storm or she had taken emore and more possession of him; knew now why he had thought her beautiful with tears shining in her eyes, knew why all desire for Lilyan had left him! It had been Karen moving into his heart!

Craig looked astonished when Philip left the box.

He went downstairs to the chilly, empty lobby, lighted a cigarette and stepped outside. The October rain was cold. He felt the mist in his face. Leaning against the door, smoking, he knew why he had not slept a bit through one of the best plays he had ever written. A play! What did words written on paper and brought to life in a theatre matter when his own life was hopelessly muddled?

In New York Lilyan was buying her trousseau and furniture. The wedding invitations would be mailed this week while—while before the footlights a girl who had moved him like heart was thrilling thousands and he had not known he loved her until tonight—until too late!

When the doors opened and people filled the lobby, he could not believe that the second act was over. For the third and last he went back to the box and sat beside Craig seeing only Karen in a white lace dress.

Afterward he went directly back stage and met a hilarious Sid Kennedy who slapped him on the back and shook his hand. At the door of Brenda's dressing room he paused. Heresfore he had always seen her first. But he passed her door and came to Karen's dressing room and stood for a moment like an awkward boy, afraid to knock, afraid to see her, afraid of himself!

He knocked and said, "It's Philip, Karen."

Silence, then, "Oh, come in."

She was still wearing the white lace dress and she was sitting before the dressing table. Her eyes were excited. The wrong word from him, he knew, and she would close those sheer eyes against him.

She had been pounding if he would come. She had been sitting quietly, unable to remove her make-up, unable to change into street clothes, thinking of him. She arose and faced him.

Philip could not touch her. He was afraid to touch her. And a man who owed his fame to his skilful use of words found that now he could not find the words for this moment.

"You were wonderful," he said simply. Then he smiled. "Is the applause still ringing in your head?"

For months she had dreamed of this, of his coming to her and saying, "You were wonderful." Now was the time to tell him he had not offered to help her when she had so much needed help.

Meeting his eyes, Karen said, "Thank you, Philip." Tell him! Tell him! "You've worked and prayed for this moment! "The first time I met you, Philip, I wondered why you didn't offer to help me. You knew I was alone and didn't know what to do. A word from you would have helped so much. But you walked out of my life as amused by me for one evening and then you walked out!"

"I wore out a pair of shoes looking for work. I didn't expect you to give me a big chance like this. I knew I had to prove myself by small parts. I knew I had a lot to learn! But you did nothing. How grand and superior you were and—amused! I hate that word!"

Her voice broke a little. "And since that night I've hoped for an opportunity to tell you these things. I have made good. Tonight you helped me first. It wasn't his fault that the Tappen play failed. Then Brenda helped me. I've made good in your play. I don't need your help now. I'm glad I never asked for it!"

If Karen knew that he had had Tommy take her to see Tappen, if she knew of the phone call from England . . . But he would not tell her. Not her continue to think that she had made good through Tommy's help and Brenda's! Philip thought: "If I tell her I helped her, I'll tell her I love her."

He looked at her tenderly. Then: "If it is any satisfaction to you Karen, then know that I am no longer amused. I hate the word, too. It has kicked back at me."

Brenda was removing her makeup when he went to her dressing room.

Standing at the door, Philip said soberly, "I'm going back to New York tonight."

"Have an event on?"

He smiled. "Yes, I've seen her. The play can stand on its own without knocking and—and she's going back. You were great, Brenda."

Before she could speak, he was gone. Changing quickly into street clothes, he walked like a blind man, heedless of the rain, out of wind. Wonder what hit him.

She went to Karen's dressing room without knocking and—and her sitting at the dressing table with her head in her arms.

"You and Philip quarreled." It was not a question.

Karen looked up. "I told him what I thought of him for not helping me. Now I'm sorry, Brenda. Why should he help me? Why should he? This is the first time I thought of that. I was nobody. Where is he?"

He left. He went back to New York."

Brenda's heart ached for Karen. But how to tell her that in Karen's moment of triumph, with the lusty applause of thousands of hands still in her mind, the girl unhappily in love dominated the talented young actress who had entress she had won her fight. As a girl in love she had failed. And now in the moment that she thought would be the happiest of her life, nothing mattered except that she and Philip had quarreled and he had gone away.

Going to the bench, Brenda sat down beside her and put her arm around her.

"What I have to tell you will make you ashamed, Karen. But you are really not to blame."

Karen turned troubled blue eyes upon her. "I am ashamed. I thought it would be wonderful telling him that I've made good through your help and Tommy's. Not his! I told him I had never asked for his help and now I did not need it. He didn't say anything. He just stood there, looking as if he'd say he looked at me — hurt. But why should he have helped me? Now I can see his reason for not doing it. I was just another stage – struck girl. He's probably met hundreds. Now we — we aren't even friends."

She had forgotten the play. Softly Brenda knew she had been thinking of the way Philip looked at her. There was no doubt that the great ambition of her life has been realized at last and that the applause had been for her — that now she was sitting in her own dressing room.

"My dear, stop tormenting yourself," Brenda said kindly. "You've had a grudge against Philip. It seems rather a silly one but perhaps it wasn't. It's quite possible to love a man and hate him a little, too. But no matter how much you hate him now or ever, you'll never be free of him, Karen."

"I'll never forgive myself for talking to him like that." She looked past Brenda at the exact spot where Philip had stood only a little while ago and where he had said he was amused no longer. "I — I think I hurt him. I've never hurt any one or anything I loved before. And I — I love Philip so much."

Many Doctors Have Little Hope Of Ever Practising

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

Geneva, March 29 (AP)— If any country in the world has a real shortage of doctors are scarce, it need only apply to the International Refugee Organization.

Nearly 3,000 high-qualified physicians and surgeons are living among displaced persons in European Refugee camps, with little hope of ever again being allowed to help in the battle against disease and human suffering.

More than half these unemployed doctors are general practitioners. The remainder are specialists ranging from surgeons to psychiatrists.

Many of them are in their thirties or early forties and wish nothing more than to be allowed to use their skill in a new home, anywhere.

But nearly all countries admitting refugee immigrants refuse to accept doctors because of the opposition of local medical associations, the I.R.O. said in a recent report.

The only countries accepting refugee doctors "in very small numbers," the report said, are Norway, The Netherlands, Venezuela and Iran.

Most countries bar them because their medical associations fear competition or a lowering of medical standards, according to the I.R.O. report. As a result, many doctors have been emigrating as unskilled laborers and carrying on illicit practices in order to maintain themselves and their families during the years necessary to qualify for local medical degrees.

The report stressed the difficulties of long training and examination in unfamiliar languages for persons long past the student stage. The fears of the medical associations "are largely groundless," the report said.

"As for the competition, no country in the world has sufficient doctors to maintain the best possible level of health in all its areas."

Most US Papers Sell for 5 Cents

New York, March 29 (CP) — The street-sale price of 85 per cent of daily papers in the United States is five cents.

This figure was disclosed today by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

A.N.P.A. said that this year's survey of prices included for the first time Sunday editors of daily papers because of increases in that field.

The daily newspapers, of which there are 1,769 in the United States, include commercial dailies but not foreign-language papers.

The survey showed that 1,316 dailies sold for five cents.

Court Allows Two Appeals

Toronto, March 29 (CP)— The Ontario Court of Appeals, in a judgment handed down Monday, allowed the appeals of Michael Jackson of Toronto and Louis Schmaltz of Thorold, from convictions of a charge of boarding the freighter Gleneig at Thorold while carrying offensive weapons in 1946.

The appeal of Basil Dawson, 32, of Owen Sound, was dismissed, All three were sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment on conviction of the charge arising from an incident during the Canadian Seamen's Union strike.

Chief Justice R. S. Robertson said there was no evidence to support the charge against Jackson and Schmaltz, reversing a decision made by Judge Fuller of the Welland County Court who dismissed all three appeals.

MOST SNAKES FROM EGGS

Claims Warrant Signed by Nazi Collaborator

Toronto, March 29 (CP)—Arthur Matthys, 56-year-old Belgian immigrant, fighting extradition proceedings, testified Monday that the man who signed a warrant for his arrest on a murder charge was a Nazi collaborator.

Hearing of the proceedings, launched by the Belgian government, was adjourned until today.

Matthys, who was arrested near Tillsonburg, where he worked in a tobacco factory, came to Canada in 1947. He is wanted in Belgium to stand trial for the murder of Armand Devos, alleged Nazi collaborator shot to death during the German occupation.

Speaking in halting English, Matthys told the court of his activities as a member of a resistance underground band and identified documents in his name showing him to be a member of "good standing" in the Belgian partisan movement.

He told of a raid on a Nazi-captured distillery, miles behind the German columns. One of the raiders was Pierre Nerinck, former Belgian resistance army officer, who also testified yesterday.

Matthys named the man who signed the extradition warrant as Nerinck. Devos drove around Belgium in a big limousine bearing a placard "Deyche Richter Kommando Judge)." "

The witness denied having known Devos or of having had anything to do with his murder. Matthys said that Devos was a "spy" and that he had learned of his slaying in the newspapers.

Nerinck also described the work of the Belgian underground system, his contract with Matthys, and said he once had placed Devos under arrest.

Leo Parent ,17, Sent to Trial On Murder Count

Brockville, March 29. (CP) — Leo Parent, 17, of Cornwall, Monday night was committed for trial at the Fall assizes of the Ontario Supreme Court on a murder charge in connection with the death of 72-year-old Michael Skelton last Feb. 26.

Two other men, Thomas Dixon of Cornwall and Nicholas Terriah of Lancaster, Glengarry Township, taken into police custody as material witnesses, were released on bond of $100 each, to appear as witnesses at the Fall sittings.

Decision to commit Parent was made after an all-day preliminary hearing before Magistrate George A. Wright.

Skelton's death occurred five hours after he had dragged himself from his shack in a dazed and bleeding condition and appeared at the home of his neighbor, Mr. and Mrs. William Dean.

He allegedly told them he had been beaten and locked in his shack at the town's outskirts.

Both Terriah and Dixon testified that they and Parent had spent the night previous to Skelton's death in Skelton's shack.

Dixon testified that Skelton said: "the boy can sleep with me." You two can sleep on the floor." Dixon told the court: "It looked funny to me."

The two, Dixon and Terriah, had gone to Skelton's shack for supper, Friday, Feb. 25. There had been a knock on the door and Skelton said: "Come in, hobo."

Had Ax in Hand

Parent entered, attired in a blue suit, white shirt, brown shoes and blue overcoat. Both Dixon and Terriah said there had been no drinking at the shack that night. They left the shack at 8.45 p.m. E.S.T. There was little conversation but they believed Skelton was to have stomach trouble.

Mrs. Dean said Skelton had entered her home about 11.45 a.m., E.S.T. He had an ax in his left hand. Blood was streaming down his face. She said he did not name his attacker.

However, he was the type of person, she testified, that "you couldn't tell whether or anything he said—he lied so."

Mr. Dean said in testifying that he was not too fond of Skelton. "Several times I've asked him out and told him not to come back."

Dr. W. D. Hay, assistant professor of Pathology at Queen's University, said he had performed a post-mortem on Skelton's body. There had been about 17 cuts on Skelton's head. He believed a blunt instrument had been used.

Detective Inspector Allan Clark of the Cornwall police department, had questioned Parent's home a few days after Skelton's death and had found a gold watch, bearing the initials "M.S." inside an unused furnace.

R. H. Miller, Brockville jeweler, said he had repaired that watch for Skelton May 8, 1948.

Insurance Values Put on 'Queens'

London, March 29 (Reuters) — A recent white paper throws some light on what has always been a closely guarded secret—the values of the two famous Cunard liners, the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth.

The state document details the provisions of the Cunard Insurance Act, which deals with the insurance of the two liners.

The figures mentioned in the act are £ 6,000,000 ($24,000,000) for the Queen Elizabeth, and £5,250,000 for the Queen Mary.

Shipping experts emphasize that these figures cannot be regarded as representing the cost of replacing the liners. They are merely "values" agreed for insurance purposes under the act."

Atlantic Treaty Is First Step To Security--Bevin

World Must be Organized Regionally and Collectively

ARMY OF SYRIA TAKES OVER GOVT. UNDER GEN. ZIAM

Action Taken Says General to End Internal Anarchy

Damascus, March 30 (CP)—The Syrian army seized power in Syria's capital today, arresting government leaders in a bloodless revolt at dawn.

Gen. Osny El Zaim, commander of the Syrian army, and the military coup was ordered because of "attacks against the army, inside as well as outside the house of representatives."

Curfew was clamped on the city at 6 a.m. local time and all was reported quiet several hours after El Zaim announced the seizure of power.

El Zaim said the revolutionary movement was "purely local and has no foreign implications."

This was taken to mean that the new government probably would not proceed with scheduled armistice negotiations with Israel. Two United Nations officials left Rhodes Tuesday for Damascus to try the ground work for the Israeli-Syrian talks.

El Zaim announced that army rule over Syria would be "temporary."

Compelled to Make Change

"We have been compelled to undertake this change in the regime because of attacks against the army inside as well as outside the house of representatives, which gave way to misrepresentation of the Syrian army and ill treatment of its officers," El Zaim said.

"Another reason for it is the people's discontent with the present rule and the abuse from personalities inside it.

"Our movement is purely local and has no foreign implication whatsoever. We are not the tools of seekers or supporters of dictatorial rule. As soon as a new cabinet is formed, which we are seeking at present with the advice of the speaker of the house, Faris Bey El Khouri, we shall transfer the power to them."

The commander cabled the United Nations that the Syrian army took its action to put an end to internal anarchy. It confirmed Syria's adherence to her former agreements and respect for democracy.

"Urgent measures have been taken and a few persons arrested," El Zaim told a reporter. "A new constitutional government is expected to be formed today."

New York, March 30 (CP)—Ernest Bevin said today the western world is in danger, but that he expects no "early attack" if the nations signing the Atlantic pact work under it to implement their regional security.

The British Foreign Secretary told reporters that long-term peace ultimately will come through the United Nations. He said, however, that the world must first organize regionally for peace, then look for parts to get together.

He declined to say where he thinks the next regional grouping of nations would be formed.

Bevin met newspaper men aboard the Queen Mary which brought him and other western European Foreign Ministers to the United States for pact-signing ceremonies at Washington April 4, then sailed for home April 5th. The Foreign Secretary said he is "feeling very well indeed" after his accident two weeks. Of reports he suffered an asthmatic attack while aboard the Queen Mary at Southampton, he said only: "I was quite a little ill then."

As his press conference was being held, pickets with anti-Soviet placards paraded in the street outside the midtown pier.

"Anti-semitic Bevin—8,000,000 Jewish dead are enough," said one sign; "Bevin—hand off Israel," said another.

Aim to Bring Unity

"I am very glad to be back in the United States, especially on this occasion in which we are engaged, to bring about unity among peace-loving countries and promote solidarity to prevent war for many generations to come," Bevin said.

"But it will depend on the mental backing not only of countries but of the individuals in those countries. Without this moral force . . . we shall never get the peace we want."

The western world has torn itself apart in two years, said the Foreign Secretary. Now the diamond jubilee come" "greater and common understanding by peoples produced in the economic and cultural field, and in the field of defence."

"I had always thought security could be collective through the United Nations. That will come, but we had to begin somewhere.

"I had been hoping that we could build collective security through the United Nations. That will come, but we had to begin somewhere.

"The Atlantic pact is the first step in this great endeavor."

Foreign Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium agreed with Bevin on the pact's importance.

"The Atlantic pact," he said, "is the most important step in western defence policy since the formation of the United Nations. I am sure it will be an important step in maintaining peace."

Bevin said the peace of the world "depends on how well we act together—if solidarity develops.

New Toronto Police Rout Gang of 25

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Suburban New Toronto police routed a gang of 25 youths Tuesday night when they staged a demonstration in front of the police station because two of their friends had been arrested.

Police Chief Robert Weatherup said the gang refused to pay for a meal in a restaurant and the owner called police. Constables Kennedy, 19, of Toronto, was arrested and stripped of the crowd of youths and blocking the cafe door.

The gang appeared at the police station and allegedly threatened officers unless Kennedy were released. Police Chief Weatherup told Constable Irving Pease, former amateur boxer, to come out of the station, took off his tunic and rolled up his sleeves.

Chief Weatherup said seven other officers assisted Pease in making arrests. They were all from municipality. Some left by street car, others hitchhiked. All were from Toronto city, the chief said.

INJURED BY TRUCK, DIES

Hamilton, March 30 (CP) — Knocked down by a truck here Tuesday, Mrs. Bessie Marshall, 66, of Hamilton, died late Tuesday night in the general hospital.

She was pinned beneath the truck which had to be jacked up to release her after the accident.

2 AGED FARMERS BRUTALLY BEATEN ROBBED OF $550

Police Believe Three Youths Took Part

Dashwood, Ont., March 30 — (CP)— Two aged farmers were brutally beaten, robbed of about $550 and left tied to chairs in their home near the Huron County village Tuesday night. Police believe three youths took part in the attack.

In St. Joseph's Hospital London, suffering facial injuries and possible broken ribs is 80-year-old Jonah Kessell. His elder brother, William, 82, is still at the farmhouse of a friend, Joe Wild, half a mile from the Kessell home.

Police were told that the two men were slugged by three youths who entered the farmhouse at 10 p.m. They beat them up and then tied Jonah to a chair and the chair to the kitchen stove. William was tied to another chair a short distance from his brother.

After a quick check of the kitchen the three young thugs left without taking anything. Later they returned and ransacked the house. They found $350 in a purse in a bedroom and crokery in a kitchen cupboard.

William managed to free himself three hours after the attack left. He in turn released his brother and the two walked the half mile to Joe Wilds farmhouse. Wild called provincial constable Jack Ferguson of Exeter.

Robert Mitchum To be Released

Los Angeles, March 30 (AP) — Movie hero Robert Mitchum, who got a freedom today after a 50-day trick in the county jail, has his eye on another career — writing.

Mitchum five pounds leaner than when he started his jail term on a conviction of conspiracy to possess marijuana, he added, however, that he has a few more pictures to make.

"I've decided seriously of the writing idea in an interview with Hedda Hopper, "and would like to exploit and express ideas of my own," he said. "I would like to get back to writing if I had the time and the courage." Mr. Hopper—of Mitchum, looking tanned and fit from convalescent blocks at the sheriff's honor camp, said he has no bitterness about serving time. His movie salary was $2,500 a week, food, bath and maybe a drink or two.

Actress Lila Leeds, convicted with Mitchum, also completed today her 50-day term. She told reporters: "I'm going to be a very good girl from now on."

Mitchum's friends, dancer Vicki Evans and real-estate agent Robin Ford, were arrested last Aug. 31 when narcotics officers raided the secluded canyon cottage of Hollywood actor. Miss Evans were convicted and sentenced to 30 days, Ford was acquitted by a jury.

Mitchum said that he will first go back to work on the picture "The Big Steal."

Cargo Between Europe and India Handled at 92 P.C. Discount

By WILLIAM ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 30 — (CP) — The days when they "doing business" now, ocean freighters plying between Europe and India soon will be paying customers for the privilege of handling their cargoes.

Ships which have to make use involving a large group of British ship-owners on one hand and a Dutch group on the other shows that they are being handled at a 92-per-cent discount.

The war applies to cargo shipped from the European ports of Hamburg, Rotterdam and Antwerp and the ports of India, Pakistan and Ceylon.

The infinitive throughout has been with the Dutch owners, who have carried the war into Britain itself and have offered to take freight by rail and ferry from Britain to The Netherlands and there to transship it to their own vessels. Previously the freight had been accepted only in the European ports.

The war has been smouldering for months but flared into open right hostilities a fortnight ago when the Dutch offered cargoes at 60-per-cent discount from the normal rates.

The cause of the disagreement matters little in any scramble for the potentially-rich trade with German port of Hamburg.

Interested British ship-owners have issued three statements during the last week reviewing their position. Tuesday they announced it would be more economical for them to refuse cargoes and bring ships home in ballast rather than incur loading and discharging costs.

Twelve competing companies in all ply from Europe to India and Pakistan and six from Europe to Ceylon.

Native Army Will Replace Dutch Forces in Indonesia

Batavia, Java, March 30 (AP)—The Netherlands officially announced plans today for the speed replacement of Dutch forces in Indonesia by a native army.

The announcement said the new army will at first "need the help of Dutch army officers and noncoms who will gradually be replaced by Indonesians."

It said training of the new army of 18,000 men will be started shortly. The new organization will take over the already existing "security battalions" of the Dutch-sponsored federal states and former Republican combat groups which show their willingness to "co-operate."

The new units will be under jurisdiction of the federal state where it is formed until the recognition of a sovereign United States of Indonesia."

The announcement said the reason for the new measure was the necessity of replacing the present use of Netherlands troops under Dutch plans for an early transfer of political authority to the Indonesians.

Bangkok, Siam, March 29 (AP) —The Indonesian Republic today urged the help of "any and every" United Nations agency against The Netherlands. The appeal was supported by the Soviet Union.

The Indonesian request was put before the committee of the whole of the U.N. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East by Sjarifuddin Prawiranegara.

Humble Cabin, Birthplace Of Stalin, Built Into Shrine

(Editor's Note: Eddie Gilmore AP's Moscow bureau chief, recently returned from a 3,200-mile trip from Moscow through southern Russia. On the way he visited Stalin's birthplace.)

By EDDIE GILMORE

Gori, Georgia, U.S.S.R., March 30 (AP)—Here in this little mountain city where Stalin was born, I have been looking at the report card from the Gori Academy.

It shows him an excellent student.

The report card and a lot of other personal information are contained in a modern museum connected with the shrine into which the humble cabin in which he was born has been built.

The shrine—pillars of colored marble and steel work—encase the cabin in which Joseph was Stalin's birth, his mother and father—now a national shrine.

Stalin was born here Dec. 21, 1879, and lived in the cabin until 1883.

In the other room of the cabin where Stalin, his mother and father didn't live—hangs a photograph of Ekaterina Djugashvili, his mother.

It shows a strikingly beautiful woman with dark hair, flashing eyes, straight nose and a finely-shaped mouth and chin.

The girl who showed us the cabin it is believed to be the only picture ever taken of Stalin's mother. Stalin's mother was born in 1856 and died in 1937. His father was born in 1858 and died in 1906.

"Comrade Stalin," said the girl "was one of three boys. The other two died quite young."

Here is Stalin as a boy his mother and father worked hard, and their life was hard and difficult.

There are several photographs of Stalin when he was a small boy. Here he is a sturdy, attractive youth with large, dark eyes and a great head of black hair.

His boyhood friends and his mother called him "Soso," a nickname for Joseph.

Crown Attorney Donnan Denies Evidence Suppressed at Woods' Trial

The Royal Commission investigation became more involved today as numerous questions and answers were exchanged relative to the Woods accident case.

Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan was being questioned by Keays when suggestion was made that Cpl. Sam Erwine committed perjury at the Woods accident inquest when he said no certain guard rail posts had been broken a month prior to the accident.

Commission Counsel C. P. Hope asked Commissioner Hon. Gordon Conant to call Mr. Donnan. Because of his physical disability Conant sat during the cross examination.

Mr. Donnan stated he wished to stand for the cross examination provided Mr. Hope would ask his own position and on questions relating to the Conc. Conc. Keays took up a position just inside the courtroom railing.

Says Ball Suggested

Keays suggested that the facts of the Woods' case had been presented to Mr. Donnan on April 5th., the day following the accident and that the Crown Attorney had suggested a charge on the dangerous driving charge.

Mr. Donnan replied he recalled nothing of the Woods' accident investigation until contacted by Col. Roscoe Vanderwater. He admitted however, that normal procedure would call for Keays and Woods to appear before him to arrange a charge.

Keays asserted both charges against Woods were laid on Nov. 9th., but information showed the dangerous driving charge had been laid on Nov. 8th. Keays suggested the date on the dangerous driving charge had been altered to read Nov. 9th. Keays stated the Nov. 9th. date could still be faintly seen.

"I fail to see it," stated Mr. Donnan as he handed the information back.

The witness was referred to the Woods' accident trial and replied that he had at first been convinced that Keays' theory had been correct but had changed his mind when later evidence indicated the Woods' car could not have been responsible. Then he had come to the conclusion Keays' theory was not sound.

N. W. Oklahoma Hit Four Times By Tornadoes

Canton, Okla., March 30 (AP)—Four tornadoes struck in northwest Oklahoma today, killing two, injuring 18 and causing heavy property damage.

Canton, Longdale and Blackwell were hit. A tornado also dipped down five miles north of Kreid, and wrecked a small airport.

The heaviest damage was to the first two—Canton, a town of 1,200, and nearby Longdale, 400.

Most of the town in Canton and Longdale.

At Canton the entire town was damaged. Streets were littered with cars, boards, bricks and wrecked autos.

At Longdale two business buildings were demolished and many houses damaged—but none were flattened.

The tornado in Blackwell struck the south and southwest sections of the small city of 12,000. Six persons were taken to hospital.

One large home in Blackwell was unroofed, a half dozen smaller houses were damaged and a one-storey frame school house flattened.

With the coming of dawn rescue workers found the damage in Canton would be much greater as first reports had indicated.

Foreign Secretary Will Not be Able To Visit Ottawa

New York, March 30 — (CP) — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin will be unable to visit Ottawa after signing the Atlantic Pact in Washington, a spokesman for the British Information Services said today.

The London Daily Graphic reported earlier that Bevin would make such a trip to "discuss Commonwealth problems with the Canadian cabinet."

Members of Bevin's staff said the foreign secretary has a "very heavy schedule" in the United States and calls for home April 8.

QUEBEC DIVORCE BILLS STILL IN HANDS OF HOUSE

Procedure Disliked But no Change Made

Ottawa, March 30 — (CP) — The Commons Tuesday expressed its traditional dislike for passing Quebec divorce bills and stiffpa- sized it by putting one of the measures to a vote. It slithered through by a six-vote margin.

The division was forced by French-speaking members as 62 divorce bills from Quebec, which has no provincial divorce court, came up for second reading in the hour set aside for consideration of private legislation.

The bill won approval by a count of 82 to 76 in a vote which criss-crossed party lines and saw George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Works Minister Fournier and Rev. Dan McIvor (Lib. — Fort William) join the Quebec members and substantial blocks of Liberals, Progressive Conservatives and C. C. F. members in balloting against it.

Their opposition was not sufficient, however, to defeat the bill passed second reading on the votes of members of the three major parties, plus the almost solid bailiwick strength of Social Credit. Only a few Quebec members supported the measure.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, who in the past has resented the opposition to the parliamentary practice of adopting divorce bills, was not in the Chamber for the division.

Happened to be First

The bill, entitled "an act for the relief of Francis Thomas Joseph Cleevey," had no particular significance. It was put to the vote simply because it happened to be the first of the 83 bills on the order paper. The remainder will be brought forward for second reading later in the session.

London, March 30 (Reuters) — A bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace today said the King continues to make good progress after his operation on March 12 but a long period of convalescence will be necessary.

Today's bulletin was the last of a series issued since the operation.

Since the operation, the King's right pubic engagement on attendance at a royal variety performance Nov. 7 — has been announced.

Fourteen Arrested As Police Break Up World Peace Rally

L.P. Party Chief in Quebec Taken in Bloody Rout

Montreal, March 30 — (CP) — A "peace" rally sponsored by the Labor - Progressive party was turned into a bloody rout here Tuesday night when more than 100 city, provincial and Royal Canadian Mounted Police broke up a street meeting on Central St. Lawrence Blvd.

Twelve persons were arrested and four went to hospital with minor injuries as eight-fists-swinging police squads dispersed a crowd of men and women estimated at from 500 to 1,000.

Among those arrested and charged with resisting police disturbance was Gui Caron, youthful leader of the Quebec Labor-Progressive party. He was released on $100 bail.

The incident started when groups of persons gathered around a hall owned by the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union (A.F.L.). The hall had been rented by the Labor-Progressives for a meeting to stage a meeting calling for "world peace" and protesting Canada participation in the Atlantic Pact.

However, the Union said it withdrew its permission when it learned that speakers would be Reds and Communists. Similar nominee in Jacques Cartier riding in the June federal election.

Hold Street Meeting

L. P. P. leaders showed up in front of the locked hall anyway and proceeded to hold a street meeting, complete with banners blazoned with the slogan, "We want peace."

Large squads of police had been detailed to the area in anticipation of such a move. Constables told the crowd to move on.

Eyewitnesses reported that the swelling crowd was quiet and orderly but were slow in moving. Uniformed police charged into them, swinging their clubs liberally.

Caron and other speakers, according to the eyewitnesses, threw the crowd to defiance of police and it started to do so.

The police drove it, however, tearing down the banners of the demonstrators. Sgt. John Boyczuk of the city anti-communist squad suffered a badly cut mouth.

Two reporters said that at least two of the police broke their nightsticks. Several of those arrested, including Caron, were well known in Labor-Progressive circles.

One of these — Norman Nerenberg — is secretary of the National Federation of Labor Youth.

TIZARD GOES TO U.S.

Aboard the Queen Mary, March 30 (AP)—Sir Henry Tizard, the British governments top scientist, left here today for a visit to Washington next Wednesday after his conferences here will known in Labor-Progressive circles.

'Quickie' Comes Cheaper, Stronger In Nfld. But That Era Soon to End

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

St. John's, Nfld., March 30 — (CP)—Whether you call it "kreal" again, a "quickie," "short, sharp one" or "one for the road", you can get it cheaper and stronger in Newfoundland than in Canada.

But it looks as though the golden era for drinkers is coming to an end. It is widely credited that Liquor Control Board will jump considerably following confederation because of heavier customs requirements.

Dr. Haggborne's report, however, extensive stocking up by citizens and say there probably is enough Newfoundland rum in bond to last over the next year. This would postpone price hoists for a time.

J. G. Howell, chairman of the Board of Liquor Control, said the present customs tariff here is $8.45 a gallon of imported "proof" rum while Canada collects $13 per gallon. The most popular drink is Demerara rum, dubbed "screech" by Canadian servicemen during the war, and it sells for $2.50 a quart. Most prices are under the $4 bracket.

Newfoundlanders are traditionally rum drinkers. Liquor Board figures show they consumed 350,000 gallons of the stuff last year, to say nothing of whisky, gin, brandy, beer and wine. In all they drank over 1,000,000 gallons, about three gallons for each man, woman and child on the island.

A wartime rationing system — allowing two quart bottles a man per week—still is in effect. Only St. John's and Corner Brook on the west coast, have liquor stores open. Other points are served by mail.

Mr. Howell said that although Newfoundland is a big rum country it wasn't a "quickie" or a "short, sharp one" or "one for the road", you can get it cheaper and stronger in Newfoundland than in Canada.

ONT. LEGISLATURE SITS 14 HOURS ON ESTIMATES

Manufacturers Do Not Have to Label Margarine as "Butter Substitute"

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — The Ontario Legislature, with some members falling asleep as the discussion on departmental estimates droned on, sat until at 4:50 a. m. today in one of the longest sittings in its history.

Only about half the 90 members were in their seats when Provincial Treasurer Frost adjourned the debate, which lasted altogether 13 hours and 50 minutes, shortly after the dinner hour adjournment. The length of sitting was not a record, the legislature has been sitting until noon.

Opposition members, angered by a speech by Education Minister Dunlop for a suburban Young Progressive Conservative Association Monday night in which he criticized the opposition as "the weakest we ever had" and "as effective as the debate went into the early hours they would not be encouraged to be wasting the education department's estimates.

Mr. Dunlop (Simcoe North, Toronto St. Andrew) said they had been introduced at a time when Conservatives were asleep at the switch.

Shortly after 2 a. m. William Temple (CCF — Toronto High Park) appeared with cups of coffee for Dr. Patrick (C.C.F.—Middlesex North), chairman of the whole house, and D. L. Jewitt, assistant clerk of the Legislature.

Weary members propped their feet on the desks and tossed paper balls. Page boys were sent home at 3:30 a. m.

The legislature meets again today at 2 p. m., one hour earlier than usual.

SEARCH FOR FREIGHT CAR FILFERERS

City police joined forces with officers of the Canadian National Railways yesterday in an effort to apprehend a person or persons thus far unknown who have been pilfering goods from freight cars near the Swift Canadian Company.

A C.N.R. switchman told the officers that he had seen a man run away from one of the cars. He gave police a fair description and developments may ensue shortly.

Muskrat Trapping Said Unfavorable

Poor ice conditions during the winter with varying weather has resulted in a marked decline over last year in muskrat trapping results, according to a local Department of Lands and Forests report.

This is substantiated in reports of local and district trappers who state that thus far the haul of muskrats has been the poorest in years. Lack of ice in the natural habitats of the rats has retarded operations, making it difficult for trappers to pursue their activities. Prices are said to be comparable to those of former years.

Smelt in Quantity Have Not Put in Appearance Here

That silver sliver of piscatorial delicacy, the smelt, which the experts claim are invading inland creeks and rivers in other parts of the province, have as yet failed in an appearance in mass formation in these parts.

True, fishermen who patrol the deep waters of Lake Ontario are reporting good hauls of the deep-water type which ranges up twelve and thirteen inches, but the river type which sprouts from toothpick to cigar size has yet to show itself, in the waters of the Moira River at Belleville.

A few have been taken, but the main invasion, when thousands of the tasty fish rush headlong up the river mouth is not expected for at least a week yet.

Lake smelt is commanding twenty-five cents per pound currently, but the river smelt will not bring home so much financial return, Fishermen say. Prices are expected to range between ten and twelve cents the pound.

Explanatory Talk on Income Tax Given Farmers at C. of C. Meeting

The Chamber of Commerce last night held their final meeting at the Kiwanis Centre in a series that was presented to aid the farmers in the filling of their income tax and last night a talk was given by F. J. Lancaster, of the Belleville district Income Tax Office, on the farmer's income tax.

Mr. Lancaster pointed out that there were two major points that the farmer should remember. He showed three real advantages in keeping records in the first place. The first was that it is a good business. Many farmers operate for years without knowing whether or not they are making or losing money. With simple and proper records a farmer will know, not only that he is making or losing money, but where he is making or losing it.

The second point Mr. Lancaster said, "When you come to the income tax office, remember the farmers form the Belleville office and if you have made a substantial income, complete the form and pay the two-third tax by December 31st, 1940 and when April 30th rolls around there will be only one-third left to pay.

Some Changes Noted

There have been a few changes in the regulations this year and these are the results of information supplied by various farm groups and associations. One of these is:

A farmer who lives in his own home on the farm can claim $25 a month for the personal expenses section and 25 per cent of the normal repairs on his farm as an expense on his farm tax return.

Another is in regard to the sale of used farm tools and products of woodlots. While they are formerly assessed income and subject to tax, a depletion allowance of $100 for used farm implements will be allowed before any tax is payable. This covers all the articles that a farmer or farmer makes during the year for disposal. Where the sales are extensive and the $100 minimum is not sufficient then the property depletion form will be applied.

Use Account Books

In regard to record book he said, "I have seen some very satisfactory records kept in a ruled scribbler but this is not necessary when good farm account books can be obtained at many of the banks or at the Provincial or Dominion Departments of Agriculture. The farmers account book which was sent out to all farmers last year by the Income Tax Department is an excellent record book. This book will not be sent out this year but one may take his original and use it as a guide to set up his own book.

"The important point is that you record the various types of receipts and expenses. A separate page should be kept for each type. I mentioned here that a loose leaf note book for record-keeping is best as additional pages may be added where desired, thus keeping one type of receipt or expense in the same section of the book."

All items should be entered on the day of the transaction, said the speaker and if this is done the job should not take more than a few minutes and will save hours of work later. If products are exchanged for other items at a store or with a neighbor the amount to be entered in the book is the fair cash value of the item received in exchange.

Matters to Watch

If operating on a cash basis as the majority of farmers are, receipts should only be entered only when the money or other payment is received and expenses only when the item is paid. If keen-minded man and has had a wide and varied experience in business. He was at one time in charge of the Shell Company operations and is a senior executive for Shell in Trinidad. He is a barrister-at-law, Oxford and at one time was a member of the legislature of Trinidad.

Problem Solved

Mr. Ash in speaking to the dealers said that he hoped that the year ahead would be greater than ever for the Shell Company. "The problem of obtaining the products that prevailed at one time has now been solved," he said, "but the pressure is not on the buyer now but on the seller. The dealers are a vital link in our business and good service is necessary now more than ever before. If they are to play their part to the full in the chain. One of the most important factors in a service station is the time present time is for a dealer to have a good location, to have a good personality and to carry on that his service clean as well as keeping the service station clean."

Past-president of the Shell Company, Mr. J. M. Fowler, was accompanied by the dealers in attendance and all the dealers in general. Mr. Fowley, who had been with the company for the past 18 years, was transferred to London to attend to more important duties.

Service Angle Outlined

One of the most important features of the meeting was the preview of the sales campaign for 1941 as explained by J. A. Carruthers. Mr. Carruthers pointed out that there were two essential points that must be considered in the sale of gas, increased his volume of sales through advertising. First, to get the attention of customers attention, to persuade them, to convince them and finally to get them to dealers must deliver their products or services in the most efficient way. The advertising material for 1940 has been totally revised and the all-important selling argument that the advertising presents is the slogan, "Shell's Big Advantage." It is the service angle that attracts the most business.

Shell has seven different posters that are one of their greatest selling aids. Each poster are four posters that are in a person-ality group. They present a splendid picture of a dealer with his own slogan and there are two posters that represent the spring and the fall time. The seventh poster is for Shell premium gasoline. There seems to be very little for the latter to attract business but there is one word that seems to be the magic catching word and that is the word "safety" and the slogan is emphasized one of Shell's greatest friends Mickey Mouse. These papers are one of our greatest trade-getters. Ask your salesman for you to help you so use them."

Free Touring Service

Another one of the highlights of the Shell advertising program is the free touring service that Shell is offering. A good service station will give a tourist any information he desires regarding his holiday travelling and they will give free road maps and folders that they have on hand for them. Along with this they help to cultivate goodwill by giving their customers novelty gift items such as key rings, pencils and other Shell golf tees.

They also help to create good will by advertising the Red Cross on their posters. Mr. Carruthers pointed out that there are now promised 221,000,000 people that see the Shell posters a year and also that their radio spot announcements along with newspaper and magazine advertising will impress-sell factors in their advertising campaign. Shell have a specially packaged road show that will be a travelling display of exhibition, of the products and services of Shell. The One other new program that the Shell Company has to offer is their free motion picture which is a film that will lend out to any libraries, high schools, etc.

Demonstration Given

With the help of well-trained service station dealers Mr. Keaj Hamilton, Toronto division sales manager, presented a demonstration of the wrong way to serve customers and the right way that will help to keep a profitable clientele. There were a few of the suggestions that were offered in this skeleton. Be neat and presentable. To have a neat personal appearance it will create a public confidence in those with you. Always show the condition of oil to the customer. Never force a customer to buy oil. One must get under the hood. Tell customer what he may need it. Do not guess. Shell has a seven point service that suggests priority increases sales. They are: check the tires and wheels; check the battery; check and clean on the water and oil, test the fan belt; check the radiator for leaks; hose for leaks and the ignition wires for worn spots. Never look in the car for squeaks and last but not least to wipe the windshields. The customer's car is a dealer should explain the facts about a customer's car expects to sell it. It will save time, help to convince the customer and may result to more business.

Clean Restrooms Needed

The Shell Company has recently spent some $300,000 on a new sanitation program which provides guides to the points of interest that require attention. Another important factor that may help to keep it well up to the standard volume is to have a clean restroom at all times for the customer. It seems a man's standard it may result in a new customer. Many are the men that have stopped dealing with a certain service station because of their wife's impression of an unkept washroom.

Mr. Harry Birk, Toronto division sales manager, said that the gasoline situation has changed considerably within the past few years. He added that the sellers market that prevailed for several years has gone by and that the honeymoon is over. He hopes that the dealers will help to combat the situation with all their energies, skill and service.

Refreshments and entertainment were provided for those in attendance following the adjournment of the meeting.

Bay Practically Clear of Ice

With the exception of the remnants of an icefield that is floating free just west of the bay bridge, the Bay of Quinte in this immediate district is entirely free from its winter shackles.

The Moira River is flowing fairly swiftly to the bay with no barriers to impede its progress.

The bay beyond the ice field to Trenton is clear while eastward no sign of ice is visible.

Yesterday morning Monday started the annual exodus and yesterday open water was apparent eastward as far as the eye could reach. Continuing mild weather, it is expected will clear the remaining ice near the bridge in a day or so.

ATLANTIC TREATY

"I do not fear an early attack. But if we just sign the pact and then sit back we'll still be in great danger."

A reporter asked: "Does your reference to an 'early attack' mean you expect an ultimate attack?"

Democracy Can Come Together

"No," Bevin replied, "that wasn't the question. The past has taught the world again that democracy can come when danger is apparent. We probably tried to big at the beginning of the United Nations. We have to build in regions and then bring them together."

Andrei Gromyko, Russia's chief delegate to the United Nations, was aboard the ship. Bevin said he met him briefly but that they didn't talk about world matters.

"I never disturb the ship and it's my habit," he chuckled.

Other passengers included Foreign Minister D. U. Stikker of the Netherlands, Foreign Minister Joseph Bech of Luxembourg, and Hector McNeil, Britain's chief delegate to U.N.

Enthusiastic endorsement of the Atlantic pact was voiced by Spaak and Stikker.

Spaak said he found the pact "entirely within the framework of the United Nations and that it strengthens the U. N."

reporter, implied that he and other western Foreign Ministers had discussed a possible Mediterranean alliance on the trip over.

Asked about a report that such an alliance was being given informal consideration, Bevin said:

"I can't talk about a thing while it is forming."

Just Coming to U.K.

New York, (CP)—Andrei A. Gromyko today returned to the United States country he once left the hoped never to see again.

Russia's chief delegate to the United Nations travelled back to cabin M-118 on the liner Queen Mary. He refused to talk to the press. But he didn't brighten his attitude to the press.

Asked to say" he said res pectedly this morning as he boarded the ship, "I have been sent thongs of reporters and photographers.

Today some did he give a halfsmile. That was when one of the photographers pleaded: "Smile for us, Mr. Gromyko."

"That is very artificial smile," said Gromyko, recently named his country's senior deputy minister of foreign affairs. But there was just a second he did grin stiffly.

Then he closed his stateroom door on himself and his secretary. Reporters heard the bolt click from inside.

When he was succeeded last year by Andrei Vishinsky as Russian U.N. delegate, Gromyko told reporters he was glad to go home and hoped he'd never be sent back.

Interviewers today had no chance to ask if he has changed his mind. "I am coming to the U.N.," was all he would say.

QUEBEC DIVORCE

In a brief debate which preceded the contest, Garfield Case (Progrey North) and T. L. Church (Toronto Broadview) expressed their concern for the children of the severed parents and said they were sympathetic to the some other procedure for dealing with divorce cases in the French speaking provinces.

Mr. Case asked what had been done about a plan suggested by Prime Minister St. Laurent in 1946 for the creation of a Hall.

At that time, Mr. St. Laurent had suggested that parliament instead of hearing divorce evidence itself, does, should pass divorce bills only on a judgment from a Quebec court granting separation.

Mr. Case said he had "no quarrel" with Quebec's decision for divorce courts but he did not like the present procedure.

The divorce debate is a seasonal occurrence. It develops from the decline of commoners for the responsibility placed on them to decide that a divorce should be granted. All other provinces handle their divorce cases in provincial courts.

Second Division Reading

The division was the second of the day and took the spotlight away from the wrangling debate, touching on varied subjects, which developed as the government moved in into committee of supply. The motion was for the first and $234,000,000 of interim supply—an estimates on the 1949-50 estimates—

The first recorded vote arose when Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) sought to have the Chamber ask the government to consider higher old-age pensions, a lower age limit and abolition of the means test.

Speaker Gaspard Fauteux ruled his motion out of order and was sustained by a count of 107 to 99.

Revenue Minister McCann said the government does not feel it necessary this year to extend the April 30 deadline for the filing of income tax returns.

Transport Minister Chevrier announced that Trans-Canada Air Lines will fly passengers from Newfoundland to Britain and vice versa after the island becomes part of Canada.

Varied Topics Discussed

The day-long debate on the supply motion swung through a half dozen varied topics.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) criticized the government for its alleged failure to undertake the irrigation of large areas of Saskatchewan by damming the South Saskatchewan River and pointed to predictions of a crop failure this year as emphasizing the importance of the $66,000,000 project.

William Bryce (CCF-Selkirk) urged the government to provide floor-price support for Canada's honey producers whose prices have dropped from 25-30 cent range in 1947 to a current level of 15 cents. He blamed due to surplus supplies and the loss of pre-war United Kingdom markets.

Stanley Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) called for the enunciation of a national food policy, which would reduce American imports of coal, save United States dollars and preserve the central Canada market for Maritime coal producers.

John R. MacNicol (PC-Davenport) protested against the dismissal of Daniel M. Reed, returning officer in his riding, and said he planned to take the case before the Commons committee on privileges and elections. State Secretary Gibson said the man

ONT. LEGISLATURE

Delete Requirements

In committee stage on the margarine bill in the afternoon sitting Tuesday, the House saw government deletion of requirements that manufacturers should label their product as a "butter substitute." The government however declined to accept opposition suggestions that margarine be permitted more than 1.5 degrees of yellow colouring. Agriculture Minister Goodfellow, sponsoring the bill, said average butter contained between 9 and 25 degrees of yellow coloring.

Mr. Goodfellow told the legislature that the Ontario government would favor a conference of all provinces to draft uniform regulations on sale and manufacture of margarine, including the colouring limit at 1.5 degrees the government had considered that British Columbia had already set such a limit.

Must Install Mudguards

A bill compelling owners to install mudguards on rear wheels of trucks and trailers was introduced. Another new bill provided that municipalities may enter into agreements between milk producers and distributors and may re-negotiated at any time that the Ontario Milk Control Board chooses.

On the Attorney General's Department estimates, considered in the night sitting, Attorney-General Blackwell told C.C.F. Calder (Lib-Lambton) that "by and large the people of Ontario have no desire for the return of American Sunday." Mr. Caldwell had asked explanations regarding enforcement of the Lord's Day Act. Mr. Blackwell explained this was a federal matter.

In the margarine debate, Mr. Goodfellow moved an amendment providing that restaurants serving margarine need only display a sign reading "margarine is served here." The amendment deleted the words "as a substitute for butter."

J.G. Brown (Lib-Waterloo North) asked the government to allow "a little coloring" of margarine. He favored 3.5 degrees of color was "almost white." He could not say what difference an additional 1-10th of 1-5th degrees of color would make but he thought consumers should be nearer the color of butter.

Supports Provision

Another Liberal member, R. A. McEwing (Wellington North) supported the bill's color provision. He said that if margarine and butter were any more similar in color than the bill provided, manufacturers would "stick to chiles." Margarine could "coast along on butter's reputation."

The Legislature defeated an amendment by A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog. — Toronto Parkdale) to permit margarine to bear three degrees of color.

In the night debate Mr. Blackwell said the Lord's Day Act provided that prosecutions may be brought on consent of the Attorney-General's department. In the past, police forces had never known whether this consent was forthcoming. The Attorney-General last summer informed Crown Attorneys which types of prosecutions would be approved.

He had always conferred with the executive of the Lord's Day Alliance before consenting to prosecutions. The Alliance had been "reasonable" and did not ask prosecution of all alleged violations of the act.

C. H. Millard (CCF—York West) said Ontario Provincial Police were underpaid. They were paid $2,107 plus a cost-of-living bonus of $180.

Can't Join Unions

Police were forbidden from joining a trade union.

"They don't have bargaining power and unless this legislature takes care of them, no one will."

Mr. Blackwell said "bargaining power is no" Ontario civil servants were still more highly paid than unionized employees of the C. C. F. government of Saskatchewan.

That led into a general discussion of wage rates. J. B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog. Toronto — St. Andrew) asking the government to give civil servants rises even the King grants his household staff — the right to bargain collectively."

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said the membership of the Civil Services Commission had not been increased from one to three. Former provincial secretary Roland Michener had indicated his intention of doing this. Large Estimate

Provincial Secretary Porter said the matter was "still under contemplation." He did not think the urgency was very great. One of the principal advantages of the new commission would be the "advantageous conditions in various departments to improve efficiency." It was not always easy to get the "right person." especially for "such a delicate matter."

Shortly before 1 a. m. the House began consideration of the Education Department estimates which provide for expenditure of almost $80,000,000 — largest departmental estimate in the budg-

CROWN ATTORNEY

The transcript of the Woods' trial was produced and the Commissioner reading from its pages stated he could not determine from the evidence whether the Woods' car had been responsible.

Had Read Transcript

Mr. Donnan stated his recollection of Keays's evidence was that the officer had testified that the Woods' car had broken the post.

"Keays knows what is in that transcript. He read that transcript in January and knowing it was not in his favor is the reason he asked for it here," Keays said.

"If the evidence in that transcript is correct then Keays is the maniac he has been termed," said Keays.

Mr. Hope pointed out Keays had asked for the transcript to be entered as an exhibit and he did not vouch for its accuracy.

"I am not responsible for the transcript being put in; it was asked for by Keays," stated Mr. Hope.

"The only reason Keays wanted the transcript was to show the Commissioner its inaccuracy," said Keays.

Commissioner Mackay observed that the transcript was the responsibility of the witness asking for its introduction.

When Keays' questions to the Crown Attorney became rather involved and lengthy Commissioner Mackay requested the constable to phrase his questions more concisely.

Witness Called

Mr. Donnan stated Keays' evidence in the Woods' trial had been based on history rather than facts.

Keays asked if all the relevant witnesses had been called to testify at the Woods hearing and suggested that one Donald Bronson, Peterborough, had come but was not called. "That is right" agreed Mr. Donnan. "All the evidence Bronson could possibly have given has already been given. This evidence was not contradicted."

Keays said that Bronson could have given evidence that the Woods car actually did go into the east ditch. Keays also said that Homer Chisholm could have testified as to the condition of Woods immediately following the accident.

Commissioner Mackay objected at what he termed Keays going over his argument instead of sticking to the issue.

"One of the first issues of an inquiry is to define the issue and then discuss the issue," stated the commissioner. "This going off at a tangent will get us nowhere."

The commissioner asked Keays whether the issue in connection with this particular phase of the inquiry was that the crown attorney failed to produce evidence at the Woods trial, which, if it had been produced, may very well have resulted in conviction on the drunk driving charge.

Keays ultimately agreed that this was the issue at the moment.

Explains "Feud" Origin

Keays referred to a previous statement by the witness that there had been a "feud" between Keays and Cpl. Ervine.

Mr. Donnan replied that Keays through certain allegations had caused Cpl. Ervine, Constable Purdy and the Crown Attorney to be investigated. He said this had been the origin.

He said that no information had been placed before him by Keays to satisfy him that Cpl. Ervine had committed perjury.

Mr. Donnan stated that on more than one occasion he had recommended Keays for promotions to the C.B.

Keays referred to the incident where C.C.F. leader Jolliffe had been stopped for speeding.

Mr. Donnan admitted one of the officers concerned and stated Mr. Jolliffe had been stopped.

After considering the matter I told the officer to forget about it," said Mr. Donnan.

"It was the perfectly obvious thing to do under the circumstances. Mr. Jolliffe was in the public eye and I take the entire responsibility."

Under cross examination by Malcolm Mac. Mr. Donnan stated he had sought to prove at the Woods' trial that the Woods' car was broken the guard rail post.

"That information was given to me by Keays," stated Mr. Donnan. Evidence later had indicated the posts had been broken before the Woods' accident, he said.

Crown Attorney for Hastings county, Col. B. C. Donnan, took the stand at the Woods' Commission hearing Tuesday to testify concerning evidence at Mr. Woods' accident at Ross' Corners north of Belleville in the fall of 1947.

As result of the accident Cpl. Ervine is alleged by Keays to have interfered in the investigation and to have committed perjury to exonerate Woods on a dangerous driving charge.

Mr. Donnan, one of the key figures in the investigation by Commissioner Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay into allegations by Keays that Woods had got away with drunk driving in connection with the Woods accident, He will be questioned on the stand later in the hearing to tell his side of the Crown Attorney.

The Crown Attorney took the stand yesterday after Staff Inspector E. T. Duyle had told Commissioner that Constable Keays had failed to produce proper supervision to a young police officer in charge of a serious accident investigation.

Mr. Donnan stated that Keays was trying to "serve his own purpose, and that of the government" when he wanted additional witnesses called at the Woods trial. He said that he believed Keays had wanted to use the trial to further his "feud" with Cpl. Ervine.

The Crown Attorney denied the allegation of Keays that he had suppressed evidence at the Woods' trial. Keays had wanted other witnesses to be called to corroborate the evidence of Cpl. Ervine who had testified that the three guard-rail posts had been broken on Sept. 29, more than a month before the Woods accident.

"I was not interested in the exact date that the posts were smashed, if they had been broken before the Woods accident," stated Mr. Donnan.

He said that it was a fixed policy in Hastings county that once charges had been laid they must go before the magistrate and could not be interfered with by the crown attorney or anyone else.

At the time he had considered there had been insufficient evidence to proceed with charges against Woods driving charge and "had no hesitation in telling the magistrate so."

Mr. Donnan stated that Keays at no time had ever insisted that both charges against Woods be proceeded with. Keays was always very polite when he came to my office," he said. "He suppoed to attention. I don't know why. That doesn't happen any more of course."

He said that there had been many emergencies of the Woods case before it had been finally disposed of. Woods had been convicted on the dangerous driving charge, and acquitted on the drunk driving charge.

No Evidence as to Condition

"The reason for the acquittal on the drunk driving charge was perfectly obvious," stated Mr. Donnan. "There was no evidence as to the condition of the accused at the time of the accident. The investigating officers appeared on the scene some time after the accident. The magistrate was justified in the acquittal."

"Was all the available evidence put before the magistrate?" asked Commission Counsel C. F. Hamilton.

"Yes," was the reply. "All the available evidence went before the magistrate."

"That is the only aspect of the trial with which this court is interested," commented Commissioner Mackay.

Mr. Donnan went on to say that Keays had testified also Constable Purdy.

Quoting the course of Keays' examination at the trial Defence Counsel R. D. Arnott indicated to Mr. Donnan that evidence that the guard rails had not been broken by the Woods car and more or less challenged me to call Cpl. Ervine," stated Mr. Donnan.

He said Cpl. Ervine had gone into the stand and had testified that the guard rail posts had been broken "long before" the Woods accident. He said he had come to the conclusion that Keays had been mistaken or who was responsible for breaking the posts.

He said he had no use for Keays and the bad blood between Keays Falls as he had nothing to do with the case. No evidence at the Woods hearing.

Reference to "Feud."

The witness emphatically denied that there had been any reference to a personal feud at the hearing. He said there had been no feud between Keays and Cpl. Ervine and Keays wanted additional witnesses called to serve his own purpose, not that of the Crown."

Staff Inspector Doyle was asked by Keays why Inspector W. A. Page had been transferred to Belleville.

"Do I have to answer that?" asked the witness of Commissioner Mackay.

"You cannot have any hearing on this inquiry," pointed out the Commissioner. Keays' efforts to attack the credibility of Inspector Page, then that is a different matter and can do as much to the Inspector is in the witness box."

WEST WINNING COLD WAR

Canada's Governor-General, His Excellency Vincount Alexander, one of the greatest of military leaders of the modern world, has voiced the opinion that the Western Allies are winning the cold war with Russia.

Two years ago he said there would not be a new war and the other day he repeated that statement — "there will be no war with the Soviet. We don't want war — neither do the Russians."

There is now the impact of the new treaty or association of the Atlantic nations which the Governor-General declares "means that the Russians will have to stop showing communism down western throats."

The reception of the N. Atlantic Treaty at the hands of the member states has been one of the healthiest signs of the virility and sense of realism possessed by the powers of the Western European group and the North American nations.

Typical of the attitude of the nations entering the Atlantic Pact is indicated in the fact that Prime Minister Gerhardsen of Norway voiced the opinion that these positive words, "A great and significant piece of work lies behind this draft. In my opinion it will constitute an admirable foundation for the extensive co-operation which is now to take place among the democratic lands. As far as Norway is concerned, special emphasis will be attached to the preventive features of Article Five where it is stated that an armed attack on one or more of the member lands will be regarded as an attack upon all."

SUNKEN GOLD

Hazards and excitement of the diver's life are a wonder forever to most people. This is substantiated by Captain Lawson Smith, a master diver who specializes in underwater acetylene cutting and exploring. He described recently over the BBC his recovery of gold from the St. Piran, a liner which sank off Jamaica in 1930 in twenty-seven fathoms of clear water. He examined the deck of the strong room, which contained ten boxes of gold, each valued at nearly eight thousand pounds, and decided if an opening six feet square were cut in it, he should be able to get through to reach the strong room's forward bulkhead.

It was not until 1948 when the plans of the vessel were re-examined. The treasure had meanwhile become worth one hundred and forty thousand pounds. He was given by the insurance company the task of recovering it at forty pounds a month besides one per cent on the recovered gold. He used a converted salvage boat with latest devices, tools, underwater cutters and powerful underwater lamps throwing out 2,000 candlepower.

His first adventure was not long delayed. Then just as he was about to be lowered to the sunken ship there hove in sight a shark, which refused even to go when shot at. The crew got rid of the brute by splitting open a recently caught fish and inserting a stick of dynamite with a three-minute time fuse. The dynamite-filled fish was tied to a buoyant line, the fuse lighted and the tasty morsel was thrown in the shark's direction. The shark swam forward greedily and swallowed the fish — a minute later there was a fierce explosion and Captain Smith was able to descend. He then found ground sharks like the other refused to go away but Smith tried an old dodge to get rid of them by letting out a stream of bubbles from the outlet valve of the diving suit. A broadside of bubbles scared off the undersea marauders in terror.

The diver had to work quickly. He had cut through the deck in twenty minutes. Then he placed the lamps in position. Next day he cut through the strongroom bulkhead. While at this he felt a tentacle on his body and saw a beast's eyes through the sidewindows of his helmet. He plunged the flame into the shark's face, and was thrown to the deck as the octopus tore itself free and shot out its inky black protective fluid. He signalled that he was coming up at ten.

On the next visit he cut through the bulkhead and entered the strong room. Everything was topsy-turvey and he searched for three days among the packages. At last he found the ten boxes of gold now worth fourteen thousand pounds each. In less than a week they were on the surface.

This true story has all the excitement and thrill of the wildest romance and it also had the appeal of finding lost treasure, both themes which make for lasting appeal to human beings.

HOUSE CLEANING TIME

The early robins have arrived;
the lawn is showing green;
The women folks are saying,
now 'tis time the home to clean.
Soon, on the clothes line in the yard will drapes and rugs be seen.

All husbands, past the honeymoon, though be they weak or stout,
The old plaid and the couch will have to move about,
And carry to the attic things their wives have ordered out.
Oh, peaceful world, that cannot be, though sing birds sayly sing!
Oh, world the Lord has graced for man with many a lovely thing!
Why must the women spoil it with house cleaning every spring!

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ANIMAL FAITH

Each one of us is a celebrant of Nature. Think as we will, we are creatures of earth, with its brand upon us all. Springtime is before us. From ponds, lakes, rivers, valleys, estuaries, and from the earth itself a celebration now going on. Thee is music in the air, there is a stir in the very belief in sheer animal existence. All, all around us, the world is full of inhabitant, we are bred to the fields and to the wet areas of the countryside. We are excited by this animal faith of ours, which is the forerunner of all our moral and spiritual faith.

Nature has a voice everywhere, and from the most mysterious places this voice whispers to the inquiring human being. Thoreau listened to this voice, as has every lover of Nature since the world began. The late David Grayson (Ray Stannard Baker) wrote many a beautiful book about it — that voice that has lured us all before as well. This good earth is so interpretive!

That is why each springtime is so filled with wonder and beauty. I have never met a skeptic among those with whom I have lived, or talked to, from a shepherd to a tiller of the soil. Shakespeare wrote of this with his own mystery.

Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks,
Sermons in stones, and good in everything.

How little we realize the influence this animal faith has upon us all, and how many people there are who seem never to have grasped its significance. What a delicious gift that was which Michael Fairless gave to her beautiful book The Roadmender — "To my friends and to Earth, my Mother, whom I love."

As in another talk, I wish to quote from Henry Beston's delightful book. He said: "The body is not all of us, though a metaphorical animal we become as it upon its back, and even as the body keeps its own mysterious will — even such as that of the heart to beat — so must it have its own appropriate and earthly faith."

Accused Asks To be Placed on Interdicted List

Kitchener, March 29 (CP) — A worried Baden mother of four told in police court here Tuesday how she had wrestled with her husband after he had threatened her with a loaded rifle which she had given him as a Christmas present. The husband, charged with pointing a rifle and disorderly conduct, said he had no recollection of the events which happened early last Saturday.

All parties agreed that liquor was responsible. The accused asked that he be placed on the interdicted list and that the gun be held by the police until he proved that he was able to control himself properly.

Magistrate H. R. Polson agreed to the accused's plea for clemency.

Officials said McLaren marched from the death cell to the scaffold "calmly and bravely." He did not last counsel.

The trap was sprung at 12:11 a.m. M.S.T. McLaren was pronounced dead at 12:36 a.m.

There were no requests for McLaren's body, and after it had been viewed by a coroner's jury of six — empanelled by Sheriff Harry Fooks — it was removed to the prison mortuary for burial. McLaren's wife lives in Hamilton. In his last hour, McLaren was visited by Capt. Robinson of the Salvation Army.

Sartorial Times Changed Along Streets in London City

London Letter

By H. L. JONES

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 30 (CP) — The sartorial times have changed along the historic streets of the City of London.

Time was when the city worker was a man of distinctive attire. He could be picked out of the rush-hour crowds by his black bowler, stiff starched white collar and cuffs. An umbrella — rolled even in a rainstorm — accompanied his every step.

Now only Thesaridneidie Street back passengers who leave early and morning clothes can be picked out with surety. For business men, particularly, the lounge suit, the trend is to suede shoes, lord check lounge suits and shirts of a bright hue. Things never before seen in the streets of the city.

The change even invaded the Temple, traditional centre of London's legal fraternity where the silk topper was the order of the day. One barrister-at-law recently noted with amazement that a prominent lawyer previously never seen in anything but morning coat, silk topper and spats, had taken observation with the precincts of the Temple in a lounge suit and top hat.

The staid Times of London recently commented that the "puritan" left condemns as bad taste the flaunting of sportswear in the sartorial times which have changed as a new advance in the emancipation of man.

But the Times was concerned about those who wish to be both correct and up to date, asking: "Will the policeman on point duty take a satirical view of the wearer of a silk hat with corduroy trousers or sandals with morning dress?"

The swing to more casual dress in the city is said to be but a part of the loosening up of the stinting times. All over Britain the typical state of the male is said to have sunk to a low ebb.

One London columnist noted recently that British tailors need to address the British male to those who smartest, most distinguished man in the world . . . but look at him now!

Worst dress designers said:— "Men don't dress so well today because they have an excuse to be shabby and they like it."

Men haven't that rationing excuse any more but they need not it. Rationing recently was lifted on most types of suitings. It remains to be seen if it will bring back morning dress to the city worker and better male attire generally.

Mackenzie's Column: Clash of Views In High Quarters Over Peace Rally

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press News Analyst)

There seems to be a widespread disposition to make a mystery of why Moscow instituted its big anti-publicized "cultural and scientific conference for world peace" held in New York City's Madison Square Garden last week.

I'm sorry not to be able to support this motion of mystery, because I think the reason for it really is no inexplicable element involved.

To be sure, there was a clash of views in high quarters as to just what the purpose of the meeting was. The sponsors said it was aimed at fostering peace and friendship. A skeptical United States State Department bluntly described it as a sounding board for communist propaganda, to claim holly denied by the sponsors.

Clear Answer

Why did Russia accept? The answer to that is clear enough and there are three reasons:

(1) Moscow thoroughly committed to communizing the United States, which is the ringleader among the "capitalist democracies; (2) the Russians wish to achieve the greatest ongoing for a war for which they are not prepared, and (3) the visit of the communist delegations provided a fine opportunity for propaganda.

Whether the communists will regard that propaganda as worthwhile remains to be seen. However, the meetings in New York, plus the visits of delegates to anti-communists, certainly, received wide publicity.

A significant aspect of the conference was that the communist delegates confirmed the charge of war-mongering against the United States people by the fact that they were guests in the house of capitalism. One would think it would have been a fine task for the visitors to perform, but communism permits no deviation from orders.

Stanley McLaren Pays for Crime On the Gallows

Lethbridge, Alta., March 30 (CP) — Stanley McLaren, 31, 22-year-old Calgary and Toronto playboy, was hanged today for the September, 1945, slaying of Lum Yum-Wing, Calgary Chinese grocer.

Convicted in Calgary last November, McLaren lost his last chance for life Tuesday when the cabinet refused to grant a plea for clemency.

Officials said McLaren marched from the death cell to the scaffold "calmly and bravely." He did not last counsel.

The trap was sprung at 12:11 a.m. M.S.T. McLaren was pronounced dead at 12:36 a.m.

There were no requests for McLaren's body, and after it had been viewed by a coroner's jury of six — empanelled by Sheriff Harry Fooks — it was removed to the prison mortuary for burial. McLaren's wife lives in Hamilton. In his last hour, McLaren was visited by Capt. Robinson of the Salvation Army.

Woman Testifies Of Negligence In Hospital

Ottawa, March 30 (CP) — A woman testified in Supreme Court into conditions at the Ottawa Civic Hospital that she had given birth to a stillborn child in the private room at the hospital.

Although more than four days after the birth of her admission to hospital, Mrs. Peter Jones of Ottawa yesterday said she was told by Dr. John F. Puddicombe, child specialist, that there was nothing to have the baby then.

The child was stillborn. After the birth a number of nurses came to Mrs. Jones' assistance. But she said that during the four days after she had received no attention from a doctor. Her husband also said he asked them to examine her.

The inquiry into hospital conditions, which followed publication of reports on incidents at the hospital in an Ottawa newspaper (Citizen) was in its second day today. Mrs. William M. Arnott of Chesterfield, a community 10 miles east of Ottawa, told the court that a night nurse at the hospital had refused to pay any attention to her complaints of a pain when she was ready to go home. She was considered by a burst incision following an operation.

Mrs. Arnott said she was in hospital in July after an operation for abdominal operation. She complained to the night nurse of a severe pain in the abdomen.

She said the nurse dismissed the complaint, saying "there is nothing wrong with you. It's just something you have eaten and it won't be time to look at your incision now."

Mrs. Arnott later the day nurses discovered that the incision had burst open and that she would have to be returned to remain in hospital another 10 days as a result.

Windsor Council Requests Inquiry Into Hospital

Windsor, March 30 (CP)—City Council Tuesday night requested the Ontario government to make an inquiry into the hospital administration, control and finances of the Windsor Metropolitan General Hospital and asked amendment of a bill of inquiry to include the matters earlier in the day.

Five motions or amendments were put before the meeting, and at motion, with two changes, was passed by a vote of 14 to 4 after an open that would be conveyed by the hon. the minister of legislature Tuesday by Attorney-General Blackwell.

The controversy began when Mildred Maybee resigned as superintendent of nurses at the hospital, five weeks ago.

Mayor Arthur Reaume suggested a probe when rumors started circulating that the city council involving Metropolitan nurses and civic officials.

Health Minister Kelley was asked to conduct an investigation. The cabinet minister said the city had to make the first move. As council prepared to take the initiative, word was received Tuesday that the city will not conduct a probe under the municipal act because of legal technicalities and that the government would act on request of council.

A READER TELLS ABOUT THROWING OFF GERMS

Mrs. C. B. G. is the 3019th reader who has undertaken with more or less forbearance to take me aside, figuratively, and tell me the facts of life, she writes:

Dear Dr. Brady:

I am a faithful reader of your column and as a general rule agree with all you have to say, but one day recently you had me to go and spoil all my hard work by saying that rubbers and overshoes are a lot of silly nonsense if I said nothing of the kind, Ma'am. I said rubbers and overshoes do not prevent any disease, illness or indigestion at all.

Quite often I cut out your column and clip it on the table for my husband and children to read, but this time my husband cut it out and left it on the table for me. So now I've got to begin all over again. You forget that most people have germs they need only step their feet or a chill to bring to life. We can't all be in perfect health, and throw off the germs...(Mrs. C. B. G.)

If Mrs. G. family have read this column for years why did Mr. G. wait so long to cut out something like that. Strust it over the back of his nose and say:: "There, now, woman, will you stop writing me about wearing rubbers, hat, overcoat and other appurtenances? I don't need anything of the sort. I have offered him and other womankind this advice hundreds of times, but that for many years.

For Mrs. C. B. G.'s benefit let me say that the germs we have are harmless to us, and that is so, no matter whether we get soaked through, chilled by caught in a draft. The germs normally present in the mouth, nose and throat and in the intestines are harmless. (Glenn Frank referring to man; on the contrary germs if not all, by far the majority are beneficial, especially in the intestine, where they help digest food and even some colon bacilli (so called) perform the task.

Of course there are people who have always on hand a stock of disease-producing (pathogenic) germs, such as streptococci, staphylococci, bacilli of typhoid bacilli or pneumococci. These individuals are known as carriers and they may infect others although they themselves are immune to the disease they spread.

As a matter of fact there is no scientific evidence that damp wardrafts, chill, insufficient clothing, sudden change of temperature, fatigue, overwork or any of the other factors which millions like Mrs. C. B. G. regard as "lowering resistance," render an individual vulnerable or susceptible to his own germs.

What is the twentieth century. It is time for doctors and folks who still think in nineteenth century style to read a book and find out what has happened in the last fifty years. As for the doctors, it is of course not necessary for success in practice; they dress and get away with murder and their half-baked wisecrack patients will continue to quote their mischievous nonsense.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Tiny Broken Veins

What causes so many tiny broken veins in the skin of my face? (Mrs. E. W. W.)

Answer—I don't know. Physician skilled in diathermy (electro-surgery) can obliterate them without any by careful use of electro-desiccation needle. Or by electrolysis.

Rheumatic

I just want to tell you I have been taking calcium and D cape for rheumatism and have obtained great relief. I have not arthritis for nearly four months. (Mrs. E. M. P.)

Answer—On written request, accompanied with stamped self addressed envelope any one reader may have the pamphlet Calcium and Vitamin D. It is essentially advisable to eat a ten weeks course of calcium and D twice or three times in the year.

Fine Toxin

It took literally years of reading of your column for the idea to finally develop in my mind, but I started supplementing my regular diet with fresh fruit and discarded laxatives. The results amazed me and certainly made my life more healthful and happy. (L. M. J)

Answer—Discarding laxatives (including mineral oil) is an essential as supplementing the diet with B vitamins. But, as you say, once the idea penetrates, the results are generally happy. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on "Excessive Sweating."

THE PACKSACK

OP GREGORY CLARK

From the door of a restaurant, around which a curious crowd was gathered, the police brought two young women, whom they hustled unceremoniously into the cruiser car.

The dazed onlooker announced to the assemblage that the two nattily dressed young women had committed a petty theft—they had stolen a toy pistol from a crippled boy.

As I stepped down off the kerb to join the disappearing crowd, a motor car nearly clipped me. From the car window, the driver, a man I vaguely recognized, called me by name. I walked over to the car and leaned in.

"Say, I'm looking for a boarding-house," he said. "I'm being transferred to this town and I've got to find a place to live. Do you know of any?"

I thought for a moment. My own boarding-house was full up, but old Mrs. Hunter, with a spare room, would have looked finished.

"Yes," I said, "I do." I mumbled. "Did the women start to fight at the end, or was the respect and solicitude of the men? Or did the men start it by their rude rush to protect the women to cast aside their pretty wards?

Above me, an enamelled-looking fly in her forties looked with the bus's movements. I got up. In the quaint old fashion, I bowed her to my seat. She shoved into it, without thanks. After a moment's pause I got up at me, irritated. It was obvious remark — the jolting of the bus. She gave me a smouldery look; by pressing the world. To spare her embarrassment, I hurriedly pushed away and got off the bus and walked six blocks home.

COMMUNISM VERSUS CHRISTIANITY

The spread of Communism throughout the world might eventually have an unexpected beneficial effect. It might achieve the revitalization of Christian faith.

For "the Christian churches must meet the issue whether against Communism. All branches of the Christian church contain certain points of the Christian faith. They all believe in the sovereignty of God, the Saviorhood of Christ, and the power and ministry of the Holy Spirit. Communism, on the other hand, despite the rationalization of some sincere but deluded fellow travellers, denies these basic tenets.

So here is the common enemy of Christian fellowship the world over. In the face of the challenge of Communism, all branches of the Christian Church may well afford to stop emphasizing their differences on matters of authority and doctrine and become important as they are in fact already obvious as they are to all different varieties of Christian believers.

But Communism has awakened us to the presence in the world of a power which threatens all religious authority and scoffs at all that is sacred. It is the mission of the Christian Church must stand together or be overwhelmed separately.

Communism may eventually succeed in doing what church leaders the world over have so far failed to do — it may unite the Church militant.

Value of Reforestation Told to Women's I's.

Pine Grove—On Friday evening, the members of Pine Grove Women's Institute entertained three neighboring Institutes, Rivers Valley, Stirling and Chatterton. The president Mrs. Frank Finkle, welcomed the guests and then asked the convener for the March program to preside.

Care of Forests

Mrs. R. Vanderwater introduced the guest speaker, Mr. W. Edwards, zone forester, stationed at Napanee, who gave an educational address on the care of forests and woodlots.

He advised that wastelands should be planted to trees as the woodlots prevent erosion, both of water and soil. He stressed the necessity of preventing cattle from destroying valuable young trees, by keeping them out of the woodlots at all times. Mr. Edwards made mention of the successful reforestation of pines which Col. R. Vanderwater planted in 1903. During the war years the supply of seedlings was limited but now they are much more plentiful. By 1950 the government nurseries expect to be able to supply 30 million trees.

He also spoke for a short time about the Moira River Authority. This is a watershed project that will require several years to complete. After the address Mr. Edwards showed a number of slides. These pictures were in color, quite a few having been taken in Hastings County. Some of these showed junior farmers at work at Flinton doing reforestation work there.

Contributors to Program

Others taking part in the evening's program were as follows: Mrs. Percy MacMullen, represent ing River Valley, W.I. favored with two readings "Pat's Letter," and "Betty's Bargain for the Institute" which were well received. Another good reading was given by Mrs. D. Donahue from the same institute.

Those from Stirling were Mrs. L. Rodgers, who gave a reading, and Mrs. Williams, a piano solo. Miss Evelyn Olmsted from Chatterton also gave a reading.

The president then voiced the appreciation of the members to all who had taken part in the program and afterward refreshments were served.

A social event of interest to many took place recently at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brickman, of Gore Road, Ameliasburg. The guests, numbering fifty, were welcomed by Mrs. Brickman, assisted by her niece, Mrs. Floyd Kirby, of Gananoque, and the occasion was the golden anniversary of the host and hostess.

The two long tables in the dining room were beautifully decorated with tulips and daffodils. The anniversary cake, lovingly proprietarily designed, denoting fifty years of happiness together, was much admired; as were two lovely chiffon cakes of white and gold, centered with flowers, and made by Mrs. Brickman's cousin, Mrs. Stanley Thompson, of Hillier.

After the bountiful dinner had been enjoyed, the guests were invited to retire to the living room where Mr. and Mrs. Brickman were given seats of honor, and a nicely worded address, signed by all the guests, was read by Mr. Henderson. Mrs. Ray Brickman, of Toronto, then presented Mr. and Mrs. Brickman with a lovely silver tea service and tray for consolation, Mrs. Will Anderson; men's consolation, Mr. Roscoe Wright.

The euchre parties have been under the direction of Mrs. John Kane and have netted the organization well over $100.

Pinegrove Esterians W.I.

On Friday evening the River Valley W.I. were entertained by Pinegrove W.I. at Smith Hill School. A good program was enjoyed which included an address and a series of lovely views given by Mr. Edwards of Napanee, on reforestation and conservation of woodlots. The hostess W.I. served refreshments.

Coal Board Threatens to Close Five Yorkshire Pits Unless Production Improves

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Grimethorpe, Yorkshire, March 30—(CP)—The National Coal Board has taken its toughest disciplinary action yet against miners by threatening to close five Yorkshire pits unless their production improves.

They are the new Monckton collieries near here, employing 3,400 men. Since the mines were nationalized Jan. 1, 1947, they have shown a loss of more than £750,000 ($3,000,000).

A coal board statement blamed the heavy loss on "lack of cooperation on the part of the workmen" and said a shutdown could be prevented only by "an improvement in attitude."

"If by July output and attendance can be improved and if at the same time the bad practices operating at these pits are removed the future of the collieries will be brighter," it added.

Spokesmen for the miners said in reply they could double production if they were given up-to-date tools and allowed to tackle a number of seams which have not yet been worked.

They claimed that the high rate of absenteeism—up to 20 per cent in some cases—was due partly to the number of aging men who were physically incapable of working a full week, and partly to a number of minor accidents which made them take time off.

J. A. Hall, President of the Yorkshire section of the National Union of Mineworkers, said he will make a "gallant effort" to persuade the men to raise output and keep the mines open.

Average is Down

At present the pits are producing an average of 14,908 tons a week, compared with a target of 17,800 tons. The gap means a loss of 13s. ($2.6) on each ton produced.

A mine official said that some of the "bad practices" referred to by the coal board included the custom of paying for dirt accompanying the coal, and the fact timber was not removed from the pits after its usefulness was over.

There was also the custom of "nipper money" for boilermakers, which meant that an absentee's wages were given to his mates on the grounds they had to do his work.

"We are getting rid of these practices gradually," said the official. "For example, until comparatively recently, rippers were paid for 80 cubic feet of shift, irrespective of however much less than that they did. Above that figure they claimed above that figure they claimed above that.

"I believe that if the workers at these pits do set down absenteeism and improve production within the next few months, the coal board will give serious consideration to reorganization."

Denies Shortage Of Pheasants

Pelee Island, Ont., March 30—(CP) — Reeve Noah Garno yesterday denied reports that there is a shortage of pheasants on the island, remarking that the ratio of male birds to hens is better at present than it has been for several years.

"After the 1947 pheasant shoot, we had 260 cock birds left to 6,400 hens," he said. "We inquired at that time of government officials and were told that one cock to every 10 hens was a suitable ratio.

"Following the 1948 shoot, Allan Stokes, a naturalist employed by the United States and Canadian governments, estimated we had 1,500 male birds and 9,500 females—better than a recommended ratio."

Mr. Garno claimed that Mr. Stoker's recent report at London, Ont., was misconstrued and that birds referred to in the report were the number left of the original 500 after the 1947 shoot and did not take into account the natural increase from 1948 broods.

Show Navy Exhibits At June Celebration

Halifax — (CP) — Weapons which subdued Villeneuve at Trafalgar and Graf Spee at the River Plate are included in the collection at the navy's Maritime Museum here.

The museum was created in December, 1948. Since then, exhibits have been added. The city plans to open the show to the public when Halifax's bicentenary is observed in June.

Most recent addition is a cutaway model of the 131-gun frigate Marlborough — a first-class ship of the line. There are German submarine models, Japanese bomb-throwers, boarding knives and cutlasses.

Torpedoes—underwater "treachers" — for submarines, muskets and ball-and-powder pistols form a background for an elaborate pictorial exhibit.

There is also a model of the royal mail packet Dunottar Castle.

Aussie Ranchers May Use Aircraft to Market Cattle

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Darwin, Australia — (CP) — The Berlin airlift has inspired a group of ranchers in the west Australian cattle country to plan a scheme to air-freight beef to the cities and ports from their isolated ranches.

The ranchers believe the time has come when the aircraft must replace the overlanders who take the cattle out on the hoof to the city abattoirs each year.

The cost of air-freighting is estimated little over three cents a pound of dressed beef for every 100 miles. Although this is considered high it is offset by saving in weight.

By present methods prime cattle lose around 150 to 200 pounds in weight during a journey of 250 to 300 miles. In times of drought even higher losses are experienced.

Trial flights have been made already and a check up revealed that beef killed on the ranch and flown in to a port in three hours was less expensive than overlanding it, which would take more than a month.

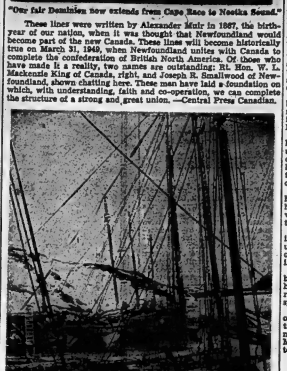
Distance has been a great drawback to the ranchers of Australia's far west cattle country. Lack of railroads in the Northern Territory has forced ranchers to overland their stock to the markets.

1,040-Mile Trek

Sometimes it is necessary to take the stock as much as 1,000 miles to the nearest railroad.

When they leave their breeding grounds they are prime fat and fit for any market, but after the long overland journey they usually need several months fattening up on properties near the abattoirs. In drought years many are lost on the way. The airlift would overcome these difficulties.

Plans for increasing meat production in the Northern Territory have been under consideration for some time. The government has made extensive research in the Northern Territory to increase herds and improve them.



Prime Minister Joseph B. Chifley has said that completion of the government plans depends on assurances from the British government that it would take all Australia's surplus meat production for the next 10 years at a price satisfactory to the Australian breeders.

So far, the British government has given no such assurance and Territorians believe their chances of getting any help from the government is slim.

"Our fair Dominion now extends from Cape Race to Nootka Sound."

These lines were written by Alexander Muir in 1867, the birthyear of our nation, when it was thought that Newfoundland would become part of the new Canada. These lines will become historically true on March 31, 1949, when Newfoundland unites with Canada to complete the confederation of British North America. Of those who have made it a reality, two names are outstanding: Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada, right, and Joseph R. Smallwood of Newfoundland, shown chatting here. These men have laid a foundation on which, with understanding, faith and co-operation, we can complete the structure of a strong and great union.—Central Press Canadian.

Feeling of great excitement is gripping everybody in Newfoundland o nthe eve of Confederation. It is with deep satisfaction that Canada looks to Confederation for Newfoundland, guarding the Atlantic approaches, gives an eastern defensive rampart. To our material wealth she adds her fisheries, her forests and her vast storehouse of Labrador iron. Newfoundland, whose people are characterized by industriousness, understanding, frugality and sobriety, produces the world's finest fishermen. You can tell by this picture of Port aux Basques, Nfld., how busy the port is during fishing season, which begins about May.—Central Press Canadian.

RADIO EDUCATION

Oslo — (CP) — Many schools in Norway have radio and as equipment becomes available more will get it. Each classroom will have a speaker for listening to programs of the Norwegian Broadcasting System or to programs originated in the school's own studio.

Duke of Windsor Wrote a Speech In Barber Chair

Edmonton — (CP) — Want to know about people? Then ask W. R. Coughlin who has been in the barber business for 42 years.

Mr. Coughlin, who recently sold his business on Jasper Ave., describes the Duke of Windsor as a "regular gentleman" who writes his own speeches. Years ago, as the Prince of Wales, he wrote one while having his hair cut in the Coughlin establishment.

In the old days many show people came to the barber shop and Mr. Coughlin recalls the late Will Rogers, known then for his rope-twirling rather than his wit.

Back in the days when Jack Dempsey had just been crowned heavyweight champion of the world, he visited the city and some enterprising Edmontonians tried to sell him that they described as "a very fine" husky dog for a large price.

Dempsey was cautious and bought neither the dog nor some real estate which was also offered in the barber shop.

Move Time to Farm

Mr. Coughlin emphasizes that he is not retiring as "I'm still under age." He and his wife will continue to reside in Edmonton but will have more time to devote to their farm in the nearby Leduc district.

Back in Smith Falls, Ont., when he was 15, Mr. Coughlin shaved his first customer. His own whiskers weren't in evidence at the time.

He started his Edmonton shop in 1907 with four chairs. It was up to 18 by 1912 and, at the time, one of the largest barber shops in Canada.

In 1907, there were only five barber shops in Edmonton and haircuts and shaves came at the rate of 25 cents and 15 cents, respectively.

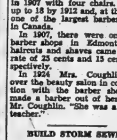
In 1924 Mrs. Coughlin took over the beauty salon in conjunction with the barber shop. "I made a barber out of her," said Mr. Coughlin. "She was a school teacher."

BUILD STORM SEWER

Regina — (CP) — Fifteen-thousand tons of earth were dug out of this city's "Pinnacle" this winter. The earth resulted from tunnelling operations on a 7,000-foot storm sewer project. The dirt was used to build up low-lying roads and reclaim areas for residential purposes.

Application For Extradition Of Belgian Fails

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Judge Ambrose Shea dismissed an application from the Belgian government for the extradition of 32-year-old Arthur Matthys to face a charge of murder in Belgium.



The immigrant, who works in Tillsonburg in a tobacco factory, rushed toward his wife after the decision was announced and both burst into tears as they hugged their three-year-old daughter.

Matthys testified Monday that the man who signed a warrant for his arrest was a Nazi collaborator. He was wanted in Belgium to stand trial for the murder of Armand Devos, alleged Nazi collaborator who was shot to death during the German occupation.

The young man, who came to Canada in 1947, told the court of his activities as a member of the resistance underground band and identified documents in his name showing him to be a member of "good standing" in the Belgian partisan movement.

Senator Haig Describes British As Hard Traders

Ottawa, March 30 (CP)—Senator John T. Haig, Progressive leader, Tuesday described the British people as "hard traders."

He made the remark during a Senate debate on the government's agricultural control bill. This is a bill extending for one year the government boards contracts with the United Kingdom.

Thumping his desk at times to put across a point, Senator Haig said he admired the British people "as the leaders of democracy in the world." Nevertheless, he didn't see why Canadian farmers should have to "subsidize those people to make a policy succeed we don't believe in."

"We in western Canada have got to have that European market for the products of our country," said Senator Haig, deploring United Kingdom trade with countries "behind the iron curtain" in goods—such as machinery—which Canada could use.

Senator R. B. Horner (PC—Saskatchewan) charged agriculture Minister Gardiner with using the bill for political purposes.

Insofar as contents of the bill were concerned, Senator Norman Lambert (L—Ontario) wanted to know the volume of production in relation to cheese, hogs, bacon and eggs as against the demand for them.

He noted that bilateral agreements were not a part of the picture the world is trying to encourage today. However "it is to be hoped by another year the scene will have altered . . . so as to broaden out the field for the sale of such prime dry products as cheese, bacon and eggs."

He felt the regulations accompanying these food contracts might be relaxed so that "our producers would get permits for the sale of their surplus supplies in the United States or elsewhere at better prices than we are getting from Britain."

Plan to Hunt Hudson Bay's White Whales

By JACK AVESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg — (CP) — Manitoba's latest industry is being hilled by its promoters as a whale of an enterprise — no pun or exaggeration intended.

The industry is simply that—whaling.

Two thousand or more miles from the haunts of the mammoth sperm whales, hunters will ride the waters of Hudson Bay this summer in small boats, chasing the sperm's little brother, the baluga or white whale.

The industry, with headquarters at Churchill, Man., where a factory was erected last summer, also plans to utilize the remainder of the 1,500-pound sea-faring mammals after directing the approximately 450 pounds of blubber fat.

The jaw oil has been described as unequalled for fineness and quality and is used for oiling precision machinery and fine watches.

The whale hunters plan to blend the entrails, meat, bones, hide and blood together into a ground meat formula for sale to the fur farming industry. The large whale liver may be used as a special feed for female mink and fox, for use before litters are born and to feed baby animals after they have reached the weaning stage.

Veteran of Antarctic

Managing the enterprise, which is due to get under way in mid-June, will be Karl Knue, veteran of Norwegian whaling expeditions to the Antarctic in the '30s.

A seasonal industry, with the factory expected to operate on a 24-hour processing basis from June 15 to Sept. 15, the commercial whaling will give employment to approximately 40 persons and provide a source of revenue to old-time Churchill residents who in the past have harpooned the white whales mainly to build up food supplies for rayenous huskies.

Whale harpooning, described by tourists as an exciting sport, is expected to go out of vogue when the industry gets started. Its sponsors prefer that the mammals be caught with nets, one reason being that harpooning causes considerable loss of commercially-valuable blood.

Although this summer will see the official start of commercial whaling in Hudson Bay the project has been considered for many years. Last summer preliminary steps were taken with erection of a large main building, containing a huge steam boiler, 1,500-kilowatt electric generator, 450-horsepower steam engine, generating vats and steam-driven meat grinders.

When the factory wheels start turning the processed whale parts will be given cold storage treatment while awaiting rail shipment to various Canadian centres.

The number of whales handled will depend on the luck of the hunters but the total for the season is not expected to exceed 500. This would mean the processing of approximately 1,000,000 pounds of whale.

Gardener Unearths Ancient Causeway

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bradford-on-Avon, England. — (CP) — Archaeologists are digging persistently in this Wiltshire town for further traces of a stone-paved causeway believed to have been built during the Neolithic Age, 4,000 years ago.

First traces of the causeway, unearthed recently by a man digging in his garden, suggest that it is (or was) 36 feet wide—the work of craftsmen of a period before Stonehenge. Recent researches, however, have produced no further tangible evidence.

Guy Underhill, chairman of Bradford's preservation society, thinks the causeway may be linked with a prehistoric "sacred circle" 150 yards away, a unique burial ground on which prefabricated houses were erected four years ago.

Remains of the sacred circle were discovered in 1945 while German prisoners-of-war were digging foundations for the new houses. It is thought to have been the site of a simple built in 2,000 B.C. for worship of the sun goddess.

"The formation of the ground first attracted our attention," Underhill said. "On closer examination we found a rampart and several ditches with a low ditch between them. Sharfa were sunk and scraps of pottery brought to light which we identified with the period."

With a view to digging up further evidence of the sacred circle, Bradford archaeologists tried to persuade the council to delay its housing plan. The council, having spent £1,000 ($4,000) preparing the site, agreed to preserve the ground for archaeological research if the archaeologists could raise £500.

"We were able to collect only £150," Underhill said, "but we pleaded with the council to stay its hand for a few more weeks so that we could get the rest. The council decided that the housing plan has been delayed long enough — so 4,000 years of history was built over.

Would Intensify Women's Interest In Civic Affairs

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, N.Y. (CP)—Blond, vivacious Mrs. Alva Myrdal skilfully combines the jobs of raising three children and holding a top directorship in the United Nations.

The newly-appointed Swedish head of the Department of Social Affairs is described as a writer, educationist and sociologist. Working to improve the lot of people, all over the world, she holds probably the highest post in international civil service ever held by a woman. Of the United Nations' 3,000 employees here, 350 are women.

Her husband also is a top-ranking United Nations executive and an internationally-known Swedish economist. He is Dr. Gunnar Myrdal, executive secretary to the Economic Commission for Europe.

A leader in women's organizations, Mrs. Myrdal did pioneer work in developing a social policy with emphasis on the family. This is reflected in her country's social service program, considered one of the best in the world.

Today she is taking particular interest in reports from Lebanon, where the Commission on Status of Women is considering such problems as equal rights for women. Mrs. Myrdal wants women to feel that the world needs as much civic activity from them as from men.

Asked what the average family woman can contribute towards world peace, Mrs. Myrdal said:

"She has the particular opportunity to educate her family to reduce emotional tensions, to develop the quality of sensible reasoning about problems, to teach them to see that there is often more than one side to a thing.

Family "Moderator"

"She can . . . be the 'moderator' of the family council—a preparation for true democracy; she can lead her home group in analyzing propaganda in 'reading between the lines', in understanding how attitudes of hatred develop, in creating respect for fundamental freedom in developing moral courage."

"Sincerely, I see no limit to what the 'ordinary family wife and an' can work on."

Mrs. Myrdal founded the training college for pre-school teachers organized by the Swedish Co-operative Housing Union and served as its director from 1938 to 1946. She has served as an expert in numerous public enquiries into child welfare, population questions, training of the handicapped and educational reform.

Vice-president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women since 1947 years, she served for many years with women's labor groups and university women's associations.

While brought up in Sweden, Mrs. Myrdal also studied at American universities in 1929 and 1930 and in Geneva.

Among the books she has written are: "Nation and Family", "Women's Work", "Cross Section of Great Britain", "Post-War Planning", and "Crisis in the Population Question", the latter written in collaboration with her husband.

Child Owes Life to Rescuer And Doctor Who Telephoned Instructions to Revive Him

Hornepayne, Ont., March 30— (CP)—Instructions on artificial respiration given over the telephone by a Hornepayne doctor were credited today with having saved the life of a three-year-old boy at the isolated northland station of Missonga, 129 miles from here.

The child, Freddy Pawliw, had been rescued by K. E. Gunia, Canadian National Railways telegrapher, from the fast waters of a small lake after crashing through the ice. Gunia had been attracted by the cries of the boys mother whose rescue efforts were impeded by her skirt.

The boy was taken to the station where the operator on duty

K. G. Clarke, telephoned the dispatcher's office in his northern Ontario town. Dr. W. W. Martin happened to be in the office and took over.

"I did just what the doctor told me," Clarke said. Dr. Martin held on to give added instructions although Gunia and Mrs. Pawliw had alternated some time working on the boy.

When the youngster finally let out a whimper, and this information was relayed to Dr. Martin, he said: "That's it, that's it, you're doing it!"

Hours later, after Freddy and his mother had travelled by train to Hornepayne, Dr. Martin personally took over the chore of tending his patient.

The Ontario House droned along until almost dawn this morning, but the pages—those retaining—were released at 12.45 a.m.

Education Report

The Nova Scotia House saw Premier Macdonald table the education department report. He said Nova Scotia contributed a larger percentage to municipalities for education than any other province.

The Manitoba House by a vote of 31 to 26 rejected a request that a special committee be appointed to investigate the status of the 2,500 Hutterites in Manitoba and the education of their children. Religious beliefs of the Hutterites forbid their children taking up arms.

At Regina opposition members blocked a move which would provide funds for handling, distribution and sale of agricultural supplies. Opposition Leader Wallace Tucker said it was a blank cheque for $1,000,000 and part of a trend to take control away from the Legislature. Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines denied there was any arbitrary control invested in the bill—it was simply a loan to the agriculture department.

Alberta legislature was prorogued at Edmonton, after a stormy night sitting in which the House approved a bill barring sale of yellow-colored margarine. The bill also prevents serving in public places of margarine colored the same as butter.

Party Concerned About Page Boys Missing School

By The Canadian Press

The Ontario legislature adjourned at 4:50 a.m. today after discussing departmental estimates, which raised a number of issues pertinent to all legislatures.

One point on the question of the hours worked by the page boys, Reid Scott, 32, the youngest member of the House, described the C.C.F. member for Toronto Beaches-Enough up the boys' work question and added that the fifth-floor room in the legislative building and a number of rooms in the boys was something like "Fagin's den in Oliver Twist."

Another C.C.F. member, William Temple (Toronto-High Park) was concerned about the boys missing their school hours. He thought the pages were between 11 and 13 years of age.

The pages actually are hired only when a school principal's assurance has been given that they are sufficiently advanced in school that they won't lose by working in the house, said Provincial Secretary Dana Porter.

And E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C. C. F. leader, added that the boys learned "a good deal" while serving in the legislature.

Eight boys are used in the Ontario House, and their ages run between 11 and 13 years. Mr. Porter said they normally work from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. They get $4 a day for a six-day week.

When there's a night session four of the boys are allowed to go home. The others stay, but do not report for work until 1 p.m. the following day.

Didn't the good fairies always leave a penny if you put your lost tooth under the pillow before you went to sleep?

X-rays at a hospital vindicated her faith. The penny was inside brother Michael, four, who had awakened first.

Oxford, Ld (AP)—On March 1, Marlene Wendt, 13, of Oxford, wrote a letter to the Texas and Pacific Railroad:

"Dear sir: My cat was killed by one of your engines on Feb. 20. He was a black cat named Cinders. I would appreciate another cat."

Seventeen days later, the railroad wrote Marlene: "A pet we learn to love is a very valuable piece of property. In the near future we will see that you have a cat to replace Cinders".

Today a passenger train will puff into Oxford for a long, unprecedented stop.

William Ray Hargrove, 80-year-old, red-headed engineer who pilloted the train that killed Cinders, will present to Marlene a new pet named Cinder II, whose black face is farnished by only one white wisker.

B OF M BOREOWERS GET MONEY FOR ALL PURPOSES

Low Cost Surprises Many

Henry Becker, local manager of the Bank of Montreal, says he still finds a good many people who are surprised when they explain that the 3% a month is all it costs to borrow $100, from the Bank of Montreal, when repaid in twelve monthly instalments. Almost every day he hears across his desk the surprised remark, "Why, I never imagined such a service would cost so little."

"People," says Mr. Becker, "need money for all sorts of purposes — some for unexpected emergencies, sometimes to avail themselves of opportunities. Money is always available at the Bank of Montreal to anyone with a source of regular income from which he can repay."

If you need money, drop in and see Mr. Becker, or his accountant, Mr. Stanmore. You will find either one ready and glad to assist you, and, of course, to deal with your requirements in strict confidence.—(Advt.)

De Gaulle Wants Immediate Shipment of Arms From United States to France

By JOSEPH E. DYMAN

Paris, March 30 (AP)— Gen. Charles De Gaulle wants the United States to arm France at once as the principal defender of western Europe under the North Atlantic pact.

Allied strategy designates the Rhine as the first line of defence against attacks from the east, he told a press conference Tuesday, but that line will be manned principally by Frenchmen at least at the beginning if there is a fight.

It would be "a grave mistake" to designate Britain as west Europe's chief defender, De Gaulle asserted.

For one thing, he said, another conquest of France — and bombardment and retrenching there — would destroy the country both normally and physically.

He demanded that the United States promptly make definite strategic commitments in the event of attack on west Europe, and stick to a schedule of arms shipments to the French.

Rather cryptically, and without further explanation, De Gaulle hailed the North Atlantic treaty as a strike toward a federation of Europe which might seek co-operation with Russia in unification of the continent, even if Russia might mean a change in the Russian system. He did not explain how he thought such a change might come about.

Rhodes Is Host

De Gaulle, who led the Free French movement during most of the Second World War, heads the rightist party Rassemblement Du Peuple Francais. The R.P.F. in elections on the last Sunday emerged as the country's strongest single party, but a minority in comparison with the tri-party bloc which makes up Premier Henri Gueuille's government.

De Gaulle spoke at a time when the western powers were moving to strengthen the framework of the North Atlantic pact. The Norwegian parliament by a vote of 130 to 13 Tuesday authorized its government to join the pact. Any Communist and the Labor representatives voted "No." Norway will sign in Washington April 4.

Competent sources in London said the western European unions four naval powers—among the founders of the Atlantic pact —plan joint naval manoeuvres in June.

Meanwhile, western Allied representatives are converging on Washington where the Atlantic pact will be signed next week.

BOY GETS HOLIDAY TRIP FOR ESSAY ON MINES

Brantford, March 30 — (CP)— Morris Jakowec, 18-year-old collegiate Institute student has won himself a five-day Easter holiday trip to his native Kirkland Lake, Ont., with an essay on the importance of gold mines. Jakowec, who has been named winner of the Brantford district contest sponsored by the Ontario Mining Association, will visit gold mines in the Kirkland Lake area.

Farm-Hand Faces Serious Charge

Woodbridge, Ont., March 30 — (CP)— Farm-hand Ronald Rowshaw, 36, no fixed address, today faces a charge of raping a young woman, as a result of an observer and waitress who noticed his bedraggled appearance in a restaurant Tuesday night.

The waitress, Mrs. Irene Rowntree, became suspicious when Rowshaw entered with his face cut and bleeding and telephoned police. She said she had heard reports that a man had escaped from police earlier.

Police said they first picked up Rowshaw during a routine check of automobiles bearing Quebec licence plates, ordered after a $70,000 Toronto jewelry robbery. A girl with her face bruised and cut was accompanying him.

Rowshaw, last known to work at Dunnville, Ont., escaped as police arrived at the station.

The girl was taken to hospital and treated for shock and other injuries.

Price of Milk Up Cent Quart In Toronto

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — W. L. Knowles, president of the Toronto Dairy Co., a subsidiary firm (Borden Co. Ltd.), said Tuesday the price of milk in Toronto would be increased this week by a cent a quart. The boost will raise the price of a quart to 19 cents, the highest in Toronto's history.

Mr. Knowles said the price is being raised because wage boosts have been given milk drivers and farmers recently have been awarded higher prices for their milk.

The total jump in milk costs to distributors is estimated at three quarters of a cent, Mr. Knowles said.

He said an agreement has been signed with the farmers providing for an increase of 13½ cents a hundredweight in the price of fluid milk. The dairies are unable to absorb the increases, Mr. Knowles added.

FIRST MEETING ON PEACE RALLY TOUR FIZZLES

18 "Iron Curtain" Visitors to the United States Told to Go Home

Newark, N.J., March 30—(AP) —Stripped of its Russian star attractions by American government action, a projected United States tour of "World Peace Conference" delegates failed today.

The State Department's ruling in effect told 18 "iron curtain" visitors to the United States to go home, now that they have completed their mission to last week-end's Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace in New York City.

Despite the decision, author Howard Lampell said Tuesday night "this tour will go on." Lampell acted as master of ceremonies at the first of the proposed series of "no more war" rallies here. Other speakers indicated the tour will be carried out.

A proposed itinerary listed New Haven, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Detroit, St. Louis, Denver, and Los Angeles.

The State Department said the United States visas of the Communist delegates were good only for the New York meeting.

A conference spokesman in New York said a telegram had been sent to State Secretary Acheson asking him to revoke the order.

Charge Denied

The department has maintained the New York gathering was designed as a sounding board for Communist propaganda—a charge denied by the sponsors.

The Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions, sponsors of the tour, hastily reshuffled Tuesday night's program. The order banning the Communists was issued less than 12 hours before the rally began.

Still on the bill were delegates from countries outside the Soviet sphere of influence — Great Britain, Cuba, and French West Africa.

But gone from the list was the rally's heralded star feature, Russian composer Dmitri Shostakovitch.

The audience of some 3,000 persons last night was told of the government action. The house lights were dimmed. Then a single spot was thrown on the empty piano.

About 40 pickets marched in orderly lines outside the auditorium. They represented the Catholic war veterans and other veterans groups who protested the rally as Communist-inspired.

Charges Preferred Against General C. L. Bissell

Frankfurt, March 30 (AP) — Charges of an unspecified nature have been preferred against Maj.-Gen. Clayton L. Bissell, headquarters of the United States Air Force in Europe announced today.

The announcement said the charges are being investigated to determine whether they warrant a trial by court martial.

It added the charges concern "acts allegedly committed while Bissell was military attache and air attache at the United States Embassy in London from May, 1946, to July, 1948." Air Force officials declined to say what the charges were.

The air force announced in Washington last Aug. 14 that anonymous letters charging Bissell with "unauthorized transactions" had led to an investigation, but that accusations made in the unsigned letters were not proved.

Bissell a year ago commanded the United States Air Force in Iceland then brought back to the United States to become assistant chief of staff for intelligence.

Radar Wall Suggested About Scandinavia

Washington, March 30 (CP)— Sir Robert Alexander Watson-Watt says Britain could well build a protective radar wall around Scandinavia.

The famed British radar expert, delivering the Frank A. Howard lecture on industrial research at George Washington University, said Monday it could be "an important contribution of the United Kingdom to North Atlantic defence."

Sir Robert's statement came amid reports that military authorities have been planning an extensive radar network to guard Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The United States has its own plan for radar encirclement of the United States. In co-operation with Canada, the United States also would set up a similar defence in the Arctic.

Sir Robert said Britain has the materials, technology and economy for the Scandinavian project.

Of 950 Chickens

Dunkirk, N.Y., March 30 (AP) —A dog caused the death of about 950 chickens Tuesday on a poultry farm near here, farmer William Lesch reported. The dog attacked the chickens but most of the deaths were caused when the birds crowded into a corner of the coop, suffocating many, Lesch shot the dog.

STALINGRAD HERO HEADS SOVIET ZONE IN GERMANY

Chuikov Will be in Charge of All Military Succeeding Sokolovsky

Moscow, March 30 (AP)—Army General Vassily I. Chuikov, wartime hero of Stalingrad and Leipzig, became military governor of the Soviet zone of Germany today, succeeding Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky.

Sokolovsky was promoted to principal assistant to the new minister of Soviet armed forces, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky. Chuikov's appointment also was a promotion.

Announcement of the changes, like those that ended the quick shakeup of top-level Soviet officials, gave no explanation of the reasons. The people were told the shifts in a brief broadcast by Moscow radio and a 56-word item published in the morning newspapers.

Both men are widely known to the Soviet people. Chuikov commanded the 62nd army division in the defence of Stalingrad from September, 1942, to February, 1943, receiving the high honor of Order of Suvorov, first class.

He participated, also in the capture of Lublin, Poland, from Germans.

His new title is commander-in-chief of Soviet occupation troops and head of Soviet military administration in Germany.

Sokolovsky also is a much-decorated war hero. He was honored for his exploits as commander of troops on the Soviet Russian front and his punishing campaign against the Germans. He became military governor in Germany in 1945, succeeding Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov.

It was Sokolovsky who staged the celebrated Russian walkout from four-power government of Germany.

His new chief, Marshal Vasilevsky, was named minister of armed forces Friday, succeeding Marshal Nikolai A. Bulganin. Bulganin is a member of the Communist party's politburo and deputy prime minister.

WANT WOLF BOUNTY INCREASE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 30 — (CP) — The Sault Chamber of Commerce is on record as urging an increase in the Ontario wolf bounty. The present $25 bounty is not enough to encourage wolf hunts for the protection of Northern Ontario deer, resident R. L. Curran commented. H. S. Hamilton, an executive member of the Chamber, suggested that United States tourists should get $100 for killing each Algoma wolf.

Ancient Memphis Tomb Opened

Sakkara, Egypt, March 31 (AP) —Archaeologists opened today the tomb of five Egyptians believed to have lived six centuries before Christ.

A staff under Abd Esslam, director of the Egyptian pyramid project, discovered the entrance to the hewn-rock tomb Saturday. The find was kept secret until Dr. Etienne Drioton, director-general of the antiquities department, arrived to watch the opening.

The tomb is about 100 feet below ground at Sakkara, cemetery of ancient Egypt's capital of Memphis. It is reached by a shaft sunk through a rock.

Lowered down the shaft, the visitors followed Abd Esslam through a gap in a stone wall at the bottom.

Through a chink in the wall they could see three wooden coffins on the floor of an adjoining room. In front of the coffins were 200 tiny statuettes of blue-glazed pottery.

On one of these bearded hieroglyphics on the figure disclosed that Kanafer was scribe in the Temple of Ptah, a god of ancient Memphis.

Drioton said he believed Kanafer lived during the 26th dynasty of Egyptian Pharoahs, or about 600 B.C.

On the opposite side of the main chamber workers bored a hole through which could be seen another coffin. On the lid was a huge carved face. Around it stood another though the blue statuettes.

Penetrating further, the party saw a fifth wooden coffin. The masonry indicates there may be another chamber in the wall beyond.

Seven Families ThreatenSit-Down

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Seven families, occupying emergency housing quarters in suburban Malton, today threatened to stage a sit-down strike April 1 if anyone attempts to evict them.

The families, all former residents of suburban municipalities, were placed in the city-operated premises when other accommodation was unavailable. All recently received notices to move.

One of the tenants, Mrs. William Burkhardt, speaking in an interview the seven families would be broken up if eviction is carried out. She said accommodation "just can't be found for large families."

She said she received her eviction notice from a civic official last month and when she asked the reason, the official answered: "Because you are from Scarboro."

Family Allowance Bill Changed by Health Minister

Ottawa, March 30 (CP)—Plans for two important changes in family allowance legislation were announced today by Health Minister Martin.

The first would change from three years to one the residence period required as one of the conditions of eligibility of a child. The second would repeal the provision which reduces the amount of allowances to the fifth and subsequent children in a family of more than four.

Announcement of the proposed changes was contained in a notice inscribed on the votes and proceedings of the commons by Mr. Martin. The notice gave the text of a resolution to a bill that will make the necessary amendments to the family allowances act.

Under the existing legislation a child must be a resident of Canada for three years before becoming entitled to the allowances, which range from five dollars to eight dollars a month for a child, depending on his age.

There have been requests from local quarters that the government change this provision because it worked hardship on immigrant families from Britain and Europe. Under the new legislation the children of such families would qualify after being in Canada one year.

Police Court Not Collecting Agency Says Magistrate

Kitchener, March 30 (CP)—Efforts to collect money through manipulation of domestic court channels were severely criticized Tuesday by Magistrate H. R. Polson when he was faced with five show cause summons cases involving arrears of nearly $5,000.

In each case the county was trying to collect money paid out to cover the cost of boarding temporary wards of the Children's Aid Society in private homes. All the cases have been lodged with a private collecting agency.

One case involved $2,460 in arrears. The father, against whom the original order was made, said he was willing to pay $10 a week.

Second highest amount was $1,- 345 allegedly owed by an Ayr district couple. They denied the total and said that the bookkeeping was inaccurate.

"Go and see the C. A. S. and check the amounts" they were told. The magistrate then advised a Galt man to take up a matter of $238 said to be owing with the collection agency now handling it.

When he read the details of yet another case covering some $634 which another Galt man denied owing, the magistrate rebelled.

"Whose bright idea was it that this court could be turned into an adjunct of the collecting agency?" he asked.

There was no reply.

Former Mayor Of Toronto, F. J. Conboy, Dies

Toronto, March 29 (CP)— Dr. Frederick Conboy, 67, former Mayor of Toronto, died in hospital today after he had been failing health since last April when struck by an auto in North Toronto.

His wife is still confined to hospital after undergoing a serious operation two weeks ago.

The son of a Toronto market gardener, Dr. Conboy became a leader in his profession as a dentist, in his career in politics and in the United Church.

He was elected Mayor of Toronto in 1941 and served four consecutive terms as chief magistrate. His previously served four years as controller, two years as alderman and five years on the Board of Education.

He first started dental practice here in 1906 and 21 years later was appointed Director of Dental Services for Ontario. Since 1917 he had been a professor of dental practice at the Ontario School of Dentistry and in 1935 was appointed a professor at the School of Optometry.

Last June, he campaigned unsuccessfully as Progressive Conservative candidate for Toronto Bracondale in the Ontario election.

Used-Car Racket Uncovered by Ingersoll Man

Ingersoll, March 29 — (CP) — Police today arrested Ingersoll businessman with uncovering a unique used-car racket believed to be operated by a Toronto-Hamilton gang.

Cpl. Jack Callander gave this story of how the ring's operations were uncovered when Norman R. Horton became suspicious after replying to an advertisement offering a used car for sale.

Horton noticed a sales receipt allegedly signed by a St. Catharines firm seemed too clean for one dated June 1948. He noted, too, that the car's keys were made in Kitchener. Telephone calls brought to light that no such firm operated in St. Catharines, and that the car, delivered by "the smoothest talker" had been stolen the day before in Toronto. Meantime, the "salesman" also had become suspicious and had fled.

Predict Elections In Hungary to Rivet Red Dictatorship

New York, March 29 (CP)

The New York Times said today in a Vienna dispatch that new general elections are expected in Hungary within the next few months and will "rivet the Communist dictatorship on Hungary so firmly that it will be impossible to overthrow it by peaceful means."

An amended election law, which disenfranchises a large number of persons for political reasons, "will insure a rubber-stamp parliament," the dispatch said.

Government Seeks to Control Polio in the Far North

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP)—Infantile paralysis has stricken Canada's Eskimos scattered across the vast, barren Arctic. Its ravages have been tragic for a people whose livelihood depends upon an ability to follow the trail of seal and caribou. The federal government has begun a fight which may last four years.

The immediate, continuing battle is well in hand. Now medical experts are studying what can be done from a long-range standpoint about the epidemic which so far has killed 19 Eskimos, partially paralyzed "another 23, lightly touched a score of others and forced a sealing-off of a 40,000-square-mile area around Hudson Bay.

So far, only one native settlement has been severely hit. That was at Chesterfield, 350 miles north of Churchill, Man., on the western shore of the big Bay. A five-man medical team flown to the area early in March took 13 severely ill Eskimos 1,000 miles south to Winnipeg where they now are receiving up-to-the-minute medical treatment in hospital.

The entire settlement has shrunk to the far north—to keep the disease from spreading, to study its effects among people never before touched by poliomyelitis and to aid the Eskimos themselves. Seven adult bread-winners laid low, young boys and girls have been affected by the disease. They will grow up and they, too, will need help.

Other Epidemics

Epidemics are not new in the Eskimo. Since 1941 outbreaks of influenza, spinal meningitis, mumps and other diseases peculiar to the white man have carried off more than 250 of the 8,000 natives who live a migratory, primitive existence around the shores of the Arctic Ocean. But infantile paralysis is something new.

Chesterfield, officials here say, there are probably 100 Eskimos camped around the Royal Canadian Mounted Police post, the Hudson's Bay Company post, the Roman Catholic hospital and mission and a radio and weather station. A government doctor, J. D. Moody, continues on the job to fight the spread of the epidemic which has resulted in a government quarantine of the surrounding area. None of the small group of white men, women and children has become ill.

The source of the epidemic is believed to have been Churchill, a native named Tutu Dial. There last Sept. 15, leaving behind cases of polio, a native canoe he had moped en route to Eskimo Point, 150 miles south of Chesterfield. At Eskimo Point there were two cases. One, Jimmy Gibbons, a special C.M.M.P. constable, had two paralyzed arms. He is believed to have transmitted the disease to other Eskimos on a 100-mile trip inland to Padlei early this winter. Jimmy Gibbons eventually arrived at Chesterfield.

Chesterfield and Eskimo Point are in the Eastern Arctic area which holds about 90 per cent of Canada's Eskimo population. The area takes in the extreme northern part of Quebec, Baffin Island and the western shore of Hudson Bay and Foxe Basin. Within 100 miles of Chesterfield are an estimated 375 natives.

These natives live in small family groups. In the long winter of the ice break-up hits Chesterfield in July and freeze-up comes in November—they live in igloos. When summer comes they put up tents, some of canvas, some of native skin. The community method of living and sleeping contributes to the spread of disease, officials say.

Half of the nine-foot-wide igloo is occupied by a snow shelf two feet in height where the family, relatives and visiting Eskimos live, eat and sleep, all together, naked. Heat comes from seal oil in a soapstone lamp which also holds moss as a slow-burning wick. Every child in several times a day. The caribou shot the pervious fall is cached in a corner and is eaten raw.

The number of persons in an igloo depends on the size of the family but there may be 10. Occasionally, two igloos are built side-by-side and connected by a tunnel. While men say the igloos are comfortably warm even in the bitter, 60-below-zero weather of the Arctic night. They also report that the stench sometimes is not pleasant.

Officials here say the government may have to establish an institution by look after the policing of the Eskimos — and for those who depend upon them. That would not be new for the Canadian government. As a sort of answer to the situation at Chesterfield it maintains a home for indigents. It also provides an allowance, paid in food and other necessities of life, for Eskimos more than 70 years of age.

In bygone years, the old tale got harsher treatment. The younger Eskimos simply walked them in an igloo and left them behind.

Historic Windmills Passing In Britain

London (CP)—Britain's windmills, familiar sights all over the country 50 years ago, are nearly all disappeared.

They now are seldom needed to grind grain, and attempts to preserve them as historic buildings are being defied by the weather.

Mills still capable of being used for their original purpose are falling into disuse because few millers are left to carry on the trade and few millwrights to carry out repairs.

Recently a veteran millwright wrote to the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings that work on a number of mills had been cancelled and orders received to dismantle others.

The society appealed to the ministries of food and agriculture. The latter came to the rescue with letters to county executive committees asking that they tell the owners of mills that were meeting a genuine local need.

A report just issued by the society details mill casualties since the Second World War.

Of 2,000 mills in the Cambridgeshire fens, only one remains now that will be gone unless £1,500 ($6,000) can be found for its repair. It belongs to the county council, which has invited tenders for its demolition.

A 17th century mill at Burton Dassett, Warwickshire, was blown down two years ago.

One of the finest flour mills in the country, the Hutch Mill in Lincolnshire, was badly damaged by 1945 gales. The society offered £25 per cent of the cost of repair if local people would raise the rest. Nothing has been heard.

Of 174 grist mills in Norfolk listed by the society's engineer, only one, at Billingford, is still in working order.

Loss of Memory Common Trouble in Modern Life

By NORMAN CREIGHTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP)—Often seen outside British police stations these days are the words: "Missing—believed suffering from loss of memory."

Doctors say modern conditions render sensitive people less able to stand up to sudden shock—the most common cause of loss of memory.

Bad news, broken abruptly, can cause a strong-minded woman to forget everything. Another common cause is the sheer shock of being defied by the enemy.

"The memory cells knock off for a holiday till things get back to normal," wrote the medical correspondent of a London newspaper. "It's as though a duster were wiped across the bi-coloured screen."

Curing a case of lost memory, he said, is always a matter of luck and guesswork. Psychologists believe in studying a man's background and then flashing bits of his past at him in the hope of jogging the memory back to work.

Electric Treatment

Another method, widely used in British hospitals, is the "hat-of-the-dog-that-bit-you" technique, which is treating shock by shock.

A modified electric current passed through the nervous system can stir the memory cells into action.

Many hypnotists nowadays claim to have the power to restore memory, but they put the patient to sleep, then lure him gently back to the time period before the shock occurred. By means of searching questions, they are able to "find out much which the patient cannot otherwise tell.

Next step is to convince him he's never had any trouble with his memory, wake him up and chat to him about old times.

A London doctor reported the case of a man who had been in hospital suffering from a complete memory black-out for three months. He had no relations, no identity, did not know his name or address. Specialists had almost written off the case as hopeless when the man's memory was magically restored by a bright young nurse.

Every night she sat by his bed laboriously reading from the telephone directory. When one night she was plowing through the "M's" the patient suddenly sat up. "Whichhaggar," he shouted, "that's it. Jock MacTaggart. That's my name."

Tarentum, Pa., (AP)— If Mrs. Harriet E. Elliott, 43, has a bad case of nerves today she needn't apologize.

Mrs. Elliott didn't see a fast freight bearing down on her she entered over a railroad crossing. When her car stopped violently on the other side of the tracks she got out to investigate.

The spare tire and the bumper were missing. The freight locomotive had sheared them off.

Miami (AP)— A tiny ring-tailed monkey Monday had a hard time getting into the United States.

The Simian was born just as an airliner from America rolled to a stop at Miami International airport.

United States customs officials said it was not on the manifest, but owner Pauline King maintained the little creature was an American since it arrived on United States soil.

Customs agreed, finally, and the monkey entered the country officially along with 140 other passengers, nine spider monkeys, 40 marmosets, 10 giant ant eaters, an ocelot, two upside-down sloths, and a kinkajou break.

Los Angeles (AP)— With a name like Valentine and a picture like "Love is a Big Business," how else could this little domestic story end?

Joseph A. Valentine, who won the Academy Award as a camera man left the set of "Love is Big Business" Monday for a courtroom.

He opposed his wife's separate maintenance suit with a divorce action. After a conference with Judge Joe Begovich, Valentine hurried to a telephone, his wife on his arm.

He told their two-year-old son and said: "Hello, honey, daddy and mom are coming right away."

Sir Albert Walsh Lieut.-Governor Of Newfoundland

Ottawa, March 29 (CP) — Sir Albert Walsh, who has had a fling at politics, a term on the bench and a hand in governing a country, has been appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Newfoundland, now less than three days away from becoming the tenth province.

Sir Albert, a native Newfoundlander and now vice-chairman of the Newfoundland commission of government, has agreed to serve as Lieutenant-Governor on the condition that he may be released when a legislature has been elected and begun its sessions.

The 65-year-old lawyer, who helped to conclude the final terms of union, will form an executive council to help administer the island until a government is elected—probably in June or July. There are reports that he will call on Joseph Smallwood, a man largely responsible for bringing the island into confederation, to head the first council or cabinet.

The Newfoundland constitution as it was in force prior to Feb. 16, 1934, will be revived on union and from it the executive council will derive the authority it needs to administer affairs in the provincial field.

Last Govt. in 1934

It was on Feb. 16, 1934, that Newfoundland formally lost responsible government because of financial difficulties. A commission of government, composed of three Newfoundlanders and four representatives of the United Kingdom, was appointed and has been administering the island since.

The commission will cease to function after March 31 and its executive duties will be taken over by the executive.

Sir Albert's appointment was announced by Prime Minister St. Laurent who also disclosed that Newfoundland's first representative in the federal cabinet will be sworn in April 1.

It is believed F. Gordon Bradley, Attorney-General in the last Liberal government in Newfoundland and a strong advocate of confederation, will be the cabinet choice. He now is in Ottawa.

Brief ceremonies are being arranged in Ottawa and St. John's to mark the completion of union. While time for the official ceremonies has been set, it is difficult to get a firm opinion in Ottawa or St. John's as to just when the union becomes effective.

Because of the differences in opinions, it is believed there will be a union date effective at midnight local time in the two countries.

CONDITIONS EASING

Cornwall, March 29 (CP)— Flood conditions in the Winchester and Chesterville districts were reported easing today after reaching a peak Monday. It is believed that conditions will return to normal in a few days.

Ice jams in the Nation River below Chesterville caused surface water to back up and inundate more than 18,000 acres of low lying land. Some farms were isolated by three feet of water and occupants were forced to use boats for travel between house and barn.

TURNING THE PAGES OF "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Europe was hungry and John Cabot brought back news, in 1497, of great catches of fish off the Grand Banks. Soon hundreds of ships sailed to the waters and Newfoundland's wealth of fishing beck the largest catches in their history.

When Britain claimed the island, fishing ports grew up along the coast. For many years the honour of governing the colony was given to the Captain of the first fishing port each year. It was a sad role. Then, in 1855, Newfoundland won responsible government of elected representatives.

It took a war for the world to recognize the rich resources of Newfoundland. The demands for the Island's products—coal, seal oil, minerals and lumber—led to a prosperity never before known.

On March 21st, 1949, we welcome into our confederation of provinces a neighbour whose need has always run parallel to ours—Newfoundland. Our interests are common . . . our destinies are linked. Together, we look forward to greater achievements. We'll prove anew there's room to grow—in Confederation.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

His First Dance With His Fiancee

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a man invites his fiancee (they are engaged, but the announcement has not been made) to a social gathering which includes several of his relatives, is it proper for him to dance the first dance with his fiancee or with a niece by marriage?

Reader.

The man should dance first with the girl he took to the party . . . whether or not she is his fiancee.

Bon Voyage Party For Her Son's Wife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter-in-law and her one-year-old daughter are leaving for Japan where he with my son who is in the service. I would like to call her a farewell party. What kind of centerpiece should I have, and what color do you suggest for my table-setting? If I have a buffet supper, what do you suggest I serve?

B. C.

I think it would be a wonderful idea for you to make as many devoted gestures as possible to your daughter-in-law on this so-important occasion . . . for example, for your centerpiece use her favorite flowers, and for your table-setting color scheme choose her favorite color, and for your menu serve her favorite foods!

This would be a charming and loving bow to her . . . and how proud she will be to tell your son of his mother's goodness and thoughtfulness in planning this party for her and how proud he will be of you for making such memorable plans. You might send a small, festive corsage for her to wear at the party.

Announcement of Broken Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just broken my engagement, but no one knows it yet except my parents and his. Do you think my parents should send the announcement of the broken engagement to the newspaper? Or should we just let the news "leak out?"

Frances L.

The usual procedure is to send an announcement of the broken engagement to the same newspaper, or newspapers, in which the engagement was announced. The formal announcement, sponsored by your parents, that the engagement has been broken "by mutual consent" is dignified and as helpful as possible in a difficult situation. If you merely rely on having the news "leak out," there may be awkward and embarrassing situations that might have been avoided by a published announcement. I believe you will find the newspaper announcement kinder for you and your friends, and for your ex-fiance and his friends.

Correct to Have a Flower Girl

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At my formal wedding, I am having only one bridesmaid (maid of honor), the groom is to have a best man, and there will be two ushers. My landlady, who has been most kind to me, has a little girl of five who is very eager to be my flower girl, and I would very much like to have her. Would it be correct to have a flower girl with only the one bridesmaid? If so, how would she enter the church, before or after the bride and what would her position be in the recessional?

The wedding is in our Presbyterian church.)

E. P.

Yes, it would be entirely proper to have the little girl as your flower girl, even if the bridesmaid is your only other attendant. In the processional she would walk before you and your father; in the recessional, directly after you and the bridegroom.

Should Return Fraternity Pin

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I go to a co-educational college, and a boy I liked very much gave me his fraternity pin to wear. After a rush of several months our friendship took a decided droop, and now no longer exists. Should I return his fraternity pin? (He hasn't mentioned my doing this.)

Bette S.

Indeed you should return his fraternity pin! Whether or not it was intended to mean an engagement . . . as it does in many colleges . . . you should not keep this important "loan." This young man apparently is unwilling to do or say anything that seems to criticize you, but your classmates may not be so kind. If they see you still flaunting the fraternity pin.

Toronto, March 29 (CP) — Excavation for a $7,500,000 apartment house in North York township started today with a brief sod-turning ceremony by Reeve George H. Mitchell. The project will consist of 5 two-storey buildings, each containing eight suites.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Girls with oily skins lament loudly

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband has a good job but he only gives me money enough to pay household expenses. He claims I should be able to get $13 out of it to spend for food for one whole month.

Can this be done today for two healthy working people?

"May".

Dear "May":

No two people could possibly live on $13 a month for food today, as I'm sure you know. If they could live a week on that sum, it would be a miracle, unless their home were on a farm and their pantry, cellar and frozen food locker fulls of cans and jars and meat they had put away.

I suggest that you tell your husband to take over the marketing for one week and see how he makes out.

Don't give up your friends for Anyone

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a boy of 19 and in love with a girl of 17. I have been going out with her for one year.

I have had a little trouble with her lately and now we aren't seeing each other any more. It was all my fault and this is what happened. I am the type of fellow who likes to fool around with a lot of other fellows. I have been going with them a long time and it is hard for me to break away from them. I told this girl about this and we had a quarrel and now she doesn't talk to me.

Please advise me what I should do to get back our friendship and to think more of her than my friends.

"M. D. V."

Dear "M. D. V.":

It would be a great mistake for you to give up your own friends for the sake of going out with nobody but this one girl. It is extremely foolish for young people the age of you and this girl to consider yourselves "in love" and to see no one but each other. No matter how much that sort of thing may be done today, it is still a very unwise procedure. Teen-age boys and girls should go out with a lot of people, as that is the only way they can get to know anything about human nature and be able to make a wise choice of a marriage partner when the time comes for it.

If this girl doesn't want to be friends with you unless you will consent to see nobody but her, then I think you should let her go her own way. I would be willing to venture the prediction that even if you went back on her own terms, your friendship would not last very long. So why be silly enough to do such a thing?

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Treatment of dry skin

No matter whether the skin is dry or oily, there are certain hygienic laws to be followed if the texture is to remain fine the coloring attractive. Cosmetics do their part, but health measures contribute to the beauty of the complexion. If one has plenty of fresh air and some outdoor exercise every day if one selects food with discretion; if one bathes daily with soap suds and a heavy brush; if one sleeps in a well-ventilated room, there is a better chance that the skin will remain in a youthful state.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN
Let this Husband do the marketing

Girls with oily skins lament loudly, ply the powder pad, and consider that the hand of fate is raised against them. Yet they have advantages over the dries. Because of lack of sebaceous oil, the arid skin is susceptible to premature wrinkles that are a greater beauty evil than a beaming nose. That is why the dries must use lubricants without fail, not just once a day, but twice. There is no such thing as giving the cutaneous surface too much oil.

The fresh will lap up a creamy cosmetic as a kitten laps up milk. A thin cream must be used for the removal of dirt, a heavy one applied after the bedtime face washing, allowed to remain on. By morning it will have disappeared.

It sometimes happens that the skin will rebel against even the blandest soap, manifest at the first touch of suds, feeling sensitive and sore. Then a cleansing meal must be used. These delightful renovating agents are to be found as cosmetic counters. Some are made of oatmeal, ground to powder fineness. Their purely content has a soothing effect.

Moisten a washcloth, sprinkle on some meal, and proceed the same as you would when applying soap. Be very gentle. A dry skin cannot endure rough treatment. Rinse with warm water, dry gently, and then on with a heavy cream. A five minute massage will do much toward stimulating the sebaceous glands. The purpose of these glands is to keep the cutaneous surface lubricated. They have gone on strike, hence the dry condition that is so tormenting to a woman's soul.

Just why has that happened? Skin specialists tell us that the cause is found in a diet that lacks sufficient fat. So, if you are numbered among the dries, pile more butter on your bread, eat bacon that has not been cooked to a crisp, add a little more cream to your coffee. You may note a decided improvement in a few weeks' time. It has happened.

Another cause, it is believed, is not drinking sufficient water. Take a glass of warm water upon arising to wash out the digestive organs. Take a glass between meals and another at bedtime.

Red Wings Even Best-of-Seven Stanley Cup Series With Habs By Winning Fourth Game 3-1

Montreal, March 30 (CP)—Detroit Red Wings today regained their position as favorites to advance into the Stanley Cup hockey finals following their return to form Tuesday night when they scored a 3-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens to tie their semi-final series at two games each.

The series moves on to Detroit for the fifth game tomorrow night.

Paced by big Gordie Howe, who rapped home two goals, the Wings held a slight margin in the play, outshooting the Montrealers 36-26.

It was a disappointing result for the capacity crowd of 11,222, some having waited outside the building for more than eight hours to view the game.

Red Kelly scored the other Detroit marker in the first period after Canadiens had taken the lead on Leo Gravelle's goal.

Harry Lumley played brilliantly in the Detroit cage as he swept aside numerous Canadiens' rushes in the closing minutes of the fixture.

Gravelle at Best

The speedy Gravelle was at his best when he snared the opening goal of the game. He whipped in on a play with Murdo McKay and sent the disc into the right hand corner of the net with a shot that completely outfoxed the cagey Lumley.

Two of the pressing Wings' teammates aided with Kelly leading the attack. He scooped up a loose puck just outside the Montreal goal and fired a blazing shot that nicked goalie Bill Durnan's glove before burying itself deep in the knotted twine.

The winning tally which came in the middle session saw Detroit taking over command of the game, which blazed from the rink on a three-man attack with Ted Lindsay and captain Sid Abel. Lindsay passed a few feet in front of the Montreal net and Howe tipped the slow-moving disc past Durnan.

Rocket Shot Wild

The Canucks pressed from here on and unleashed assault after assault. Three times Maurice Richard, the fleet-footed Canuck, broke loose on long passes but failed to capitalize when he shot wild.

Howe's second goal which clinched the contest for the Wings came after thirteen minutes of play in the third period. The play was spectacular. A loose puck slid over the ice to the Canadien end where Howe pounced on it as Durnan raced out of his net. Both players swiped at it but Howe's stick connected first and the puck spun over Durnan's head into the empty cage.

Lineups:

Hershey Bears Easily Surprise Of the Playoffs

(By The Associated Press)

Hershey Bears easily are the surprise team in the American Hockey League's Calder Cup playoffs.

Hershey is on the threshold of entering the final round of the playoffs. The Bears, who wound up 33 points behind the eastern Division's pennant winning Providence Reds, have chalked up three straight victories over stronger western division foes.

The Bears breezed by Indianapolis, Western runners up, in two straight games in the quarter finals. Tuesday night they downed Cleveland Barons 3-2, in two overtime sessions, in the opener of their best-of-three semi-final series.

While the Bears took the defending champion Barons over the hurdles, St. Louis Flyers, western flag winners, nipped the Reds 3-3 to square their best-of-seven series at two games each.

Arnie Kullman scored Hershey's winning goal at 9:34 of the second overtime period. Hershey took a 1-0 lead when Silvio Bettolo scored in the opening frame. Bobby Carse tied it up for Barons early in the second frame and Gordie Bruyn followed with a marker to send the game into overtime.

Providence hopped off to a 2-0 lead against the Flyers in St. Louis when Jack Riddard and Harvey Fraser scoring. Hec Ponzo got one back for the Flyers in the closing minutes of the initial period.

St. Louis pumped home three goals in the middle stanza with Lloyd Doran, Hank Backor and Paul Gladu counseling to new 3-2 up. Roger Bedard netted Providence's final goal and Barney Sullivan shoved home St. Louis' last marker in the third period.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The current Stanley Cup series threatens to revolve itself especially in the Red Wings-Canadiens brawl, to a Battle of the Scribes. It might finish up with Detroit's Jack Smith and Montreal's Dink Carroll, managing ice to ice in the middle of the Arena with a Montreal scribe to settle the issue. There is talk of libel suits, managers are going off half-cocked with denials and assertions, and all in all it looks to be quite one of the best off-the-ice brawls in the history of the wail-baiting Stanley penwielders.

Andy O'Brien, Montreal Standard sports writer is threatened with a libel suit; Frank Selke, of the Montreal Canadiens is under the impression that Jack Smith, Toronto pugnacious Doug Vaughan, Red Wings champion who "aids with the boxing" and Windsor Star, quotes O'Brien as being a "rabble-rouser" there's no telling where this fracas might end, as there's going to be a hot time in somebody's town before the fireworks subside to a mere flash.

• • •

And all because Elmer Lach, well-known Canadiens star was allegedly smashed in the jaw by Red Wing defenseman Jack Stewart. Canadiens writers and supporters claim it was deliberate; Red Wings claim Lach's Detroit-to-Windsor transferee injurer he should never have been allowed to play. In any event there's the 64-gp. There should be a lulu of a revelicking ride when the teams trek back to Detroit for the fifth game of the series, where already red-hot hockey fever is simmering the fallibel of Wayward Avenue. Lots of the white-hot and flaming when the Habs skate on the ice, and there should be a pip little battle.

• • •

Quoth Mr. Vaughan of the Windsor Star: "Admittedly, Stewart is a dirty hockey player. But he is no meaner than several of the Canadiens such as Ken Reardon and Butch Bouchard or, for that matter, a score of other NHL stars you could mention. We'll be mightily surprised if Mr. O'Brien doesn't live to rue the day he ever permitted a hot typewriter to overrun his common sense."

• • •

O'Brien charged that Stewart deliberately maimed Lach acting under the approval of the Red Wings management. Damages in excess of $100,000 may be claimed. Detroit Hockey Club, in addition, it is reported that the Wings will seek disciplinary action by the NHL against Frank Selke who, it is alleged, ordered Canadiens to maim the NHL star's retaliation which calls for a fine of $1,000. An article by Selke which appeared in yesterday's Montreal dealt with charges similar to those hurled by O'Brien.

• • •

Each year, it seems, things get "wuuser and wuuser." It was a year ago, if the memory is correct, that Canadiens barred Jim Coleman, sports editor of the Toronto Telegram, by started a furore of typewriter protest and comment among the millwrights who draw their pay in the shadow of the Press Gallery. Each year the newspaper boys from the warring cities scarcely spoke to one another while passing on the street, but about a month after the fracas, Coleman, O'Meara, the Ferguson, O'Brien, Carrolls, etc., of Montreal and the Lyles, the Hewitsons, the Colemans, Reeves and whatnot of Toronto, were all on speaking terms with one another in the finals. Or scribes or other warring factions who may be nipping at each other in the battle for the Stanley mug.

• • •

Aside to Mr. Michael J. Rodden, of the Kingston Whig Standard: For your information, sir, the story in the Ontario Intelligencer about Peterborough Petes not wanting to play Peterborough Legionaires was NOT written by this writer as charged by you. It was written by a member of the staff who was under the impression that the series was four-of-seven. Any way, thanks for the space . . . Mission completed—Incident closed.

Tonight in the Board Room at the Canadian National Exhibition, the CNEAA go into conclave to organize an intermediate "A" Softball Club and quite probably a league. The Diesels are the "A's" will be asked to lay the ice-cubes over. That meant, that unless the 1948 slate is elected, business for 1949 conducted at the first annual meeting in mid-end wild. No slate of officers unless elected as a whole for the coming year can direct that years activities.

After 25 years as an active hockey official in various capacities of referee, promoter, sponsor, coach and manager of senior, intermediate and junior hockey teams in Stratford, D.M. (Dave) Finlay announced his semi-retirement yesterday.

He said his health and demands his hotel business made on his time were the reason for his decision.

Ever since he first started handling hockey teams in 1924, Finlayy has been prominently connected with Stratford entries in the Ontario Hockey Association. In recent years he served as manager of the Kroehlers, the city's junior A team. He also found time to sponsor his own junior B and minor league teams.

The Dave Finlayy Trophy, provided two years ago by public subscription, remains as a constant remembrance of his services to the sport. It is awarded annually to the best goalie in the O.H.A. Junior A series. Jack Gelinas, O.H.A. honored him with a presentation for his hockey activity.

• • •

Sid Smith, a dashing young Hornet from Fitzburgh flashed a potent style in his National Hockey League debut in Toronto last night, when he led the rurprod Leafs to a sparkling 5-1 victory over the faltering Boston Bruins for their third win in the Stanley Cup semi-finals. Smith, leading scorer in the AHL fitted into the Leaf's attacking divisions with Hornet mate Fleming Mackell like a hand in an six old glove and centred by Teeder Kennedy, flashed the best line on the ice, He scored a pair and assisted Mackell with the third Toronto marker.

• • •

Toronto-born Smith showed as much stage-fright last night as a bull in a china shop. A born opportunist he flashed in for two goals and his speed and all-round work established him as immediate favorite with the hockey-inflamed Toronto fans. Boston, showing keenly the loss of Crawford, Schmidt and Peters, faltered badly in the third period and the flying Leafs were practically all over them. The series resumes tonight in Boston and the Maplecs should tuck the series away.

• • •

It was different in Montreal. Detroit Red Wings tied the series with Canadiens at two games each after a hard battle. This series should go through its maximum extended case, and if such is the case, and Leafs knock off Bruins tonight, the Leafian chances to win the Stanley pewterware will be enhanced but greatly. If the Red Wings-Canadiens series goes to seven games, as it might, the winners should be sitting ducks for the refreshed Leafs. If . . .

Dizzy Trout Will Probably be Relief Pitcher

Lakeland, Fla., March 30 — (AP) — Dizzy Trout idly soaked his right elbow in a tub of warm water and talked about relief pitching.

Somehow it seemed strange to think of Diz, the 27-game winner of '44, confining his pitching work to Detroit Tigers' bullpen. Trout felt the same way.

"All I know is what I hear," he said with a grin. "(Manager Red) Rolfe hasn't said anything to me. As far as we know, all us pitchers are starters."

Trout has an idea he'll be taking a regular turn when the going gets hot. That is, if his elbow doesn't act up again. Diz tore a tendon in the elbow last summer.

Training Camp Notes

(By The Associated Press)

Joe DiMaggio, ailing New York Yankees' star, is ready to get back to steady work, he says after he's rejoined with a sore right heel, the $90,-000-a-year outfielder has been taking it easy but is scheduled to be in the starting line-up for an exhibition game today.

All is serene in New York Giant's camp following a flare-up between Manager Leo Durocher and rookie catcher Sal Yvars.

Yvars fractured a hand in a game Monday and had words with Leo after the game for indicated sd reasons. However he made up with the boss Tuesday and was restored to good standing.

Brooklyn Dodgers are ready to embark on a barnstorming tour of Texas-league teams. However they'll duck Shreveport, which has a law prohibiting Negroes and whites from competing against each other in athletic events.

Jackie Robinson and Roy Campanella, Dodger stars, are both Negroes.

Chicago White Sox are letting their opponents win in a walk.

Records show that in the Sox' exhibition games to date, their woeful pitching corps has handed out 93 free bases in 17 games, 10 of which Chicago lost.

Pitcher Jean Pierre Roy of Montreal has rejoined Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League, the club announced Tuesday at Vero Beach, Fla. Roy, who played with the Royals a couple of seasons ago, was transferred from Mobile Bears of the Southern Association, another Brooklyn Dodger farm team.

Alex Kellner, rookie southpaw, hurled a three-hit shutout Tuesday as Philadelphia Athletics defeated Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League 4-0 at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. The Athletics had retired the last 16 batters in order after scattering Toronto's three hits through the first four innings.

Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, denied Tuesday that he had made an offer for Del Ennis. Willis (Puddinhead) Jones or Dan Hanning of Philadelphia Phillies. Jones played last year for Toronto of the International League.

In 18 "grapefruit league" games so far, Philadelphia Phillies have blasted out 18 home runs. Bill Nicholson, outfielder obtained from Chicago Cubs, leads the parade with four four-base blows.

Sid Smith, A.H.L. Recruit, Scores Two, Assists on Third As Leafs Defeat Boston 3-1

By FRANK MACDOUGALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, March 23. (CP)—An eager recruit from the American Hockey League tipped his Stanley Cup scales to Toronto Maple Leafs' owner Conn Smythe's Boston Bruins Tuesday night, 3-1.

Sid Smith, called up from Pittsburgh Hornets, took over Vic Lynn's regular left wing post. He came up with a two-goal scoring performance as the Leafs knocked off the injury-riddled Bruins 3-1 and took a three-to-one lead in games in the best-of-seven series.

The Bruins, with three key players now on the injured list, have only a ghost of a chance in the series which resumes tonight in Boston. The Leafs' stand knee-deep in reserves with half a dozen players ready to fill any injury breach.

Right Wing Jimmy Peters and Centre Milt Schmidt were lost to Boston Tuesday night, joining defenceman Johnny Crawford on the sick list. Crawford suffered a bruised chest muscle in the third game of the series, Peters stayed in hospital in Toronto when his mates left for Boston. He suffered a shoulder injury when checked into the Boards by Toronto's Jim Thomson. Schmidt, the never-give-up centre, had a stomach upset, returned to a bodycheck from Garth Boesch.

Smith, only Toronto native on the Leafs' roster, gave the 13,500 fans an idea of how he won the A.H.L. scoring championship this season with 55 goals and 57 assists for 112 points. He helped Fleming Mackell, another Pittsburgh player, score the first goal of the game before getting his own pair through Johnny-on-the-spot goalie Sugar Jim Henry.

Despite the loss of Peters in the first period and Schmidt in the second, the Bruins never gave up. They carried the play at every opportunity and goalie Frank Broda had to be right on several occasions to keep them out.

The Boston muscles line watched Mackell's goal in the first period—Right Wing Johnny Peirson was the marksman and he had help from Defencemen Kenny Smith and Paul Ronty. His tally came while Quartermen Jack Gordon, son of the Leafs sat out a tripping penalty. Smith, who played on a line with Mackell and Left Captain Ted Kennedy, got his goal in the second period and another in the third—the final one while Kenny Smith of Boston was off for slashing.

The 23-year-old Sid Smith is no stranger to N.H.L. play. He played 10 pro games in 1946-47 from Quebec Aces, playing 23 games that season with Pittsburgh and 74 games with Toronto. Last season he was with Pittsburgh for thirty games and with Toronto for thirty-one in the N.H.L. schedule and in two Stanley Cup semi-final games against the Boston Bruins before a knee injury sent him to the sidelines.

Lineups:

Boston — Goal, Brimsek; Defence, Kraftcheck, Ferguson; Centre, Sandford; Wings, Peters, Dumart; Subs, Crawford, Kryzanowski, Schmidt, Warwick, Babando.

Toronto — Goal, Broda; Defence, Smith, Thomson; Centre, Metz; Wings, Klukay, Tingvere; Subs: Morrison, Mosdell, Jumel, Kennedy, Mackell, Gardner, Ezinicki, Watson, S. Smith, Quilty, Dawes.

Referee—Bill Chadwick; linesmen—Ray Gelliffe and Doug. Young.

Summary

First Period.

1 Toronto, Mackell (S. Smith) 3.18
2 Boston, Peirson (K. Smith, Ronty) 11.18

Penalties—Egan, Thomson.

Second Period.

3 Toronto, S. Smith (Boesch, Kennedy) 10.30

Penalties — Ezinicki, Schmidt, Mackell.

Third Period.

4 Toronto, S. Smith (Kennedy, Juzda) 15.17

Penalties—K. Smith, Henderson.

Rangers Conduct Hockey School At Guelph

(By The Canadian Press)

Although Rangers completed their National Hockey League campaign more than a week ago, the work of Manager Lester Patrick and Coach Lynn Patrick is far from over.

Along with other sides in the New York organization, they are running an eastern amateur hockey school at Guelph from which they hope to sift out future big league material. Next week, Boucher and company move on to Winnipeg where a similar school will be held for western players.

While most clubs hold schools in the fall, Boucher believes now is the time to see a player at his best.

"There isn't time at training camp to straighten all the amateurs out. Another thing, right now the kids have just completed their hockey season and are in good shape. I can get a better look at them here. At training camp, it takes a couple of weeks before they get their ice legs."

More than 70 players are attending the Guelph school.

Twelve high schools will be represented in the annual Ontario interscholastic basketball championship tournament which gets under way at Toronto Tuesday, in addition to the Niagara and Hamilton district winners, out-of-town entries include Toronto Danforth, Peterborough, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, Ottawa and Windsor.

Thousands of fans in hockey-mad Fort Frances, Ont., augmented by bands and school children released from classes, hailed Fort Frances Canadians, Thunder Bay senior hockey champions, on their arrival Tuesday from Fort Arthur. Canadians, who defeated Port Arthur Bearcats 7-1 to win their best-of-seven series and the right to enter the Western Canada Allan Cup semi-finals against Winnipeg Nationals, came home to streets jam-packed with cheering townspeople.

Among placards carried by school children was one reading, "What a trimming! Winnipeg, you are next."

Al Hardy, former newspaper man and prominent west coast racing official, Tuesday quit as managing director of the British Columbia Turf Club which owns Vancouver's only mile-track, Lansdowne. His resignation followed announcement two weeks ago that the club would not open at Lansdowne this year because of what it called "exorbitant" pari-mutuel taxation imposed by the provincial government.

Inkerman Becomes Ghost Town When Team is Playing

Inkerman, Ont., March 20 — (CP)— This little village of two stores, a cheese factory and 30 homes, located about 35 miles south of Ottawa, actually has a buzzing population of 150, but on Friday nights it's strictly "ghost town."

The reason, of course, is the Inkerman Rockets, youthful hockey battlers with a keen eye to one of the top places of Canadian hockey dardevils—the Memorial Cup. Almost every Inkerman resident is a hockey enthusiast.

To see even home games, however, the tiny band of Rockets followers have to go six miles to nearby Winchester, Ont. They have no adequate ice at home. Even the Winchester ice is not regulation size. During the Memorial Cup playoff schedule they have to travel an extra 30 miles to Ottawa. So far, their trips have been well rewarded.

The Rockets, with only three homebrewers left on the roster, have virtually swept away all opposition thus far. They meet the Montreal Royal juniors in Montreal tonight in the first round of a best-of-five eastern semi-final series.

This is only their third year in organized hockey.

Pups Are Ups

Two years ago Ottawa St. Pat's put their cast of the running in the district championships and last year St. Mary's carried them in the eastern quarter-finals. Now they meet their toughest rivals to date—Montreal Royals.

Coached by Lloyd Laporte, Inkerman school teacher, the speedy Rockets were runners-up to Ottawa in the St. Lawrence junior league even before their schedule was completed, because of their high scoring.

Whipping Ottawa St. Pat's of the Junior City League in four straight games, the Rockets took Ottawa district junior championship.

They jumped a big hockey hurdle in their quarter-final series with three convincing wins over Halifax St. Mary's Maritime Junior champions.

Most of the team is made up of imports, the majority from the Ottawa Junior City League. Only three of the villagers, Den Crowder, Cliff Baldwin and Norman Armstrong are still on the team.

Several of the Rockets such as Bill Lynan, Allen Kelly, Jim Crowder, Cliff Baldwin and Roger Hunter own great guns against the Maritimers.

Canada's Light Heavyweight Champion Left off Olympic Boxing Team Still Sizzling

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, March 20 (CP)—Eddie Zastre, the 24-year-old Winnipeg mill man with the atomic punch, misses no words on either Canada's Olympic team selectors or fight managers.

Zastre, who holds the Canadian light heavyweight crown, still sizzles when anyone mentions his being left off the boxing team sent to the last Olympic Games. His figures his record has made the men who choose the team look bad. It could be.

Zastre, now an electrical appliances salesman, won the lightheavy title last spring in Montreal in impressive fashion. Zastre won most of his fights by the K. O. or T. K. O. route.

Recently, Zastre, who has trouble finding suitable light heavyweight opponents, stepped up a notch and took on Canada's heavyweight champion, Adam Friul of Regina. Friul, incidentally, was one of the boxers who earned an Olympic berth. Zastre knocked him out in the fifth round of their scrap.

Last week Zastre won by a technical K. O. from a hard-punching Negro from Gary, Ind., named Buck Haven, who holds the Amateur Athletic Union heavy title in the United States.

Although it's not his weight division, this still seems to leave Zastre as one of the best amateur heavyweights in North America.

"Maybe those Olympic boys can figure out a good, logical excuse now for why I was left off the team, eh?" says Zastre. It's obvious from the inflection he puts on the question how he feels about the Olympic boys."

As for managers, Zastre — who is looking after his own interests — maintains that they "want to own you — look, stock and barrel."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, March 20 (AP)—If you look over one of those farm-club training camps — Dodgertown, for instance — you might think there's an endless supply of baseball material—but a correspondent who knows how tough things can be down in class "D" baseball sends this complaint: "It seems to me some scouts send in any boy names who can't or won't win ball games unless your team fells. The point is they sent in one young player after another and the one they sent in was usually inferior to the boy he replaced. Where they dug 'em is a mystery, but the greater mystery is why they'd sign 'em... Just to show there's another side to the problem a baseball scout noted: "Had to hurry back from Florida to start trailing the colleges. You know college schedules are short and we have to move fast in the spring."

...maybe it's something wrong with the scouting system, not the scouts.

Interspersed

The Dodgers are responsible for legislation that will eliminate Intercollegiate Athletic Association which forbids athletes from competing in football, basketball and track if they are professional baseball players. Branch Rickey has insisted that Preston Ward, who was centring the southwest Missouri State basketball team, should report for spring training before the court season closed. ... Churchill Downs is getting a fresh coat of paint for the Diamond Jubilee Derby—first back to the old green-and-orange color combination which wears Ben Brush colors of H. Price McGrath, owner of the first derby winner, Aristides.

Marlies Open Against Sydney

Toronto March 20 (CP)— The eastern Canada semi-final Allan Cup series opens here tonight when Toronto Marlboros play host to the powerful Sydney Millionaires.

Fit and eager for the best-of-five series, the Maritime Senior champions arrived here Tuesday after disposing of the Pembroke Lumber Kings 9-3 at Ottawa Monday night to win the best-of-five series 3-1.

No injuries are reported in either camp, and the Marlboros aren't expecting an easy time such as they had against the North Bay Black Hawks. They dumped the Black Hawks in two straight games of their all-Ontario finals.

Coach Joe Primeau, however, is counting on defencemen Hugh Bolton and left-winger Lorne Firle to give his squad that something extra. Both boys were brought up from the junior Marlboros two weeks ago and see action right at home in senior company.

Bolton teams up on defence with 36-year-old Flash Hollett, former National League star.

Academy Awards Likely Will be Discontinued

Hollywood, March 30. (AP)—Big talk in the film capital today is: Will there be any more Academy awards?

Actor Jean Hersholt asserts that the New York offices of picture companies oppose the awards idea and that the association of motion picture producers will withdraw its support after this year.

At the same time, Hersholt announced his retirement as president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, sponsor of the annual "Oscar" presentations. He added he won't remain on the Academy Board of Governors.

"I don't think the Academy will go out of existence," said Hersholt, who has served as its president four years. "But unless the studios take a more active interest . . . and agree to make financial contributions, the 1948 awards will be the last."

He declared that without the support of the Association of Motion Picture producers, which Eric Johnston heads, "it will be difficult if not impossible for this program to proceed."

Hersholt said he was speaking in answer to an undercurrent of criticism heard in the industry after the awards ceremony last Thursday. And he declared:

"Voices in the industry say they don't want Academy standards foisted upon us. They say we want to make commercial pictures unhampered by considerations of artistic excellence."

The veteran actor said certain producers feel that "too much time and money are wasted trying to make pictures of Academy-award calibre." They think Academy standards are too high.

Hersholt emphasized that the Academy, in reality "the cultural and educational branch of the industry, will not lower its standards. The coveted gold statuettes presented for 21 years, are awarded for the highest achievements in the art of motion pictures.

MUST INSTALL MUDGUARDS

Toronto, March 30 — (CP) — Legislation compelling owners to install mudguards on their trucks and trailers was introduced in the Ontario legislature Tuesday by Highways Minister Doucett. Ontario is believed the first province to introduce the move.

Mr. Doucett said the average motorist had experienced poor visibility by the wheel spray from large motor trucks and trailers.

Movable spotlights will be permitted on motor vehicles for the first time, it was announced. Penalties have been provided for misuse of spotlights, however.

There is such a thing as a hand being too strong. This was taken as a topic of conversation that seemed to lead nowhere, until it started the argument was the hand you see above.

♠ A K Q J 10 9
♥ A K J
♦ A K J
♣ A K

The question came up as to how high such a hand should be bid. Also as to whether it should end in spades or no-trump. Then somebody remarked the hand was too strong for a grand slam.

As a general rule it is easier to make a contract in trump than in no-trump. On the other hand, no-trump is safer with enough control. Because there is no danger of opponent ruffing.

If partner is found without a spade, opponents will have seven. If all seven are in one opponent's hand, a spade small slam may have trouble. A trump and a heart may lose.

On the other hand, how often will partner be found without even one trump. Or how often will opponent be found with all unseen trumps. Although possible the chances are remote.

Thus, if it is decided to stop at a small slam, either no-trump or spades is good. In this particular case, no-trump is a cinch, of course. At spades the danger is too slight to consider.

But what about bidding a grand slam? What are the possibilities? There is no worry about 12 tricks. It is the 13th trick that declarer must find a way of taking.

It will come from an opening heart lead or finding one opponent with queen and only one other heart. Or squeezing to the last card may fool opponent into throwing away heart queen. Or partner may have the heart queen.

If none of these happens, bidding grand slam means losing what could be made at small slam. Actually, the hand is too big for grand slam. Barefoot are the man's tots who bucks too many longshots.

Carried Body Of Brother Out To Safety

Mattawa, March 30 — (CP) — Conrad Duhaime, 18, Tuesday told how he carried the body of his 23-year-old brother Harry through the Quebec bush to safety here after Harry Duhaime was stricken with illness.

The two set out from here two weeks ago to stake hunting licences in preparation for the beaver trapping season. The elder brother, who had an appendicitis operation previously, was taken ill and died despite Conrad's administrations.

Conrad pushed his way through a blizzard and snowdrifts, fighting hunger and bitter cold to reach a cabin where a small food supply was stored. From there he started out again, chewing birch shoots to alleviate his hunger, and finally reached the Ottawa River about eight miles west of Deux Rivieres. From there he used a raft of logs until the raft and bed-dings sank in broken ice. Conrad managed to cross the river and reach a farm house where help was sent for him from Mattawa.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, March 30—(AP)—Mid-week Medley: Highlights and sidelights on the Hollywood news.

Youth is finally being served on the screen, at least on the distaff side.

For some time I've been noting that Hollywood's stars are getting older, with few youngsters being developed to replace them. Young people, who represent the majority of the movie audience, have had to watch 35-, 40- and 50-year-old film heroes and heroines.

It's not that those ages are less interesting. Few become good actors until they pass the 30 mark. But youth deserves a break, too.

Progress is being made in this department. Not so much in the male division. One of the few young actor prospects is 28-year-old Montgomery Clift.

The female list is more impressive. Among the virtual clutches for stardom are Elizabeth Taylor, 17; Wanda Hendrix, 20; Shelley Winters, 28; Marta Toren, 23; Ava Gardner, 29; Ann Blyth, 20; Rhonda Fleming, 23; and Coleen Gray, 22.

Interesting to note the last three are Bing Crosby's latest leading ladies. Hi, Bing!

A Complaint!

So far none has done so, but if any movie bigwig asked me what was wrong with theatre business I'd say: admission prices.

The most movie complaints I get from readers are about theatre ticket costs. They claim that theatres have priced themselves into the luxury class. The two-bit and 40-cent film houses are getting as scarce as a dime beer in most parts.

Take a look at Texas, where admissions have been kept at a low scale. That has helped make Texas the most avid state, as evidenced by "The Green Promise," premiere in Houston.

Get the prices down, boys, and you'll get the kids back in.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was talking to Sid Hunt in front of his house, and old lady Hinkle down at the corner came to her front door and waved to us to come down, and I said, Heck, I bet she wants us to go a errand.

Old lady Hinkle being the stingiest lady around and never giving anybody anything for going a errand, and she kept on waving, and Sid said, It's no use pretending we didn't see her waving because she knows we did, so I guess we have to go down.

Which we did, and old lady Hinkle said, Will one of you boys go to the bakery for me and get a loaf of bread, and I will give you a penny for your trouble.

Being what she always says, and we went and got the bread and on the way back we saw a bunch of mixed pidgins and sparrows in the middle of the street looking for something to eat, and I said, G, I wish we could throw some of this bread to those birds without it being stealing.

Well G, we can, she said. We'll tell the birds it's from old lady Hinkle, and then we'll be doing them a favor and a favor to old lady Hinkle too by making her do an unconscious kind action, saying, Here you are birds, here's what I'm doing and sparrows, saying. The result being she top of the

Hespeler Evens Series Defeating Gananoque 3-2

Hespeler, March 30. (CP)—Hespeler Legionnaires defeated Gananoque 3-2 here Tuesday night to even their best-of-three Ontario Hockey Association intermediate 'A' semi-final series at one game apiece.

Gananoque registered an 11-3 win in the first game of the round, but the second encounter here Tuesday night didn't bear any resemblance of the previous tilt. The little margin of difference on Tuesday night between the two sides produced some of the best hockey action witnessed in this centre for some time.

Gananoque notched the only score of the first period, but Hespeler wrapped in a pair in the second without any reply. Both teams counted once in the final stanza, with Hespeler going two up early in the period, and Gananoque having to wait until the dying minutes of the game before scoring their second tally of the night.

Hespeler shapshooters were H. Vines, D. Dyer and R. Dopter.

N. McCarney and R. Anderson scored for Gananoque.

The game almost wound up in a battle royal when J. Dutch of Hespeler and T. Fair of Gananoque were handed five minute majors for trading punches. They continued fighting in the penalty box and 10-minute misconduct penalties were added.

Lineups:

Gananoque—Goal, McDonald; defence, McCarney, Compeau; centre, Fair; wings, Hudson, Atkins; Subs: Anderson, Jackson, Woods, Brown, Keyes, Hastie.

Hespeler—Goal, Hillis; defence, Dutch, Prior; centre, Dopter; wings, N. Dyer, D. Dyer; Subs: Okrafka, R. Schulz, D. Schultz, Vines, Folliott, Carroll, Stoddart, Douglas.

Officials—S. Smith and H. Baird, Stratford.

TITLEHOLDER

Leonard Poulin, 23, lumberman of St. Godefroy in Quebec's Bonaventure County, does a championship turn on a log. Poulin, an employee of the Quebec North Shore Paper Company, won the Canadian Sportsmen's Title at the Montreal Sportsmen's Exhibition when he averaged 8.5 seconds apiece in 12 cuts of a 10-inch green spruce log with an ordinary bucksaw. His victory gave him supremacy over 50,000 loggers in New Brunswick, Ontario and Quebec.—(CP Photo.)

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By VIC MORRIS Jr.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, March 26 — (CP) — Benny Jack, the Georgia cracker who's boy who spun boxing turnstiles gates to the tune of a million and half dollars in 18 fights in a "broke" man. His bank book shows a balance of $576.46.

It's a common story in the shoddy and tragic history of the fight game where scores of fighters wind up broke after a career of heavy purses.

Beau's share of the fabulous gates was more than a quarter million dollars.

Chick Wergeles, the Beau's manager, claims that the fighter was swindled by people he thought were his friends.

The welterweight battler does not drink or smoke, but women helped his fortune to dwindle quickly.

Beau is on the comeback trail. He has his sights trained on a little chicken farm in Northern New York State which he'll buy just as soon as he gets the money.

But the fighter will never return to his native Georgia where most of his ring money disappeared.

"We know he lost it there," said Wergeles, "We know about the cheques he signed that were supposed to be for $400. Beau understood the figure "s" alright, but those extra zeros turned out to be cheques, for $4,000. That's why he is bitter about Georgia and will never go back there."

Beau doesn't intend to take action against his swindlers. He says that he doesn't believe in law and such things the white folks control.

"God will punish 'em—that's good enough for me," he says.

The Beau was on the short end of a unanimous decision here Monday night when he lost his first fight to Montreal's Johnny Greco in a 10-rounder.

The fight, one of the best here since the Beau gained a verdict over Greco last April, proved that the Georgia cutie is still in demand. A crowd of 10,394 contributed a gross gate of $38,425. Beau's share of the purse was reported to be about $3,000 which should go a long way towards the purchase of that chicken farm.

A Bouquet

It's seldom that a hockey referee ever is on the receiving end of a compliment, but Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara goes all out to give National Hockey League referee Bill Chadwick a rare pat on the back for his handling of the Montreal - Detroit playoff game here Saturday night.

This is it (believe it or not): "Chadwick handled the game in flawless style. He was at his impartial best."

IN CRITICAL CONDITION

San Jose, Calif., March 30 — (AP)— Billy Cornwall, 25-year-old lightweight boxer from Los Angeles and Des Moines, knocked out Tuesday night, was unconscious and in critical condition today.

Cornwall, who weighs 138 pounds, was tagged with a straight right to the chin by Tote Martinez, also 138, of Stockton Calif., in the ninth round of their scheduled 10 round bout.

Dropped by the blow, Cornwall struck his head on the mat with a thud which was heard throughout the auditorium. He was rushed to hospital here where he failed to revive and was pronounced in critical condition from brain concussion.

APPROVES EQUALITY

Toronto, March 29 — (CP) — The York Township Board of Education Monday night approved an equal salary schedule for both men and women teachers. Teachers will receive a minimum of $1,800 a year and a maximum of $4,000.

Groceteria Wins Mercantile Title By 5-3 Score

Sam Domenico's Empire Groceteria team, flashing brilliant second and third period hockey defeated the Flats Boys squad 5-3 in Memorial Arena last night in a sudden death battle to win the championship of the City Mercantile League.

Flats Boys knocked off the Quinte Paint crew in the semi-finals, but were not quite good enough to take the Grocers into camp last night.

The "Boys" however started off at championship pace racking home two goals in the first period from Bush and Andre Roy. The Grocers, however, raced back into the picture in the second period Hatfield scoring their first goal and Barrett tying the score. Flats failed to dent the twine in this period.

Grocers maintained their fast pace in the third period and held the opposition scoreless while shoving home three goals to win the game and the title. Doyle, Gilbert and Bullied were the Grocer snipers.

The Teams

Empire Groceteria: Goal, Bellis; defence, Christie, Bullied; centre Doyle; wings, Barrett, Hatfield; subs, Morrell, Gilbert, Martin, Armstrong, Norton.

Flats Boys: Goal, Cook; defence Garvin, Hull; centre Young; wings, Andre Roy, Mouse Bush; subs, Walsh, Barrett, Donovan.

Referees, George Graham, Doug Bone.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Brenda was looking at the large basket of roses Phillip had sent. Had Karen hurt him? Only a man who cared could be hurt. A woman lacked the power to hurt a man who cared nothing for her. Her own poise was shaken, her thoughts confused. The Phillip who stood in the doorway and watched dressing room and said, "I'm going to New York tonight," was not the worldly, sophisticated Phillip Ashley she knew.

"I've made such a mess of everything with my temper and my pride and my love," Karen said.

"And your youth and your innocence."

Karen's eyes were softer. "He's going to be married. I know that. He can't belong to me — can't ever belong to me."

Then Brenda took her shoulders and said, "Look at me and listen to me. Wait until I finish. It was Phillip who had Tommy introduce you to Tapper! The first part you had in a play was yours before you went to Tapper's office! Tommy felt mean about taking the credit. And when the play failed and Phillip went to Phillip in England about it, Phillip got me out of bed with a call from England and said you were to be in his play! He said to didn't care how it was managed but that it had to be managed. Do you remember my telling you that the girl whose place you took had decided to follow a young newspaper man he chose and marry him? That's true. She stepped out of the part with a large check from Phillip that made it possible for her to go to China! So you see..."

All the time Phillip had helped her! She seemed to freeze. And she had said such beastly things to him! Her head swam.

Brenda said, "He didn't want to take the credit for you! Lilyan would misunderstand his interest in you. Then, too, you didn't think you like him. He thinks you dislike him keenly. That's — that's almost comical when you love him so terribly, Karen, so hopelessly."

"But I thought this had gone on long enough. I thought you should know that he has been behind every step you've taken. I told you. It would make you ashamed. But you weren't for you to know? He was indifferent and though he wasn't under any obligation to help you, any one would, I think, seeing how earnest you were in your ambition. So don't blame yourself. Phillip is really to blame."

"But I'll never be able to look him in the face again! Why did he go back? Because of what I said to him? If he'd stayed, at least I could tell him I'm sorry and..."

"Why did he go back? I'd like to know the answer to that, too." She tilted Karen's chin and made her look at her again. "You're an actress. You wanted to be sure now you are. Do you remember my telling you that you had dedicated your life to the public? I've played happy parts when I've felt that my heart was going to break. And tomorrow night you have got to put the same feelings in your part as you put in it tonight and every night for months to come. That's being an actress! Change your dress now. I think Craig is waiting." She gave a thought to Craig, waiting. He had waited so long and patiently...

Mechanically Karen changed into street clothes and went to the hotel with Brenda and Craig. Phillip had helped her! Now there was another question:: Why? Why had he helped her?

That night was restless with scary dreams in which Phillip and footlights and hands applauding were idiotically connected. Toward morning she woke and lay until Brenda came in, lay quietly, just thinking. She would see him in New York and tell him she was sorry and thank him for what he had done for her.

Looking at the new white ceiling in the hotel room, she thought, "Success isn't important. To a man perhaps, but not to a girl in love. Being plain Mrs. Like Roseanne is the only important thing —making your world a man, one man. I've fought and worked and cried for this little success but I'd give it up, for Phillip and never think about it again."

Weeks later she was to look back upon that week in Baltimore as the most trying period of her life relieved only by Brenda's kindness. Weeks later she was to wonder how she endured it. Even while on the stage the thought came, "Phillip is going to be married on Wednesday." Her struggles and sore hurt triumphed because small before that bare and brutal truth.

A letter from Cora Hillman with a page from a Harriston newspaper reached Karen at her hotel in Baltimore. She had to smile at the photograph taken while she was in high school. Was she that girl? That girl knew nothing. But she had dreams in her eyes. How long ago that seemed! Cora wrote, "Am I swaggering! You're the pride of the town and the talk of the bridge clubs! Home town girl makes good. They are saying, 'I always knew she would.' But I still say you can have it and I'll keep my job of keeping the home fires burning and trying out new recipes and getting Ted's slippers for him before he comes home at night. Don't let it change you, Karen. I don't think it will. And don't forget Harriston and us. Speaking of us, there will be three next year. Whose dislikes of him had caused him to set a midnight train out of Baltimore and to spend one of the most miserable weeks of his life while preparations for his wedding were completed at last.

He glanced at Lilyan. His wife on Wednesday, his perfect, lovely wife. He could find no fault with her. She would be an exquisite bride and people would say, "You've always been lucky, Phillip."

Feelings such as he had never had swept over him before. Looking at Karen in the red skiing outfit, he thought, "Why didn't I kiss you when I could because now I shall never kiss you? Why didn't I kiss you that night in my car when we were riding out to Tommy's? Your eyes didn't hate me that night! We were closer than we have ever been that night. For a moment in the flame of my cigarette lighter you almost loved me. But I put the light out. I put the light out!

At the conclusion of the second act, Lilyan turned to him.

"Why, Karen Mallare is wonderful, Philip! It's almost unbelievable that she's as inexperienced as you say she is. Some girls are born to be actresses. You should write a play just for her."

"That's an idea but she isn't ready for it." Write a play for Karen..."

Gwen Kane laughed. "She's what I call a really beautiful brunette! I don't know whether I should congratulate you on discovering Karen Mallare, Philip."

Phillip said, "Thank Brenda. She's coached Karen every minute. She's playing down her role to let Karen shine."

Lilyan looked at him with a frown. So he called the young actress by her first name. Now she remembered he had called her by her first name the night at Helene Ward's. Then they had known each other before he had come to England...

Craig said nothing during the entire three acts. Phillip looked at him several times. He was staring at the stage, frowning deeply, seemingly unconscious of everything except the play. Having attended innumerable plays with him over a period of years, Phillip had never seen him so absorbed. But it was almost more than absorption. Craig's face was not strong, steady physician, seemed emotionally disturbed.

Should he go to Karen again? He should. But did he dare go? Did he trust himself? He had to. He had to see her again for the last time before—Wednesday.

"Do you mind waiting a few minutes?" he asked Lilyan. "There's some one I've got to see. I won't be long." He glanced at Craig. "Are you and Brenda going to the Webb party?"

"I'm not sure," Craig said. "Perhaps. If we do, we'll see you there."

Again at the door of Karen's dressing room he was afraid. Phillip Ashley, the successful playwright, afraid of a small slim girl with black hair and clear blue eyes!

He knocked. "It's Phillip, Karen. May I come in?"

Wearing the white lace dress, she was standing in the dressing room surrounded by flowers when he asked to come in. Flowers from Tommy and Marion, from Bill and Roxanne. Bill and Roxanne should not have sent such expensive ones, she thought. Flowers from Jerry Forbes and Mary Catherine. Had Mary Catherine suggested them? Flowers from Craig and Phillip...

She had to have a minute before she saw him, a minute of preparation to pull her excited mouth into a smile.

"Come in."

He smiled as he came forward and stood very tall above her. Again he could find no words because he loved her and because telling her he loved her were the only words he wanted to say.

But Karen said, "Phillip, Brenda told me that it was you who helped me from the start. I didn't know. I've been so ashamed for what I said in Baltimore. The flowers you sent were lovely." The loveliest flowers were his. Keep them fresh and fragrant. But they would be dead on Wednesday. Flowers for Lilyan would be fresh and fragrant on Wednesday, her wedding day...

"That's why secrets are never any good and usually get you into trouble," he said.

FIVE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH NEAR LONDON

BELGIAN UNDERGROUND HERO A FREE MAN AGAIN

Arthur Mathys, Belgian underground hero who risked his life at the hands of the Nazis many times during the war, is a free man today after a Toronto court refused to order his deportation to face a charge of killing a Nazi collaborator in Belgium. Shown with his wife and daughter, Illona, three, Mathys is no longer under $10,000 bail in which he has been held for many months. He has been in Canada since 1947. The family intend to continue their home near Tillsonburg. The Belgian government charged that he was one of five members of the Belgian resistance movement who in 1944 forced Armand De-Vos, reported Nazi collaborator, into a car, took him to a cemetery not far from Brussels, and there killed him.—Central Press Canadian.

NEWFOUNDLAND FOLK CANADIANS ON THE MORROW

Issue of Confederation Not Yet Settled

St. John's, Nfld., March 31 — (CP) — For 325,000 Newfoundlanders the day has arrived. They will be Canadians at the stroke of midnight.

Newfoundlanders voted for Confederation by a narrow margin last June. They thereby called for an end to commission government which has ruled this island since it tripped over the financial hurdles of the depression in 1934.

But the issue of Confederation still is not settled and probably won't be for many years. Many Newfoundlanders — fiercely independent by nature — strongly resent being "taken over" by the Canadian colossus.

Apart from official celebration ceremonies Friday, there is no comment or speculation on how the event will be marked here. There are far-flung rumors, however, of wholesale wearing of black ties, mournful songs in drinking places and even a mock-burial of an effigy representing Newfoundland's independence.

Economics, politics and religion always have held a sinister and deadly meaning for the people of this island.

Blood Riot

When the House of Assembly was opened in May, 1861, it marked the beginning of a bloody riot on the streets of St. John's in which three men were shot to death and several others — including a Catholic priest — wounded. This resulted after an election-count disagreement.

There were the unemployment riots of 1932-33, when 10,000 starving Conservative Newfoundlanders as a body threatened "murder in our hearts." These ended with appointment of a commission government after the investigations of a royal commission.

Commission government will meet its last session in May — merely to approve the minutes of previous meetings — to end its 13-year service. Governor Sir Gordon Macdonald returned to England some weeks ago and was replaced by Sir Edward Emerson.

Prime Minister Attlee will be present the post of lieutenant-governor to the new province. He will be sworn in at a brief ceremony Friday at 11.5 p.m. Newfoundland time.

Hon. Colin Gibson, Secretary of State for Canada, will represent Canadian certificate of citizenship to Sir Albert J. Walsh, to receive it on behalf of people of Newfoundland. Walsh will be the only official ceremony in connection with Confederation here.

Old Sword Used In Futile Effort To Smash Safe

Toronto, March 31. (CP)—Safecrackers used heavy, old fashioned weapon in their unsuccessful attempt to smash open a safe in a Toronto downtown costume company office. They escaped with $2 from a cash register. The swords were natives of the firm's stock.

Surgery Can Relieve Low Back Pain When Caused by 'Ruptured Disks'

Washington, March 31. (AP) —Watch out for those interesting "ruptured disks"—and that doesn't mean disks of the flying-saucer variety.

Intervertebral disks are rings of hard cartilage that act as shock absorbers between the vertebrae — the segments of your backbone.

If one of these disks is ruptured, pressure on the nerve roots of the spinal cord results. "Ruptured disks" are one of the commonest causes of low-back pain" and sciatica.

Dr. William Jason Mixter of Boston, is one of the pioneers who put the surgical finger on them and developed an operative technique which now is bringing relief to thousands of people each year.

At a section meeting of the American College of Surgeons here, Mixter gave a down-to-earth description of these disks and what happens when they get out of place.

"The intervertebral disk," he said, "is a ring of hard cartilage which contains a centre of softer material.

"As the ring is broken, material from the ring itself and from the soft centre flows into the spinal canal, compressing the nerve roots.

"This process is roughly comparable to the escape of air from a blow-out tire. The disk ceases to act as a firm cushion and becomes a hazard. . . .

Low back pain and stiffness of the back are the first signs of trouble. Later, there usually is an interference with straight-leg raising, and muscular weakness follows.

If surgery is indicated, the surgeon removes the torn fragments of cartilage, thus relieving pressure on the nerve roots.

Britain to Lend Russia $36,000,000 to Buy Non-Military Supplies

London, March 31. (AP)—Britain disclosed today it is planning to lend Russia £9,000,000 ($36,000,000) so that Russia can buy non-military supplies from Britain in the next 12 months.

The disclosure came in budget estimates presented to the House of Commons.

The advance to Russia, the estimates said, was for "non-military supplies under wartime arrangements for which final contracts are being concluded."

A Treasury spokesman said he believed the Russian advance is connected with the 1941 agreement with Russia for non-military supplies.

The Russian figure was listed in the budget estimates under the general heading of "supply, food and miscellaneous services."

The Ministry of Supply, which procures armaments and directs atomic energy development, submitted a budget of £324,679,000, compared with £317,000,000 the previous year.

The new budget shows an increase of almost £10,000,000 for research and development over the previous year.

Aircraft and aircraft supplies were slightly lower, but the budget for armament and vehicles was almost £19,000,000 higher.

Treasury officials said the advance to Russia was extended under a 1941 credit agreement.

Warns Night Sittings May Be Needed to Speed Inquiry

Commissioner Mr. Justice Mackay warned at the morning session that the Royal Commission investigation would sit at night if the type of questioning persisted in by Constable Keays was to continue.

Keays repeatedly had resorted to a type of questioning which if answered would have required the witness, Staff Inspector Carscallen, to incriminate himself. The objection was raised by Commission Counsel C. P. Hope and was upheld by Commissioner Mackay.

"I would only be too happy to have a witness make deductions and thus avoid the responsibility, but I may not and must not permit it," stated Mr. Justice Mackay.

"I have restrained you from interrupting but if this type of questioning continues I am going to sit at night. There must be a finish to this inquiry some time."

The inference was made when Keays asked Staff Inspector Moore if he knew when alleged alterations in a certain document had been made at police headquarters in Toronto.

Const. Keays had claimed a report in a certain file of Const. Woods case had been altered between the time it was received at headquarters and its introduction as an exhibit at the investigation.

Moore Returns to Stand

Staff Inspector Arthur Moore of the Ontario Provincial Police returned to the witness stand for cross examination by Const. J. E. Keays regarding his investigation carried by him and Inspector Cpl. Sam Erwin had perjured himself in the witness box.

Yesterday the two officers engaged in a heated exchange of words as evidence was taken at the Royal Commission investigation before Mr. Justice Frank Mackay.

Almost immediately on his return to the witness box today the Staff Inspector was asked to read aloud their spirited battle, the report officer repeatedly denying Keays' accusations that he had not made a thorough investigation of the charges against Cpl Erwine in the Lefroy Woods' matter.

He also failed to agree with Keays' suggestion that he had been remiss in his duty when he had failed to ask for Keays' dismissal after the latter had perjury charge was not established.

Reference was made by Const. Keays to a weekly report purported to be written by Moore, the signature of which had been denied by that officer.

Keays suggested the report had been typed to "confuse the issue" and that it was not the same report which had been examined by the Staff Inspector during his investigation of the perjury charge against Erwine.

WARNS NIGHT—Page 3

WOMAN PLUNGES TO DEATH

Hamilton, March 31 — (CP) — Crowds Wednesday watched the fatal seven-storey plunge of attractive, 35-year-old Lena Williamson, from an office in the Canadian Bank of Commerce building in downtown Hamilton. Police said the woman leaped to her death from the office of the Industrial Accident Prevention Assurance Company. She had been in poor health.

U.S. Air Force Plane Plunges In Farm Pond

Edgar Springs, Mo., March 31 — (AP) — A United States Air Force transport plane crashed into a farm pond here during a storm last night.

Five persons were reported aboard the craft but highway patrolmen at the scene have found no bodies or survivors.

A spokesman at Scott airbase, Ill., originally said he understood five Americans were aboard the craft, but later decided the statement rather talking to Patterson Field authorities. Fields, director of Wright Field, O., said he had not been told not to give out any information regarding the subject of documents aboard."

Eleven Boys Appear In Juvenile Court

Brampton, March 31 — (CP) — Eleven boys ranging from 10 to 15 years Wednesday appeared in juvenile court here on charges of stealing 19,000 Canadian pen rubber tubes from a freight car at Malton.

Some of the accused received one year's suspended sentence. Others were fined and paid costs.

Railway Investigator E. Cousins, K.C., Crown Counsel, told the court the tubes were found in the accused boys' apartment in the Malton apartment housing units. The tubes were valued at $300.

Machine-Gun Fire Prevents Ship Docking

Hong Kong, March 31 (AP) — Machine gun fire from shore today prevented a British ship from docking at Canton, Chinese Nationalist city of Tientsin, although the master had local permission to enter the port.

A ship's officer notified the owners of the incident in a radiogram—the gunners being unware that the vessel had been granted to dock the vessel.

WILL CORRECT GRANTS

Toronto, March 31 — (CP) — Education Minister Porter said today an amendment will be introduced in the legislature shortly to correct legislation governing high school grants.

Mr. Porter said present legislation provides that library boards "shall pay at least 50 cents per capita" from municipal tax payments. It was the intention of the government, Mr. Porter said in an interview, the amendment will provide that the amount may be "up to 50 cents per capita." If they desire, boards may spend this amount they must seek approval of the municipal council.

FORMER GERMAN CHEMIST DEAD

Buenos Aires, March 21 — (AP) — Dr. Friedrich Bergius, 63 world famous German scientist and winner of the Nobel Prize for chemistry in 1931, died here Wednesday. His Nobel Prize was awarded for discovering a process to produce gasoline from coal and sugar from wood.

MEMBERS WANT "O CANADA" AS NATIONAL ANTHEM

Discussion Ends Without Motion Put to Vote

Ottawa, March 31 — (CP) — A proposal that "O Canada" be adopted as this country's National Anthem stirred the Commons to lively debate Thursday, but found divided support.

It developed from a motion by Phileas Cote (L-Matapedia-Matane), author of a similar debate-provoking resolution last year calling for a distinctive flag, as the Chairman left the chair resulting to a study of private members' proposals.

The three-hour discussion ended without the resolution coming to a vote and it promptly fell to the bottom of a list of 40 other private members' bills little likelihood of revival this session.

Mr. Cote, noting that the French and English versions of "O Canada" be adopted as the National Anthem, said he believed the time had arrived for such a step and he was "ready to accept the suggestion without prejudice to God Save the King," which should remain as the "common denominator" of the Commonwealth.

Rene Beaudoin (L-Vaudreuil-Soulanges), expressing approval of a National Anthem, moved an amendment before the House that "God Save the King' is the anthem of all the nations of the Commonwealth" at the end of Mr. Cote's motion.

The ensuing debate found divided opinion within most parties, and finally one leader, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F., chieftain, coming out in support of the resolution. He felt it fitting that this country "find its own symbols of a developing nationhood.

$60,000 FIRE LOSS

Wingham, Ont., March 31 — A $60,000 fire early today destroyed the Wingham Manufacturing Co. plant in this Huron county town northwest of Stratford. Of unknown origin, the blaze broke out in the vicinity of the boiler room.

Drums of oil and paint exploded, feeding flames which reduced quickly through the three-storey brick structure. The plant was manufacturing toilet seats and only a small quantity of goods was saved.

"Fair and Right" Says Kennedy Of Controversial Charitable Gifts Act

Toronto, March 31 (CP)— Premier Kennedy said today in a statement that the controversial bill to regulate charitable foundations, now before the Ontario legislature, is "fair and right."

"This bill carries out in the most equitable manner, I think, the first duties of a government in a system such as ours," said the premier's statement. "If the government were unable to speak on the bill in the legislature, members of illness.

Second reading of the bill was delayed Wednesday night by a C.C.F. filibuster, with E. B. Jolliffe, opposition leader, adjourning the debate until later.

Premier Kennedy said he felt the bill " a long overdue."

"Succession duties or inheritance taxes are for the purpose of preventing the accumulation of great concentrations of wealth. Their use is recognized in all civilized countries.

"I am also right that there should be only one law for the rich and the poor, as long as my government holds office, this principle will be maintained.

"It is what the Charitable Gifts Act is intended to guarantee. It should end the scandal where legislation can prevent it, for rich men can, because they have the power of great cleverness, escape the law. There is nothing at all unusual about this piece of legislation; nothing unfair about it. It takes nothing from anyone. Legislation of this kind has had to be passed many times over the past years because rich men, in their ingenuity have found ways of avoiding payment of succession duties.

The Charitable Gifts Act makes certain that wealth willed to charity and most important of all, the same is not applies to rich and poor alike."

President of Dow Chemical Co., One Of Victims Killed

U.S. Private Plane Hits Hill, Burns, One Survivor

London, Ont., March 31 — (CP) — Five persons including Dr. Willard Henry Dow, 52-year-old president of the Dow Chemical Company of Midland, Mich., were killed today when a privately owned plane crashed and burned four miles from London airport as the pilot apparently sought haven from a sleet storm.

There was one survivor.

Other than Mrs. Dow, wife of the company president.

Mrs. Calvin Campbell, of Midland, whose husband escaped with minor injuries.

A. J. Bowie, the pilot, of Midland.

Co-pilot Fred Clements, mechanic of Midland.

Campbell crawled from the burning wreckage, and is in hospital here with ankle injuries.

The twin-engined Beechcraft was en route to Boston, Mass., where the Dow party was to hear Winston Churchill speak at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology tonight.

The plane left Midland about nine a.m. when it struck rain and had icing over western Ontario. An hour and a half later, it crashed in a farmer's field.

There was no indication that the plane was in trouble until moments before the crash when the control tower at London airport picked up unintelligible signals from the plane's radio.

Suffering from shock but able to be interviewed in hospital by provincial police, Campbell said the plane appeared to suddenly without warning of disaster.

"We knew the weather was bad," he said, "but there seemed to be no cause for alarm. My wife was sitting beside me. Suddenly the plane lurched and in a matter of seconds we struck something and bounced. In a matter of seconds we smashed into the ground.

Campbell said he did not lose consciousness. He saw flames sweep around the wreck and flick into the cabin. His legs were numb but he managed over and grabbed the unconscious form of his wife.

"I tried to drag her from the plane but the flames became so intense I lost my grip. I just managed to crawl out of the wreck before the cabin was a mass of fire."

One Eye-witness

The only eye-witness was believed to be Ernie Robinson, farmer. He related he was just entering his barn when he heard the roar of motors. He looked up in time to see the plane strike a high knoll.

"It bounced off, and flames streaked from the plane. It bellyflopped on a piece of flat ground a couple of hundred feet away. Flames were bursting all over the wreckage when I reached it. One man was crawling out and I helped him to his feet. The flames were so intense, however, that we could not get close enough to get out rescue any of the others."

Debris Still Smouldering

Early this afternoon, the debris was still smouldering and too hot to attempt to remove the bodies.

THREAT OF LONG FILIBUSTER ON BILL LIFTED

Jolliffe Attacks Charities Gifts Bill in 4½-Hour Speech

Toronto, March 31 — (CP) — With the threat of a long filibuster on a charities bill temporarily lifted, the Ontario Legislature today heads into an 11th - hour drive to complete consideration of departmental estimates.

Provincial Treasurer Leslie Frost said earlier this week he hoped the House would finish its study of the estimates by the end of the 1948-49 fiscal year. That fiscal year ends at midnight.

Estimates still to be considered are those for the Health Department, Lands and Planning and the Prime Minister's Department. The House was scheduled to start today's sitting at 2 p.m., instead of the usual 3 p. m., to take up bills and estimates.

The government indicated last week it expected the session, which started on Jan. 18, to end today or tomorrow; but with a large-size-ceiling bill and the charities measure still before the house, prospects now are that the session will extend well into next week.

The C. C. F. opposition, holding 21 seats in the 90-seat House, said last night started what was expected to be an all-night filibuster to delay second reading of the Progressive Conservative government's bill to regulate charitable foundations. Opposition leader E. B. Jolliffe attacked the bill for 4½ hours — with two hours out for dinner — but adjourned the debate at 11:50 p. m. at the suggestion of Mr. Frost.

Mentions Foundation

The bill provides that if a charitable fund or foundation has more than 10 per cent of the interest in any business, it must dispose of the remaining 90 per cent within three years. If the foundation converts the business into cash, it may invest the proceeds in investments authorized by law, but again is limited to investing in not more than 10 per cent of the capital stock of any company.

Dr. M. M. Fisher, Medical Health Officer at Gravenhurst, said he believed the epidemic had reached its peak and "I think we have it under control."

lited States until Easter, talking in that vein for agreements giving the treaty plenty of teeth to make it truly effective.

LETTERS STOLEN

A new branch of the light-fingered fraternity has come into being, advocating by police.

Charles Bedford, R. R. 3, Belleville, left his car outside the Bill Cook Cigar Store last evening while he went inside to make a purchase. On the seat of the car he left three letters, one stamped.

When he returned, the four unstamped letters had disappeared. A search of the car revealed nothing. The doors were closed, eliminating the theory that a gust of wind might have swept them into the street.

What persons would want with letters is a mystery unless they thought the envelopes might contain money.

Flock of Wild Geese Honks Way Northward

Swinging in precision-like manoeuvres into various formations, three flocks of wild geese honked their way northward over the city this morning.

Etched against a background of sullen sky, the geese formed a pretty picture as they veered from V-formations into columns-of-route or a straight line.

Flying at an approximate height of 1,000 feet, the raucous honking was distinctly audible to watchers on the ground.

As the geese, which numbered about 250, neared the northern outskirts of the city, they veered slightly westward. One flock took a sharp angle and the rear flock turning to the eastward while the centre flock kept a straight course bringing the whole flock in three separate flocks in V-formation.

Petty thieves were in action again last night in the city. Elwood Greer and Lawrence Walker, Belleville, reported to police that two brief cases were stolen from their car parked outside a Front Street restaurant last night.

New Telephone Directory Mailed

The new 1949 telephone directory is just coming through the mail to Belleville subscribers, G. W. Proctor, Bell Telephone manager here announced today. The buff-covered directory, which contains more than 9,750 new and changed listings, replaces the previous edition issued in March.

Delayed the old edition as soon as the new one arrives," is the advice of Mr. Proctor, "so people will not be keeping the outdated directory may lead to getting a wrong number by consulting it in error."

Extra manager also cautioned subscribers to look through the pages before throwing the old book away, pointing out that have been used as repositories for papers, money and love letters, and discarded directories have been found to obtain such items as bonds and even the deed to a house.

"Bring your private list of numbers up to date by checking it with the new directory," he said, but that keeping the old book is unnecessary. Lists of frequently-called numbers, on office desk-pads, in pocket notebooks, and on desk blotters, may be kept by the home telephone, may contain numbers that have been changed in the new directory.

The new edition is latter than the previous edition containing 128 pages in its alphabetical section as compared with 112 in the previous edition. It has new listings for Picton, Madoc, Marmora, Stirling, Trenton, Tweed and many other centres.

Issuing directories is a large-scale publishing operation, the manager said. Last year The Bell Telephone Company of Canada published one or more editions of 32 directories, containing 1,611,175,000 pages. If the 2,500 tons of paper used could be made into sheets, they would cover more than 500 acres of timberland.

Question Suspect After Young Girl Is Molested

A girl's shrill scream; a swift telephone call and police cruisers speeding into the night; knowledge about the apprehension last night of a Belleville minor whom police believe has been the source of complaints in the past of women being molested while alone abroad.

A fifteen-year-old girl was proceeding to her home near Moira and Coleman streets when she suddenly grasped from behind. A tall youngster placed his arms around her and kissed her. She struggled to free herself and screamed as she clutched a nearby verandah.

Householders hearing the screams rushed outside and one a lady, secured sufficient detail of the attacker who was running rapidly away, to give police a description.

A police cruiser raced to a stop a few minutes later and securing the description, found it fitted with that of the suspect. The minor was picked up a few minutes later.

Questioned, he stated that he thought the "red-headed girl" was his girl friend from a Western Ontario city.

The youngster was sent home in custody of his parents while police are conducting a rigid investigation into the affair.

The girl was none the worse for her experience outside of fright and some shock.

Justice Mackay Gives Talk on Shakespeare

The Men's Club of the Bridge Street United held a supper meeting last night and had as guest speaker, Mr. Justice Kellier Mackay.

Justice Mackay has been a Supreme Court judge for the past fourteen years and he is also a noted and keen student of English. He has used them in the works of Shakespeare and last night he gave an enlightening talk on "Reflections of Shakespeare's Works to the Bible".

Mr. Mackay showed how Shakespeare took passages from the Bible and put the words into the mouths of the characters in many of his immortal plays. Shakespeare took great joy in using the new words that were coming into England at that time from the Bible. Throughout his twenty-seven great plays Shakespeare took passages from the Bible and used them in such a great way that his plays will be remembered not for just an age but for all time.

Judge J. C. Anderson introduced the speaker. Mr. Ross David was chairman for the supper.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto March 21 (CP)—Prices backed down from Wednesday's gains on the Toronto Stock Exchange as small gains turned up over a wide list of issues. Industrials showed mild losses in dull action and base metals and western oils sagged. Golds were quiet in early dealings with a few issues attracting attention in mid-session.

Volume for the first three hours was 438,000 shares, about 37,000 shares less than yesterday's similar period.

Losses ranged from fractions to about a point in a wide list of industrials. Utilities weakened and papers and steels were slightly lower.

Base metals reacted mildly on small declines.

Some of yesterday's strong gains in western oils were cut into as losses ranging up to five cents appeared.

Queen's Alumni Organize Branch For Fund Drive

A large and enthusiastic group of graduates of Queen's University met in the Belleville Collegiate to organize an Alumni Branch for Belleville and District.

Dr. Wallace, principal of Queen's, outlined for the meeting the methods used in organizing other branches in Canada and the United States. Dr. Wallace, also, explained the forthcoming campaign for the building program and endowment funds for the university by means of which it is expected to have one million dollars available to complete the Students' Union and to enlarge the girls' residence at Ban Righ hall. It will also build an administrative building which would relieve the Douglas Library of administration and allow it to be put to its full use as a library. At the same time a campaign will be carried on to increase the endowment by two million dollars. In this way it is hoped to supplement the revenue to such an extent that there will be no need to increase student fees.

Fees at Peak

Dr. Wallace thought that the students' fees could not be raised any more as they now cover about 46 per cent of the university expenses. It is hoped to raise $175,000 per year from the graduates and friends of the university by donation of a small yearly gift by as many as possible toward the cost of running Queen's.

At the conclusion of Dr. Wallace's address it was decided to organize a Queen's Alumni for Belleville and surrounding district and that further organization for the endowment campaign be left to the new executive.

The following officers were elected for 1949: president, A. S. Robb, of the Northern Electric Company; vice-president, J. K. Perkins, principal P.C.I., Picton and R. H. Maclean, B.P.E., South Hastings, Belleville; secretary-treasurer, Dr. Dick, Canada Cement Co., Belleville; executive committee, Mrs. W. Doyle, Dr. A. E. Mills, Allan McDougall and Alan Sprague. The out of town members are to be chosen by the executive.

After the election of the officers it was decided to hold at least two meetings a year and the meeting was adjourned after thanking Dr. Cronk and his committee who have done a great deal of work in getting the district branch started so successfully.

WARNS NIGHT

"I think that is a very dirty suggestion on your part," Staff Inspector Moss told Keays. "Sgt. Hartleib examined the report and said it was the same."

Again Mr. Hope interrupted stating that Counsel Keays use more restraint in his language.

The constables were requested that restraint be used by the officers during the trial as the time honored policy for the courts to "tread softly."

Such dignity of the court was the result of thousands of years of trial and error, he said.

"Yes Sir," replied Keays. "Keays is only trying in his own humble way to place the evidence before this court."

The inspector stated from a letter written by Inspector F. Airey of Niagara Falls to Police Commissioner W. H. Stringer with respect to the physical and mental condition of Const. Keays when he was transferred in January 1948.

Appeared in Distress

Inspector Airey had written that Const. Keays "was ghostly in appearance and appeared to be in distress."

The letter went on to say that Keays had "very little frugality, was dispirited and it was pitiful to see a man of his age so desperate."

The inspector in his letter had recommended that Keays be given a medical and that he be transferred back to Belleville where he would be near his family.

Reference was also made to Const. Keays' mental condition and to his idea that he must right a great wrong which had been done to him in Belleville.

Malcolm Robb, Counsel, asked Staff Inspector Moss if an officer incapable of sound conferences would be of any use as a police investigator.

"He would be dangerous to use as an investigator," was the reply.

Sergeant E. F. Hartleib, district Sergeant at Belleville O.P.P. headquarters since 1943, and police officer for 28 years took the stand.

Sgt. Hartleib said he had been offered $500 to use his influence to have Sgt. J. A. Stringer, of Odawa, transferred to Belleville, as district sergeant.

Morale Had "Deteriorated"

The witness stated he had known Const. Keays since he had been transferred to Belleville and added the morale of officers had deteriorated because of "jealousy". He named Cpl. Smith, Cpl. Irvine and Const. Driscoll in particular.

He admitted that it was "fairly general knowledge" that department cars at provincial police headquarters in Belleville were used for work outside the department. This had been true in the case of District Inspector Fong, and such other departmental cars for family driving, he admitted.

The witness was referred to the Woods' case and stated it had been "hushed up" by his action a few days after the accident.

He said that on November 19, Keays had known him accident reports before they had been submitted to the mail. There had been an exchange on reports and the word "unknown" typed in where the condition of the car driven should be shown. On two duplicate reports it was stated the word "unknown" had been typed in over the word "normal".

Constable J. E. Keays created an "unpleasant atmosphere" in the Belleville Provincial Police Headquarters due to his arrogance and being over-zealous as an investigator.

This was stated by Col. B. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney for Hastings County, as he testified on the witness stand before the Royal Commission investigating Constable Keays. Const. Keays of misbehavior on the part of the crown attorney and police officers.

Col. Donnan's reference to Keays came on the question of C. P. Hope, commission counsel, as to what the witness had meant when he had stated he had a reason for recommending Keays to the C.I.B.

"I always considered Keays an outstanding investigator although he was over-zealous," returned Mr. Donnan. "However, due to his arrogance he created an unpleasant atmosphere."

Ability as Investigator

Mr. Donnan admitted Keays had ability as an investigator and photographer. He had fingerprint experience. Once he was bi-lingual. He had felt that with this combination Keays might well fit in with the C.I.B. where he could work without supervision.

"There was also the possibility of the latest idea in my mind that this district would be better off without Keays," stated Mr. Donnan.

Heated remarks and sly insinuations flew back and forth between the fiery Keays-Irvine-Keays and Staff Inspector Arthur Moss, a veteran of nearly 37 years in the R.C.M.P. and in the Provincial Police.

Inspector Moss stated he had been contacted by Police Commissioner W. H. Stringer to investigate a complaint by Keays that Cpl. Irvine had committed perjury in connection with the Leroy Woods case. He said he had visited Keays at Niagara Falls and had come to Belleville to interview other officers associated in the investigation but could find nothing to support the charge of perjury.

He had, however, found a difference between Cpl. Irvine's diary and the weekly report sheet. This was in reference to Keays' claim that Cpl. Irvine had falsified his diary in an effort to show that certain guard rail posts at Keay Corners had been broken before the Woods accident.

Comment on Keays

"Keays is of peculiar mind," stated the staff inspector. "He sees things and then jumps to conclusions and will go to any length to support his opinion."

Under cross examination by Keays, the staff inspector was persistently questioned about reports in connection with the Woods investigation. So persistent in fact was Keays that tempers commenced to flare.

"Don't try to trick me with your questions," the staff inspector at one time warned Keays.

"Then why did it wouldn't be hard, but I'm not going to try," was Keays' rejoinder.

"What wouldn't be hard?" asked the inspector.

The inquiry went unobserved by Keays as he pressed his attack from a different angle.

At another time Keays asked if the staff inspector had not been amazed at the terms used by Const. Purdy in his report of the Woods accident. He claimed that an unexperienced officer could not have made out the report but suggested he must have had assistance.

"No," was the reply. "I was not amazed, I did think the report was very good but my mind is not duly suspicious — except where certain people are concerned."

During one particular phase of the afternoon's proceedings the investigation took on a new atmosphere as Malcolm Robb, counsel for police officers, Const. Keays and Commission Counsel C. P. Hope, closely examined the information charging LeRoy Woods with dangerous driving.

Typing of Date of Information

Keays claimed the date of the Information had been altered with Nov. 6 being typed over Nov. 8 to show that Woods had been charged with dangerous driving of the day after he had been charged with drunk driving. He said both charges were laid on Nov. 8th.

On the other hand Malcolm Robb suggested the six was imprinted over a 4 — the date on which the accident occurred. This he passed off as a mistake on the part of the person typing the information who had confused the date the charge had been laid with the date of the accident.

Counsel examined the information with magnifying glasses in an effort to establish their various points of view but Commissioner Mackay seemed unimpressed.

"If anything of importance hinges," he observed "expert evidence will be secured."

Keays had claimed that all the available evidence in the Woods case had not been presented before Magistrate T. Y. Willis when the case had been tried.

Commissioner Mackay pointed out to the officer that he must restrict his cross-examination to evidence pertaining to the drunk driving charge against Woods.

Mr. Justice Mackay stated the constable would have to show that the crown attorney had suppressed evidence that might have resulted in Woods conviction on the drunk driving charge.

He ruled that there had been "ample evidence" to obtain a conviction on the dangerous driving and it did not matter whether all of it was introduced because a conviction had been registered on the charge.

NEWFOUNDLAND IN CONFEDERATION

Thursday March 31st., 1949, is a day to be marked in history for at 11.59 p.m. Canada becomes a nation of ten provinces instead of nine hitherto, by the decision of the people of Newfoundland to throw in their national lot with the people of the Dominion and become the tenth province of this nation. This union was from the earliest days inevitable and only time was required to see full fruition under British freedom with province after province entering Confederation.

It seems a far-off time to the day of July 1st., 1867, when Upper Canada ,(Ontario), Lower Canada (Quebec), Nova Scotia and New Brunswick entered Confederation and formed the Dominion of Canada. Three years later came in the first Prairie Province, Manitoba, then came the Pacific Province of British Columbia in 1871 and Prince Edward Island in 1873. Out of the Northwest Territories grew Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Newfoundland for 452 years has carried on her way as a British Colony, the oldest in the Empire and Commonwealth. That period of time has developed and matured her brave people and now they become citizens of Canada and the northern part of this Continent is united in a confederacy whose strength grows with the years. Canada and Newfoundland have made great strides during all the years they have been apart. Now that they are one, a future of mutual benefit and of progress together is assured.

Confederation is a word and a symbol of the highest form of modern democracy and on this occasion the people of the other nine provinces of the Dominion greet with their warmest welcome the Newfoundland people into Canada. The harmony which has existed between the Canadian provinces is a token of the spirit which will exist as Newfoundland enters Confederation. The experience of this day of the coming out of the Confederation is one that inspires Canadians, the new and the old, with the feelings of gratitude to the course of destiny which has brought them together into union. Canada which has already made her way among the nations of the world and Newfoundland which has the spirit of freedom in her blood and history now together as one face the future rich with its obligations, its blessings and its opportunities for this nation, for the Commonwealth and for the world.

The sense of pride in British institutions which Canadians and Newfoundlanders feel at this time are appreciated by the peoples of all the old provinces and the newcomer to their midst. They feel the sense of destiny in the event of this day when after four and a half centuries there is one land from the outposts of the Atlantic to the far-away Pacific.

No union in history could have given greater reason for gratitude than the culmination of the steps taken towards Confederation. A brave and rugged people like those of the province of Newfoundland have held their place for centuries and will hold their individuality and place under union. They will take their place in the life of Canada with the same spirit they have shown in their island history. Their history is a happy augury for the generations ahead.

The ten confederated provinces possess the spirit of freedom and democracy and look to the future with confidence. Canada as a growing country will be the greater for having Newfoundland's people as partners in the experience of this coming generation.

This is a time of rejoicing over union and a time of high hopes and confidence. The greater Canada feels the worthy place in the world that the two, Canada and Newfoundland, have filled under the kindly influence of Britain, the Mother of Democracy, whose sway has been benign and an example for all history to admire and follow. Both groups of the greater Canada, now one, cannot but express their deep sense of gratitude to Britain, for the guidance she has given her former colonies on their way to nationhood. She has been the finest example in history of a mother of free nations and friend of powers struggling towards the light of liberty. On Canada and on Newfoundland her friendly light has shone. For them she has given her best in blood, in talents and in service. Kindly and powerful and shedding her benign light of freedom on mankind she stands the paragon of history. She will ever be the guide and partner of the Commonwealth Nations which cannot fail to express in action the lessons in freedom which she has taught.

DOG WISDOM

I saw him pass the women by,
And never stop to wag his tail,
Or for a romp with them to try,
As if he knew such tricks would fail,
A little dog, who sought a friend
On whom for love he could depend

He must have heard some woman say:
"I want no dog about the place!"
Or have been sternly sent away.

By someone with a frowning face,
Indifferently he passed me by,
Seeking a younger friend than I.

And then he saw a boy draw near—
A sturdy lad of nine or ten.
His every action made it clear
He'd found what he was seeking then.
No longer friendless need he roam.
Together, boy and dog went home.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE JOY BEHIND IT ALL

A new era of life opened up after that day in a little Michigan town when we stood out on Main Street and watched the first "horseless carriage" pass by. It was apparently looked upon only sporadically. Yet it was the harbinger of the machine age — of all manner of gadgets and creations in mass production.

The wagon maker no longer put love into his wheels, for there were no more wheels needed. Except those made by machinery. And no more scented harness shops, for the automobile was soon to chase old Dobbin off his head. And now the woman is only an occasional visitor. But we still search for those products of the hand and heart that are stamped by themselves into. Antiques were never so expensive!

It was the joy behind all sorts of things that made our ancestors happy. Drudgery has been robbed — but something of the joy has been lost, too. Even the rural hand-looms, so beautiful and so picturesque, have been replaced by machinery — without love. Only the museums are being enriched!

The most precious books in my library are those that have been set by hand, bound by hand, and scented with the love and devotion of lovers of beauty. Just to handle one of them is to feel warmth in one's heart. You cannot make human happiness with a machine! The tiller of the soil, it seems to me, comes nearest to gaining this, though he is being cheated out of much of it by the turn of wheels.

Even the writer has his left eye (and often both of them) on a mounting picture contract before he has even written his first line. What are the names of writers if any—slated for immortality? My book shelves harbor many a volume whose author died neglected and unsung. But not the first joy in the planting the struggle and love of his soul into each page. That was his solitary joy.

Go into a great gallery of art and look upon the masterpieces of the Old World. What color, what magic you will see, there in a single stroke of the brush or mixture of paint that did not come from the joy-heart of the one who wrought. That is the secret of immortality.

Churchill Will Speak Over Air From Boston

Boston, March 31 — (AP) — Winston Churchill is expected to tell the world on the night when he sees for man in this war-marred century.

The 74-year-old statesman, who spurred battling Britain with his call to "blood, sweat, and tears," will speak on the 20th century's promise and its realization."

He is to keep his appointment with the urgency that surrounded his "iron curtain" speech at Fulton, Mo., March 5, 1946.

Then he lamented the lowering of an "iron curtain" across Europe, assailed Russian expansion, and called for the fraternal association of the British Commonwealth and the United States.

Tonight in his immediate audience of 13,000 at Boston Garden will be some of the ablest thinkers of the land — statesmen, lawmen, educators, scientists and publicists.

They are gathered for a three day mid-century survey initiated by Massachusetts Institute of Technology on the "social implications of scientific progress."

Over much of the world, the words of Churchill will be cautiously weighed for signs to one of the largest audiences ever to hear him speak.

The former prime minister will be in Boston until Friday midnight.

To Get First Degree

A convocation will bring him to Boston Garden again tomorrow. Receiving slightly from its custom of never conferring honorary degrees, M. I. T. will make Churchill the exception.

The first this noted scientific school has ever made.

Main speaker Friday night will be Harold E. Stassen, new president of the University of Pennsylvania. He fills the spot on the program for which President Truman had originally been invited. The president accepted, then cancelled the engagement because of the press of official business.

In the convocation's discussion panels tomorrow, top thinkers from the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, India, Brazil and Mexico will survey the accomplishments and prospects of humanity in the atomic age.

Their talks will scale the range of modern problems—from world production to world peace.

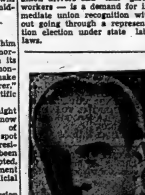
Strong-Arm Men Will be Used To Break Strike

New York, March 31 (AP) — Importation of union strong-arm men was charged today as owners of New York City's biggest taxicab fleets declared they will run as many cabs as possible despite an impending strike.

A union linked to John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers repeated its cry that "not a wheel will roll" when 45b a.m. EST tomorrow in the city's $100,000,000-a-year taxi industry.

Union members have been ordered to "wipe all cabs off the street."



Two thousand policemen were being ready to step in if there is violence.

Jack J. Jackman, spokesman for large group of independent owner-drivers, charged the union had brought in men from southern mining towns.

Leoni Zwicker, director of the taxi union, denied that the men brought in are "goons" — strong-arm men.

Zwicker said 100 U. M. W. organizers "from all over" are in the city helping the taxi union. "If there are any goons," he said, "they will be the operators' goons."

Principal issue in the strike — voted Tuesday by more than 9,000 union drivers and taxi garage workers — is demand for immediate union recognition without going through a representation election under state labor laws.

Mackenzie's Column: Twelve Countries Ready to Sign Atlantic Pact

By DeWITT MACKENZIE,
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The Foreign Ministers of 11 countries are assembling in Washington to join State Secretary Dean Acheson in signing history's most notable alliance of its kind — the Atlantic Defence Pact.

The broad significance of this momentous treaty is summed up by Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgian Foreign Minister and Foreign Minister, when he says:

"I'm convinced that since the end of the war the organization of the United Nations, the Atlantic Pact is the world's most important step toward collective security."

12th Man In

Iceland, tiny in size but of mighty importance strategically, voted Wednesday to join the alliance, making the 12th country to subscribe. The others are Canada, Britain, France, The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Italy, Portugal and the United States.

One of the most interesting adherents is Portugal, which is stuck into the side of Spain like a plum in a Christmas pudding. Obviously Dr. Salazar is eager to enlist the alliance problem without reference to Madrid would be quite trying to keep on terms with you elbow.

Portugal initiated conversations with Spain and diplomatic pourers in Madrid are quoted as saying that the Iberian state may invite Lisbon to join the alliance.

Here it seems that these sources said the Spanish view was that Spain indirectly was linked to the Atlantic Alliance through agreements with Portugal.

Spain's attitude is a very important development. For, like it or not, if there should be another big war the Atlantic Alliance would need the adherence of Spain.

Hostility Eases

By the way, it will be worth while to keep an eye out for a possible change in the attitude of western powers toward Spain. Just Monday gatherings of statesmen in Washington will be a colorful affair. Among the most striking personalities will be Britain's Ernest Bevin and Italy's Count Sforza.

Both these men are fighters.

Bevin, after his own fashion, has been working for the aims professed by all the countries represented among the treaty signatories — the general welfare of mankind, for which peace is essential.

Everybody Wants To Go to Israel

New York, March 31. (AP)— Everybody wants to go to Israel. At least, that's the way it seems to a small, hard-pressed visa staff at the Israeli consulate.

Travel restrictions were lifted after the Arab-Israeli truce was signed. Since then, people have flocked by the hundreds to Israeli consulates offices for travel permits.

From last June 1 to December 31 only 800 visa applications were filed here. More than 1,300 were received during January and February alone. The consulate waiting room gets more crowded every day.

Not many applicants are emigrants. Most are Americans bent on a sentimental pilgrimage to the new Jewish state. Many are business men on survey trips with capital to invest in Israeli enterprises.

Principal obstacles to increased travel to Palestine are inadequate ship transportation and hotel facilities. All April 1 ships have been booked up until the end of May it is understood, however, that travelers still can find accommodations in private homes.

Young Page Boys In Legislature Get $4 Per Day

(By The Canadian Press)

Ever wonder about the working lives of those neat-looking youngsters scurrying about the provincial Legislature?

The legislators couldn't get along without them. When a member needs anything a page boy is there to get it. It's all despatch and no delay. It's a hungry and speed public business.

Take the page boy system used in the Ontario House the other night about allegedly bad conditions in the city jail.

It was a young man who "went to the can" for the edification of the boys — 22-year-old Reid Scott, C. C. F. member for Toronto Riverdale and the youngest member of the Legislature. He contended that the fifty-four rooms used as a page boy's lunch room was a veritable "Fagin's den in Oliver Twist." Other members raised questions of pay and working conditions generally.

Life Not Too Strenuous

But Dana Porter, Minister of Education whose departmental estimates were under opposition fire at the time, thought the boys' life in legislative halls wasn't too strenuous and that they were quite reasonably well. He went on to give more facts and figures:

The boys are from Queen's Legislature — eight of them — are from 11 to 13 years. They receive $4 a day for a normal work day from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Six days a week when the legislature is under way, four of the boys work those considerably more extra hours — from 6 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. They have to be well advanced in their school work before they're hired.

That requirement also goes for the substitutes. Each time someone plays high school boys who take morning classes and receive instruction in the afternoon. The substitutes are lured into the page boy ranks by members during lulls in the session. Otherwise they are kept pretty busy.

Two boys sit beside the Speaker's throne in the Assembly Chamber. They receive $100 for each session which averages eight sessions a year. They get a blazer and a complete outfit of clothes — blue serge suit, white shirt, collars and shoes. They work from 3 to 6 p. m. and from 8 to 10 p.m.

British Columbia goes in for regimental groupings. The nine boys at Victoria, all in grade VIII or higher, are divided into a sergeant at $15 a week; a corporal at $12.50 and "privates" at $10. They work a six-hour day and receive a 20-per-cent cost-of-living bonus.

Similar working conditions and pay scales were reported from other provinces. All reports agreed: the boys like it.

HEIGH-HO, THE MENOPAUSE

Reader F. T. want to know all about the menopause, as she is nearly 40 years of age and the doctor told her it has begun.

Sumph. That's nothing. Reader M. M. started reading this column away back when Noah was a pup, upon the advice of her Great Aunt who is lively and healthy at 83 and attributes much of it to the international speech she pounds out in this column (with one finger at present) when the greens are too wet to bowl.

I'm afraid Great Aunt just didn't teach Mary the facts of life—or maybe M. M. whom we call Mary here because I like the name, was educated in some school or college where great stents prefer the Pinkerton-mouse type of instructor for refined young ladies. It irks me to note that reader M. M. has never missed Great Aunt with a pat on the back, gets rigth down to business.

Is it possible, the girl asks, to go through the menopause at 36? Anything is possible, although no one as yet has discovered a mouse's nest in a cat's ear. Mary goes on to air her views of the "terrible effects and changes of life," notions which are as wrong as they are numerous. She only actually mentions that she is subject to pretty severe headaches, but I'll bet my eyes the doctor told her the menopause has begun. Give us further description of her complaint, if any, or of herself, that we can find out that she is approaching forty. That is a sad thing to contemplate, for nothing is really unhappy about it when I was approaching forty — and still in debt; even more so when I was approaching fifty-seven and still in debt; and an unfavorable fight of time, and more in debt.

It is regrettable that a doctor should tell a patient that the menopause is already here, for only the doctor makes certain the patient understands clearly that the menopause (cessation of ovulation, menstruation and the capacity to conceive) is a physiological, natural, normal occurrence and not a pathological one. It is a temporary time of life. Women in the fourth or fifth decade are not necessarily ill. There are no more subject to "nervous," mental or psychological disturbances than are middle-aged men. As for general, constitutional or organic diseases. The Other mentioned bodily statistics show that sex is a minor factor—in fact it is rather healthier and safer to be a woman, for women outlive men by an average of four or five years.

Oh, yes, on written request, if you provide stamped self ad- Dlfle Co.) dressed envelope, I'll send you a pamphlet on The Menopause. You'll be disappointed with it if you expect sympathy with the old female weakness theme.

Lest some casual reader, or some more or less embroiled authority to whose attention this piece may be brought (the only way prominent authorities find out what I say here), undertake to enlighten me about the so-called change of life, let me say that I have in my files a copy, reprint or abstract of virtually everything that has been published in the United States in the past twenty years on the, don't laugh, girls, theory serious about it, change of life in men. Perhaps it would be less embarrassing to state here than to tell you personally that to my mind the alleged change of life in men is a bunk.

The fact that the menopause is a physiological, natural, normal occurrence is attested by the experience of a substantial minority of men and the majority of American women of the twentieth century.

One woman of eight suffers more or less from hot flashes, "nervous" spells, headaches and/or insomnia during and after the menopause. The best prevention and relief for most of these complaints, I infer from my reading, is to eat a daily ration of calcium and vitamin D as described in the menopause pamphlet. Also this is harmless to try for a month or two, and many people it has brought much relief.

All I am sure about hormones for any complaint associated with the menopause is that at best and worst they are not a cure-all. Hormone (endocrine, glandular) treatment is sometimes, many times a very satisfactory experiment but more often without any permanent effect.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Vicarious Training

Kindly advise whether steam baths and rub downs are helpful in reducing the abdomen.
(C. J.)

Answer—I don't know "what difference there may be between an ordinary person and a nervous wreck, but I suspect that it might be grateful for any light you can throw on the subject in not to exceed two hundred words. As for baths—the individual may have some kind of bath or she needs or enjoys. Rub down is another matter. I used to be a bicycle in training, but it is silly for ordinary folk to go to get exercise vicariously, I think.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Distinguished and famous men ought to be obliged to dress the part. In the olden days it was difficult for a man to make a fool of himself, because he was forced to wore the dress of their rank and station. Nowadays, you can't tell a millionaire from a union organizer. And the consequence, you can make some funny mistakes.

The French, who have a fine sense of humor, have exploited this situation; so they award their intellectuals the Legion of Honor; and in their button holes you can't tell the doctor from the sete of that order. You know you are talking to somebody, but you don't know who.

In Britain, there is a fairly safe rule to follow, which is—if he looks like somebody, he is sure to be nobody. But is the rule verse true?

Across the table from me sits what corresponds to the dining car in England, sat a mild, meek Englishman who, after being intently out of the window for a while, turned to his companion, and said:

"Jolly fine day."

"Yes," said the other, "it is a fine day. He knew I was a Canadien or American by my speech when I spoke to him, and I suppose that his curiosity got the better of his English reserve. He was sorry I was not English, because he had been in America when he was a young man, and when he took I had on the table beside me a copy of "Time" magazine. "How Miscellany!" This turned our conversation to literature; and I discovered that this Englishman had been no literature in England, and was a publisher. He seemed interested, I figured that this might be a very good possibly a war plant executive on his way to a London conference, or even a reference in literature. So I entertained him for an hour with a brilliant discourse on English literature. He took little part. He just listened.

Three men met him in the London station, and greeted him later, a plug hat, fitted his hat as my friend passed.

"Who was he?" I asked.

"Mr. John Masefield, the poet laureate," said the station master.

ANOTHER SIDE TO THE PICTURE

The happy days of youth! But are they happy? There are certain aspects of youth so pleasant and so deep in their delights that they can never be equalled in later years.

But there is another side to the life of youth which adults sometimes know, which young people generally ill at ease, restless, unsure of themselves. They are sensitive beyond description. Probably a majority of them feel that older or more experienced people are peering at them, criticizing them, pulling them to pieces in their minds. Then there are disappointments in romance; tensions inconceivable to middle-aged persons, defeats, frustrations. Also, and this is the most important of all to remember — there are certain periods of such overwhelming character that after a lapse of many or thirty years, father and mother tend to forget some of the experiences they endured and the fire through which they frequently had to pass.

Do not envy youth; instead try to understand youth. The boys and girls of this generation are probably having a harder time than any other generation in many centuries. They are not to blame for their privileges are many; what they need is understanding and love.

Girls Enjoy Pictures of Former Camp

Last night, at the Y.M.C.A., the campers of the 1949 Bridge Lake Girls Camp got together for a very enjoyable reunion. The special feature of the program was the showing of movies for the '48, '49 and '50 seasons, when the campers had an opportunity to see themselves again and relive their happy summer experiences at the "Y" Camp. The girls participating in the program gave much evidence of a lusty camp spirit, as they put all their enthusiasm into singing the camp songs, and talked of getting together again this Summer, when the "Y" Camp opens.

Drummond McDonald, program secretary, announced that plans are materializing for the engaging of another excellent staff this summer.

A special treat for the campers was a free swim in the Y pool just before the program opened. The evening's program was concluded with the serving of light refreshments, "Uncle Alec Gordon" showed the camp films.

ST. ANDREW'S WOMEN'S GUILD

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Guild was held on Tuesday evening with Mrs. W. M. Barlow presiding. Before proceeding with the usual business routine, two minutes silence was observed in remembrance of the late Mrs. A. Cunningham, who was a faithful member of the Guild, and was the mother of the treasurer, Miss J. Cunningham.

The annual Spring tea was discussed and it was decided to hold the tea sometime in May. As is customary each year, invitations will be sent to the Hospital Auxiliary to be used for the purchase of comforts for indigent patients.

Mrs. W. Taylor introduced Miss P. Kane and Miss L. May, who favored with a group piano duets. The hearty applause which followed adequately expressed the appreciation of the Guild to these young ladies for their delightful musical contribution.

Miss H. McGeary introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Wakefield, administrator of the local hospital, who gave an address on hospital maintenance and explained very explicitly, the tremendous cost involved in maintaining a hospital.

Salads All Year
Subject of Book
Just Off Press

"Salads all the year 'round," is the title of the useful little booklet prepared by the Women's Institute Branch of Home Economics Service of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The book is available free of charge from the Women's Institute Branch, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

"Objective of 'Salads all the year round' is to prove to you and your family that salads are full of zip and may begin...accompany...end...or make a meal," says a brief foreword. "Serve good salads in all seasons."

It is pointed out that raw vegetables supply many more vitamins and minerals than cooked ones. Food value..in many fruits and vegetables decreases over long storage periods. So that fruits and vegetables harvested in the fall have less to offer at this season of the year. If raw vegetables are eaten in salads instead of cooked, the users are actually giving themselves a spring tonic.

There are lists of hot and cold salads. Details on how to make various types of salad dressings as well as an important list of "Points in salad making." A complete list of seasonings, planned to "enliven" the flavor of salads is also included along with measurements and their equivalent. Twenty-eight types of salad are included with full information as to ingredients and method of preparation.

On the last page of the booklet is an informative list of "Foods for Health." These are taken from "Canada's Food Rules" approved by the Canadian Council on Nutrition.

Potatoes Round the Clock

The homely potato has had its ups and downs from being the food which saved a nation in famine to being in outcast in an era of diet fadditis. In spite of all these occurrences the potato still remains as the most popular vegetable in the average household.

Potatoes are plentiful again this year. As well as using them as the standard dish, vegetable they may be used in various ways for the three meals and even appear in the evening as candy. Potatoes are cheaper to eat and more feasible but the home economists of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, recommended several recipes, using potatoes as a base, which are delicious. Potato pancakes are quickly made for breakfast. Potatoes with cheese merengue are a nice variation for dinner, especially if the meat is cold. This dish might also be served as a main dish for luncheon or supper. Potato omelet is another that might be used at either meal.

Potato Pancakes

1 1-2 cups grated raw potatoes
2 egg yolks
1 tablespoon flour
1-8 teaspoon baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 egg whites

Peel and grate potatoes, add to well-beaten egg yolks. Add flour baking powder and salt, sifted together. Add grated lemon rind and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased griddle and cook until brown. Turn and brown other side. Yield: 12-16 pancakes.

Potatoes with Cheese Meringue

1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1-4 teaspoon mace
1-4 cup top milk
3 cups hot riced potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon onion syrup
1-2 cup grated cheese
2 egg whites beaten until stiff but not dry

Combine the egg yolks, salt, pepper, mace and milk and mix well. Add the potatoes and the butter and beat until the mixture is light and fluffy. Place in a casserole, add the corn syrup and grated cheese to the egg whites. Mix lightly and pile on top of the potato in the casserole. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., for 15 minutes or until piping hot and the meringue nicely browned. Yield: six servings.

Potato Omelet

1 cup mashed potatoes
1-4 cup milk
4 egg yolks
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
4 egg whites

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's unhappy, but courageous

One of the most pathetic letters I have received for a long time comes from a young wife in her late twenties. She was married about seven years ago, while she and the man who became her husband were both in war services. One week before their first baby was born, her husband was sent overseas and was away just over a year.

A few weeks after his return home he confessed to his wife that he had been unfaithful to her while he was away. Because she was truly in love with him, and because she was an intelligent and mature person, she tried to understand, and decided, as she says, "to forgive and forget."

Since then, however, this young husband has apparently made no attempt to overcome a tendency which seems to be inherited from his father to be captivated by every pretty girl he meets.

"All innocent fun, I know," the unhappy wife writes, "but I worshipped him so, and each time reminded me of that other terrible hurt and made me feel twice as bad."

Now, for a very long time, he has shown her no affection whatever, and when they went on a "belated honeymoon," she says, it might as well have honeymooned with my brother. I began to get confused, and shaken, but was too embarrassed to approach him on the subject." Finally, a crisis was precipitated when another women entered the picture. Driven to desperation she asked her husband directly whether he had lost all love for her and he said he did not know. He admitted, however, that he had no interest in his home and his children, of which there were now two. His feeling toward them seemed to be: only that they were a tremendous responsibility, and nothing more.

A separation followed, but a few weeks later the husband told his wife he missed his family and was unhappy, and she let him come back. They have now been together again for a few months, but there is no change in the basic situation.

"I have kept my temper completely in rein," she says. "I have treated my husband like a king. I have laughed and kidded when my heart was breaking. Really I have been a good wife and mother, and a good housekeeper. My husband says I have done nothing, so what have I got to fight? I want so desperately to make our marriage work. We have everything in our home but love and I guess my husband can't give that if he doesn't have it.

But he's turning me into a nasty, suspicious nurse and I can't seem to help myself. Sometimes I almost hate him because he has torn my world all to pieces, and for no apparent reason.

"We really can't afford to separate. We can't afford a psychiatrist, which I think we both need. Who can I go to? What can I do to pick up the pieces before it's too late? I'm so lonely I'm falling apart."

One of the great difficulties here is, as she explains elsewhere in her letter, that her husband is completely unresponsive when she tries to talk the situation over with him. Apparently, he has been consistently kind, but his kindness is that of a polite stranger who keeps her at a distance, so that she gets nowhere in her attempts to have them work out a solution together. As she says, if the problem is to be solved she must do it alone.

Because this girl is intelligent, reasonable and sincerely eager to work her problem out rather than abandon it, I believe that she will eventually be able somehow to master the situation. It may not come about in the way she most wishes, that is, a complete understand with her husband and renewed happiness with him. But if that does not happen, I think she will be able to achieve an attitude of mind which will make it easier to bear the whole thing.

First, she needs help in determining what her attitude should be toward her husband. I think she is right in believing that this sort of help can best come from a psychiatrist and if she can afford to consult one of her own choice, she can still get this kind of help through a social welfare organization. If she would care to write me a personal letter and give me a name and address to which I could send a reply, I would be glad to tell her where to go to make such a contact.

The second most important thing for her to do is to find an outlet for her repressed emotion in her children, in interests outside her home, and in her friends. But this, of course, I do not mean to talk to her friends about her troubles. Being the kind of girl she is, she is not likely to do this anyhow. But just to spend an afternoon with a good friend every so often does help, whatever one's trouble may be, and the more such occasions she can take advantage of, the better it will be.

I would like to give this courageous young wife some further help if she will let me. I hope I will hear from her again.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Beautician stresses circulation

Operators in beauty shops are careful not to tread on the toes of the medical profession. But when woman come to them for a course of facial treatments they inquire about their health habits, knowing that a fine, colorful, healthy skin is dependent upon a nutritious diet, fresh air, exercise and circulation.

She must pump plenty of fresh air into her lungs.

What sort of rating has your circulatory system, my friend? Are you a healthy lassie with pink cheeks of your own making, sparkling eyes, lovely crimson lips? If so, that's grand. You are a girl alive. There's no need of your wading further into this sermon that is directed to lazy sisters whose only exercise consists of lifting an eyebrow now and then.

Let us consider the poor girl whose feet are cold, hands moist and complexion pale. A dismal three-some. This girl should have a conference with the family Doc. She is suffering from sub-standard health. Let her feel fairly well, get through the day's business, but she must possibly find life tasteful and that is what it should be.

She must pump plenty of fresh air into her lungs, start the blood streams circling. Start up that appetite, put roses in her cheeks.

No woman should be a shallow breather. Most of the children breathe more normally than do women. It used to be said that the cause was tight lacing. Tight lacing but that is not the explanation when she tries to talk the situation over with him. Apparently, he has been consistently kind, but his kindness is that of a polite stranger who keeps her at a distance, so that she gets nowhere in her attempts to have them work out a solution together. As she says, if the problem is to be solved she must do it alone.

Because this girl is intelligent, reasonable and sincerely eager to work her problem out rather than abandon it, I believe that she will eventually be able somehow to master the situation. It may not come about in the way she most wishes, that is, a complete understand with her husband and renewed happiness with him. GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECHMAN

Bride's mother, groom's mother, and their hats

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

At my daughter's formal church wedding, a morning wedding, the groom's mother and I are wearing formal-length, dresses, dinner-type, with hat and accessories to match. After the ceremony, at one o'clock, there is to be a wedding luncheon, and at the same place, a reception is to be given, from four to eight o'clock. Should we (the mothers) wear our hats at the luncheon and the reception, or should we take them off at any time either before or after the luncheon? Several friends have told me that a woman should not wear a hat with a formal dress, at a luncheon.

E. D.

For these three occasions you and the groom's mother are wearing the perfect type of costume; and since I am sure your hats are of the small type appropriate with your dinner-type dresses, they complete the ensemble, and should be worn during the luncheon and during the reception. (I am taking for granted that your words "at the same place" mean that the luncheon and reception are to take place in a hotel suite or club. If the luncheon and reception are at your house, you, the hostess, may not wear your hat, or you may wear it if you consider it an important feature of your costume, which is usually the case.) And incidentally you and the groom's mother should wear gloves as you receive at the reception.).

Serving Water

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

According to the best service are water goblets filled before or after the guests come into the dining-room?

Dorothy L.

According to strictly formal service, water is not poured until the guests are seated at the dining-room table. But with today's informal and practical service, the water glasses are usually filled before the guests come into the dining-room.

Plans for a simple wedding

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

(1) Our wedding party is to consist of my sister and her fiance. Is this proper for a church wedding? (2) May my sister and I wear long gowns? (3) For this type of wedding is it proper for my father to give me in marriage? (4) After the ceremony there is to be no reception. Just a dinner for the wedding party. If it is proper for my sister and me to wear gowns at the wedding, do we change them before we go to dinner?

T. H.

(1) Yes, for a small, informal church wedding. (2) Yes, if the gowns are of simple design, and if all wedding arrangements are keyed to this simplicity. (3) Yes, if you wish. This depends on the bride's wish, . . . not on the type of wedding. (4) No.

No place cards at places of hostess or host

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I was told yesterday that it is not proper form to have place cards at the places of the hostess or host. True or false?

Edna R.

True . . . there usually are no place cards at the places of the hostess and host.

When to serve celery, olives

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I have never followed the idea of serving celery and olives when we have guests to dinner or Sunday luncheon . . . but I think most people do like to have celery and olives, and I'd like to begin to serve them. If soup is the first course, are the celery and olives served after the soup?

G. W.

Celery and olives are served with the soup course . . . not after it.

Fashion Flashes

A RETURN ENGAGEMENT is planned for the dainty camisole, for wear underneath those filmy, filmsy blouses of lattice and nylon sheer.

WATCH OUT for the simple, straight-hanging slip of a dress, creeping into the newest collections. Red, white and blue striped surah is used for part of a dress, the stripes horizontal on the square yoke alone, the waist marked by a tailored belt of the fabric.

NEAT LITTLE numbers are best for suit hats. Natural burrl straw is used for a becoming hat, round of crown, with the low slanted side of the crown softly pleated. The brim is bound in navy blue felt which also makes the crown band and a thick tassel.

MOST POPULAR fur in the moderate-price bracket for the indispensable little Spring fur garment is processed lamb, which we known as American broadtail. The fur, dyed Mediterranean blue, is used for a good cape-jacket of 30-inch length. It has a false sleeve which is so made that it looks just as well whether the arm is thrust through the slit opening, or left hanging free.

PERFECT DRESSING for a scoop-necked, simple, black or navy silk afternoon frock is a cap made entirely of overlapping pale pink nylon petals. It is worn with a little matching muff bag.

Combination For Spring

Jackets worn with narrow skirt

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

A CASUAL JACKET of loose cut and a coatie dress straight and narrow skirt add up to a nice casual outfit that should see plenty of wear. The coat would go nicely with other things. It has a simple little collar, and the sleeves are cut in one with the coat. The skirt has a built-up waistline topped by a black leather belt. The fabric is light weight burnt orange wool, a shade that is winning increasing favor. The black jersey blouse has a high neck and short set-in sleeves.

Future Leadership in British Labor Party Hinges on Nationalization

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 31 (CP)— If Herbert Morrison, deputy prime minister, persuades his party the way of moderation is right he may be able to drop the "deputy" within a few years.

If he fails, hard-hitting Health Minister Aneurin Bevan may become leader of a new labor government pledged to aggressive nationalization and similar ventures.

If Morrison and Bevan cancel each other out, then Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is expected to be Prime Minister Attlee's successor.

Thus runs the new burst of speculation about Labor party leadership — constant subject of discussion in Whitehall.

The one certainty in such discussion is that Attlee, chosen as a compromise leader in the middle of labor divisions in the '30s, can continue as long as he wants. The wiry former social worker who never made an exciting speech in his life has led the Labor government through anxious years and made his own place secure in doing it.

The measure of Attlee's achievement is the anxiety of his party to have him lead it through the next general election, expected in 1960. This he expects to do, but after a recent bout of illness many predict he will resign soon afterwards, whether or not his party is successful in winning re-election.

The biggest "if" is whether Labor will be returned to office but its leaders work on the assumption it will, perhaps with a reduced majority.

Election preparations and the drafting of an election program put Morrison into the limelight. He is Labor's top election expert and has proved many times his shrewd assessment of what British voters want.

Morrison, above all, wants Labor to go slow on further nationalization. He thinks a new program of nationalization would bring disaster by alienating the middle class vote.

Bevan takes the opposite view. He would nationalize further for the sake of an integrated socialist state.

Court Sequel To Peace Rally, Nine Go to Trial

Montreal, March 30 (CP) — A "peace" rally that turned into a bloody rout had its aftermath in court today when 11 persons appeared on charges laid after more than 100 city, provincial and Royal Canadian Mounted Police broke up a street meeting.

The rally, sponsored by the Labor-Progressive party, saw the arrest on central St. Lawrence Blvd. of officials of the party, including Gil Caron, youthful Quebec leader. Four went to hospital with minor injuries after nightstick-swinging police squads dispersed a crowd estimated from 500 to 1,000.

In Recorder's Court today nine, charged with disturbing the peace and holding a meeting in a public place, had their originally-paid bail of $100 reduced to $50 and were ordered to stand trial next Wednesday.

One other charged with failing to move on when ordered by police, was also ordered to trial next Wednesday and his bail reduced from $100 to $25.

The 11th man arrested, identified as Dr. Jacques Ferron, 28, said he is not a Communist and is due to enter a sanatorium as a tuberculosis patient. He was given suspended sentence.

Blast Ice Field To Find Body

Sudbury, Ont., March 31 (CP)—Provincial police and civilian volunteers continued to search for the body of a man who leaped from a bridge Tuesday into the icy waters of the Vevure River at Hagar, 23 miles west of here.

Supply of Wiltshire Sides Will be Short

Toronto, March 30 (CP)— Hog producers will not be able to meet demands of the United Kingdom this year, it was indicated Tuesday at a meeting here of the Ontario Hog Producers Association. "The output for the balance of this season will not be sufficient to meet domestic requirements and enable us to fill the U.K. contract of 150,000,000 pounds of Wiltshire sides," said Walter W. McInnis, association president.

PIN TAKEN FROM THROAT

Toronto, March 31 (CP)—A safety pin lodged in his throat, nine-months-old Peter Wright was rushed to hospital here from his home in Kitchener. Provincial police escorted the child to the outskirts of the city where they were met by Toronto city police. The baby was taken to hospital within a few minutes and underwent an operation for removal of the pin.

PICTON Wants Quality Bonus On Hogs Restored

Toronto, March 30 (CP)— Plea for restoration of the quality bonus on hogs previously paid by the province and federal governments was made Tuesday by F. W. McGinnis of Iroquois, president of the Ontario Hog Producers Association. Mr. McGinnis told the association's annual convention that dwindling hog production was responsible partly for the bonus. It was estimated the bonus withdrawal would cost Ontario hog producers between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

TOUGH EXPERIENCE

Beaver Falls, Pa., March 31 (AP)—Louis Andrella, blind Canadian war veteran, was wounded 30 times in action but he said it was nothing compared to what he went through Tuesday. Opposes Japanese Civil Air Lines

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — The Australian government will oppose vigorously any move to re-establish Japanese civil air lines, a government spokesman announced at Canberra.

The spokesman was commenting on a suggestion that the United States might ignore the Far Eastern Commission and authorize the Japanese government to re-start their air lines.

He referred to the manner in which the Germans had hoodwinked the Allies with her flying training schools and built up the Luftwaffe.

"Without the strictest safeguards it would not be difficult for Japan to convert her civil air lines to military use once the occupation forces withdrew," he added.

RECORD ERUPTION

The two-day eruption of the volcano Krakatoa, Netherlands Indies, 1883, was so violent that actual sounds of the explosion were heard 3,000 miles away.

Weird Case Says Judge

Seattle, Wash., March 30 (AP) —A man who crawled through a basement window of the Sacred Heart Convent and clambered into bed with the institution's 56-year-old housekeeper drew a two-year deferment of sentence Tuesday. Royal G. Berry, 23, married and father of one child, heard Court Judge Malcolm Douglas describe the case as "weird, almost like a droll tale from Balzac." A Nun shooed him out of the Convent and police picked him up 20 minutes later.

No Change Made In Labor Code Says Minister

Toronto, March 31, (CP)—Labor Minister Charles Daley told a deputation from the Ontario Federation of Labor today there will be no change in the province's labor code.

The deputation, which waited on Mr. Daley and Provincial Treasurer Frost—the only two cabinet ministers to show after Tuesday night's marathon session in the House—protested against the code which is patterned after that of the Dominion's. While the conference was closed to the press, Cleve Kidd secretary-treasurer of the Federation, said after the meeting that Mr. Daley had declined to make any changes.

Pyrafaxed ovens 450°F. Use a 9-inch pie pan and only standard level measurements. Sift 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour and ½ tsp. salt in a bowl. Measure 1½ cups sifted flour with pastry blender or 2 knives until particles are size of small peas. Sprinkle cold water, a little at a time, over different parts of flour mixture, tossing lightly with a fork after. Use as little water as possible—just enough to make dough hold together (3 tbsp. or less). Place dough on waxed paper. Press gently with the paper into a ball. Let stand at room temperature for a few minutes.

Top: Cover board with pastry cloth and rolling pin with stocking cover. Rub lightly floured. Roll dough in circle, ⅛" thick. Use lifting strokes, work from center out. Lift rolling pin as it nears edge. Invert pie pan on dough. Cut dough 1¼" beyond edge of pan. Fold dough in half; lay fold in center of pie; unfold. Ease dough into pie pan, pressing gently against bottom and sides. Trim with fork in several places. To form standing rim, double under the pastry around the outer edge of pan. Flute with fingers. Cut 10 leaves from remaining crust. Bake until light brown, allowing 12 to 15 minutes for pie; about 25 minutes for tarts.

LEMON FILLING

Soak 2 tsps. unflavoured gelatin in ¼ cup cold water about 5 min. Put 3 egg yolks, beaten egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup lemon juice, ½ tsp. salt in a double boiler. Cook over boiling water until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Add gelatin, stir until dissolved. Add 1 tbsp. grated lemon rind, remove from heat, chill until partly congealing to set. Beat 3 egg whites until fairly stiff; gradually add ½ cup sugar, beating constantly. Fold into custard gelatin mix. Pour into cooled pie shell; chill till set. Trim with prepared cream, pastry leaves, leaves or other fruit, and the pastry leaves sprinkled with green-colored sugar.

Digestible — nutritious too!

Quebec Farmers Compete For Distinctive Prize

Quebec, March 31 (CP)—As soon as the saltness of a handful of earth tells that frost has left it, more than 100 Quebec farmers on their properties will start a season of model cultivation.

Their eyes will be on a 90-year-old prize referred to by rural wags as the Quebec farmer's legion of honor but carrying great distinction.

The complete farms will be run on a clockwork schedule through a season commemorating the foundation in 1889 of the Quebec Order of Agricultural Merit.

Next autumn when crops are in, the farmer judged to have done the best job with a property of 60 acres or more will be brought to Quebec for a hand-shake from Premier Duplessis. Back-slapping by agricultural department men and the gold medal of the order with the title of commander.

This year's contest will be conducted in a district stretching across northern Quebec from Ahuhti, long the St. Lawrence River's north shore through Charlevoix and Chicoutimi districts, and across the river to cover Gaspe and the remote Magdalen Islands.

The northern region takes its turn with four others through which the agricultural merit competition is rotated from year to year.

Northern farmers will have before them the high mark of 926 of a possible 1,000 points achieved in 1948 by Pierre Couture, commander of the Order of Agricultural Merit from St. Augustin De Portneuf, whose gold medal was hung around his neck in a ceremony at Quebec provincial exhibition Sept. 8.

Everything about a farm from condition of buildings and fences to use of fertilizers and crop rotation counts when judges in mid-summer drop in on the competitors and start poking around.

Trapped Man Rescued After 5 Days in Car

Newport, Vt., March 31 (AP)—Death cast a speculative eye at a freight train rattling out of the Chelsea, Mass., railroad yards last Friday.

Locked inside a sealed steel freight car bound for northern Quebec—was a screaming man.

Clifford Malcolm McLeod, 46, of Chelsea, he entered the car for shelter and had fallen asleep. He awoke to find the car dark, the doors locked.

Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday the train rattled on its way. McLeod was too weak now to hammer on the door.

Late Tuesday afternoon the train stopped at a siding. And then, for the first time in five days, voices.

McLeod screamed. The door opened. Strong arms lifted McLeod up, helped him out. He was at the Canadian border.

McLeod told his story today in hospital.

Newfoundland Day Will be Given Special Attention in Schools

By The Canadian Press

For all of little Johnny's school life he has been taught that Canada has nine provinces.

That island on the right-hand side of the map, coloured red just like the tremendously big part that had "Dominion of Canada" across it, was another country. It was Newfoundland."

It didn't make sense to Johnny. The Island was so close to the big country it should be all one. Besides, wasn't that bit of land at the top that had "Labrador" across it—which was supposed to be part of Newfoundland—touching our province?

Johnny will be more puzzled than ever Friday. For tonight, at 11:30 o'clock, "Newfoundland" really will become part of the "Dominion of Canada" after nearly 100 years.

To help Johnny understand, most Canadian schools tomorrow will hold special ceremonies explaining what is meant by the big word, "confederation." The long and colorful history of Newfoundland will be studied with fresh zest in the light of the fact that, at last, Newfoundland and Canada will be one.

Flags and bunting will fly in some cities and solemn speeches will be made by adults extolling the virtues of the races. But it's in the schools, a Canadian Press survey shows, that the provinces will place the emphasis on what March 31 means—culmination of the dream of the Fathers of Confederation who made Canada a Dominion in 1867.

Most provinces have issued special booklets on Newfoundland outlining its history, its topography, its natural resources. These will be distributed in the school children with teachers generally marking the day as "Newfoundland Day." Edmonton's children receive a special treat today; the school board proclaimed a holiday.

All little Johnny will need then will be a new "DOMINION OF CANADA" spelled out all the way across the big red map.

15-Gun Salutes To Mark Entry

Ottawa, March 31 — (CP) — Army and navy 15-gun salutes will boom out across Canada Friday marking the entry of Newfoundland into Confederation.

The new province will be welcomed officially by all these services on both coasts and in most provincial capitals.

The navy announced that all ships will fly signal flags April 1 from 9 a.m. local time to sunset.

Ships authorized to fire salutes will mark the occasion at 7 a.m. EST while naval divisions ashore across the country will honor the event by firing with matched flags.

In addition to taking part in tri-service proceedings at Ottawa, the army has authorized units in all provincial capitals, and Vancouver, to fire 15-gun salutes at noon local time April 1 if local arrangements permit.

In the case of the air force, it will be celebrating its 33th anniversary that day and it is planned to make special mention of Newfoundland's entry into the Dominion at gatherings and dinners

Translation of Bible Into Modern English Planned by Church Group

By NORMAN CLEVERDON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, March 31. (CP)—A new translation of the Bible into Modern English now is being made by a joint committee of the Protestant churches of Britain.

"It is not intended to displace or rival the authorized version," a member of the committee said, "nor will it be a revision of the revised version of 1884.

"We are attempting a totally new translation from the original languages. The committees are only at the beginning of their labors and there will be many years of drafting and criticism before any of the completed manuscripts are ready for printing."

Just recently 61-year-old Monsignor Ronald Knox, British writer and scholar, completed the first part of a new translation of the Old Testament made from the Vulgate Latin. In 1945 he published a translation of the New Testament. Both have been approved by Roman Catholic authority.

The translation now being planned by the joint committee of churches will be made by three panels of scholars. Their work will embrace the Old Testament, the Apocrypha and the New Testament.

"Old Testament translators are keeping informally in touch with American scholars now working on a revised standard version of the Old Testament," the committee spokesman said, "but each body will produce its own translation".

Representatives of the Church of England, the Methodist Church throughout Canada.

In Ottawa a combined R.C.A.F.-army guard of honor will be mounted in the shadow of the Peace Tower at noon Friday when Newfoundland will be welcomed by Governor-General Alexander, Prime Minister St. Laurent and other officials.

Gardiner Predicts Cheese Contract Will be Fulfilled

Spencerville, Ont., March 31—(CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner predicted Wednesday that Canada will fulfill her 1948-50 cheese contract with the United Kingdom, to the tune of 50,000,000 pounds.

He referred to the cheese contract at a nomination convention here which saw J. Frank Casselman, Chesterville farmer, selected to represent the Liberals in the Grenville-Dundas riding in the next federal election.

"One week ago I didn't believe we would be able to do it," said Mr. Gardiner. "But before coming to this meeting I was advised by one of my department officials that it looks as if the contract will be fulfilled."

There was a marked increase in cheese production, the minister said. Dairy farmers were turning more milk into cheese production and stocks of cheese had increased proportionately.

Suspended Humans Fracture Models

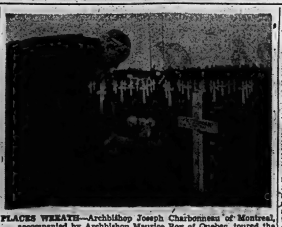
By NORMAN ALLSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, N.Y., (CP)—From the wooden beam of a Chinese courtyard gateway hangs a tale of international co-operation.

The story is told by one of the expert teams sent out by the World Health Organization to improve public health services in out-of-the-way spots. At the Chinese village, Dr. Leo Eloesser and nurse Ruth Ingram of the United States found 30 eager students, mostly male nurses from the 300 International Peace Hospital. But demonstration equipment was lacking.

That's where the gateway came in handy. Because of the dangers on mountain paths and local working conditions, Dr. Eloesser decided most surgery would be for treatment of fractures and injuries.

The students learned their lessons by "hanging each other up in improvised fracture apparatus suspended from the roof beams of the gateway," the doctor reported to United Nations headquarters.



"None of my hearers has the slightest theoretical foundation. None has done an anatomical dissection nor witnessed a physiological experiment. The course therefore has to be simple, elementary and almost entirely practical.

"I have demonstrated wound treatment on a small kid, secured with some difficulty; chest injuries and the effects of pneumothorax on a chicken; and have had students practise bowel suture and the repair of bowel injuries on a pig's intestine."

After a four month tour of duty in the mountainous region, Dr. Eloesser and Miss Ingram have returned to their hospital base.

ENTRY WILL COST $55,126,618 IN FIRST YEAR

Lieutenant - Governor Will be Paid $9,000 in Salary for Position

Ottawa, March 31 (CP)— Newfoundland's entry into confederation, only hours away, will necessitate federal expenditures of $55,126,618 on the island during the first year of union, Finance Minister Abbott told the Commons Wednesday.

The estimated expenditures, to cover the extension of all federal services to Newfoundland, were contained in special supplementary estimates tabled in the commons by Mr. Abbott. They will be called later for approval by parliament.

Most of the smallest items in the estimates was an amount of $9,000 to cover the salary of Sir Albert J. Walsh, the new province's first Lieutenant-Governor during the first fiscal year of union.

The Finance Department estimated it will spend $31,335,073. The amount includes $4,500,000 to cover the first instalment of a $42,170,000 National grant to be paid to Newfoundland during the first 12 years of union. A sum of $46,843,545 would cover payments to the Newfoundland government in lieu of rent for personal incomes, corporation and inheritance tax fields to the federal government.

The Health Department budgeted for $13,256,826. This included $6,600,000 to meet family allowances, payable from April 1. It includes $2,713,000 to meet the federal government's share of old-age pensions and $978,000 to provide for various health-service grants.

Extension of all pensions and benefits to Newfoundland veterans will cost the Veterans Department an estimated $4,589,555.

The Transport Department expects to spend $6,409,803 on marine, air, and telegraph and telephone services.

The Public Works Department set its estimate at $5,620,000, including $1,000,000 for maintenance and operation of Dominion public buildings and $1,000,000 for the construction, repair and improvement of harbors and rivers.

The Labor Department set aside $2,000,000 to make possible payments under the unemployment insurance act and the Fisheries Department provided for $1,945,835 to cover extension of its services.

BEVIN, ACHESON START SERIES OF MAJOR PARLEYS

Britain's Foreign Secretary in United States to Sign Atlantic Pact

Washington, March 31 (AP) — The western powers today began lining up their solid front as Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and State Secretary Acheson schduled the first of a series of major conferences.

While the main reason for Bevin's visit to the United States is the signing of the North Atlantic Security Treaty Monday, diplomatic authorities agreed that by far the most important matters facing Bevin and Acheson, as well as the French foreign Minister, Robert Schuman, concern western Germany.

Schuman probably will see Acheson tomorrow and the three Foreign Ministers will make a determined effort to end policy differences preventing creation of a single German government and the American, British and French occupation zones.

Other questions which may come up in the discussions, particularly between Bevin and Acheson, include:

(1) the future of the middle eastern countries such as Turkey, Greece and Iran; (2) the possibility of forming a Mediterranean defence treaty, and (3) how to block the spread of Communism in southeast Asia.

On his arrival Wednesday from New York, Bevin said the Atlantic pact will mean "peace for a long time." However no details have been voiced in the United States Senate as to what action the treaty before the United States Senate a member of the alliance. Taft Critical of Wording

In a radio talk Wednesday night, Chairman Robert Taft (Rep., Ohio) of the Senate Republican Policy Committee suggested that such a pact, together with the proposed rearmament of Europe, might lead Russia to attack "before these armaments are built up."

In such a case, "the pact, instead of being a deterrent to war, might become an incitement to war."

However, the diplomats responsible for the treaty's wording consider that only peace can result from moves to build constantly greater co-operation among the western powers.

Scheduled to arrive during the next two days are Foreign Ministers Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, Joseph Bech of Luxembourg, D. U. Stikker of The Netherlands, and Count Carlo Sforza of Italy — who already has had one brief meeting with Acheson.

The Foreign Ministers of Iceland, Denmark, Norway and Portugal likewise are expected here in time for the first formal meeting of the pact countries Saturday morning.

Iceland and Portugal decided only Wednesday to join the alliance. Their action assured a solid line-up of all the countries geographically qualified to join the pact except for Germany and Spain.

TOP UNION MEN TO INVESTIGATE COMPLAINTS

Charges Made Against United Electrical Workers and Affiliates

Ottawa, March 31 — (CP) — A five-man committee of top union men in the Canadian Congress of Labor will investigate complaints against the Attilated United Electrical Workers, the C. C. L. announced today.

The leftist U. E. W. was deprived last week of representation on the Congress' National Council, its policy-making body composed of heads of major C. C. L. unions, after action was taken on a complaint of the Ontario Federation of Labor.

Clarence Jackson, Canadian director of the U. E. W., has been appointed secretary on the council. His membership was suspended indefinitely pending investigation of the complaint.

The investigation committee will consist of Sam Baron, Montreal, Canadian director of the Textile Workers' Union of America, Fred Dowling, Toronto, Canadian director of the United Packinghouse Workers, J. E. McGuire, Ottawa, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, C. H. Millard, Toronto, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America, and William England, Toronto, United Rubber Workers.

All members of the committee are strong anti-communists and down-the-line adherents of the C. C. L. executive's policy of trampling down leftist influences in the Congress.

They will investigate an Ontario Federation of Labor complaint that the Electrical Workers Union, through its official publication, was attempting to destroy the Federation by charging its leadership with "union-splitting," "warmongering" and "Hitler-like tactics."

Part of the U. E. W. attack was directed against the Federation for its support of the Atlantic Treaty.

Ontario Legislature Facing Filibuster by C.C.F. Party On Charitable Gifts Bill

Toronto, March 31 (CP)— Filibusters are rare in the Ontario legislature but the House seems to be heading into one as a result of the party's attempt to have its charitable foundations bill pass second reading.

The delaying action started Wednesday night with a 4 3-4 hour speech—broken only for the dinner recess —by E. B. Jolliffe, leader of the C.C.F. opposition. One of his party spokesmen said all 30 other C.C.F. members planned to speak against the bill and keep the talkfest going.

It appeared that the legislature, which extended its Tuesday night sitting until nearly 3 a.m. Wednesday, was due for an all night siege of talks. But at 11 p.m. Mr. Jolliffe agreed to adjourn the debate until the next time the government calls the matter discussion on the bill. He will then resume his discourse and probably his party members will be prepared to speak their pieces.

In United States governmental bodies, where filibusters develop once in awhile, speakers seeking to prolong the debate usually tell stories, read newspaper clippings, quote scripture and reel off reports and statistics. Their main aim is to keep talking.

Follows Same Pattern

Mr. Jolliffe followed the same general pattern. He quoted at length from the will of the late Joseph E. Atkinson, former owner of the Toronto Star, and from the will of the late John Ross Robertson, who once owned the Telegram. He dug up a copy of a Supreme Court of Canada ruling on a Manitoba "press gag" case and read that into the record.

While some fellow members of the chamber dozed, others ducked out for coffee and still others watched for a chance to interject a heckling quip, Mr. Jolliffe, a lawyer who used to be a newspaper man, went into a scholarly discourse on freedom of the press and the question of whether Canadian newspapers are falling into the hands of monopolists.

He turned his attention to United States newspaper chains. He didn't like the way a few publishers controlled entire groups of U.S. papers. It wasn't Democratic, he said.

He had started to read an editorial from the Ottawa Journal when a halt was called for the night. He appeared unruffled when he agreed to postpone the rest of his remarks until another time.

He'll be on the floor again when the government calls for further discussion of its charities bill. And when he gets tired of talking, he has 29 supporters just aching to take over the filibustering job.

Marshal's Baton From Blenheim For Churchill

Blenheim, Germany, March 31 — (AP) — Winston Churchill is going to receive a marshal's baton made from a tree which "witnessed" the historic victory of Churchill's ancestor, the Duke of Marlborough, here in 1704.

The walnut wood is being donated by the mayor of Blenheim. The royal borough of Kensington, London, will present the baton to Churchill when he is made an honorary citizen of the borough. The baton will be a replica of the one John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, carried when he defeated the Spaniards in the Battle of Blenheim.

The tree was just a sapling then.

Britain's Doctors Want Higher Fees

London, March 31 — (AP) — Doctors in Britain's socialized health service voted a "revolt" today and began forming a protective guild to deal with the government.

Despite opposition of some who said the move classified doctors with workers in a labor union, the majority voted to form the guild. It would be called the British Medical Guild and would have a starting treasury of £1,000,000 — ($4,000,000) subscribed by doctors.

Main issue between the doctors and the government now is money. Under the National Health Service the government pays doctors 18s a year for each patient registered in his office. The doctors want 35s for each of the first 1,000 and a sliding scale down to 25s for up to 4,000.

200 NOTICES GIVEN

Kitchener, March 31 — (CP)— Nearly 200 "vacate" notices have been received by Kitchener and Waterloo tenants from landlords who wish to utilize the premises themselves.

This is the last day on which the six months notice can be given.

H. Harding, Prices Board representative here, said housing conditions have never been worse. He said that for the most part Twin City landlords have been playing fair in regard to the regulations but some have had to be checked up.

COLOR DICTIONARY

London — (CP) — Britain is producing a dictionary of colors for interior decoration, the first of its kind ever to be published. The dictionary will contain standard specimens of 278 different colors, illustrated on both plain and matt surfaces as well as pile fabric.

Boiled Rice Diet Relieves High Blood Pressure

New York, March 31. (AP)— A diet of boiled rice has helped 71 per cent of 777 patients with high blood pressure, Dr. Walter Kempner of Duke University reported today.

The rice diet also has been helpful in some cases of hardening of the arteries, and heart and kidney disease, he told the American College of Physicians.

The diet is drastic and tiresome. It consists of boiled rice three times a day, with some fruit and fruit juices. Sugar for energy is often added. It has to be followed rigidly for days or months, in a hospital. Dr. Kempner originated it some years ago.

Other heart specialists question whether the improvements reported are due to something about the diet or to the rest, or possibly a psychological effect.

Dr. Kempner said there was "a definite decrease in blood pressure in 71 per cent of the total group of 777 persons" who ate the diet for periods ranging from four days to more than three years. The average time was 82 days.

The greatest number of successful results came in those who followed the diet strictly, Dr. Kempner said. These were people who had high blood pressure with no disease in the kidneys or elsewhere that might play a role in their trouble.

Three Large Bakers In Toronto Raise Bread Price One Cent

Toronto, March 31 — (CP) — Three major Toronto bakeries today increased their bread prices by one cent a loaf.

Canada Bread, Ideal and Weston's announced the new price of unsliced bread will be 15 cents for a 24-ounce loaf and 16 cents for sliced.

A spokesman for one of the companies expressed surprise that other leading bread firms had not "followed suit."

"All were supposed to but they didn't," he said. They backed down at the last minute."

Natural Phenomenon Frightens Indians

The Pas, Man., March 31 (CP) — Manitoba game officials plan to investigate a natural-phenomenon that has frightened superstitious Indian hunters away from the Island Lake region in northern Manitoba. The Indian moose hunters reported finding a mysterious patch of ground, about 50 by 30 feet, completely free of snow. The Indians say "the devil" used the spot as a sleeping place. Officials believe an underground sulphur spring may be responsible.

Toronto, March 31 — (CP) — Three major Toronto bakeries today increased their bread prices by one cent a loaf.

Canada Bread, Ideal and Western announced the new price of unsliced bread will be 12 cents for a 24-ounce loaf and 16 cents for sliced.

A spokesman for one of the companies expressed surprise that other leading bread firms had not "followed suit."

All were supposed to but they didn't," he said. They backed down at the last minute."

BEVIN, ACHESON START SERIES OF MAJOR PARLEYS

Britain's Foreign Secretary in United States to Sign Atlantic Pact

Washington, March 31 (AP) — The western powers today began lining up their solid front as Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and State Secretary Acheson scheduled the first of a series of major conferences.

While the main reason for Bevin's visit to the United States is the signing of the North Atlantic Security Treaty Monday, diplomatic authorities agreed that by far the most important matters facing Bevin and Acheson, as well as the Foreign Secretary Minister, Robert Schuman, concern western Germany.

Schuman probably will see Acheson tomorrow and the three Foreign Ministers will make a determined effort to end policy differences preventing creation of a single German government or the American, British and French occupation zones.

Other questions which may come up in the discussions, particularly between Bevin and Acheson, include:

(1) The security of the middle eastern countries such as Turkey, Greece and Iran; (2) The possibility of forming a Mediterranean defence treaty and (3) how to block the spread of Communism in southeast Asia.

On all arrival Wednesday from New York, Bevin said the Atlantic pact will mean "peace for a long time." However no details have been voiced in the United States senate where a rally was held yesterday before the United States committee on foreign relations by Tafi Critical of Wordiar

In a radio talk Wednesday night, Chairman Robert Taft (Rep., Ohio) of the Senate Republican Policy Committee suggested that such a pact, together with the proposed rearmament of Europe, might lead Russia to attack "before these armaments are built up."

In such a case, "the pact, instead of being a deterrent to war, might become an inducement to

TOP UNION MEN TO INVESTIGATE COMPLAINTS

Charges Made Against United Electrical Workers and Affiliates

Ottawa, March 31 — (CP) — A five-man committee of top union men in the Canadian Congress of Labor will investigate complaints against the Affiliated United Electrical Workers, the C. C. L. announced today.

The leftist U. E. W. was deprived last week of representation on the Congress' National Council, its policy-making body composed of heads of major C. C. L. unions. This action was taken on a complaint of the Ontario Federation of Labor.

Clarence Jackson, Canadian director of the U. E. W., has been in Ottawa for the past week. His membership was suspended indefinitely pending investigation of the complaint.

The investigation committee will consist of Sam Harris, Montreal, Canadian director of the Textile Workers' Union of America, Fred Dowling, Toronto, Canadian director of the United Packinghouse Workers, J. E. McGuire, Ottawa, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, C. H. Millard, Toronto, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America, and William England, Toronto, United Rubber Workers.

All members of the committee are strong anti-communists and down-the-line adherents of the C. C. L. executive's policy of trampling down lefty influences in the Congress.

They will investigate an Ontario Federation of Labor complaint that the Electrical Workers Union, through its official publication, was attempting to destroy the Federation by charging its leadership with "union-splitting" war-mongering" and "Hitler-like tactics."

Part of the U. E. W. attack was directed against the Federation for its support of the Atlantic Treaty.

Ontario Legislature Facing Filibuster by C.C.F. Party On Charitable Gifts Bill

Toronto, March 31 (CP)— Filibusters are rare in the Ontario legislature but the House seems to be heading into one as a result of the government's attempt to have its charitable foundations bill pass second reading.

The delaying action started Wednesday night with a 4 3-4 hour speech—broken only for the dinner recess —by E. B. Jolliffe, leader of the C.C.F. opposition. One of the party members said all 20 other C.C.F. members planned to speak against the bill and keep the talkfest going.

It appeared that the legislature, which extended its Tuesday night sitting until nearly 3 a.m. Wednesday, was due for an all night siege of talks. But at 11 p.m. Mr. Jolliffe agreed to adjourn the debate until the next time the government calls for discussion on the bill. He will then resume his discourse and probably his party members will be prepared to speak their pieces.

In United States governmental bodies, where filibusters develop once in awhile, speakers seeking to prolong the debate usually tell stories, read newspaper clippings, quote scripture and reel off reports and statistics. Their main aim is to keep talking.

Follows Same Pattern

Mr. Jolliffe followed the same general pattern. He quoted at length from the will of the late Joseph E. Atkinson, former owner of the Toronto Star, and from the will of the late Lord Rose Robertson, who once owned the Telegram. He dug up a copy of a Supreme Court of Canada ruling on a Manitoba "press gag" case and read that into the record.

While some fellow members of the chamber dozed, others checked out for coffee and still others watched for a chance to interject a heckling quip, Mr. Jolliffe, a lawyer who used to be a newspaper man, went into a scholarly discourse on freedom of the press and the question of whether Canadian newspapers are falling into the hands of monopolists.

He turned his attention to United States newspaper chains. He didn't like the way a few publishers controlled entire groups of U.S. papers. It wasn't Democratic, he said.

He had started to read an editorial from the Ottawa Journal when a halt was called for the night. He appeared unruffled when he agreed to postpone the rest of his remarks until another time.

He'll be on the floor again when the government calls for further discussion of its charities bill. And when he gets tired of talking, he has 20 supporters just aching to take over the filibustering job.

Marshal's Baton From Blenheim For Churchill

Blenheim, Germany, March 31 — (AP) — Winston Churchill is going to receive a marshal's baton made from a tree which "witnessed" the historic victory of Churchill's ancestor, the Duke of Marlborough, here in 1704.

The walnut wood is being donated by the mayor of Blenheim. The royal borough of Kensington, London, will present the baton to Churchill when he is made an honorary citizen of the borough. The baton will be a replica of the one John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, carried when he defeated the Spaniards in the Battle of Blenheim.

The tree was just a sapling then.

Britain's Doctors Want Higher Fees

London, March 31 — (AP) — Doctors in Britain's socialized health service voted a "revolt" today and began forming a protective guild to deal with the government.

Despite opposition of some who said the move classified doctors with workers in a trade union, the majority voted to form the guild. It would be called the British Medical Guild and would have a starting treasury of £1,000,000 — ($4,000,000) subscribed by doctors.

Main issue between the doctors and the government now is money. Under the National Health Service the government pays doctors 18s a year for each patient registered in his office. The doctors want 35s for each of the first 1,000 and a sliding scale down to 22s for up to 4,000.

200 NOTICES GIVEN

Kitchener, March 31 — (CP)— Nearly 200 "vacate" notices have been received by Kitchener and Waterloo tenants from landlords who wish to utilize the premises themselves.

This is the last day on which the six months notice can be given.

Mr. H. Harding, Prices Board representative here, said housing conditions have never been worse. He said that for the most part Twin City landlords have been playing fair in regard to the regulations but some have had to be checked up.

THREAT OF LONG

Replying to attacks on the bill in the editorial and news column of the Toronto Daily Star, Mr. Frost in a 50-minute explanation of the measure's purposes pointed out the Atkinson Foundation.

The late Joseph Atkinson, former owner of the Star, willed assets of the Star and the Star Weekly to a charitable foundation with instructions that profits from the enterprises were to be distributed to various charities. The arrangement went into operation after Mr. Atkinson died last May 8 at 82.

Mr. Frost said the terms of the Atkinson will set out that the primary object of the two papers should be to be a disseminators of news and opinions. Charity was secondary, he said. But if the principle objective of the foundation was charitable, then the bill would assist the charities.

He denied the accusation made by some critics that any one business was being singled out by the bill. He declared as "absolutely without foundation" the criticism that the government proposed to enact retroactive legislation.

Claims Bill Audels

If the charitable foundation is set up for the purposes of true charity, then there can be absolutely no objection to this bill. The bill is designed to assist in carrying out his objects and ensures that the charities as well as the taxpayers received a square deal."

Mr. Jolliffe, launching his attack on the bill, suggested that the purpose of the legislation was to force sale of the star.

"The real issue is whether the largest and most powerful newspaper critics of the government shall be forced out of action by legislation," he said. "This legislation has no bearing on the supervision of trusts and foundations. It is based on the tycoon-er's theory that the people will operate more efficiently if its sole aim is to make profits."

Mr. Jolliffe said the bill threatened freedom of the press. In other parts of Canada, newspapers were steadily becoming fewer as they fell into the hands of persons owning two or more papers.

"In 1930 there were 116 daily newspapers and 99 owners. Now there are 83 with 85 owners. In Halifax, four daily newspapers merged to two. Seven cables (in Canada with four newspapers with more than half the daily newspaper circulation.

"We have the Southam chain, perhaps the most important. Then there is the Thomson chain, which operates eight daily newspapers.

"We now have the McCullagh chain in Toronto."

George McCullagh publishes The Globe and Mail, a morning paper, and The Telegram, which competes with The Star in the evening field.

Former Newsmass

"In United States cities of more than 30,000, only 37 cities have any competition in the daily field," continued Mr. Jolliffe, himself a former newspaper man.

"Mr. Hearst's (William Randolph Hearst) papers go into the homes of 82 per cent of the people in the United States and that is not a very democratic thing."

Another 11 per cent of the total circulation was accounted for by the McCormack-Patterson Chain (Chicago Tribune, New York Daily News and Washington Times-Herald) and the Scripps-Howard chain of 19 dailies.

In Canada, four papers in Saint John, N.B.—The Telegram, Journal, Times and Globe—had been merged.

"That's a situation we hope to avoid in Ontario. And I may say we have no intention of permitting it to happen in Ontario."

Can See Drift to Mergers

If one looked at the names of Ontario Provincial papers, he could see the drift toward mergers and monopolies in Owen Sound, Kitchener, Stratford, Brantford, Peterborough and elsewhere. Papers in some of those cities did not now use the two names of original papers but represented mergers. The controls ed within themselves the corpses of other papers.

"In Ottawa, we have only two papers where there were three. And one of them is opposed to this bill."

"Which one is that?" asked Municipal Affairs Minister George Dunbar.

"The Journal—the one that supports you," replied Mr. Jolliffe.

Reads Long Extracts

To a House weary after the previous night's sitting which lasted until nearly 5 a.m. Wednesday, Mr. Jolliffe read long extracts from the Atkinson will and from the will of the late John Ross Robertson, former owner of The Telegram. He read pages from a Supreme Court of Canada ruling handed down several years ago on the Manitoba government's so-called "press gag" bill.

Mr. Jolliffe was in the midst of reading an editorial from the Ottawa Journal criticizing the bill when Mr. Frost said he would accept a motion to adjourn the debate.

"When I get to the end of a paragraph, I'll be glad to make such a motion," returned Mr. Jolliffe.

Foundations May Multiply

Mr. Frost told the legislature that if legislation is not enacted "we may have by this time next year scores of foundations operating businesses and there is no doubt they would multiply at time goes along."

At present the province was "largely subsidizing" these trusts by way of succession duty exemptions.

"Within a short time they will create havoc in legitimate business. They will undermine confidence in our system and create a type of unfair competition subsidized with the people's money that can have no other result than to be consistently unfair to the taxpayer who is endeavoring to make his way, earn dividends and pay taxes."

The legislation "in no way destroys charitable trusts and foundations as such but greatly assists them," he said.

It was "inescapable" that charitable trusts and foundations should not operate businesses beyond a limited time. There was "no reason in the world" why investments of charitable foundations should not be regulated as are investments of trust companies, loan companies, insurance companies and trustees in general.

Had to Mention Trust

In introducing the bill last Friday he had been "careful not to mention any individual or trust. It would be most unfair to imply that, because there are some undesirable cases . . . all the great trusts and foundations in the province of Ontario are subject to the same criticism. Such is not the case.

"I have a feeling of very great reluctance to discuss the business of any individual on the floor of this House. I am completely satisfied that the only reference made to this bill in the Toronto Daily Star and its comments which they have made in relation to the good faith of my colleagues and myself to make some reference to them.

"It may say that if it had not been for the violent criticism which has been indulged in by this paper I should under no circumstances have mentioned it directly or indirectly, the Atkinson foundation."

If Mr. Atkinson wanted to perpetuate his newspapers and business "then he should pay his taxes like anyone else." If this object was charitable, "then this bill assists the charities" by providing that the papers may be sold and the proceeds invested as authorized by law.

Aimed at One Claim

Mr. Jolliffe said Mr. Frost had made "a forthright declaration of its intention to stand by this bill notwithstanding the misgivings which he knows full well have arisen in the minds of his supporters throughout the province," and despite criticism of the bill levelled by newspapers "usually friendly to the administration."

It had not taken long for it to become apparent, Mr. Jolliffe said, that this bill "has nothing whatever to do with succession duties or the supervision of charities" and was "aimed at the only foundation the treasurer is able to name as being affected and not forced sale of the newspaper it controls."

The bill threatened to create "a monopoly or near-monopoly of the press of this province to the advantage of the government of the day," Mr. Jolliffe said.

The bill named "an act respecting certain charitable and other gifts," should be renamed "an act for the relief of George McCullagh and his friends."

Telegram Mentioned

Mr. Jolliffe said the Telegram before its sale last fall was operated as a charitable foundation with profits after payment of certain annuities to heirs—going to the Toronto Sick Children's Hospital.

During that period Mr. Frost was in office five years and "had never raised his voice to complain how unfair it was for this newspaper to be in competition with privately-operated newspapers."

The hospital had benefited "in the neighborhood of $140,000."

The newspaper had not been a burden to taxpayers under the administration of its trustees, most of whom were working newspaper men.

As Mr. Jolliffe read a lengthy ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada concerning freedom of the press, J. A. Pringle (PC—Addington) interjected:

"Why should members of this House be subjected to long reams? Why not turn it over to Hansard?"

Mr. Jolliffe said: "I understand the member is unable to comprehend this discussion of the freedom of the press."

MEMBERS WANT

Other speakers included Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel), A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West), T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview) Gordon Ishor (L-Halifax), Rev. Dan McIvor (L-Fort William) and Anthony Peters (CC-Wyecliffe).

Just before the abbreviated afternoon sitting adjourned, Finance Minister Abbott tabled special supplementary estimates of what the government will spend in Newfoundland in the final fiscal year after her entry into Confederation. Totalling $55,126,618, they cover the extension of Federal services to the new province.

The Senate debated remaining bills continuing government controls expiring tomorrow and later the Commons joined members of the Upper Chember to hear Mr. Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, the Deputy Governor-General give them Royal assent.

Touching off the Commons debate, Mr. Coté noted that the government had ordered members of the three defence services to stand at attention during the playing of "O Canada" and that the conventions held by major political parties last year suggested the song be accepted as the anthem.

Mr. Drayton took issue with the proposal and, pointing to the approaching union with Newfoundland, suggested the people of Newfoundland should have something to say in the suggestion. Parliament should be careful about influencing the people in the way in which they expressed loyalty.

Wants National Flag

Mr. Coldwell expressed belief that "O Canada" had come to be accepted across the country. At the same time, Canada should continue to revere "God Save the King" as the symbol of her membership in the British Commonwealth. Besides a National Anthem, she also should have a national flag.

Mr. Church felt this was the wrong time to introduce such a proposal. In any events, "God Save the King" was both a prayer and an anthem while "O Canada" was neither because it did not refer to God, the King or the Queen.

Mr. Smith warned that the resolution would put the song in a legislative "straight-jacket." The people were coming to accept "O Canada" as a National Anthem and that development would continue if it were left alone. The children of Canada, learning it in their schools, were accepting it as an anthem.

Mr. Hanks suggested that the motion along with similar resolutions on the order paper, were designed to "weaken" Canada's ties with the Commonwealth at a time when she needed that association. There was no disadvantage in alliance with the United Kingdom.

Mr. Inner also felt this was not the time to call for a National anthem or a national flag. When he felt the time was appropriate, he would join with others in those demands.

Mr. McIvor suggested the question be referred to a House committee. He favored a national anthem but wanted to see the words "our national land" substituted by a phrase which would apply to all Canadians, whether native or not.

Newfoundland Discussed by Women's Guild

"Newfoundland" was the subject of the talk given at the Young Women's Guild meeting, held on Monday evening, at the home of Mrs. W. Harrison, Fox Street. Miss Alice Heasman presided at the business meeting. Letters of appreciation were received from the recipients of the Christmas parcels and arrangements were made to send other parcels of food, and clothing this month. A film was also shown depicting the activities in Newfoundland, giving a general idea of its location, size, population, natural resources and climate. A quiz was conducted, the results proving that further study was necessary.

Mrs. A. D. Archibald and Mrs. George Stanton gave interesting papers on its different phases.

Interesting History

Newfoundland, which will become Canada's tenth province on March 31st, has an interesting history. It was discovered by John Cabot in 1497. He returned to England and reported that it was teeming with fish. For many years it was a fishing station for European fishermen. Cod fishing is still the main source of income, and the occupation of the majority of the population. Its present population is approximately 313,000, mostly of English and Irish descent. Farming is a very hardy race, due to their long association with the sea, and their constant struggle for existence.

Sir Wilfred Grenfell, a medical missionary, devoted his life to improving their welfare. He was knighted by the King for his work among the people of Newfoundland.

Beside the fishing industry, there is the pulp and paper industry, with mills at Grand Falls and Corner Brook. There is also considerable lumber for building, and for making of boats and barrels. It is believed that great mineral wealth still awaits discovery.

Mostly Water Transportation

Since most of the villages are along the shore, the transportation is mainly by boats. There is a single track, 546 miles long railway from St. John's, Port Aux-Basques very few roads, and many sections of the country are more or less isolated. The development of air transport has meant much to Newfoundland as it is on the direct route between Europe and America.

When Newfoundland becomes a province of Canada, it will be represented by six members in the Senate and seven in the House of Commons. The francoise will be extended to all female British subjects, 21 years of age. Newfoundland will have the authority to make its own laws regarding the educational system. The existing Fisheries Law shall continue in force for a period of five years, but may be repealed or altered with the consent of the Dominion government. The same benefits will be available to the veterans of Newfoundland, as are available to the veterans of the rest of Canada.

Welfare and public services, including family allowances and old age pensions and unemployment insurance, will be extended.

Newfoundland will be given an annual subsidy of $150,500,000, and a transitional grant of $6,000,000 for three years tapering off each year for 13 years to $350,000 at the end of that time.

It is hoped that the confederation will be mutually beneficial to the people of Newfoundland and Canada as a whole.

A report was brought back from the citizens meeting, held Monday evening at the Kiwanis Centre, to protest the granting of a liquor licence to the new proposed hotel, to be constructed in a residential district.

Mrs. A. Wells conducted the devotional period. Refreshments were served by the hostess committee.

FOUND DEAD IN CELL

SYRACUSE, N.Y., March 31 (AP) — A man identified by police records as Walter Lasher, 58, of Toronto, was found dead in a jail cell Wednesday.

Coroner Harry L. Gilmore said death was due to natural causes.

Lasher, brought to Syracuse last January after completing a prison sentence at Kingston, Ont., was awaiting sentence here on a first-degree grand larceny conviction. It was his fourth felony conviction, making him subject to life imprisonment.

AIR RESCUE

Port Elizabeth, South Africa — (CP) — An aircraft made an emergency flight here recently to rescue a small girl in hospital. She had swallowed a metal key which lodged in her throat. The key was removed in an operation and she returned home a few days later.

Remember That Night

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

What should he say? What had he come for? Just to see her, just to see her, just to be alone with her again. He smiled. "You're forgiven. I suppose I deserved it. You have what you want. Are you happy now? You're a great success, you know."

"I owe it to you and to Brenda. I could never have done it alone. I don't think people are ever a success—alone. Other people deserve a big part of the credit." Words. Words. She was sick of 'public words. Why didn't he go?

"I asked you if you were happy, Karen."

She felt trapped. Oh, why couldn't she say, "No, I'm miserable! It's you I want more than anything, Philip! You! I'd never walk on another stage if you wanted me to belong completely to you! Loving you is the only real thing: Footlights are phantom things. Only this, only you are real."

But she said, "Yes, I'm happy. You, too? You're going to be married on Wednesday."

"Yes, Wednesday. Will you be there?"

Why wouldn't she go? "I'm coming with Brenda." Dressed in new clothes she could buy tomorrow she would be there.

Already he had stayed too long. Lilyan and her father were waiting. Philip went to the dressing room door and looked at Karen — looked at her from the toes of the small sandals to the top of her dark head. The girl perfect for him. He had sought her for a long time and had believed he had found her in Lilyan and all the time she had been in Harriston with dreams in her eyes and a fighting heart . . .

He knew he wanted to remember her as she was now in that white dress, very white indeed against the colorful flowers. Where would tonight lead her? To the top of her profession; he knew, and he would help her. He would write for her. And one day he would go to her wedding . . .

"Well, Karen, you won't need me until I've lined up a new play. I think "Youth Went Yesterday" will enjoy a long run." He smiled. "Don't you think we understand each other now? Do you still dislike me?"

If only she could tell him!

"I never disliked you, Philip. And I owe everything to you. Everything I shall be I owe to you. And . . ."

"And what?"

"Just . . . good night."

But Philip said, "Good-bye, my dear." And though she did not know it, he thought they were the tenderest words he had ever spoken.

After he left, she just stood there outlined against the flowers. At least they were covering no longer. "Tonight," she thought, "I know him better than I've ever known him. He's the kindest, nicest person I've ever known in my life. He doesn't feel superior. I thought that before because I was lonely and I hated being nobody. He believed in me . . . Oh, Philip."

Tonight, her fingers cupped one of the red roses he had sent. Her throat ached. Tears you must not cry. Tears are no good. Tomorrow you must buy new clothes for Philip's wedding on Wednesday. Tomorrow you'll spend more money on clothes than you've ever spent. You're a success. Empty word that — success. Footlights are phantom things. Only love is real, the kind of love you have for Philip. And always you will love him. Always. And never will you have him. . . Never.

Outside, Brenda said, "I'm coming in, dear."

Karen said, "Yes. Come in."

Brenda was wearing a black evening dress and carried her mink coat on her arm.

"I'll change in a minute," Karen said. "Philip was — was just here, Brenda. It was terrible wanting to say things I couldn't say! He said good-bye, 'Good-bye, my dear.' That's what he said."

Gently Brenda said, "Don't change just yet. Sit down, dear." And when Karen sat on the dressing table bench, Brenda stood over her and looked into her troubled face and took a deep breath.

"Oh, Karen, don't you know? Haven't you guessed? Don't you know that I know who you are and have known for some time?"

Karen seemed scarcely to breathe. Suddenly the dressing room filled with flowers was slightly out of focus. She felt she could not bear to hear anything else tonight. But Brenda knew! And now the questions that she had been so close to asking many times during their weeks of work and friendship would be answered! And all the other questions that had tormented her since her childhood.

Who was she? Who was the young actress who had deserted her child? Who was her father?

Her brown eyes came together. "You know? I thought . . ."

Brenda looked white and terrible. "Let me tell you, please. You and I are actresses, my dear, but nothing I've done or shall ever do is as dramatic or as tragic as the connection between us."

"You're not my mother!" Karen interrupted.

"No, I'm not your mother. But let me talk, please, and then I'll answer anything I don't make clear. But first let me tell you that it was Phillip — Phillip again — who found out about you and told me!

"You said there was a secret. He sensed drama and went to find it. Phillip left town a few days after Tommy's party. He went to Harriston, went inconspicuously, and talked to a judge who told him all about you. And over long distance from England we were told me, not knowing and still not knowing of the connection between us!"

At her slight pause Karen asked, "Didn't you better sit down, Brenda?"

"No." Her eyes softened. "Karen, you may hate me when I finish telling you this. People say that my life has been an open book. No adventures, no intrigue. Just hard work and a quiet life and one love affair, which I've consistently refused to marry. But there is a secret in my life, a secret and a sin, and that's why I haven't married Craig and why you may hate me. I did something sinister inhuman — it was so terrible!

At another pause Karen said, "I could never hate you. You've been too good to me."

"Your mother's name was Lela Gibbs and she and I were friends as children in a small western town. The name of the town does not matter. We grew up together. We were inseparable companions. We both wanted to go on the stage. But I was more fortunate in having a mother who was willing for me to have a career and in having a little money my father had left to help me. But Lela's parents were dead and she'd been raised by a strict old uncle and aunt who were horrified at the thought of her wanting to be an actress.

"Karen, you told me that the people in Harriston said your mother was very beautiful. She was. Beautiful and high-spirited and proud. Her aunt and uncle tried to break her spirit but they never succeeded. But she was unhappy in those years until she fell in love with Craig.

"Yes," Brenda continued, nodding. "Craig. Are you putting the pieces together in your mind now? Lela fell in love with Craig, who had known all his life he wanted to be a doctor. But his people were very poor and he knew he had to work his way through college and medical school.

"I loved Craig, too, Karen. And all through one summer I shall never forget I saw Lela and Craig in love and trying to make plans. And I thought I'd die of jealousy. And then they were married — I saw them married. And I loved him then as you love Philip now! My mother and I came to New York. I heard from Lela and Craig by mail. They were having a hard time with Craig in medical school, earning no money. Then she wrote and said they had a baby, 'You, Karen, Craig is your father!'

Karen felt tears in her eyes. Craig was her father! She had always thought of her mother!

"Let me finish, please," Brenda said breathlessly. "You'll have to try to picture your mother, high-spirited and ambitious in her own right, to understand what she did.

"She and Craig were very poor and something had to be done. So she got a job in a traveling company and took you along! Craig opposed it bitterly. But she went anyway. I'm sure she thought she was doing the right thing to help. There was no one she could leave you with. The city where Craig was going to school was in the East. They didn't know anybody except other students. His people had nothing to give them and her aunt and uncle had opposed their marriage.

"That night the company went broke in Harriston, Lela was almost penniless. And that night she wrote me a letter, telling me she was going to leave you in the hotel and that I should look after you. She couldn't take you with her. It was winter. She had decided to go back home, back west, to try to get some money. It was the wrong thing to do, of course, but you must try to understand that she was desperate. She'd go back to Craig a failure after she had defied him to go.

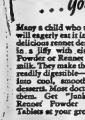
"She wasn't thinking clearly that night. She was young and nearly penniless and alone in a strange town with a baby. She didn't realize what she was doing. And she was so certain I would come for you at once.

"But Lela was killed the next night far from Harriston in one of the worst train wrecks in years."

"I was in California when I read of her death in the papers," Brenda went on. "But, you see, Karen, the police in Harriston naturally did not know that Mrs. Craig Stanhope who was killed in a train wreck was the Mary Redfern, the actress, they were looking for. Mary Redfern was her stage name.

"And I was in California and I didn't know that I had any reason to come to you!

"They identified her by a card in her bag. That was all. There — there was almost night left except wreckage. So Craig thought you had died, too.



"I wired Craig but I didn't hear from him. Several weeks later when I returned to New York, there was Lela's letter. I tried to get Craig at the university but he'd gone. I traced his home and no one knew where he was. I didn't know until years later that a famous doctor, knowing about Lela's death and supposedly yours, and knowing that if Craig did not have encouragement then, we would never attain the things of which he gave high promise, had sent him abroad to study.

PICTON

Historical Night Sponsored by Cherry Valley W.I.

Picton — Athol Township Historical Night, sponsored by Cherry Valley Women's Institute, attracted a capacity crowd to Athol Community Hall Monday night. Features were presentation of prizes to school pupils in an essay contest, a display of historical articles, a parade of old-time costumes and numbers by the school children.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Bernard Brooks, W. I. historical convener, assisted by Mrs. E. W. C. Lewis, Mrs. Willard Metcalf with the essays, Mrs. R. McNally, president of the branch, Miss Ruth Bowerman, secretary, and all members co-operating.

Receive $100 Cheque

A feature was the presentation of a $100 cheque to the W. I. from J. Milton Cork, chairman of the board of directors of Loblaw Groceteria. A brief tribute to the Athol-born boy whose Horatio Alger career saw him become "grocer king" was given by chairman Phillip Dodds. Mrs. Metcalf read a message from Mr. Cork and presented the cheque and gift to the president, Mrs. McNally. A photo of Mr. Cork was being hung in the hall.

In the essay contest, S. S. 6, Mrs. Gleyden McCrea, teacher, won the framed certificate; a pupil, Catherine Beaumont, getting the best essay in the contest. This gave two history prizes for school, past and present, and was read by Mrs. Brooks.

Gifts from Mrs. Cork, lockets and a pen, for best three essays, were presented to C. Beaumont, Margery Dulmage, Laverne McConnell.

Books, gifts of Reeve C. Green and Philip Dodds, were also received by the same trio.

Mrs. George Lgavitt wore a black beaded cape that had been owned by the late Mrs. W. R. Browne, and a bracelet, that had been owned by Lady Stanley, loaned by Mrs. Sherman Young. The collar and cuffs worn by Mrs. McNally's mother, Mrs. Howard Lowery was an attractive bride, wearing the wedding gown of Mrs. N. J. Fennell, gloves loaned by Mrs. B. W. Bongard and buttoned boots. Mrs. J. Whiteford Jr., wore a gown that belonged to Mrs. Hannah Huff's grandmother, a centry old shawl and a bracelet, worn by Mrs. McNally's grandmother.

Tables were filled with scores of articles which had been used in pioneer homes, while various kinds of quilts, coverlets, maps, crown deeds and old papers covered the walls. Most of the articles were more than a century old.

MASTER MOVES IN ON HIS DOG

It is not often you see a picture like this when the master takes over his pet's sleeping quarters. That's what happened at the dog show which was part of the Sportsmen Show exhibit in Toronto, Ont. Nada doesn't seem to mind being slightly crowded.—Central Press Canadian.

Young British M.D. Finds Going Tough

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — After five hard-up years of study, followed by a spell as intern in a hospital, the average young doctor envisages an impressive brass plate outside his consulting room.

In Britain usually a room in a private house.

This is a mirage as far as the majority is concerned today. For while there is a shortage of general practitioners in some areas, the number of available private practices is relatively small.

"There are two ways of getting up," one doctor said. "Either you find a place where there are not enough doctors for the local clientele, or you watch out for an established doctor who is giving up.

"Unfortunately most places are well served now with few patients left over for newcomers. And very few doctors are retiring.

Another young doctor said the new free health service came into force just as he had succeeded in getting a practice last July, so that he missed the rush to register.

150 Patients

"Today, I have only 150 patients on my books," he said, "and that's a long way short of the 4,000 minimum. For each registered patient I get something like 16 shillings ($3.20) a year, which means an income at the moment of less than £3 a week.

"The reward I had to throw in my lot with a senior doctor who pays me about £350 a year. But I'm not a doctor. I'm a hired assistant, doing a lot of donkey work and making my headway towards building up a practice of my own."

An elderly general practitioner declared: "I'm sorry for the young fellow trying to get a practice going these days. It was never easy, even in my young day. Now, its almost impossible."

Meantime many older doctors with the maximum number of registered patients are well nigh run off their feet, with the current spate of influenzal colds and other spring ailments keeping them on the go from early till late.

Blackburn Prospers With New Industries

Blackburn, England — (CP) — Blackburn, whose fortunes used to fluctuate with the cotton trade, now is enjoying a prosperity based on a variety of industries.

In the 1921 depression 31,000 of the Lancashire town's 109,000 inhabitants were registered unemployed. Even in 1937 the figure was 10,000. Now it is only 331.

While Blackburn still is the fourth largest weaving town in England, many new industries have been established. Factories now produce clothing and leather goods or specialize in high quality fabrics like silk velvet or silk tie cloth.

In 1939 some 63 per cent of the town's employed workers were engaged in textiles. Now the figure is about 25 per cent, with a similar number in engineering.

The town's long-term plans call for establishment of heavier industries which would provide additional male employment.

HANGING IN SUSPENSE

Bridlington, Yorkshire, England — (CP) — Police Sergeant F. R. Miller was left hanging in suspense after investigating a noise in an empty building. Descending from a high wall, his belt caught on a spike. It took him half an hour's wriggling before he unfastened the belt and dropped to the ground.

$690,000 Theft Being Probed

New York, March 30 (CP)—Police today are seeking an easy-manner but nervous assistance branch bank manager in connection with the theft of $690,000 from the National City Bank.

They said the bank is missing $500,000 in bonds and $190,000 in cash. Part of the bonds are said to be negotiable. The bonds and cash disappeared from a small vault in a downtown branch.

The man, Richard H. Crowe, 41, is wanted on a grand larceny charge. He was reported missing from his Staten Island home by his wife, Honora, who said he had not been home since Sunday.

Bank officials said Crowe returned to work a week ago following treatment for a nervous breakdown.

Toronto Maple Leafs Down Boston Bruins 3-2, Move To Defence of Stanley Cup

Boston, March 31. (CP)—A big-weary Toronto Maple Leaf team rested today after winning the right for the third successive year to enter the final playoff for the Stanley Cup.

Toronto, injury-free and bolstered by reserves in depth, took a 3-2 decision here last night over Boston Bruins, hit by injuries but still fighting-game, to take the National Hockey League semi-final Cup series four games to one.

Leafs' opponent in the final has not yet determined. Detroit Red Wings—and Montreal Canadiens are deadlocked with two wins each in their semi-final series and meet tonight in Detroit.

Whichever team emerges the Toronto squad isn't expecting an easy time. Asked if he had any preference, Coach Hap Day replied, "No, Sir. Theyre both tough."

Johnny Crawford and Boston Captain Milt Schmidt, whose absence last night through injuries hit Boston hards, took the defeat philosophically: "Too bad we had to lose but the gang never quit. They've nothing to be ashamed of."

A capacity crowd of 13,909 at Boston Gardens made life dangerous for both teams with a barrage of bottles, fruit and potatoes that littered the ice after a third-period penalty was handed to Bruin rearguard Fern Flaman.

Teams Semi to Rooms

The teams were sent to their dressing room and the crowd warned that the game wouldn't continue until the ice was cleared. The delay lasted 17 minutes.

Boston's first goal by Grant Warwick was matched between first-period tallies by Toronto's Cal Gardner and Ray Timgren.

A freak goal in the second period by Bentley gave Toronto a two-goal lead that Boston didn't touch until the last 33 seconds when Johnny Peirson shunted in Paul Ronty's pass for the final score.

Lineups:

Boston—Goal, Brimsek; Defence, Kenn. Henderson; Centre, Ronty; Wings, Peirson, K. Schmidt, Sinbe; Sandford, Warwick, Babando, Kryzanowski, Flaman, Harrison, Creighton, Topazzini, Dumart.

Toronto—Goal, Broda; Defence, Boesch, Barilko; Centre, Bentley; Wings, Klukay ,Timgren, Suble; Gardner, Ezinicki, Watson, Mortson, Thomson, Jorda, S. Smith, Kennedy, Mackell, Lynn, Dawes.

Referee — Frank (King) Clancy. Linesmen—Sam Babcock, Butch Keeling.

Wings Optimistic As They Meet Habs at Detroit

Detroit, March 31 (AP)— After their semi-circle-carnival comeback in Montreal, where they fought from behind to win the important fourth game and level their Stanley Cup playoff series with Montreal, Detroit Red Wings ride on a high spiral of optimism into the fifth game here tonight.

Detroit now is in the enviable position of enjoying home ice for two of the remaining three games of their semi-final series if it goes the limit of seven games.

That's not all either.

The Red Wings have the hottest goal-getter of the playoffs in sturdy young Gordie Howe, who has spanked in five goals in four games. They stand ready to shoot the works for the home folks with their talented scoring line of Howe, Ted Lindsay and Sid Abel, rated by many the best forward in hockey today.

That line, centred by Abel, has accounted for eight of the 10 goals Detroit has scored in the first four playoff games.

Unfortunately for the Canadiens and coach Dick Irvin, Montreal is in no position to play a defensive strategy as the seven game series runs out. They have to go for goals, and they must do it without Elmer Lach, the club's offensive star, who is out with a fractured jaw that required surgical repairs.

But while Irvin recognized the significance of the loss of Lach, he showed no willingness to concede as he moved back to Detroit "We've been here before and we can do it again," the Canadiens' coach declared.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

We're going to digress from sport a trifle today and devote a bit of space to one of the most humanitarian causes we know. Primarily because we belong to it. Secondly because during our many years as a member of the Rotary Club here, we have seen first-hand the splendid work being done by the various committees vitally interested in this fine community service.

Foster Hewitt the big voice behind the N.H.L. hockey games will be on hand at the Maple Leaf Gardens, Sunday, April 3rd, in a different role than usual in the grandstand during the big stick games. Foster will participate in a special broadcast staged by Lions Club and Easter Seals for Crippled Children. Associated with him on the broadcast will be such outstanding personalities as Mac Kennedy, Leslie Bell Singers, Mildred Morse, Howard Cable's orchestra, Wayne and Shuster, Lucio Agostini, Terry Dale, Stan Frances, Cy Mack and numerous others. All talent and the "Gardens," home of the Maple Leafs, will be given free to the cause. The biggest show in Canadian radio, it will be broadcast for a one hour period of his two and a half hour run.

It is staged in an effort to help about 125 Ontario Service Clubs beat the sale of Easter Seals by which funds are raised to augment their crippled children work. The main part of this work is to operate three of the finest up-to-date camps for crippled children to take care of in the central, eastern and western portions of the province. One object of this year's Easter Seal Sale is to start a camp for northern Ontario. It is hoped to raise $250,000.00.

Perhaps you have never seen the hopelessness, the despair in the faces of these kiddies, born physically handicapped, with no hope of succor. Born to face a life of pain, and suffering; a life with the horrid scar of the future gleaming on the far-off horizon; born to bear a burden of near-helplessness, deprived of the joys of living, live and laugh like their more fortunate counter parts.

Perhaps you have never seen the bright ray of hope lighting up childish eyes when following treatment provided by our service clubs after operations, they realize that life after all may not be one of dark despair, and that they will not be a total burden on the world at large. Perhaps you have never heard the words of children's voices when the cure has been completely cured. And you have never seen, perhaps, the tear-dimmed eyes of parents, their faces lighted up in happy joyful appreciation of what has been done for them—and their offspring.

Watch a young boy, thought at first hopelessly crippled, take his first faltering steps. Watch a few months later walk across the room unaided. Watch a tiny blue-eyed girl, born with limbs grotesquely twisted, gradually become like her fellows. You could watch hundreds of cases like these. And you will get a suspicious lump in your throat, if you are human, when little childish eyes look up at you, and reply to your query, "I'm much better, thank ou." And that moisture in your eyes is not the effect of a bad cold.

To help these kiddies, Easter Seals will be sold throughout the province. You will be asked to purchase them. Do so. And buy as many as you can—or if you don't want the seals, give the cash to the canvasser. You will never be sorry. For you are making an investment in youth that will pay big dividends. You will be helping a helpless kid to be able to help himself. Someone once said "There, but for the Grace of God, go I." If might have been you—or yours. So buy Easter Seals and that consciousness won't nag whenever you meet a crippled kiddie on the street.

Toronto's young hockey Lochinvars came out of the east, just to be different, today riding high the wave of victory. They whitewashed all the Boston Bruins could hand them on the ice—and all the rabid Bostonese could heave at them from the balconies, the mezzanines, the hall-rinks, the red-crusted lodges and the boxes, and emerged unscathed, unpopular but with the semi-finals series tucked safely away in their war-bags.

Staid old Boston stayed long enough to watch the injury-jinxed Bruins slip slowly into the depths of defeat and elimination, then it went scatter-brained with the result that everything from a codfish ball to a Back Bay roll of tissue went hurtling leeward from inflamed fans in the gods. King Clancy and his referees adversaries were as popular with the Tea-Town fans as the well-known striped kitty at a Sunday School picnic. For long before the final whistle the battle surface by a scead of Boston's finest as irate fans surged around them. The game was held up for several minutes as the Gardens employees endeavored to wipe up the debris that included everything from bottles to playing cards.

However, the main point is that the Leafs won the series in five games, three of them the straight way. They played sparkling hockey all through and were worthy victors, despite the fact that the Bruins were deprived of the services of three of their stars. Now the Men in Day await the victors of the Detroit-Canadiens spie. No matter who wins, with the Maples-leafs inspired and fired victory, and better than the mid-day sun in Java, they stand excellent chances of copping the Stanley mug for their third consecutive season.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

At First Glance Sid Smith Looks Like a Natural

Toronto, March 31 — (CP) — When Sid Smith scored two goals and assisted on a third for Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night in their Stanley Cup semi-final game against Boston, he was whittling away at a kindling from limb that threatened his career in the National Hockey League.

At first glance, the 23-year-old leftwinger looks like a natural for a regular berth with the Leafs next season. Apart from his starring role in Leafs' 3-1 victory Tuesday, he's a fine, cool, Toronto-born member of the club. Furthermore, before making his sensational first appearance in the series, Sid led the American Hockey League in scoring.

That's where the jinx comes in. Not since Tommy Anderson paced the Canadian — American League in 1933-34 has anyone won the scoring title in a top minor league and then reached stardom in the major ever. Tommy had to switch to a defence post before he won all - star recognition in 1941-43 with New York Americans.

Last year's A. H. L. pacemaker was Carl Liscombe, a veteran on the way down after a six-year term at Detroit. But few N. H. L. fans remember such players as Phil Hergesheimer, Les Douglas, Bob Walton, Tom Burlington, Les Cunningham, Norm Locking, Don Deacon and Jack Markin — all of them scoring champions in the A. H. L. and its predecessors in the top minor bracket.

Some of them bid a whirl at the big time. Hergesheimer and Cunningham, two of the most prolific scorers in minor-league history, stayed long enough to compile respectable scoring records in the N. H. L. for a year or two.

UMPIRE GOES UP

Chicago, March 31 — (AP) — George (Jim) Honochick, 31, up from the International League, has been signed as an American-League umpire, league president Will Harridge announced today.

Honochick, former football and baseball star, has been umpiring American-League spring exhibition games in Florida.

Training Camp Notes

(By The Associated Press)

Owney Clark Griffith today predicted his Washington Senators would finish this season in the first division of the American League.

"I don't see what four clubs are good enough to keep us out of it," he said of the Senators, seventh - place finishers last year.

For the next two weeks Brooklyn pitchers will go as far as the other teams will let them, manager Burt Shotton said today. Up till now they've been spelled off automatically after three or four innings.

Joe (Flash) Gordon, Cleveland Indians' star second - baseman, has been ordered to rest because of a sore arm. He strained several ligaments in practice sessions and exhibition games.

Catchers George Yankowski, and Joe Tipton have joined the casualty section of Chicago White Sox. George has a wrenched knee and Joe has a bruised wrist.

Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Browns will feast on barbecued antelope after an exhibition game today. The feed is being put on by citizens of Alpine, Tex., a new stop on the Texas exhibition route.

Montreal Royals Much Too Smart For Inkerman

Montreal, March 31 — (CP) — Montreal Royals, a well-blended complex of home-grown products and imports, showed too much all-round polish for the plucky Inkerman Rockets last night, and handed the Ottawa district champions a 10-3 pasting in the first game of a best-of-five Eastern Canada junior semi-final.

Matt Benoit and Gordie Armstrong, who scored two goals apiece, led the galloping parade as Royals marked up three counters in each of the two opening periods and added four in the finals. Other Royal marksmen were Bill Rattray, Bert Hirschfeld, Bobby Frampton, Gordie Kennison, Fred Langrill and Skippy Burchell.

Percy Armstrong and George Bolvin notched the Inkerman goals, both in the second period.

Dimaggio Passes First Test With Flying Colors

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 31—(AP)—The old toothy grin was back on DiMaggio's face.

"I'm afraid I'll play another year, every blackboy blank in-lining," he said. "It looks like I'll have to work for my money."

DiMag had just passed his first test with flying colors. The teacher right heel that threatened to end his great career gave him no trouble in a six-inning chore against Cincinnati. It was his first start.

"The pain is not completely gone," said Joe, "but it (the heel) improves a little more, I'll be very happy."

DiMaggio, the highest priced player in Yankee history at $90,000 a year, underwent an operation for removal of a spur from his right heel during the winter. Although it appeared completely healed, he dreaded it in the first day of training. Until Wednesday he appeared in exhibitions only as a pinch hitter.

DiMaggio wears baseball shoes with a pad in the heel. When the season starts he expects to use golf spikes around the back of the heel to keep him from sliding on quick starts.

Tulsa Oilers Need One Game To Win Playoff

(By The Associated Press)

Tulsa Oilers and St. Paul Saints are just a single game short of completing two of the biggest comebacks in the history of the United States Hockey League.

Tulsa defeated Dallas 4-1 Wednesday night at Dallas to take the southern division's playoff.

St. Paul needs a victory Friday night at Omaha to make it two straight over the Knights and eliminate them in the best-of-three northern division playoffs.

Last year St. Paul finished in fourth place in the northern division and Tulsa wound up in third in the southern loop. The Oilers qualified for the playoff but bowed out after two straight losses in the first round.

Bob Schmurr was the whole show Wednesday night in Tulsa's victory. He scored twice in the second and once in the third.

Eddie Dorohoy scored for Dallas midway through the second period to keep the Texans in the running until the final minute of the period. Dick Dillon put Tulsa ahead then 2-1 and Schmurr echoed his shot 33 seconds later to make it 3-1.

SAME RATE AS LAST YEAR

Crystal Beach, Ont., March 31—(CP)—Crystal Beach council Tuesday night decided to set the annual tax rate at 60 mills, the same levy as in 1948, and voted to allow a 10-per-cent discount in all water bills. Council also decided to take action regarding an abandoned gas well on Derby Road, seepage from which is causing considerable worry to residents, and resulted in one severe explosion. Village solicitor Alan Brooks was instructed to institute proceedings.

Machine Shop Wins Northern Electric Hockey Championship

The Machine Shop team of the Northern Electric Interdepartmental Hockey League won the championship in Memorial Arena last night defeating the Inspection squad 4-3 in a hard-fought battle. It was a sudden-death affair due to the fact that the ice in Memorial Arena will be removed this week.

The game was clean with only one penalty being handed out by referees Perky Yorke and Semark, that one going to Thrasher of the Shoppers in the third period.

The first period was scoreless and productive of fine hockey. Inspection drew first blood in the second quarter at the five minute mark when John Pulinetto drilled the rubber past Bunton in the Shop nets. The Shop tied up the game with five minutes to go when MacDonald took Little's pass to score.

Paced by Little, the Shoppers forged to a two-goal lead when that player slung home two goals in the first six minutes on unassisted plays. Lupinetto hit the rigging for inspection on Howie's pass but Joe Lupinette, scoring his dohst by 33 seconds later to make it 3-1.

The teams:

Inspection — Goal, Lepp; defence, Kaye, Fisher; centre, Vance; wings, John Lupinette, Howie; subs, Baker, Lorimer, Ballford, Woods, Hutchings.

Machine Shop — Goal, Bunton; defence, Chipps, O'Brien; centre, Thrasher; wings, Lang, Belliveau; subs, Crean, McDonald, Little, Joe Lupinetta.

SEND BUTTER TO CANADA

Canberra, March 30 (CP) — Commerce Minister Reginald Pollard today announced that 1,000 tons of Australian butter are being sent to Canada because of the adverse season in the Dominion.

There had been criticism in Hobart about the shipment of butter to Canada, but the minister said: "Canada's great assistance to Britain's needs in other directions justifies any help we can give her."

Cote Training Faithfully For Boston Marathon

(By The Canadian Press)

Gerard Cote, Canada's great little marathoner, trotted faithfully about the country highways around St. Hyacinthe, Que., today, grimly determined to win the Boston Marathon next April 19.

The training grind is nothing new to Cote, aiming at his fifth title in the Boston classic.

Cote, still disappointed at his showing in the Olympic Marathon last summer, has been in training all winter. He averages 90 miles a week and on his running days usually goes from 20 to 24 miles. When snow conditions were bad he ran over cleared roads in Montreal suburbs, 40 miles from his home.

Cote finished 17th at the Olympics, limping over the line in pain from a severe Charley-horse. He didn't offer excuses; he finished the course. Lloyd Evans of Montreal came in 16th, passing Cote on the Olympic Stadium track. Evans also will be at Boston.

To Edgar Laprade's pronouncement that National League hockey is "terrible," N. H. L. president Clarence Campbell had this to say Wednesday: "I don't believe Laprade ever said any such a thing and if he did it isn't true."

Then Campbell quickly marshalled facts and figures from his season's N. H. L. records in a terse dissenting opinion.

Laprade was quoted a few days ago in Port Arthur as saying: "The small fellow with some ability is smashed by the guy with the muscle."

Dave Sands, Australia's "dark destroyer" has caused no little excitement in British boxing circles today. After watching Marcel Cerdan flatten Dick Turpin Tuesday night, Sands said he'd like to fight the world middleweight champion.

Sands, who holds the Australian middleweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight crowns, said "Cerdan's style would suit me admirably."

Cerdan, winner of the world crown last summer in the United States, scored a seventh-round K. O. over Turpin, British and Empire middleweight titleholder.

At Albany Wednesday the New York State Legislature took a step toward legalized off-track parimutuel betting. With only five negative votes the Legislature approved creation of a nine-member commission to study all aspects of the proposal and report to the governor and legislature by Feb. 15, 1950.

Assemblyman Frank J. Becker, who introduced the Assembly bill, said "If we are going to have gambling, and we have, it might be a good idea to recognize and tax it."

One of baseball's oldest major league veterans died at San Diego Wednesday. He was William Hengy Bernard, 78, one-time Philadelphia and Cleveland pitcher.

Millionaires Hold Toronto Marlies To One-All Draw

Toronto, March 31 (CP)—The opening game of the eastern Canada senior hockey semi-final ended in a stalemate but that was enough to send the stock of Sydney Millionaires shooting skyward today.

Toronto Marlboros had to come through with a last minute goal to gain the 1-1 deadlock with the Maritime money-men last night. The highly-touted Ontario champions were quoted as high as 3-1 favorites before the best-of-five series started but the odds should drop to no better than even money for the return game here Saturday night.

The 8,139 fans who watched the teams battle on equal terms left Maple Leaf Gardens talking about the last Maritime representatives to capture the Allan Cup the Moncton Hawks and Halifax Wolverines of the 1935-35 era.

They also talked about how close the Millionaires came to taking an opening victory. A second-period goal by cliff Roach, third-string Sydney centre, stood up until 19:13 of the third period. Then Ray Hannigan netted the Toronto marker that sent the game into overtime, limited to 10 minutes under Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rules.

Goal Hotly Protested

Roach's goal was hotly protested by Marlboros, who said he kicked the puck home. But referee Stan Host of Ottawa ruled it was deflected in after a corner shot by Jimmy McKerjon rebounded off goalie Howie Harvey.

Millionaires matched speed and bumps with Marlboros in a way that did credit to the Sydney scouts who lined up this team to carry the Breton coal city's colors.

Roach, the goal-scorer, was the only Sydney native with their 14 man roster, although a couple of others came from nearby points.

The others were gathered as far west as the Pacific Coast league. That was where Doug Fritz, the bespectacled defenceman who was the rallying force for the Millionaires, played his hockey last season. The 31-year-old veteran previously performed in Ontario with Hamilton and St. Catharines teams.

Best line on the ice was the Millionaires' first string trio of centre Don Whalen, who comes from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Paul Platz, a left winger from Winnipeg, and right winger Don MacRae, a fighting redhead also from Winnipeg.

PLAN RHUBARB CROP FOR FRASER VALLEY

Mission, B.C., (CP) — Thirty thousand rhubarb roots, valued at $12,000, are being distributed to Fraser Valley farmers for planting as part of the flood rehabilitation program.

The roots, imported from Wenatchee state, will replace raspberry and strawberry plants drowned in last year's Fraser River floods. The rhubarb should be ready for market in volume next year.

The Fraser Valley had 600 acres of rhubarb in 1936, but the acreage dropped to 102 in 1946 and to 30 after last spring's floods.

Even Mr. Anthony Eden has a problem with an eight trick hand. It is not quite strong enough for an opening of two. It looks too strong for an opening of one. What to do about it?

Any substantial or unusual hand makes you think in terms of an opening bid. What South's hand looks as if there will be a game in your pair. And such a bid is forcing to game.

If you open with two in a suit, partner is obligated to bid even if he has nothing. Why? Mainly because such an opener has an unusual hand and seldom is a partner found without one trick.

The unusualness of a nine trick hand offers extra possibilities. So, even the help of one trick in partner will be enough for a game in something. Often enough to be worth the try.

If you open with one, partner has the privilege of passing with less than three tricks. Why? The opening hand is unusual. With two or less tricks help, game is not likely.

What decides you whether you should open with only one? Is your hand rounds more than nine tricks. In other words, a hand with eight tricks can count as all the class known as one bids.

On the other hand, partner may have exactly two tricks. This with eight tricks may make a game. And if you open with one, partner may pass. It is something for opener to worry about.

You are south as declarer with this hand:

♠ A K 8 5
♥ K Q 9 5
♦ K 6 4
♣ 6 3

You see six high cards for the two aces, three kings, one queen. Two short cards are in clubs. Total count is eight tricks. These are not quite enough for an opening of two in a suit.

Open with a heart and keep your fingers crossed. Hope that partner does not have exactly two tricks. If he does and passes your way wish you had opened with a bid of two. See what I mean.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

New York, March 31 (AP)—Fred Allen, busy turning down radio and television offers, has added a new triumph.

"I just talked a guy out of putting me in a movie."

Allen is a fast-talking man with baggy eyes and high blood pressure. The latter is the reason he has decided to bow out of radio this autumn after this season.

If he had any doubts about his decision, they were shattered with the sudden death of his friend Jack Kapp, Decca Record boss. Show business folk always slow down for a while when one of their number dies suddenly.

The picture deal which Allen nixed would have starred him in a Frenchyville film to be made around New York.

"We were discussing it, but I finally convinced the guy to give it up. It's no good in pictures. I proved that with the last one."

He referred to "It's in the Bag" (Circa 1944) with Jack Benny, Robert Benchley and William Bendix—a comic lam session that failed to tell. Allen thought he had a capital gains deal, but the gain was negligible. Everybody got paid but him.

Allen's health is not the sole reason he is hopping off the airlanes. "Everything in radio is in a turmoil," he told me. "Nobody knows what is funny."

And there is that favorite topic among star performers—taxes.

"I figured out that if my 30 shows a year, I do 31 for nothing. Why should I work so hard only to get paid for those eight shows? I might better be doing guest shorts or writing for the movies."

I met Allen at NBC studios during my unfinished chat with Jack Benny. While there, he was accosted by a kid who wanted to tell him some jokes.

"What do I want jokes for?" Allen asked. "I'm going off the air in June."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York March 31.—(AP)—Baseball has corrected a mistake it made in writing its "bonus" rule but it won't allow the clubs to correct the mistakes they made in the rule. That seems to be under that rule. That seems to be the situation resulting from the commissioner's interpretation of the recent change in the bonus rule. The change will apply only to players signed after yesterday unless kids who are bench riders because they can't get needed minor-league experience will have to continue in that status. . . . Jack Dempsey, who takes a dim view of Jon Louis' drawing power as a promoter because he tried the same himself, comments "I wish I could take some of these contenders back in the ring to fight them. At that time you could keep some of the money you made fighting."

Clam to Fame

Horace, the literate racetrack publicist, relays this yarn from William Hudson, who has charge of jockey headquarters at Gulfstream . . . back in 1923 at the old Miami Heights track near Cleveland, an owner named Joe Cooper was plunged on his old plater Charles Leflkovitch . . . the horse stumbled just after the start a sure victory, tossed jockey Johnny Maiben and finished eighth. . . . Cooper was so sore that he stripped the bridle, saddle and kept the nag on the rump and screamed: "Anyone who thinks this can beat him" . . . Hudson, a pony boy, caught the horse and turned him over to his brother Sterling, who operated a small stable. Charles Leflkovitch became a lead pony until one day when racing secretary Jim Moore was appealing for entries to fill a program . . . Sterling Hudson protested: "I've entered every horse in the barn except my lead pony." . . . "If he's a thoroughbred, put him in," Moore insisted . . . So Charles Leflkovitch was entered and won by three lengths . . .

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Calgary, March 31 (CP)— How will the new Edmonton entry fare in the western football conference?

That is one of the major sport questions being bandied about in Alberta these days. Encouraging views of the ability of Edmonton to stand the western conference strain are being voiced by Coach Sandie Stubbs as he prepares to take charge of the new entry. It was 10 years ago that Edmonton's football team with collapse of the old Eskimos and Toronto's old Stukas is taking on the revival job.

The former Toronto Argonaut ace is letting everyone know the re-vitalized Eskimos plan to handle the football like a hot potato.

Sounding a note of warning to the Edmonton coach, Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamiel says every thing in that football strategy will work out to the satisfaction of Edmonton fans only as long as the football doesn't get too hot to handle.

"Like the supporters in most western cities, the Edmonton following doesn't care for a 50-yard gaining that ends in a fumble and the opposition wheeling it all the way back," the veteran Calgary sports observer writes.

Like Solid Stuff

"Out this way," continues Mamiel, "the customer goes for good, solid football with plenty of the unexpected. But a steady diet of laterals early soon leads to grief. Just like watching a game where every second play is a lateral and you have had the customer wishing for anything else and pacifying the manager of the quarterback when the next play is another heave, straight down the middle.

"That's just one reason why the fans have been clamoring for more forward passing and more open football. Edmonton will be the team to keep the line of scrimmage through of the plot. Joan Chandler plays the feminine lead expertly, while Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Constance Collier are wicks and Constance Collier are also prominently cast.

Evasion invests her role of the domestic with sharp clarity.

Held for retrials under Hitchcock's slick direction and filming makes "Rope" something out of the ordinary for thrills and excitement.

Highlighting three varied and entertaining bills with plenty of "The Calgary Stampede," a fast-action mystery-thriller, "Rope" comes to Technicolor.

The entire program will be repeated again tonight and Friday.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

We were having geogrifty in school and I was looking up at the ceeling thinking different thawts, and Shorty Judge was standing up to answ'r a question, and Miss Kitty said Benny Pots will please rise.

Which I did, thinking, Heck, and Miss Kitty said, Kindly tell the class whether Howerd's answ'r was correct or incorrect.

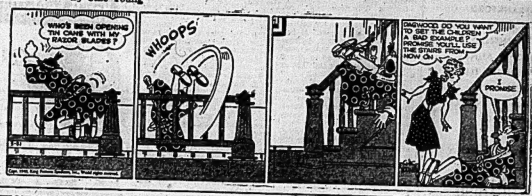
Incorrect, I said, and Miss Kitty said, And just why was his answ'r wrong?

Because he probably didn't study his lessons, I said, and she said, Have you any idea of what subject is under discussion?

Yes mam, geogrifty, I said, and you are so well informed. Judging by the way you were gazing up at the ceeling, I was under the impression that the chart we were discussing astronomy. You will remain after class and write a composition on the subject of Paying Attention, she said.

Which I did feeling against it, the composition being:

Paying Attention



Paying attention is a useful habit at all ages.

For instants if a boy 7 years old was skating along the side walk not paying any attention to where he was going on account of thinking about what he was going to have for supper, and a old man 97 years old was coming from the opposite direction without paying any attention either on account of thinking about his passed life, they would probably bump into each other and somebody mite get hurt, especially the old man probably pass each other without even touching if even only one of them was paying attention to where he was going, especialy This proves as long as a few people know enough to do the rite thing, the world will probet-

Leaders Express Strong Approval Of Atlantic Pact

Ottawa, March 31 (CP)—The conduct of Russia, parliament's handling of national finances and a western dust over eastern Canada came up for comment in the Senate Wednesday as it considered a variety of items.

Both Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, and Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative chief, expressed strong approval of the Atlantic Pact in discussing a resolution putting forward its principles for consideration.

Senator Robertson said the value of the treaty lay "in the moral trust we place in each of its intended signatories." It had also become necessary because Russia, in the United Nations, had shown that it intended to spread communism by using the U.N. as a shield.

Senator Haig warned that "there's no use denying it—Russia is getting ready for war . . . (but) they may not go to war if they know we are getting ready for them."

He said Canada should recognize her obligations under the military alliance. He had returned from the 1946 U.N. meeting "sick and discouraged" over the manner in which Russian delegates sought to use the body for their own ends.

The handling of the nation's federal budget came up as Senator Robertson proposed that the Senate find some way, probably through committee studies, of dealing in detail with the budget and estimates.

Meets with Approval

He offered this as an answer to perennial charges that the appropriations are dumped in the Senate's lap at the last minute. Senator Robertson suggested that committees could consider the items at the same time as the Commons does, rules or no rules.

Canadian Nets In U.S. Waters Seized by Police

Geneva, O., March 31 (AP)—Two raiding parties seized $4,000 worth of gill nets Canadian fishermen had allegedly placed in United States waters northwest of Ashtabula Harbor, Charles Mitchell, Ashtabula county game protector, announced Wednesday.

Mitchell reported he personally led one of two raiding parties. American fishing nets were commandeered for the purpose.

When the Canadian tug crew saw the United States tugs approaching, they cut the nets free and headed for Canada, Mitchell said.

Along with an estimated 30 boxes of nets hauled from the waters were about 1,600 pounds of whitefish trapped inside the twine. The fish, worth about $700, were given to the Ohio tug owners as compensation for their cooperation in the raid.

The seizure took place within sight of the Ohio shore and about 10 miles south of the international boundary line, Mitchell said. He said it was the first raid the conservation department has made in many years, but that raids would continue on Canadian nets placed in United States waters in violation of international agreement.

The Canadians may claim their nets by coming to Ohio to face court proceedings, Mitchell said.

Designer Recalls Life as Mountie

Glasgow, Scotland — (CP) — Gilbert (Slim) Lee, formerly of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, is in Glasgow designing dress models.

Lee, a Yorkshire man, took a course in textiles at Leeds University when he was 20. He was left some money then went to Canada and spent it.

He sank his last bank-roll into an oil-well that produced no oil, and then joined the Mounties.

Life in the force, he says, brought little but thrills. He visited other parts of the world trailing wanted men — and he always got his man.

"Best laugh I ever had," says Slim, "was when I trailed a man clear across Canada and lost him. I went back to Winnipeg and was about to report failure when I went into a restaurant for a meal. There was my man—and he even offered me a cigar."

Slim retired from the R.C.M.P. with the rank of inspector. Then, with his knowledge of fabrics, he became a designer and chief pattern-cutter for a leading fashion magazine in the United States.

He returned to Britain just before the Second World War was rejected by the armed forces and met and married Kay Hutchison of Bearsden, near Glasgow.

He recently started their own fashion business and, employing eight girls, they have as much work as they can handle.

STIRLING

Howard Ashley Celebrates His 88th Birthday

Stirling — Congratulations are extended to Mr. Howard Ashley, the oldest resident of Stirling, who on Wednesday, March 23rd, celebrated the 88th anniversary of his birth at his home on John St., where he lives with his daughter, Mrs. C. Tummon.

Mr. Ashley, who was born on a farm in Huntingdon Township, and lived there until his retirement some five years ago, enjoys good health, and is keenly interested in the current events. Always jovial and apparently in the best of spirits he has a kindly word of greeting to old and young alike, and is a familiar figure on the streets of the village.

He possesses a keen interest and takes an active part in the debates on current events by the local Board of Trade. A host of friends in Stirling and district join in wishing him continued good health and many more happy birthdays.

RAWDON

Rawdon — Mr. and Mrs. James Menzies received word of the death of their cousin, Rev. L. M. Sharp, Frankford, on Sunday, March 27th. The funeral service was held Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. H. C. Vaclavik, and Mr. Ross Hoard spent a couple of days last week in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Holmes, Marilyn, and Melburn, Kingston, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes.

Miss Alice Heasman, Belleville, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Nelson, at Wallbridge.

Mr. Jack McEathron, and Mr. James Menzies visited Mr. A. Clarke, and other friends at Warkworth on Tuesday. Mrs. Menzies spent the day with her daughter, Mrs. Cecil Nelson, at Campbellford.

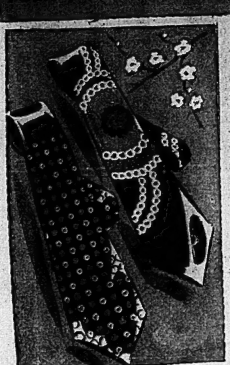
"Dad and I Both Think Syntona Is Grand Medicine"

Tells of Relief from Gas, Bloat, and Dizzy Spells. Also Heartburn and Throbbing Headaches That Had Troubled Her Several Years.

MRS. MARY STEINHOFF



Nearly every day you can read in the paper about local men and women who have obtained relief from common health disorders after using a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. Former sufferers of stomach disorders, sluggish kidneys and liver, nervousness, constipation or rheumatic aches and pains say Syntona has brought surprising results even after everything else they tried had failed to benefit them. Here, for example, is the experience of Mrs. Mary Steinhoff, Oil Springs, Ontario.

"I was having a bad time with digestion, gas and bloated stomach," said Mrs. Steinhoff. "I made me feel miserable very often. I would get so sick and dizzy spells. Sometimes I had terrible headaches and heartburn. Then my husband had used Syntona with such good results that I began taking it too. Now, for the first time in years, I enjoy regular relief from gas, bloat, and dizzy spells. I sleep well and feel fine. Dad and I think it is grand medicine and we have already recommended it to many of our friends."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.
